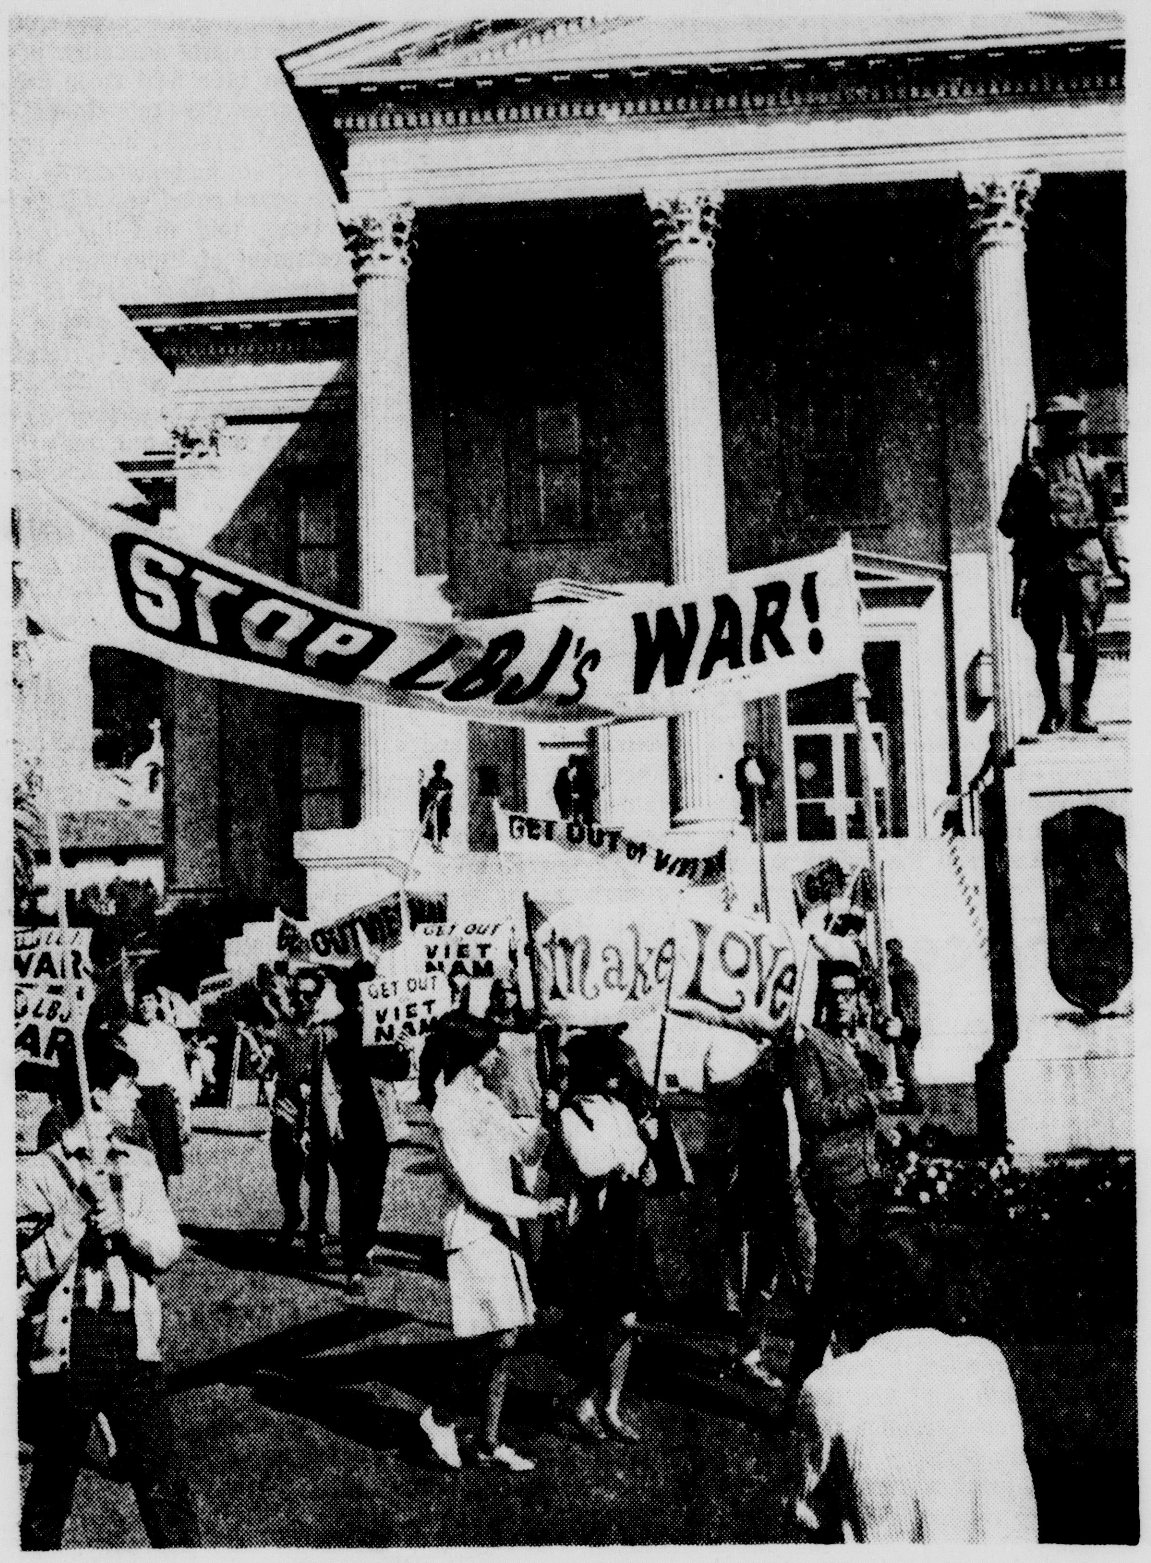
Marin Marchers Take Part In Nationwide Viet Protest



ANTI-WAR BANNERS AND SIGNS—Marin County residents joined others across the country today in a protest demonstration asking for an end to the war in Viet Nam. Unlike the demonstration across the Bay, in Berkeley, this display started quietly in front of the Marin County Courthouse in the shadow of the county's World War I memorial. The meeting was held with a permit from the County Board of Supervisors. Demonstrators heard Unitarian Minister Karel Boderman and San Francisco attorney Mrs. Beverly Axelrod.

Marchers, Hecklers Gather In Cities

NEW YORK (AP) — Marchers gathered on New York's Fifth Avenue today for a demonstration protesting U.S. involvement in Viet Nam. There were similar protests throughout the country.

In New York, the Young Americans for Freedom, a student group, said they would stage a counter-demonstration on the Fifth Avenue route.

The protest marchers also were mostly students and young people.

The nationwide marches yesterday and today were part of a weekend of protest organized by opponents of U.S. Viet Nam policy.

In New York City a student burned his draft card during a rally beside the armed forces induction center. He was one of the first to do so since such destruction was made a federal offense.

THROW EGGS

Hecklers threw eggs at 40 pickets in Chicago and there was a minor scuffle. A bystander smashed a placard carried by a marcher and tried to strike him, but a policeman stepped between them. There were no arrests.

Most of the demonstrators across the nation were college students, but their numbers were few in comparison to the enrollments of the schools they attend.

Between 500 and 1,000 students from across Oregon planned a protest rally today in Salem on the Capitol steps. Oregon Secretary of State Tom Mc-Call closed the Capitol to all but state employees.

RALLIES, PARADE

Across New England, rallies, demonstrations and parades are scheduled today at colleges. A veterans' group in Bennington, Vt., said it would hold a counterprotest when students from Bennington College join with Williams College students in a 17-mile march from Bennington to Williamstown, Mass.

Fifteen University of Rhode Island students began a 24-hour vigil Friday night.

There was little official reaction in Washington, although some sources said they fear the demonstrations will be interpreted overseas as evidence of widespread American opposition to the Viet Nam buildup.

Silent Circle Goes Around Memorial

Students, housewives and children walked in a silent circle around the war memorial to the dead of World War I outside San Rafael's courthouse today with banners proclaiming: "Down With LBJ's War" and "Make Love, Not War."

Several hundred people gathered to watch the start of a demonstration organized by the Marin Viet Nam Committee to protest the government's policy in Viet Nam.

Committee members passed out posters and car stickers as Neil Abercrombie of Mill Valley, committee chairman, called for support of the Viet Nam Day Committee's picketing of Oakland Army Base planned later today.

His brother, Hal Abercrombie of Tiburon was among those from Marin taking part in the protest teach-in and march at Berkeley and Oakland last night.

"We were gassed," he said, "Boy, that was something."

Lars Erickson, 24, of Lagunitas, a carpenter, explained why he was taking part in the Marin protest: "The Viet Nam business is a national crime," he said. "This sort of demonstration will be good if it only shows that we protest such policy."

At start, the demonstration was orderly. Among those watching was Marin County Sheriff, Louis P. Mountanos and other officers in plain clothes.

Down as scheduled speakers were Karel Botermans, of the Unitarian Church of Marin County, and attorney Mrs. Beverley Axelrod of San Francisco.

The protest attracted an anti-picket. Carrying a poster saying "Win in Viet Nam," Jim Smith, of San Anselmo said, "I'll walk up and down here as long as I have to."

WAITING FOR THE ACTION—Three demonstrators protesting the war in Viet Nam but dressed as revolutionary soldiers of a sort, wait yesterday in Berkeley while a child joins in for the start of the abortive march toward Oakland. The march was stopped at the Oakland city limit and turned back.

Police Think Mill Valley Fire Set

Mill Valley police and fire departments said today they believe a fire, which did $8,000 damage in the home of Pierre Arretche of 41 Locke Lane early this morning was deliberately set.

"From the little evidence which we already have we know that something was definitely wrong with the way the fire started. We feel sure it was set," said Chief Leslie Armager of the Mill Valley Fire Department.

Armager said the blaze broke out in the living room and bedroom of the single-story house. "The fire started in the bed and at the same time in the living room chairs and couch. The fires were at least 15 feet away from each other."

Police discovered the fire at 1:05 a.m. today, reported Armager. He said that no one was at home on arrival by the fire department.

Flames burned the living room walls and ceiling, and one spot in the floor, he said.

Member Resigns Gallinas Board

By ALAN ADELSON

Director Harry W. Thomas resigned from the board of the Gallinas Village Community Services District yesterday, saying he was disheartened by Thursday night's decision to reject all bids on a proposed park at Adrian and Rosal ways.

Thomas was the only board member to vote against rejection. Irate with what he called "those with the very muscular vocal areas," Thomas claimed that the board has been crippled by "a concerted effort of literary harassment, news releases and appeals to various county officials."

The vote to reject bids on the park was the result, he said today, of improper advice by Marin County Grand Jury Foreman George R. Scott. Scott asked for delay on the park until several charges of improper conduct of district business could be resolved.

"I told the board that Scott had overstepped his limits in making that counsel. I know of at least two votes Thursday which were based on Scott's advice."

Thomas, who is in favor of the proposal to landscape the corner lot at an expense originally estimated at $8,000 to $10,000, said opponents "have no feasible program for solution to the recreational needs of the community except 'we want a community center building'."

"The proposed park plan is only a holding action to make the land useable for recreation until people decide what they want to do with it. Planting in the park was largely limited in the plan to the perimeters, so that if later a pool or building were to be added, it could be done easily. Right now the place is just a dump," Thomas added today.

Closing his letter of resignation, Thomas said, "I leave the field of battle; you waste my time and talents . . . Man deserves the government he gets—get on with your own program. After 11 years there should be something on the park sites."

Fire Station Work Shut In Dispute

Disagreement over whether the Novato Fire District must have a building permit yesterday caused a stoppage of work on the San Marin fire station.

Sailor Committed To State Hospital

SAN DIEGO (UPI)—A sailor, accused of attempting to kidnap newspaper publisher John P. Scripps, has been sent to Atascadero State Mental Hospital.

Guy Warinner, 19, Los Angeles, was ordered committed to the institution for an indefinite period by Superior Court Judge William Glen who ruled him insane.

5,000 Berkeley Marchers Halted En Route To Oakland Army Base

BERKELEY, Calif. (UPI)—More than 5,000 foes of U.S. involvement in Viet Nam spent the chilly night in Berkeley's Constitution Square after police and hostile onlookers blocked their mach toward the Oakland Army Base.

Their night-long vigil was briefly interrupted at midnight when a small tear-gas bomb was thrown into their midst. Police blamed it on a heckler and said one girl had been sent to the hospital with an eye injury. Officers also broke up a scuffle between the demonstrators and bystanders early today but there were no arrests.

The decision to turn back was made last night in a bizarre scene at the Oakland city limits illuminated by candles, neon and street lights. The paraders met an estimated 1,000 citizens and 400 helmeted Oakland officers and decided to retreat rather than risk a riot.

Leaders of the sponsoring Viet Nam Day Committee said another march might be tried today.

The all-night stay at Constitution Square climaxed yesterday's largest in a series of nationwide demonstrations against U.S. policy in Southeast Asia.

It started on the Berkeley campus with a "teach-in" at

San Rafael Second, Third Streets One-Way Tomorrow

At 7 a.m. tomorrow in San Rafael, Second and Third streets will become one-way, with Second Street eastbound and Third Street westbound.

The change will be tied in with recent construction near Highway 101 changing the traffic pattern under the viaduct, blocking some streets and adding others. Final work on a new on-ramp southbound will not be completed for several days, however.

Because the route of the new on-ramp is not yet fenced, San Rafael High School officials yesterday said they were worried that students would try to cross the ramp and go under the viaduct at Irwin Street on their way to school.

Students walking to High School from the Bret Harte area have been asked to walk down Lincoln Avenue to Third Street, and then turn east, although this is about two blocks longer. There are no adequate sidewalks on shorter routes.

The confused crossing under the viaduct at Irwin Street and Francisco Boulevard will be eliminated. On Thursday state officials closed Irwin Street south of the Northwestern Pacific Railroad tracks west of Highway 101, and closed Francisco Boulevard south of Irwin Street, west of the highway.

Francisco Boulevard between Second Street and Irwin Street is due to be closed when the new on-ramp is paved, possibly late Monday.

Stoplights on the new one-way street will have their timing changed to make them approximately synchronized for one-way traffic. However, installation of a fully automatic synchronized system is still in the future.

All Stitches Are Removed From Johnson

WASHINGTON (AP) — Doctors removed all the stitches from President Johnson's abdomen today and reported "all went well."

Asst. Press Secretary Joseph Laitin reported the stitches, which closed the incision made after a gall bladder operation last week, were removed after an early breakfast. Dr. George A. Hallenbeck of Mayo Clinic, chief surgeon at the operation, supervised removal of the stitches.

Also scheduled for the President today was a dental checkup, a matter of convenience because of the time available during his hopsitalization.

Laitin said, "It is just a routine dental checkup," having no relation to last week's operation.

It was the ninth day since the President underwent surgery and his recuperation was continuing to go on schedule.

Indonesia Is Moving To Outlaw Red Party

JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP) — Indonesia's highest policy decision-making body today banned all activities by political groups involved in the Sept. 30 coup attempt against President Sukarno.

Diplomatic observers said the temporary suspension could be a prelude to outlawing the Indonesian Communist party — PKI — and its affiliates.

The order was issued by KOTI, the supreme operations command, and was signed by Brig. Gen. Sutjipto, although Sukarno heads KOTI and usually issues such orders.

Sukarno met with his cabinet yesterday and Information Minister Maj. Gen. Achmadi told newsmen the 64-year-old president said the "destruction and burning" in the capital must stop before he can solve the political crisis stemming from the coup attempt.

Last week, Moslem youths burned the Communist party headquarters and on Thursday demonstrators burned down the pro-Peking Chinese University. At least 30 persons were wounded when demonstrators clashed with Chinese students.

Sukarno formally installed Maj. Gen. Suharto as the new army chief of staff, then turned to him and said: "As army commander and minister, I order you" to restore order.

Grim-faced and angry, Sukarno shouted a demand that the army prevent "agitated emotion from either left or right." Observers said this seemed to refer to the army's anti-Communist campaign.

Suharto was named army chief and cabinet minister by Sukarno last Thursday. The anti-Communist general led the forces that crushed the coup.

Guam Bombers Again Hit Reds In South Viet Nam

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — Giant U.S. Air Force B-52 bombers staged another raid in South Viet Nam today while South Vietnamese troops and the Viet Cong exchanged ambushes.

The B-52s from Guam hit a suspected Viet Cong logistics complex in the northern coastal province of Quang Ngai 330 miles northeast of Saigon.

On the ground, government troops said they killed 88 Viet Cong guerrillas in scattered clashes but only 38 were confirmed by body count.

In a heavy fight in the Mekong River delta, 155 miles southwest of Saigon, a government unit ambushed about 100 guerrillas in An Xuyen Province and reported that 28 had been killed. No government casualties were reported.

A Communist force of undetermined size inflicted heavy casualties yesterday in an ambush near the Cambodian border, 120 miles west of Saigon. The government unit said 50 guerrillas were killed.

Woman Falls Five Stories

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A 20-year-old Guerneville woman was in critical condition today after she fell five floors from a San Francisco balcony.

Karyn Kaplin and her escort, Gene Francheschi, 24, also from Guerneville, were attending a party at 3649 Market Street.

"She was sitting on the railing," Francheschi said, "and lost her balance. She fell five floors, bounced off two roofs and hit a fence."

Doctors at Mission Emergency Hospital said she was in "very poor condition."

They're All Smiles Because Their Number Was Up!

Mr. and Mrs. David Cline of Mill Valley, lifelong residents of Marin County, this week won a 419.95 Airline color television set by discovering a lucky number (one of hundreds) posted in Montgomery Wards Appliance Department during the final four days of the store's annual WARD WEEK SALE. It matched the number printed on the Wards circular that the couple received in the mail. Mr. Cline, who works for the Mill Valley Street Department, was one of dozens of local winners in this exciting number game held at MONTGOMERY WARD, in Corte Madera Center!

WIRE NEWS BRIEFS From Everywhere

More Fleeing Cubans Expected

KEY WEST, Fla. (UPI) — Increased numbers of Coast Guard vessels plied the Florida Straits today to assist an expected weekend exodus of Cubans bidding adios to life under Fidel Castro.

The Coast Guard yesterday escorted or towed to port here five small boats which brought 66 more Cuban refugees to freedom.

Yesterday's arrivals swelled to 334 the number of Cubans arriving here since Castro initiated his new "open door" policy.

The total does not include 62 exile crewmen who sailed boats from here to Cuba and back to bring out their relatives.

REFUGEES OF KASHMIR WAR

A Moslem woman and child waited yesterday for food and help in a refugee camp outside Muzaffarabad, capital of Azid Kashmir. Thousands of Moslems have fled or been driven from the India-held port of Kashmir, near the cease-fire line, since the start of the India-Pakistan war. (AP Wirephoto)

Air Force Rocket Muffs Chance For Space Record

CAPE KENNEDY (UPI) — The new Air Force Titan-3C super rocket muffed its chance to perform a record string of space maneuvers yesterday and in the process one of its two satellites was disabled.

The powerful military space booster followed its program for the first 56 minutes of flight by zooming into orbit and then switching to another. But then it ran into trouble.

Instead of firing a third time to shoot a radiation exploring satellite into a higher orbit, the Titan's third stage suddenly developed an end over end tumble in space and remained in the same 460-mile-high orbit.

The tumbling apparently prevented the 375-pound scientific satellite from being kicked away from the crippled rocket. Without that separation, the satellite was unable to work.

Delay In U.S. Program Hit By Rafferty

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Dr. Max Rafferty, state superintendent of public instruction, denied that any federal education program has been held up in California after the State Board of Education directed him to give the program highest priority.

The board acted yesterday after being told that the State Department of Eduucation had not assigned office space to an administrator of the program.

Rafferty was asked to report back in one week on what action has been taken to expedite $78 million in federal aid from the Elementary and Secondary Education Act of 1965.

The program compensates schools providing special services for children 5-17 who are culturally, socially and economically disadvantaged.

Reached by telephone, Rafferty said he was prepared to answer any special charges leveled at him.

"The board may have to hire people on the spur of the moment but, unfortunately, the hiring of personnel is regulated by civil service procedures," the superintendent said.

Rafferty added no one had complained to him previously about the way things were going.

But he said he was not surprised by the board's action.

"It's household knowledge that the board has been on my back since 1962," he said.

Schoonmaker Gets U.S. Contracts

A. G. Schoonmaker Co., of Sausalito, manufacturer of diesel engine power plants, has been awarded government contracts worth $2,750,000 since Sept. 1, T. L. Schoonmaker, president, said yesterday.

The company is currently expanding its test and production facilities to meet these and other anticipated contracts, he said.

All Stitches Are Removed From Johnson

WASHINGTON (AP) — Doctors removed all the stitches from President Johnson's abdomen today and reported "all went well."

Asst. Press Secretary Joseph Laitin reported the stitches, which closed the incision made after a gall bladder operation last week, were removed after an early breakfast. Dr. George A. Hallenbeck of Mayo Clinic, chief surgeon at the operation, supervised removal of the stitches.

Also scheduled for the President today was a dental checkup, a matter of convenience because of the time available during his hopsitalization.

Laitin said, "It is just a routine dental checkup," having no relation to last week's operation.

It was the ninth day since the President underwent surgery and his recuperation was continuing to go on schedule.

Indonesia Is Moving To Outlaw Red Party

JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP) — Indonesia's highest policy decision-making body today banned all activities by political groups involved in the Sept. 30 coup attempt against President Sukarno.

Diplomatic observers said the temporary suspension could be a prelude to outlawing the Indonesian Communist party — PKI — and its affiliates.

The order was issued by KOTI, the supreme operations command, and was signed by Brig. Gen. Sutjipto, although Sukarno heads KOTI and usually issues such orders.

Sukarno met with his cabinet yesterday and Information Minister Maj. Gen. Achmadi told newsmen the 64-year-old president said the "destruction and burning" in the capital must stop before he can solve the political crisis stemming from the coup attempt.

Last week, Moslem youths burned the Communist party headquarters and on Thursday demonstrators burned down the pro-Peking Chinese University. At least 30 persons were wounded when demonstrators clashed with Chinese students.

Sukarno formally installed Maj. Gen. Suharto as the new army chief of staff, then turned to him and said: "As army commander and minister, I order you" to restore order.

Grim-faced and angry, Sukarno shouted a demand that the army prevent "agitated emotion from either left or right." Observers said this seemed to refer to the army's anti-Communist campaign.

Suharto was named army chief and cabinet minister by Sukarno last Thursday. The anti-Communist general led the forces that crushed the coup.

Guam Bombers Again Hit Reds In South Viet Nam

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — Giant U.S. Air Force B-52 bombers staged another raid in South Viet Nam today while South Vietnamese troops and the Viet Cong exchanged ambushes.

The B-52s from Guam hit a suspected Viet Cong logistics complex in the northern coastal province of Quang Ngai 330 miles northeast of Saigon.

On the ground, government troops said they killed 88 Viet Cong guerrillas in scattered clashes but only 38 were confirmed by body count.

In a heavy fight in the Mekong River delta, 155 miles southwest of Saigon, a government unit ambushed about 100 guerrillas in An Xuyen Province and reported that 28 had been killed. No government casualties were reported.

A Communist force of undetermined size inflicted heavy casualties yesterday in an ambush near the Cambodian border, 120 miles west of Saigon. The government unit said 50 guerrillas were killed.

Woman Falls Five Stories

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A 20-year-old Guerneville woman was in critical condition today after she fell five floors from a San Francisco balcony.

Karyn Kaplin and her escort, Gene Francheschi, 24, also from Guerneville, were attending a party at 3649 Market Street.

"She was sitting on the railing," Francheschi said, "and lost her balance. She fell five floors, bounced off two roofs and hit a fence."

Doctors at Mission Emergency Hospital said she was in "very poor condition."

Warehouse, Dock Asked For Island

The state should purchase about a half acre of land in Tiburon and build a small warehouse and dock for state workers at Angel Island, the division of Beaches and Parks staff has recommended.

The division staff, at a meeting of the State Park Commission Thursday, said the project could not now be incorporated into a plan to secure open waterfront in Tiburon and to establish a small park there.

The idea would be laudable, the report said, but not possible now. Any project would, however, be compatible with a park development later. Plans call for using land near the old Northwestern Pacific Railroad ferry slip.

The commission did not act on the report. Commissioners did vote to have the problem of damage to plants on the island by deer turned over to the Department of Fish and Game for study.

Quentin Film Due Showing To Italians

Television viewers in Italy, which has no capital punishment, will soon be seeing and hearing two inmates of San Quentin's Death Row as they express their feelings as they wait for execution.

The inmates were filmed yesterday by an Italian TV camera crew visiting the prison collecting material for a documentary on capital punishment.

An interview was also filmed with Warden Lawrence E. Wilson and shots were taken of the twin chairs in the execution chamber.

More Mental Treatment Set

Jaime Sandoval must continue mental treatment in San Quentin Prison indefinitely, Judge Louis B. Dematteis of San Mateo County Superior Court ruled Thursday. Sandoval, 35, imprisoned after his 1961 conviction of lewd acts with two teenagers, has been judged a sexual psychopath.

Sandoval figured in the strange deaths in 1960 of Mrs. Virginia Douglas in Puerto Rico and her husband, Donald A. Douglas, an apparent suicide, a month later in a car in Lucas Valley. Mrs. Douglas vanished over a sea cliff.

The teen-agers in the criminal action were the Douglas's sons.

The $13 billion spent last year on highway improvement in the United States was paid for entirely by the nation's motorists.

Hub Chamber Directors Hit Route

San Anselmo Chamber of Commerce directors Thursday unanimously passed a resolution stating they are "not in favor of a freeway route . . . which would encroach on San Anselmo's downtown business area."

The directors gave "concern with economic welfare as well as aesthetic considerations" as reasons for their opposition to the routing of the proposed state highway 17 through their town.

The resolution, directed to the state division of highways, urged that division to "use all its facilities to arrive at an expeditious solution to the route 17 problem."

The chamber also passed a resolution concerning supervisor Thomas T. Storer's proposal for the use of ferry boats for commuter service.

However, chamber secretary manager Mrs. Philip Haley refused to disclose content of the resolution, saying the board wished it mailed to the supervisor before it was made public information.

Marin College Lunch Conditions Attacked

College of Marin students who take their lunch snacks in the campus cafeteria are being forced to make the best of their repast amidst some pretty unappetizing conditions, the college's student executive council claims.

Cups, napkins and paper wrappers litter the tabies and floors of the small and crowded building. The floor is spotted with grime which is a mixture of spilled liquids and cigarette ashes.

These charges were made at a meeting of the student executive council this week.

John Bricht, acting chairman of the council, pointed out that conditions may be difficult to correct as the cafeteria is more or less in limbo.

Cafeteria facilities are scheduled to move into the nearly completed campus center sometime this semester. The college district might not want to waste money on the old building, Bricht said.

Council representatives decided to take two approaches:

They will try to get students to police the area themselves, and they will ask college business manager Norman Bird to improve the conditions.

Bird yesterday admitted that "certainly the building and the facilities are below desirable standards," but the biggest problem is that the building is just too small.

"During the noon hour especially," he said, "the room is so crowded . . . there are students moving around with drinks in their hands, bumping into each other and sloshing some of their drinks over onto the floor."

One of the biggest complaints of the executive council was the lack of adequate ashtrays. Students pointed to burns in the linoleum floor and suggested there would be fewer of them if there were more ash trays.

Bird said aluminum tins have been supplies as ash trays. "If more ash trays or waste disposal containers will help the situation, we will certainly get some more," he said.

He estimated the students would be into the shiny and spacious new campus center shortly after Christmas.

Library Building Still On Schedule

Some of the precast aggregate walls for the new public library in Mill Valley are poured and being cured and, weather permitting, the first walls are to be tilted up early in November.

The lower floor slab has been completed, the walls are curing on the slab and all of the steel work necessary for reinforcing the building is expected to be completed next week.

"The builders are pretty much on schedule," Mrs. John P. Farnham, library board president, reported today. Tentative date of completion is April 11.

The board, meeting Thursday night, discussed plans for the new library's opening but took no action, Mrs. Farnham said.

State Stalls Decision On Tam Unification

Next month's meeting will be held Nov. 10 and 11 in Los Angeles.

Waterfront Development On Tiburon Plan Agenda

Application by Tiburon Tidelands Co. for a use permit for waterfront development between Main Street and the Northwestern Pacific Railroad ferry slip has been placed on Monday night's Tiburon Planning Commission agenda.

The meeting is set for 8 p.m. at Del Mar School.

On Thursday, Tidelands president Robert Moor and his wife, Nella, filed a $1,750,000 suit against the city of Tiburon and six city officials. The suit claims harrassment in the firm's attempt to obtain a use permit for the proposed development.

Damages are sought from the city, Mayor Gordon W. Strawbridge, Councilman Anne L. Ellinwood, planning commissioners Stephen H. Nash and Peter Macgowan., City Mgr. Lawrence D. Rose and planning administrator Leslie Gross.

Gross said yesterday the application, for an 180-berth yacht harbor and restaurant-shop complex, was placed on the agenda under an ordinance passed by the city council Sept. 13. The new ordinance provides that any use permit request is automatically approved if it is not acted upon by the planning commission within 40 days after the application is filed.

Tiburon Tideland's application was filed on Feb. 1. City Atty. Robert I. Conn said the ordinance would mean automatic approval 40 days after passage of requests which were filed before its adoption. That 40 days expires next Friday.

Warehouse, Dock Asked For Island

The state should purchase about a half acre of land in Tiburon and build a small warehouse and dock for state workers at Angel Island, the division of Beaches and Parks staff has recommended.

The division staff, at a meeting of the State Park Commission Thursday, said the project could not now be incorporated into a plan to secure open waterfront in Tiburon and to establish a small park there.

The idea would be laudable, the report said, but not possible now. Any project would, however, be compatible with a park development later. Plans call for using land near the old Northwestern Pacific Railroad ferry slip.

The commission did not act on the report. Commissioners did vote to have the problem of damage to plants on the island by deer turned over to the Department of Fish and Game for study.

Quentin Film Due Showing To Italians

Television viewers in Italy, which has no capital punishment, will soon be seeing and hearing two inmates of San Quentin's Death Row as they express their feelings as they wait for execution.

The inmates were filmed yesterday by an Italian TV camera crew visiting the prison collecting material for a documentary on capital punishment.

An interview was also filmed with Warden Lawrence E. Wilson and shots were taken of the twin chairs in the execution chamber.

More Mental Treatment Set

Jaime Sandoval must continue mental treatment in San Quentin Prison indefinitely, Judge Louis B. Dematteis of San Mateo County Superior Court ruled Thursday. Sandoval, 35, imprisoned after his 1961 conviction of lewd acts with two teenagers, has been judged a sexual psychopath.

Sandoval figured in the strange deaths in 1960 of Mrs. Virginia Douglas in Puerto Rico and her husband, Donald A. Douglas, an apparent suicide, a month later in a car in Lucas Valley. Mrs. Douglas vanished over a sea cliff.

The teen-agers in the criminal action were the Douglas's sons.

The $13 billion spent last year on highway improvement in the United States was paid for entirely by the nation's motorists.

Bridge Lessons

A series of eight lessons in beginning bridge will begin Monday at 8 p.m. at the Marin Jewish Community Center, 1618 Mission Street, San Rafael. Registration for the series will be taken at the door, said Marvin Bienstock, center director.

Hub Chamber Directors Hit Route

San Anselmo Chamber of Commerce directors Thursday unanimously passed a resolution stating they are "not in favor of a freeway route . . . which would encroach on San Anselmo's downtown business area."

The directors gave "concern with economic welfare as well as aesthetic considerations" as reasons for their opposition to the routing of the proposed state highway 17 through their town.

The resolution, directed to the state division of highways, urged that division to "use all its facilities to arrive at an expeditious solution to the route 17 problem."

The chamber also passed a resolution concerning supervisor Thomas T. Storer's proposal for the use of ferry boats for commuter service.

However, chamber secretary manager Mrs. Philip Haley refused to disclose content of the resolution, saying the board wished it mailed to the supervisor before it was made public information.

Marin College Lunch Conditions Attacked

College of Marin students who take their lunch snacks in the campus cafeteria are being forced to make the best of their repast amidst some pretty unappetizing conditions, the college's student executive council claims.

Cups, napkins and paper wrappers litter the tabies and floors of the small and crowded building. The floor is spotted with grime which is a mixture of spilled liquids and cigarette ashes.

These charges were made at a meeting of the student executive council this week.

John Bricht, acting chairman of the council, pointed out that conditions may be difficult to correct as the cafeteria is more or less in limbo.

Cafeteria facilities are scheduled to move into the nearly completed campus center sometime this semester. The college district might not want to waste money on the old building, Bricht said.

Council representatives decided to take two approaches:

They will try to get students to police the area themselves, and they will ask college business manager Norman Bird to improve the conditions.

Bird yesterday admitted that "certainly the building and the facilities are below desirable standards," but the biggest problem is that the building is just too small.

"During the noon hour especially," he said, "the room is so crowded . . . there are students moving around with drinks in their hands, bumping into each other and sloshing some of their drinks over onto the floor."

One of the biggest complaints of the executive council was the lack of adequate ashtrays. Students pointed to burns in the linoleum floor and suggested there would be fewer of them if there were more ash trays.

Bird said aluminum tins have been supplies as ash trays. "If more ash trays or waste disposal containers will help the situation, we will certainly get some more," he said.

He estimated the students would be into the shiny and spacious new campus center shortly after Christmas.

Library Building Still On Schedule

Some of the precast aggregate walls for the new public library in Mill Valley are poured and being cured and, weather permitting, the first walls are to be tilted up early in November.

The lower floor slab has been completed, the walls are curing on the slab and all of the steel work necessary for reinforcing the building is expected to be completed next week.

"The builders are pretty much on schedule," Mrs. John P. Farnham, library board president, reported today. Tentative date of completion is April 11.

The board, meeting Thursday night, discussed plans for the new library's opening but took no action, Mrs. Farnham said.

State Stalls Decision On Tam Unification

Action on the proposed creation of three unified school districts in the area of the Tamalpais Union High School District was deferred for a month Thursday by the State Board of Education, meeting in San Francisco.

Next month's meeting will be held Nov. 10 and 11 in Los Angeles.

Waterfront Development On Tiburon Plan Agenda

Application by Tiburon Tidelands Co. for a use permit for waterfront development between Main Street and the Northwestern Pacific Railroad ferry slip has been placed on Monday night's Tiburon Planning Commission agenda.

The meeting is set for 8 p.m. at Del Mar School.

On Thursday, Tidelands president Robert Moor and his wife, Nella, filed a $1,750,000 suit against the city of Tiburon and six city officials. The suit claims harrassment in the firm's attempt to obtain a use permit for the proposed development.

Damages are sought from the city, Mayor Gordon W. Strawbridge, Councilman Anne L. Ellinwood, planning commissioners Stephen H. Nash and Peter Macgowan., City Mgr. Lawrence D. Rose and planning administrator Leslie Gross.

Gross said yesterday the application, for an 180-berth yacht harbor and restaurant-shop complex, was placed on the agenda under an ordinance passed by the city council Sept. 13. The new ordinance provides that any use permit request is automatically approved if it is not acted upon by the planning commission within 40 days after the application is filed.

Tiburon Tideland's application was filed on Feb. 1. City Atty. Robert I. Conn said the ordinance would mean automatic approval 40 days after passage of requests which were filed before its adoption. That 40 days expires next Friday.

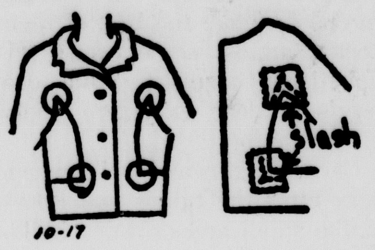
Test Pattern By Making Sample Of Pretty Print

By EUNICE FARMER



Just as it offends my soul to waste food and other worldly goods, so it offends me to waste time. If you are unsure of the fit of a garment or the style, instead of making it in muslin first, why not make it out of pretty print that you can often find for 25 to 50 cents a yard on sale, muslin costs the same.

With the bargain yardage, you will have something to wear after putting in the labor on the dress. If it doesn't turn out right and you don't want to use the pattern for your good material, you are out only a little time and a few cents and still have the garment to wear around the house.

Mrs. Henry Fox, Charleston, W. Va., is being awarded this week's Tailor Trix pressing board for this suggestion.

PLEASE TELL your readers about my sad experience in using newspaper under and over material that was difficult to cut. I later found that some of the print from the newspaper had come off on my material and could not be removed.

The heavier paper is the answer when cutting sheer fabrics, but it should be brown wrapping paper or plain white tissue paper.

Mrs. M. B.

I AM OFTEN troubled with buttonholes which draw the interfacing too tight. What am I doing wrong? This has ruined the effect of my suits.

Mrs. D. G.

Dear Mrs. D. G.:

My instructions for bound buttonholes suggest placing a layer of light weight organdy on the wrong side of your fabric as a backing for the buttonholes. After they are made, you will cut the organdy away very close to the buttonhole.

The next step after pressing is to place interfacing over the buttonholes and, after it has been stitched into the front seams, carefully cut a rectangle through the interfacing and bring the buttonhole welts through the interfacing. This not only will act as an anchor for the buttonholes, but will fit nicely under the welts and prevent any pulling or puckering of the interfacing.

I HAVE encountered great problems with patterns that have a separate section that fits into the side of a suit without set-in sleeves. It is something like a gusset but, since it shows very plainly, it must be neat. Mine simply isn't. Can you help with some extra instructions?

Mrs. V. G.

Dear Mrs. V. G.:

This definitely is "gusset type detail" similar to setting a godet into a skirt, and is like many other details that require clipping one section in order to fit another in place.

If you follow these instructions you shouldn't have too much trouble from now on.

1. Reinforce the area that is to be slashed by placing a small square of firm, light-weight cotton on the wrong side of your garment. Machine stitch 1 inch on each side of the exact spot to be clipped or slashed. (a)

2. Slash, as pattern directs, to the very last reinforced stitch.

3. Begin pinning ONE section at a time. Always pin and stitch toward the slashed area first. The section that was slashed will be FACE-UP and have a seamline that begins ⅝ inch wide and tapers to nothing at the point of the slash. The under section of the garment will have a uniform ⅝-inch seam allowance.

4. As you machine stitch, hold the point at the end of the slash securely over the corresponding mark on the under section with a large needle (this prevents slipping). If it should slip while you are stitching, you will have a rounded, poorly shaped area instead of a perfect square or point. Machine stitches should be much smaller on either side of the slashed area.

5. Remove from sewing machine, check to see that the first stitching line is perfect, then pin and stitch the section that begins at the slash and continues to end of seam.

Tea, Shower Fete Bride-Elect

By MOLLY MARIN

Bride-elect Kathryn Kagan of San Rafael was honored at an afternoon tea and miscellaneous shower held at the Oakview Club at The Meadows. Kathy will marry Lt. Charles W. Donaldson of Sonora this winter.

Hostesses were the Mesdames Robert E. Shortridge, Michael Looper, Carl Zimmerman and William Zimmerman.

Attending the shower were Kathy, her mother, Mrs. Victor Kagan, her sisters, Vickie and Krissy Kagan, and her maternal grandmother, Mrs. M. E. Harlan of San Francisco. Family friends, Mrs. Ray Remy of Pasadena and Mrs. Louis Pollack of San Francisco came to Marin for the party.

OTHER GUESTS were the Mesdames Arthur Sauter, Jordan Dell' Era, Samuel Holloway, Robert Evju, C. W. Redman, Willard Hall, Leonard Schmitz, John Flint, S. K. Herzog, William Atchley, Arthur Shallocks, Gedge Knopf, Alex Miller, William Upton, Berne Holman, Thomas Geary, Robert Wilhelm, Jack Gazzola, Daniel Mezzetta, Charles Rosenbaum and Miss Marti Shortridge.

Plans for the wedding of the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Kagan are dependent upon the assignment of the future bridegroom, who is in the regular Army, and now taking special training at Fort Knox. Kathy is a senior at the University of California at Berkeley. Her fiance was graduated from the University in 1962.

MR. AND MRS. Frank Abbott III, and Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Relfe are co-hosting a Kent Woodlands group at the Abbotts tomorrow to interest new members in the Marin Symphony Guild. This is one of a number of gatherings in the county this month during the Guild's annual membership drive for which Mrs. Abbott and Mrs. Relfe serve as area chairmen.

WHILE ABOARD the S. S. Monterey en route to the South Sea Islands, New Zealand, Australia and Honolulu, Mrs. Robert Quinlan will have an opportunity to indulge in her two favorite hobbies—painting and golf. Marin artist Warren Brandon will give art instruction during the cruise and Colin Campbell, champion Australia golfer will give golf lessons.

Mrs. Quinlan will be accompanied by Mrs. Paul Hammel of Carson City, Nev. They will leave the ship to visit points of interest in New Zealand and fly to Melbourne where they will visit Mr. and Mrs. Harry Transue, former Marin residents. On the return voyage, they will stop off at Honolulu for a reunion with Mrs. Quinlan's niece and her husband, Major and Mrs. Turner Croonquist and their four children.

Several parties are being planned for Mrs. Quinlan before her departure. Hostesses will be Mesdames Elbert M. Brown and Rinaldo Belli; William J. Dawson and Edward Byard.

To welcome Mrs. Quinlan on her return just in time for the holiday season, Mrs. Harrison Leppo of Mill Valley, is planning a party.

Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Blount, former Marin neighbors of Mrs. Quinlan, will occupy her home during her absence.

COMMANDER AND MRS. John H. Mundo of Inverness have just returned from an 11,000-mile cross-country trip. They visited National Parks en route and spent some time in Florida. They were amused to find trained seals from California cavorting at St. Petersburg's Marineland.

Mrs. Mundo has recently retired from the Marin County Library staff. The couple are leaving Marin at the end of the month to take up residence at Leisure Town, Walnut Creek.

'Elegance Casualle' Is Planned By LARK

The Marin LARK (Ladies Aid Retarded Children) will hold a fashion show on Nov. 4 at La Petite Auberge Restaurant in San Rafael.

Mrs. George Kerson is president and Mrs. Melvin Warenbeck chairman for the "Elegance Casualle" luncheon show.

Members of the Mannequin League of Marin will model for the event.

Untermeyer Lights A Torch For Poetry

By BRYCE W. ANDERSON

While a larger crowd was more demonstrative in its enthusiasm at a high school game on the adjacent football field, about 300 in College of Marin's Olney Hall listened in rapt attention for an hour and a half last night to an 80-year-old man discussing and reading poetry.

When he was through, they applauded long and lustily, and lingered in their seats. They did not want to let him go. He had touched their hearts.

He was no ordinary 80-year-old. He was Louis Untermeyer, he has devoted most of a long life to the verse of England and America, with the result that his anthologies sit beside Shakespeare and the Bible on millions of bookshelves.

He proved to the young and old gathered for the fifth of the college's concert and lecture series that poets may be urbane and witty, and poetry a thing to laugh at (and with) while it ennobles the reader or listener.

His subject was listed as "What Makes Modern Poetry Modern?" It could as well have been "What Makes Modern Poetry Poetry?"

He found the key in Robert Frost ("one of the three great American poets of this century"), E. E. Cummings, T. S. Eliot, Phyllis McGinley and Dylan Thomas, and he read selections from all.

The difference between modern and traditional poetry, said Untermeyer, is "the curious breakdown between what we used to call light verse and poetry," resulting in "playfulness actually merged with profundity." Its key, he discovered, is in experimentation and protest.

Cummings, most controversial of those from whom he read, "makes a queer layout" on the printed page "on the theory that people read poetry too lazily."

However, "except for a few typographical barriers, it becomes a very beautiful poem," he said. "Maybe in poetry we need signs on how to read, as we have in music."

He read from his own poems, too, demonstrating that "poetry exists in everything."

To win the audience, he opened with wisecracks at his own expense, relating that "I am the oldest living non-graduate of Dewitt Clinton High School in New York."

On his 80th birthday last week, he said, "the class of 1903 at Dewitt Clinton gave a dinner at which I was presented my high school diploma; there aren't many people who get a high school diploma on their 80th birthdays."

From there — with the audience in the palm of his hand and wrapped in the sound of his sometimes-cracking voice — he went on to anecdotes of Frost, his great favorite and longtime friend, and to discussion of poetry as probably few in the audience had heard it discussed before.

By then, everyone in the crowd was his friend.

A woman was intrigued by his reference to Frost as one of "the three great American poets of the century." Who were the others? she asked.

"I'm glad you asked that," said Untermeyer. His answer: Walt Whitman and Emily Dickinson.

"Any nation," said Untermeyer, "would be proud to produce these three great poets in a century."

There will probably be a run on Frost, Whitman and Dickinson at the public libraries in Marin next week.

were being taken at military installations, target of some demonstrations.

The Defense Department said, in answer to a question, that "advisory messages have been sent to all military installations in the United States and overseas" concerning possible demonstrations during the weekend.

These messages, a spokesman said, "confirmed previous standing instruction . . ."

These procedures, he said, vary with the type of base.

In Geneva, N.Y., an assistant vice president of the University of California said today students would do better to try to achieve their goals by self-discipline.

Garrison H. Davidson, a retired Army general, spoke of last fall's Berkeley demonstrations which he said were "not a question of freedom of speech but rather lack of respect for constituted authority."

Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor said in Chicago — as 100 pickets paraded outside — that he is personally "indifferent" to the demonstrations.

Telephone Service Still Out Today

Telephone service had not been restored at noon today to some of the 175 businesses and 400 homes cut off yesterday when underground lines encased in concrete under Francisco Boulevard, San Rafael, were cut by crews working on lines for the Marin Municipal Water District.

Telephone company officials said today they did not know how many lines had been restored, but said most of them had, and all would be by tomorrow.

which speakers denounced U.S. foreign policy.

The VDC had planned to walk the 7½ miles from Berkeley to Oakland Army Base to continue its protest outside the base. The VDC planned no civil disobedience, such as blocking of exits, but said one of its "major goals" would be to talk to soldiers.

This aspect brought a sharp statement by Alameda County Dist. Atty. J. Frank Coakley who said that attempts to persuade soldiers to disobey orders "smack of treason and could constitute a felonious and seditious violation of federal law."

City officials of Berkeley and Oakland rejected the group's request for parade permits and two federal courts quickly upheld the decision.

Leaper Report Brings Search

Coast Guard searched for over an hour last night for the body of an unidentified woman believed to have jumped from the Golden Gate Bridge about 5:30 p.m. yesterday.

No body could be found after motorists reported seeing a young, dark-haired woman wearing blue slacks and a blue blouse who was standing on the east side of the bridge midspan and appeared to be preparing to jump.

Highway patrol officers reported finding a red woman's wallet on the sidewalk near where the woman was seen. The wallet contained a small amount of cash but no identification, they said.

The woman was seen at the side of the bridge by Mrs. A. Campbell of 26 Lovell Way, Mill Valley, and by Elijah E. Papke of Daly City, who told officers he saw the woman climb over the bridge railing and onto a scaffolding.

Quentin Village House Burns

A fire caused $15,000 damage to a wooden six-room house in the main street of San Quentin Village yesterday.

Three units of Marin County, assisted by fire trucks from San Quentin and San Rafael, battled with the blaze which began shortly after 2 p.m.

Marin County fire chief Louis Bloom said the house had been vacated for about a month and the owner, Charles H. Meyer, had told him he did not know the tenants had moved out. The rent was paid to Sunday.

Bloom estimated the house damage at $10,000 and the damage to personal property at $5,000.

DISPUTE

signed by Gromme and Priestley of San Rafael, to the Novato Building Department for checking.

He said he was told that he did not need a building permit for a fire district as it came in the same category as schools which do not get city building permits. He also said that the city building department refused to check the plans.

Lawrence A. Coleman, director of public works, said that Chapman told the department that he did not need a building permit.

"The schools do not get permits. They do their own inspecting," Coleman admitted.

"However, we have an agreement with the North Marin County Water District and the Novato Sanitary District, that they take out building permits and we pay their installation fees," Coleman said.

Then on Wednesday, Merl D. Mauroni, city building inspector, told Chapman that he could not pour the concrete foundations until he had a soils test.

On Thursday, Chapman, under protest, paid the $303.50 for the city building permit.

Coleman stood back of Mauroni and told Chapman not to proceed pouring the concrete until he was sure of the soils in San Marin.

"We would accept a letter from the architect that it was all right to pour the footings, or a soils test, but we have not received either of them," Coleman said.

Chapman said that he paid off the employees on the job and transferred Jess Gerlach, the foreman on the job, to work he has at Sonoma State Hospital.

He said soils tests either have been made already by the architect or would be by the first of the week.

"We will not start work again until it is all straightened out with the city," he said.

He stated that he tried to get the matter before the Novato City Council at its meeting Tuesday night, but was too late to get it on the agenda.

Probe Continues Of Drowned Man

Investigation continued today in the disappearance of George Simms from his boat Wednesday night, the coroner's office reported.

The 35-year-old bartender was on his way from work in Tiburon to his home in San Rafael when seen to fall overboard by his wife, Dorothy, who was at the wheel of the 27-foot cabin cruiser.

OBITUARIES

Admiral Thayer Succumbs

Rear Admiral Rufus G. Thayer (USN-ret.) collapsed and died this morning, after cutting wood behind his summer cabin on Lucas Valley Road in Nicasio.

According to his wife, Anna, she and the admiral had come to the cabin yesterday from their San Francisco home at 255 28th Avenue, County Coroner Frank J. Keaton reported.

This morning, the 67-year-old admiral and two employees went to cut wood on his property and at 9:15 he returned to the house to say he had been "stung by something." Thayer reported feeling a "tingling all over" and went to rest on a couch. A moment later, he collapsed.

He was dead on arrival at Marin General Hospital. The coroner said an autopsy would be performed.

Thayer is also survived by two sons, Rufus G. Thayer, Jr. of San Francisco, and Donovan S. Thayer of Atherton; a brother, Admiral William H. Thayer, and a sister, Mrs. Thomas L. Wark of Greenbrae.

FRANCIS KEITH

Francis Keith, retired Veterans Administration official, died yesterday at Novato General Hospital. He was 85.

A native of Cedar Rapids, Iowa, Keith was a graduate of Simpson College in that state. He entered government service in 1902, rising rapidly to the position of special investigator and field representative for the Veterans Administration.

He served the administration at posts throughout the United States and in 1929 was sent to the Philippine Islands to establish administration services there. He remained there four years, returning to serve at Fort Miley in San Francisco until his retirement in 1948.

Keith is survived by his wife, Louise, with whom he lived at 1033 First Street, Novato; three sons, Robert, Howard and Marvin, and a daughter, Miss Mildred Keith.

Funeral arrangements are pending at Simic Funeral Home, Calistoga.

Autopsy Result To Be Announced

Results of an autopsy on Lillian E. Fonk will be announced Monday, Coroner Frank J. Keaton said today.

Mrs. Fonk, 52, died under strange circumstances Thursday. She had been received unconscious and bruised at San Rafael General Hospital Monday, was transferred to Marin General Hospital and never regained consciousness.

Her husband, John P. Fonk, 48, said he found his wife in that condition on the floor of their bedroom at the Fireside Hotel at Manzanita, which she had managed since Sept. 15.

Sheriff's officers and district attorney's investigators are continuing an investigation.

JACK F. BRADY

Jack F. Brady, a prison correctional officer formerly at San Quentin for 14 years, collapsed and died yesterday from an apparent heart attack at the prison's work comp at Crystal Creek, near Redding. He had been a guard at the camp for the past four years.

Brady, 55, was a native of Oklahoma. He was a member of Shasta County Peace Officers' Assn., California State Employees' Assn. and California Correctional Officers' Assn.

He is survived by his wife, Beatrice Brady; a daughter, Mrs. Vida Lea Norton of San Rafael; a brother, Harry Brady of Las Vegas; and seven grandchildren.

Funeral will be held Tuesday at 11 a.m. at Keaton's, Fifth Avenue and E Street, San Rafael. Burial will be in Golden Gate National Cemetery, Colma.

Untermeyer Lights A Torch For Poetry

By BRYCE W. ANDERSON

While a larger crowd was more demonstrative in its enthusiasm at a high school game on the adjacent football field, about 300 in College of Marin's Olney Hall listened in rapt attention for an hour and a half last night to an 80-year-old man discussing and reading poetry.

When he was through, they applauded long and lustily, and lingered in their seats. They did not want to let him go. He had touched their hearts.

He was no ordinary 80-year-old. He was Louis Untermeyer, he has devoted most of a long life to the verse of England and America, with the result that his anthologies sit beside Shakespeare and the Bible on millions of bookshelves.

He proved to the young and old gathered for the fifth of the college's concert and lecture series that poets may be urbane and witty, and poetry a thing to laugh at (and with) while it ennobles the reader or listener.

His subject was listed as "What Makes Modern Poetry Modern?" It could as well have been "What Makes Modern Poetry Poetry?"

He found the key in Robert Frost ("one of the three great American poets of this century"), E. E. Cummings, T. S. Eliot, Phyllis McGinley and Dylan Thomas, and he read selections from all.

The difference between modern and traditional poetry, said Untermeyer, is "the curious breakdown between what we used to call light verse and poetry," resulting in "playfulness actually merged with profundity." Its key, he discovered, is in experimentation and protest.

Cummings, most controversial of those from whom he read, "makes a queer layout" on the printed page "on the theory that people read poetry too lazily."

However, "except for a few typographical barriers, it becomes a very beautiful poem," he said. "Maybe in poetry we need signs on how to read, as we have in music."

He read from his own poems, too, demonstrating that "poetry exists in everything."

To win the audience, he opened with wisecracks at his own expense, relating that "I am the oldest living non-graduate of Dewitt Clinton High School in New York."

On his 80th birthday last week, he said, "the class of 1903 at Dewitt Clinton gave a dinner at which I was presented my high school diploma; there aren't many people who get a high school diploma on their 80th birthdays."

From there — with the audience in the palm of his hand and wrapped in the sound of his sometimes-cracking voice — he went on to anecdotes of Frost, his great favorite and longtime friend, and to discussion of poetry as probably few in the audience had heard it discussed before.

By then, everyone in the crowd was his friend.

A woman was intrigued by his reference to Frost as one of "the three great American poets of the century." Who were the others? she asked.

"I'm glad you asked that," said Untermeyer. His answer: Walt Whitman and Emily Dickinson.

"Any nation," said Untermeyer, "would be proud to produce these three great poets in a century."

There will probably be a run on Frost, Whitman and Dickinson at the public libraries in Marin next week.

were being taken at military installations, target of some demonstrations.

The Defense Department said, in answer to a question, that "advisory messages have been sent to all military installations in the United States and overseas" concerning possible demonstrations during the weekend.

These messages, a spokesman said, "confirmed previous standing instruction . . ."

These procedures, he said, vary with the type of base.

In Geneva, N.Y., an assistant vice president of the University of California said today students would do better to try to achieve their goals by self-discipline.

Garrison H. Davidson, a retired Army general, spoke of last fall's Berkeley demonstrations which he said were "not a question of freedom of speech but rather lack of respect for constituted authority."

Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor said in Chicago — as 100 pickets paraded outside — that he is personally "indifferent" to the demonstrations.

Telephone Service Still Out Today

Telephone service had not been restored at noon today to some of the 175 businesses and 400 homes cut off yesterday when underground lines encased in concrete under Francisco Boulevard, San Rafael, were cut by crews working on lines for the Marin Municipal Water District.

Telephone company officials said today they did not know how many lines had been restored, but said most of them had, and all would be by tomorrow.

which speakers denounced U.S. foreign policy.

The VDC had planned to walk the 7½ miles from Berkeley to Oakland Army Base to continue its protest outside the base. The VDC planned no civil disobedience, such as blocking of exits, but said one of its "major goals" would be to talk to soldiers.

This aspect brought a sharp statement by Alameda County Dist. Atty. J. Frank Coakley who said that attempts to persuade soldiers to disobey orders "smack of treason and could constitute a felonious and seditious violation of federal law."

City officials of Berkeley and Oakland rejected the group's request for parade permits and two federal courts quickly upheld the decision.

Leaper Report Brings Search

Coast Guard searched for over an hour last night for the body of an unidentified woman believed to have jumped from the Golden Gate Bridge about 5:30 p.m. yesterday.

No body could be found after motorists reported seeing a young, dark-haired woman wearing blue slacks and a blue blouse who was standing on the east side of the bridge midspan and appeared to be preparing to jump.

Highway patrol officers reported finding a red woman's wallet on the sidewalk near where the woman was seen. The wallet contained a small amount of cash but no identification, they said.

The woman was seen at the side of the bridge by Mrs. A. Campbell of 26 Lovell Way, Mill Valley, and by Elijah E. Papke of Daly City, who told officers he saw the woman climb over the bridge railing and onto a scaffolding.

Quentin Village House Burns

A fire caused $15,000 damage to a wooden six-room house in the main street of San Quentin Village yesterday.

Three units of Marin County, assisted by fire trucks from San Quentin and San Rafael, battled with the blaze which began shortly after 2 p.m.

Marin County fire chief Louis Bloom said the house had been vacated for about a month and the owner, Charles H. Meyer, had told him he did not know the tenants had moved out. The rent was paid to Sunday.

Bloom estimated the house damage at $10,000 and the damage to personal property at $5,000.

DISPUTE

signed by Gromme and Priestley of San Rafael, to the Novato Building Department for checking.

He said he was told that he did not need a building permit for a fire district as it came in the same category as schools which do not get city building permits. He also said that the city building department refused to check the plans.

Lawrence A. Coleman, director of public works, said that Chapman told the department that he did not need a building permit.

"The schools do not get permits. They do their own inspecting," Coleman admitted.

"However, we have an agreement with the North Marin County Water District and the Novato Sanitary District, that they take out building permits and we pay their installation fees," Coleman said.

Then on Wednesday, Merl D. Mauroni, city building inspector, told Chapman that he could not pour the concrete foundations until he had a soils test.

On Thursday, Chapman, under protest, paid the $303.50 for the city building permit.

Coleman stood back of Mauroni and told Chapman not to proceed pouring the concrete until he was sure of the soils in San Marin.

"We would accept a letter from the architect that it was all right to pour the footings, or a soils test, but we have not received either of them," Coleman said.

Chapman said that he paid off the employees on the job and transferred Jess Gerlach, the foreman on the job, to work he has at Sonoma State Hospital.

He said soils tests either have been made already by the architect or would be by the first of the week.

"We will not start work again until it is all straightened out with the city," he said.

He stated that he tried to get the matter before the Novato City Council at its meeting Tuesday night, but was too late to get it on the agenda.

Probe Continues Of Drowned Man

Investigation continued today in the disappearance of George Simms from his boat Wednesday night, the coroner's office reported.

The 35-year-old bartender was on his way from work in Tiburon to his home in San Rafael when seen to fall overboard by his wife, Dorothy, who was at the wheel of the 27-foot cabin cruiser.

OBITUARIES

Admiral Thayer Succumbs

Rear Admiral Rufus G. Thayer (USN-ret.) collapsed and died this morning, after cutting wood behind his summer cabin on Lucas Valley Road in Nicasio.

According to his wife, Anna, she and the admiral had come to the cabin yesterday from their San Francisco home at 255 28th Avenue, County Coroner Frank J. Keaton reported.

This morning, the 67-year-old admiral and two employees went to cut wood on his property and at 9:15 he returned to the house to say he had been "stung by something." Thayer reported feeling a "tingling all over" and went to rest on a couch. A moment later, he collapsed.

He was dead on arrival at Marin General Hospital. The coroner said an autopsy would be performed.

Thayer is also survived by two sons, Rufus G. Thayer, Jr. of San Francisco, and Donovan S. Thayer of Atherton; a brother, Admiral William H. Thayer, and a sister, Mrs. Thomas L. Wark of Greenbrae.

FRANCIS KEITH

Francis Keith, retired Veterans Administration official, died yesterday at Novato General Hospital. He was 85.

A native of Cedar Rapids, Iowa, Keith was a graduate of Simpson College in that state. He entered government service in 1902, rising rapidly to the position of special investigator and field representative for the Veterans Administration.

He served the administration at posts throughout the United States and in 1929 was sent to the Philippine Islands to establish administration services there. He remained there four years, returning to serve at Fort Miley in San Francisco until his retirement in 1948.

Keith is survived by his wife, Louise, with whom he lived at 1033 First Street, Novato; three sons, Robert, Howard and Marvin, and a daughter, Miss Mildred Keith.

Funeral arrangements are pending at Simic Funeral Home, Calistoga.

JACK F. BRADY

Jack F. Brady, a prison correctional officer formerly at San Quentin for 14 years, collapsed and died yesterday from an apparent heart attack at the prison's work comp at Crystal Creek, near Redding. He had been a guard at the camp for the past four years.

Brady, 55, was a native of Oklahoma. He was a member of Shasta County Peace Officers' Assn., California State Employees' Assn. and California Correctional Officers' Assn.

He is survived by his wife, Beatrice Brady; a daughter, Mrs. Vida Lea Norton of San Rafael; a brother, Harry Brady of Las Vegas; and seven grandchildren.

Funeral will be held Tuesday at 11 a.m. at Keaton's, Fifth Avenue and E Street, San Rafael. Burial will be in Golden Gate National Cemetery, Colma.

ALBERT WHITAKER

Private funeral services will be held Monday for Albert C. Whitaker, father of Douglas M. Whitaker and Mrs. Newell Armsby, both of Kentfield.

Whitaker, a retired economics professor at Stanford University, died Thursday at his home in Palo Alto, aged 88. He was a native of Franklin, Pa., and retired from Stanford 23 years ago.

Other survivors are: a son, Albert Whitaker of Woodland; and a daughter, Mrs. Jack Domergue Jr., of Tahoe City.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Keith Carlin, who served as secretary to two California governors, died Thursday in Walter Reed Army Medical Center. He was 73. Death was attributed to diabetes and a heart ailment. He was stricken while on a visit from his home in La Jolla.

In 1926 he became executive secretary and then private secretary to the late C. C. Young, then governor of California. About 20 years later he became secretary to Gov. Earl Warren, now chief justice of the United States.

HELEN REGAN

Helen Regan, formerly a resident of Marin County for many years, died yesterday at her home in Sonoma. She was 74.

A native of Ireland, Mrs. Regan lived in San Rafael from 1931 until about a year ago.

She is survived by her husband, John Regan of Sonoma; two daughters, Mrs. Helen Candrian of Redding and Mrs. Beatrice Hampton of San Rafael; two sons, Michael Regan of Alhambra and William Regan of Forest Knolls; two sisters, Mrs. Barbara Burke of Chicago, and Nora Lane of New Jersey; and a brother, Patrick Bolton of Ireland.

Funeral will be held from Duggan's Mission Chapel, Sonoma at 10:30 a.m. Tuesday followed by Requiem Mass at 11 a.m. in St. Francis Solano Church. Burial will be in the Golden Gate National Cemetery.

Autopsy Result To Be Announced

Results of an autopsy on Lillian E. Fonk will be announced Monday, Coroner Frank J. Keaton said today.

Mrs. Fonk, 52, died under strange circumstances Thursday. She had been received unconscious and bruised at San Rafael General Hospital Monday, was transferred to Marin General Hospital and never regained consciousness.

Her husband, John P. Fonk, 48, said he found his wife in that condition on the floor of their bedroom at the Fireside Hotel at Manzanita, which she had managed since Sept. 15.

Sheriff's officers and district attorney's investigators are continuing an investigation.

Housing Pledges To Be Requested

Church members in Marin in a few weeks will be asked to sign a pledge card promising to "recognize the right of all minority people to rent or buy housing in my immediate neighborhood . . . I shall welcome them as neighbors."

The campaign is being sponsored by the Marin Council on Religion and Race which has its headquarters at 27 Arcangel Way, San Rafael.

The pledge will mean churchgoing Marinites will be asked to "make a committment" to themselves, Bernard T. Engel, chairman of the council explained. He is a psychologist at the University of California Medical Center in San Francisco and resides in San Rafael.

"Apparently this is the first county in the entire nation where this is being attempted. People will be confronted with this card and a decision will have to be made," Engel said.

The card is the same one sent out in recent years by the Marin Committee for Fair Play. The council is working through "social action" representatives from Marin churches in setting up its campaign.

Frank Dill, of Peacock Gap, publicity chairman for the program called it a "crusade."

The responses will be used to estimate Marin's feeling toward minority persons, Engel explained.

Religious Life To Be Subject Of Discussion

A conference telling of religious vocations in the Roman Catholic church will be held Thursday and Friday at St. Raphael's Church in San Rafael.

Experts on religious vocations will speak briefly during both of the evening sessions and then be roving moderators in a table discussion which will follow the talks.

Members of the clergy, nuns, brothers, novices, seminarians, teenagers and laymen will be seated at the tables to provide varied view points.

"This is a question of involvement for everyone, not just teachers, or parents . . . " said Mrs. Charles Clifford. She and her husband are chairmen of the sessions, beginning at 8 p.m. at the parish auditorium.

On the first evening, Rev. James McKay, archdiocesan director of vocations, will define the religious vocation.

Very Rev. Albert Giaquinto, S.S., president of St. Joseph's Seminary, Mountain View, and Rev. Eugene Van Antwerp, S.S., spiritual director of St. Patrick's Seminary, Menlo Park, will tell of seminary life.

Sister Rose Maureen Kelly, M.M., who is a member of the San Francisco Human Rights Commission and soon will become novice mistress at Maryknoll, New York, will open the second evening session with a talk on religion as a vocation for women.

Donald Kreps, principal of Redwood High School will speak as a father and teacher; Father Giaquinto will return to give suggestions on encouraging religious vocations.

Rev. Thomas I. Kennedy, parish pastor, will open the conference and give the closing address.

Russia's Politiics To Be Analyzed

Rev. Andrei Urusov of the Byzantine rite Catholic Church, will speak on "Current Political and Economic Practices in Russia" at 8 p.m. tomorrow at St. Isabella's Roman Catholic Church, Terra Linda.

Fther Urusov was born in Russia and fled with his family to Yugoslavia at the time of the revolution. He is director of the Catholic Russian Center in San Francisco.

Lutheran Radio Ready For Africa

The $1 million technical installation of Radio Voice of the Gospel, the Lutheran World Federation's powerful short wave facility in Ethiopia, has been completed after four years of construction.

The new system will enable the Addis Ababa center to better direct its radio beam toward areas throughout Africa, the Near East, and southern Asia.

Christ's Beard

NEW YORK (UPI) — Archeologists writing in the Catholic Digest say the one positive opinion about the face of Christ is that He was bearded, since it was the custom at that time for all Jewish men to wear beards.

Catholic Church Has Hebrew Sign

SANTA FE (UPI) — A Hebrew symbol for Jehovah is embedded in stone over the entrance to St. Francis Cathedral, center of the far-flung Santa Fe Catholic Archdiocese in New Mexico.

Records show that only one other Catholic cathedral in the world — in Bulgaria — has a similar inscription. The story behind both inscriptions is the same.

Between 1866 and 1886, St. Francis Cathedral was built by Archbishop John Baptiste Lamy in Santa Fe. A tireless worker and a fierce collector of funds to build the cathedral, Archbishop Lanny tapped the purses of all Santa Fe merchants.

At the time, trade in New Mexico was carried on by wagon merchants. They traveled from town to town, headquartering in Santa Fe.

Many of the merchants were Jewish and had come from eastern cities to trade with the Indians and ranchers along the Rio Grande.

Legend has it the Archbishop imposed a tithing on all the merchants in Santa Fe to help build the church, regardless of their religious beliefs. But two Jewish merchants, the Spiegelberg brothers, gave more than their required shares.

The Archbishop, ordinarily a man with few friends, felt a strong compassion for the two merchants. When the entrance lintel to St. Francis Cathedral was put in place, it contained the Hebrew symbol on a stone triangle.

The story of the Bulgarian symbol is similar.

Family Of Singers To Be At Church

The Karlstad Family Singers will appear in an 11 a.m. concert tomorrow at Christ the Victor Lutheran Church, Fairfax.

The family from Tacoma, Wash., will present classic choral music, hymns and folk songs. Rev. and Mrs. Alfred M. Karlstad and their five children make up the singing group.

Spaghetti

The annual public spaghetti dinner for the benefit of the youth program will be held at the Grace Lutheran Church, Novato, at 5:30 p.m., tomorrow, sponsored by the Walter League.

Men Of 3 Christian Faiths Start Monastery For Unity

WIEN, Mo. (AP)—Four members of three different Christian faiths have formed a monastery in this north central Missouri hamlet to promote Christian unity through prayer.

Two Roman Catholics, an Episcopalian and a married Syrian Orthodox priest are the men of the new monastic order, the Brothers of Christian Unity. The order is open to Roman Catholics, Orthodox and Protestants.

"We live under modified Benedictine rules," said the Rev. Robert Bowman, the Episcopalian. "This essentially means we do not have corporal punishment. The life is one of poverty, chastity, obedience and prayer."

Other members of the order are Rev. Joseph Starmann and former lay Brother Joseph Bona, both Roman Catholics, and the oblate, Rev. Francis Forbes of the Syrian Orthodox Church.

An oblate cannot become a full member because he is married and the pledge of chastity prohibits him. Father Starmann and Brother Bona are full members.

Rev. Forbes lives at the monastery with his wife and three children. Father Starmann started the order.

The Most Rev. Joseph M. Marling, Roman Catholic bishop of Jefferson City, allowed the group to use an old Franciscan monastery at Wien, a farming town of 40 persons. The monastery was abandoned by the Franciscans in 1916.

Rev. and Mrs. T. W. Ewald of Holy Innocents' Episcopal Parish will report on their recent travel trip in a program entitled "Around the World in Sixty Days" at 8 p.m. Wednesday at the church in Corte Madera.

Church Studies Drugs In Marin

Members of Synanon will speak at 7:30 p.m. tomorrow at the First Methodist Church of San Rafael in a program intended as the beginning of a church project dealing with drug addiction in Marin.

"We have surveyed educators, doctors and law enforcement officers in the county and it is obvious that an educational program among youths and adults alike is needed in Marin to curb what could be a serious narcotics problem," said William Pugh, chairman of the church's Commission on Christian Social Concerns.

The meeting is open to the public and members of church's youth group have been invited to attend. Commission members plan to visit Synanon soon.

Prize Winner

Michael Thomsett, a Tamalpais High School senior, has won a $25 prize for a poem he wrote entitled "To Fly A Kite" which was one of the winners in an arts contest sponsored by "Youth," a magazine published by the United Church of Christ.

Church Challenges Laymen To Action

Members of the San Anselmo First Presbyterian Church have embarked on an "action-study" program to face community, area and national problems and do something about them.

"It's a challenge to the layman of the church to assume his ministry," said Gary Smith, director of Christian education at the church.

"In the past there's been the tendency for lots of study and not much action — but there's also the problem of wild-eyed action without much study."

Smith is leading the program in which church members can sign up for nine study-discussion groups which will follow through with what they learn to give real aid to the community.

"It's climbing out of our stained glass foxholes and getting involved with the world," Smith said.

Action-study groups are:

Alcoholism in Marin — The group will study the medical, psychological, socialogical and theological effects of alcoholism under personnel of the Marin Institute on Alcoholism in San Rafael and hope to do clerical, publicity or any other needed work for the group.

Men in Prison—Members of the church who work at San Quentin prison will help a group to study the effects of prison, penal reform and possibly work with parolees, prisoners' families and volunteer to aid at the prison.

Teen-agers Anonymous — Adults study, discuss whether teen-agers need recreation or a challenge; they hope to work with girls at Sunnyhills in San Anselmo.

Ministry to Bay Area Minorities—The group will cooperate with local civil rights groups and may attempt to aid minority groups in finding jobs, and housing. They will study the Oakland area and its large Negro population.

Southern Civil Rights—Members will continue aiding the Presbyterian mission school in Camden, Ala., as they have for the past six months, in working at the school and with leaders of the Negro and white communities to further understanding.

Theolunchians—The aim is to give persons a chance to discuss theology during Sunday noon lunches at the church following the morning services.

Creativity and the Church—Members interested in the arts will try to establish a "dialogue with the secular artist—the artist is equipped to look at the world as it really is," Smith said. The group may aim toward an art show or concert or use other methods to find out what artists "think the Christian church is saying."

Faith and the Frenetic Family—A study of behavior, community problems, adults and the children of the family, of money, spending of time and what action to take to better the family's life.

Who Are We?—Research into the "nature of the 1,100 persons we call this church to find out our potential for serving the world and find out some things that need doing locally.

SURVEY—Four-year-old Ronnie Knudsen, son of Mr. and Mrs. Konrad Knudsen of Sausalito, ponders how to fill out a survey card from the Roman Catholic Star of the Sea Church when he can't even write. Church members tomorrow and in following weeks will concentrate on the adults in a door-to-door survey to find interests of Catholics in the parish which is composed of Sausalito, Marin City and Tennessee Valley.

Saint's Day For Luke, The Gentile

By LOUIS CASSELS
United Press International

On the Christian calendar of Saints' Days, Monday is dedicated to the memory of the Bible's only gentile author.

His name was Luke. He was a physician, a missionary, a first-rate reporter and a literary craftsman whose writing will bear comparison with that of Shakespeare and Dante.

Scholars have concluded that he was a Greek doctor in Antioch, the first great center of gentile christianity.

Luke may have been converted to Christianity by the preaching of St. Paul. In any event, he joined the great apostle's missionary team on Paul's second voyage through Asia Minor. Luke worked at Philippi for a time as resident evangelist.

He also lived at Caesarea for two years while Paul was imprisoned there, and accompanied Paul on his final journey to Rome.

Luke's reputation as a reporter rests solidly upon the Book of Acts, which is an extremely detailed account of the events that took place in the Christian community during the earliest years of the church —from the time of Christ's ascension, about 30 A.D., until Paul's arrival in Rome, about 60 A.D.

But Luke's greatest contribution is the Gospel which he wrote (as he explained in a preface) to provide "an orderly account" of the life and ministry of Jesus Christ.

Missionary Urges China For U.N.

NEW YORK (UPI)—The United States must recognize Red China and approve its admission to the United Nations if a nuclear war is to be avoided, says Robbins Strong, former missionary to China, in an article in United Church Herald.

"If as Christians we take seriously the precept that God created the whole world, then we cannot behave as if one-fourth of God's children are not part of it," says Strong.

Novato Church Men To Conduct Service

Harold Bright, William J. J. Smith and Roy Peterson will share the pulpit for both services of Layman's Sunday tomorrow at the Novato Presbyterian Church.

A men's choral group will furnish the music. Charles Douglas will play the organ.

A breakfast for all the men of the church will be held at 7:30 a.m. at the home of Charles Douglas, 1638 Center Road.

Protests On Army Liquor

The temperance director of Seventh-day Adventists in western America said last week that a 450-ton shipment of liquor just arrived in Saigon for American troops "is probably the best news the Viet Cong has gotten for months."

"This is only one of a number of shipments of whiskey, gin, vodka planned for movement to our troops from the Oakland army terminal in the future," declared William S. Lee, Altadena, temperance director of Seventh-day Adventists in California, Arizona, Nevada, Utah and Hawaii.

"This shipment and those planned for the future are probably the best news the Viet Cong has gotten for months," Lee said. "They know that liquor makes for sloppy soldiering.

"If the news reports we get are to be believed, our troops in Viet Nam need something to make them more alert to the ghostly movements of the Viet Cong, not a bottle full of stuff which takes alertness away."

Members of Synanon will speak at 7:30 p.m. tomorrow at the First Methodist Church of San Rafael in a program intended as the beginning of a church project dealing with drug addiction in Marin.

"We have surveyed educators, doctors and law enforcement officers in the county and it is obvious that an educational program among youths and adults alike is needed in Marin to curb what could be a serious narcotics problem," said William Pugh, chairman of the church's Commission on Christian Social Concerns.

The meeting is open to the public and members of church's youth group have been invited to attend. Commission members plan to visit Synanon soon.

Prize Winner

Michael Thomsett, a Tamalpais High School senior, has won a $25 prize for a poem he wrote entitled "To Fly A Kite" which was one of the winners in an arts contest sponsored by "Youth," a magazine published by the United Church of Christ.

Church Challenges Laymen To Action

Members of the San Anselmo First Presbyterian Church have embarked on an "action-study" program to face community, area and national problems and do something about them.

"It's a challenge to the layman of the church to assume his ministry," said Gary Smith, director of Christian education at the church.

"In the past there's been the tendency for lots of study and not much action — but there's also the problem of wild-eyed action without much study."

Smith is leading the program in which church members can sign up for nine study-discussion groups which will follow through with what they learn to give real aid to the community.

"It's climbing out of our stained glass foxholes and getting involved with the world," Smith said.

Action-study groups are:

Alcoholism in Marin — The group will study the medical, psychological, socialogical and theological effects of alcoholism under personnel of the Marin Institute on Alcoholism in San Rafael and hope to do clerical, publicity or any other needed work for the group.

Men in Prison—Members of the church who work at San Quentin prison will help a group to study the effects of prison, penal reform and possibly work with parolees, prisoners' families and volunteer to aid at the prison.

Teen-agers Anonymous — Adults study, discuss whether teen-agers need recreation or a challenge; they hope to work with girls at Sunnyhills in San Anselmo.

Ministry to Bay Area Minorities—The group will cooperate with local civil rights groups and may attempt to aid minority groups in finding jobs, and housing. They will study the Oakland area and its large Negro population.

Southern Civil Rights—Members will continue aiding the Presbyterian mission school in Camden, Ala., as they have for the past six months, in working at the school and with leaders of the Negro and white communities to further understanding.

Theolunchians—The aim is to give persons a chance to discuss theology during Sunday noon lunches at the church following the morning services.

Creativity and the Church—Members interested in the arts will try to establish a "dialogue with the secular artist—the artist is equipped to look at the world as it really is," Smith said. The group may aim toward an art show or concert or use other methods to find out what artists "think the Christian church is saying."

Faith and the Frenetic Family—A study of behavior, community problems, adults and the children of the family, of money, spending of time and what action to take to better the family's life.

Who Are We?—Research into the "nature of the 1,100 persons we call this church to find out our potential for serving the world and find out some things that need doing locally.

SURVEY—Four-year-old Ronnie Knudsen, son of Mr. and Mrs. Konrad Knudsen of Sausalito, ponders how to fill out a survey card from the Roman Catholic Star of the Sea Church when he can't even write. Church members tomorrow and in following weeks will concentrate on the adults in a door-to-door survey to find interests of Catholics in the parish which is composed of Sausalito, Marin City and Tennessee Valley.

Saint's Day For Luke, The Gentile

By LOUIS CASSELS
United Press International

On the Christian calendar of Saints' Days, Monday is dedicated to the memory of the Bible's only gentile author.

His name was Luke. He was a physician, a missionary, a first-rate reporter and a literary craftsman whose writing will bear comparison with that of Shakespeare and Dante.

Scholars have concluded that he was a Greek doctor in Antioch, the first great center of gentile christianity.

Luke may have been converted to Christianity by the preaching of St. Paul. In any event, he joined the great apostle's missionary team on Paul's second voyage through Asia Minor. Luke worked at Philippi for a time as resident evangelist.

He also lived at Caesarea for two years while Paul was imprisoned there, and accompanied Paul on his final journey to Rome.

Luke's reputation as a reporter rests solidly upon the Book of Acts, which is an extremely detailed account of the events that took place in the Christian community during the earliest years of the church —from the time of Christ's ascension, about 30 A.D., until Paul's arrival in Rome, about 60 A.D.

But Luke's greatest contribution is the Gospel which he wrote (as he explained in a preface) to provide "an orderly account" of the life and ministry of Jesus Christ.

Missionary Urges China For U.N.

NEW YORK (UPI)—The United States must recognize Red China and approve its admission to the United Nations if a nuclear war is to be avoided, says Robbins Strong, former missionary to China, in an article in United Church Herald.

"If as Christians we take seriously the precept that God created the whole world, then we cannot behave as if one-fourth of God's children are not part of it," says Strong.

Novato Church Men To Conduct Service

Harold Bright, William J. J. Smith and Roy Peterson will share the pulpit for both services of Layman's Sunday tomorrow at the Novato Presbyterian Church.

A men's choral group will furnish the music. Charles Douglas will play the organ.

A breakfast for all the men of the church will be held at 7:30 a.m. at the home of Charles Douglas, 1638 Center Road.

Protests On Army Liquor

The temperance director of Seventh-day Adventists in western America said last week that a 450-ton shipment of liquor just arrived in Saigon for American troops "is probably the best news the Viet Cong has gotten for months."

"This is only one of a number of shipments of whiskey, gin, vodka planned for movement to our troops from the Oakland army terminal in the future," declared William S. Lee, Altadena, temperance director of Seventh-day Adventists in California, Arizona, Nevada, Utah and Hawaii.

"This shipment and those planned for the future are probably the best news the Viet Cong has gotten for months," Lee said. "They know that liquor makes for sloppy soldiering.

"If the news reports we get are to be believed, our troops in Viet Nam need something to make them more alert to the ghostly movements of the Viet Cong, not a bottle full of stuff which takes alertness away."

National Border Crossing Easier Than State Line

SALZBURG, AUSTRIA — Crossing an international border in Western Europe in a rented auto turns out to be easier than entering California from a neighboring state.

The approach to an international border gives the neophyte some concern. You are advised to have your "papers" ready: (1) your passport, (2) international driver's license, (3) international auto insurance "green card," and (4) a vehicle ownership certificate. (The latter two items are supplied by the firm from which you rent the car).

As you approach the border (frontier in Europe), and join the line of waiting vehicles, you try to recall the export limitations and prohibitions of the country you are leaving as well as the import limitations and prohibitions of the country you are entering — all the while hoping that what's in your baggage will conform.

Finally the line moves and you come to a fellow not unlike a Golden Gate Bridge toll collector. To save time you offer him your fist full of documents —like handing your commute ticket to the collector on the bridge.

Without examining or even touching the wad of documents, he cheerfully waves you on. You have crossed the frontier without the aggravating baggage inspection which you are subjected to when you enter your home state of California.

Some Eastern European nations are still tough at the borders but even they are getting better, Czechoslovakia being the latest to conform to the pattern of minimum red tape.

SALZBURG, NAMED for its ancient salt mines, has 32 Catholic churches and only one Protestant one.

A visiting Protestant cannot help wondering if this is traceable at least in part to the torture chamber in the Hohensalzburg fortress situated on the heights overlooking this picturesque city astride the Salzach River. The Chritsian Church came to Salzburg well before the year 700. The fortress developed with the rise of the Holy Roman Empire when prince-bishops were both temporal and spiritual rulers. Charles V combatted the Protestant "heresy" with the torture chamber. You can see one in the Hohensalzburg fortress, complete with chains, dungeon, sweat chambers, rack and wheel.

The guides don't tell you who were the victims of the torture, but history does. And today's census of churches in Salzburg seems to be a natural result of what one reads in history.

Incidentally, you can see similar instruments of torture in Protestant prince-bishop castles in Germany, notably in Franconia.

GARMISH-PARTENKIRCHEN—Alpine highways are in fact what most Californians dream of when they think of "scenic highways." And they are subject to some of the same disagreeable facts of life.

Trucks use them, too. European trucks are low powered (by American standards) and most are powered by diesel engines. They should be more efficient—everything else in Germany is. But judging by the clouds of exhaust smoke, they are not. Also, they are slow on uphill grades. So chances are good that you will drive along the beautiful Alpine highways behind a truck in a cloud of smelly diesel exhaust smoke.

It is to be hoped that when standards are finally set for scenic highways in California, effective controls on truck exhaust fumes will be required.

Smog does NOT become the otherwise beautiful Alpine valleys and vistas. But you sometimes travel in a cloud of it.

GARMISH-PARTENKIRCHEN — along with Innsbruck, Mittenwald and Oberammergau—attract tourists by the thousands. As a result, streets are lined with "quaint" shops—just like Carmel. And like Carmel, prices are not exactly at bargain levels. Further, there is almost as much English spoken in these Alpine tourist center shops and restaurants as in Carmel.

If the American tourist in Europe gets homesick for English, he can get over it quickly in a couple of tourist traps.

GERMANS ARE AND ALWAYS have been known as hardworking people. The recovery of their nation in a short 20 years since it was almost totally destroyed in World War II is due, first, to German hard work.

They go to work earlier in the morning than Americans and they remain later at night. But prosperity has brought affluence. The two-hour lunch is now standard for big city business offices.

The coffee break, especially at 3 p.m., has become an institution.

In Germany, a coffee break done properly requires about an hour. You must go to a "cafe konditorei" for coffee and extremely high calorie pastry. One pastry is par, but several cups of coffee are necessary, it seems, each loaded with cream or milk and sugar.

It's no wonder that the standard German supper may consist only of cheese, sausage (wurst) and beer or wine.

Statistics recently published by the West German government indicate that the German work week—despite early starts and late closings — is the shortest in Europe. If the rise of German prosperity continues, the German work week may fall below that of the U.S.A.

But there is evidence that they still work hard when they work. How else would people who eat so much so often continue for the most part to remain in good physical condition and relatively slim and trim?

SKIPPER, 71, SOLOS ACROSS THE PACIFIC

A home-made raft reached harbor recently with a 12,000-mile solo voyage to its credit. The 115-day trip extended across the Pacific from Peru to Australia.

The 35-foot square-rigger called "Age Unlimited," had a jaunty 71-year-old skipper, who is planning another solo venture—this time across the Atlantic.

The dauntless sailor's purpose was to "prove that a 70-year-old man is worth something more than a comfortable seat in a rocking chair . . . In this civilization of ours, they want to dump a man in the ash can when he's 50."

Anyone's service and usefulness should not be measured by age alone. In fact, the later years with experience and wisdom can be most valuable both to oneself and others.

Do something, however little, to find new and challenging horizons of usefulness for the elderly amid the many opportunities right at their doorsteps.

"May the Lord make you to increase and abound in charity towards one another."
(1 Thessalonians 3:12)

Never let me underestimate, O Lord, the potential of any of Your children, young or old.

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

Fifth Grader Urges Vote

Editor, Independent-Journal:

All men have an equal right in their government.

It is important to vote properly. In the democratic system which has two candidates, the people can vote for either one they want. We vote because we want to be sure that we get good leaders. If we don't vote we may lose our right to vote.

Here are some ways that voting can help strengthen democracy. The people can vote a candidate out of office if he isn't doing his job well. It prevents one man ruling. All men have control over their government. The people can choose any candidate they want.

Here are some ways that we could get more people to vote. Use newspapers and radio. Schools should educate school children to learn and know the importance of voting so when they reach voting age they will take advantage of the privilege. They could put signs on the roads and have parades in the streets telling people to vote by telling them what they have to go through to get back on the voting card.

Vote so you can help choose who you want.

Gallinas Services District Defended

Editor, Independent-Journal:

As an original homeowner and firm supporter of our Community Service district board, I have been most upset by the recent degrading coverage given Gallinas Village. I should like to quote an article that is as applicable today as it was 76 years ago, when it appeared in the first issue of the P.E.O. Record, Jan. 1, 1889.

"In every organization and society there are to be found people who seem to be too busy in finding fault to have any time left to devote to actual work. They are the people who can get into the way of others. They can hinder every good work, defeat every good effort. They predict failure, and then exert themselves to secure the fulfillment of their own prophecies.

"Every society is composed of two classes — workers and grumblers. The workers never grumble and the grumblers never work."

Liquefied Gas Defended By Group

Editor, Independent-Journal:

Reference is made to your editorial appearing in the Sept. 28 issue . . . entitled "Valley Natural Gas Service Depends Upon Residents." We wish to register a strong protest to the tone of the editorial with its implication that modern gas service is not now available to the residents of San Geronimo Valley.

Nothing could be further from the truth, since clean, efficient and dependable liquefied petroleum gas (LP-gas) is now being used by many well-satisfied customers in the area. Natural gas service might be less expensive, but certainly no better.

Your bias in the matter is clearly indicated by your statement that unless residents sign up for natural gas they "will have to stumble along on more expensive butane, or wood and coal." For your information over 11 million families are using LP-gas in the United States.

To many housewives it means modern comfort and convenience. It heats homes, cooks food, heats water, and dries clothes.

To many industry executives LP-gas is a vital source of energy for running fork-lift trucks, cutting metals and powering generators.

To many farmers and ranchers LP-gas provides power for tractors and trucks and heat for crop dryers and brooders.

To many vehicle owners, including several bus and taxi fleets, LP-gas is a clean-burning and odorless fuel leaving no noxious fumes to contaminate the air.

In short, LP-gas is a highly beneficial and extremely versatile fuel, for use wherever there is need for heat and fuel. You do our industry a decided disservice by classifying our product with wood and coal, and implying that it is a second-class energy source in the modern world.

What's Value Of Second Deck

Editor, Independent-Journal:

Regarding the new proposal for a second deck on the Golden Gate Bridge, I fail to understand just what good this would accomplish.

As I understand the proposal, there would be ultimately five lanes in one direction on the lower deck and five lanes in the opposite direction on the upper deck. Since the bottleneck now occurs during the peak traffic periods in either direction and we now have four lanes available during these peak periods by virtue of the flexible center lanes, I cannot see any improvement over the present condition except for the one extra available lane in each direction . . .

I agree completely with Supervisor Peter Behr when he says it is a mistake to continue thinking that the automobile can solve metropolitan transportation problems.

The only sensible solution, as I see it, is to have Marin become a part of the overall Bay Area Rapid Transit system as quickly as possible . . .

Another thing I fail to understand is why the bridge can be remodeled to take another deck of four lanes of cars and cannot be remodeled and lightened to take two lines for light weight rapid transit trains. This simply does not make engineering sense, except for the fact that the engineers who said it should not take rapid transit trains were hired by the bridge directors . . .

Let us not make a mistake on this very important question that will affect the future of Marin County for a long time in the future. Let us not rush into a second deck without a complete study of its implications and the implications of getting a rapid transit line that will tie into the Bay Area Rapid Transit system.

College Overcrowding Happens Despite Being Long Predicted

By G. K. HODENFIELD

WASHINGTON (AP)—On a schedule as inexorable as the sun's rising, the college crush hit the nation's campuses this fall.

WITH RARE exception, the campuses weren't ready.

The final figures aren't yet in, but there are approximately 5.4 million college students enrolled this fall.

This is almost two million more than the 3.6 million students enrolled just five short years ago, and an eight per cent increase over last fall.

The biggest burden has fallen on the public colleges and universities, which enroll about 65 per cent of all undergraduates.

For example, the University of Minnesota enrolled a freshman class of 9,614 last month. This is more than the combined freshman enrollment of 9,240 in all eight Ivy League schools—Yale, Harvard, Dartmouth, Brown, the University of Pennsylvania, Columbia, Cornell and Princeton.

TO COPE WITH the hordes of students, the public institutions have started classes in early morning and run them late into the night. They have taken over private homes as dormitories, and rented space in motels. They have squeezed three students into rooms designed for two, increased the use of classroom television and opened branch campuses.

And, tragically they have shut the doors on thousands of qualified applicants for lack of space.

In New Jersey, 25,000 were turned away, some of them honor students and valedictorians. In North Carolina it was 5,000. The University of Illinois alone had to reject 7,000.

The college crush didn't just sneak upon the United States. Educators have seen it coming for years.

THEY SAW IT coming when the number of births jumped from 2.8 million in the 12 months ending June 20, 1946, to 3.9 million in the next year.

They saw it coming as the percentage of high school graduates going on to college zoomed upward. In 1939-40, only 14 per cent went on to college, in 1944-45 it was 29 per cent. In 1964-65 it was 43.2 per cent.

Although college enrollment will continue to climb, from this year's 5.4 million to 10 or 11 million by 1975, the crush may never again be as bad as it is now.

FIRST, the birth rate leveled off after that 1947 peak. Second, the public institutions are laboring almost frantically to expand their facilities.

BARKER ON CHINA

Red Regime Medical Training Slips Badly

By GEORGE BARKER

In China today graduates of the Chinese equivalent of our junior high school often perform appendectomies and other operations. These are the aptly titled "simple doctors." They are usually posted in the county seats of counties where they are the only surgeons available.

This is pretty terrible and helps remind us that—despite the A-bomb—China is still a scientifically backward country. However, before we get too smug, let us realize the problems inherent in providing medical care for 750 million people in an impoverished land. The problem of providing enough even partially qualified doctors is made difficult by the Communist Party.

THE PARTY is determined that all doctors shall receive large doses of political education along with their medical training. To implement this policy, in some cases, peasants with no medical knowledge have been put in charge of medical colleges. A group of medical student refugees who got out through Hong Kong reported they had spent five years in medical school, but only a total of four years was spent in actual medical studies. A fifth of their time was used in political indoctrination and working in the fields with the peasants.

The emphasis on "Red and expert," as the slogan goes, often results in anti-Red and inept, if we are to believe the evidence. A reasonably objective weekly published in Hong Kong, "China News Analysis," reported recently: "From Chung Shan Medical College in Canton close to Hong Kong many are allowed to come visit relatives in Hong Kong and Macau. A few years ago half the students came to Hong Kong for winter holidays one semester and did not return, because after graduation you are given your assignment and it becomes more difficult to get out. After some time, however, many of them did return because they found that there was no outlet for them and no possibility of their continuing their studies either in Hong Kong or in the Western world. The Hong Kong government was prepared to employ in hospitals and clinics doctors who graduated in the early years of the People's Republic but not those who have done their studies in later years, and, in view of the decline in medical education, this is understandable."

CHINA STILL produces some first-rate doctors, but they are the exception. The pressing need for quantity has led to a sacrifice of quality. At the summit, in a class by itself, stands the China Medical University, the old Peking Union Medical College, originally built by British and American missionary societies in 1906 and later supported by the Rockefeller Foundation. The highest specialized training is given here, even today, to a handful of selected, first-rank students.

TO TRY to make up for its lack of modern medical doctors, China still trains large numbers in accupuncture and herb medicine. A few years ago the authorities were pushing these traditional methods of healing. However, it appears unlikely that ginseng will ever prove an adequate substitute for streptomycin.

The Country Parson

"I wish I were always foolish enough to speak the truth."

REMEMBER WHEN?

10 YEARS AGO

Plans were announced for construction of a new Catholic church in Marin, St. Sebastian's, just east of Marin Catholice High School, to be constructed in Spanish colonial style.

Two freeway agreements between the County of Marin and the State Division of Highways cleared the way for construction of the approach road to the new Richmond-San Rafael Bridge.

Work started on filling of 250 acres of tidelands in East San Rafael, starting with dredging south of Murphy Rock.

20 YEARS AGO

The labor-management War Chest committee called on every worker living in Marin to give not less than a day's pay to the Marin War Chest.

T. Fred Bagshaw, chairman of the Marin County Board of Supervisors, called for hiring of a transportation engineer to make a survey of the transportation needs of Marin County, after a Greyhound bus strike left Marin without bus transportation for 19 days.

Finally the line moves and you come to a fellow not unlike a Golden Gate Bridge toll collector. To save time you offer him your fist full of documents —like handing your commute ticket to the collector on the bridge.

Without examining or even touching the wad of documents, he cheerfully waves you on. You have crossed the frontier without the aggravating baggage inspection which you are subjected to when you enter your home state of California.

Some Eastern European nations are still tough at the borders but even they are getting better, Czechoslovakia being the latest to conform to the pattern of minimum red tape.

SALZBURG, NAMED for its ancient salt mines, has 32 Catholic churches and only one Protestant one.

A visiting Protestant cannot help wondering if this is traceable at least in part to the torture chamber in the Hohensalzburg fortress situated on the heights overlooking this picturesque city astride the Salzach River. The Chritsian Church came to Salzburg well before the year 700. The fortress developed with the rise of the Holy Roman Empire when prince-bishops were both temporal and spiritual rulers. Charles V combatted the Protestant "heresy" with the torture chamber. You can see one in the Hohensalzburg fortress, complete with chains, dungeon, sweat chambers, rack and wheel.

The guides don't tell you who were the victims of the torture, but history does. And today's census of churches in Salzburg seems to be a natural result of what one reads in history.

Incidentally, you can see similar instruments of torture in Protestant prince-bishop castles in Germany, notably in Franconia.

GARMISH-PARTENKIRCHEN—Alpine highways are in fact what most Californians dream of when they think of "scenic highways." And they are subject to some of the same disagreeable facts of life.

Trucks use them, too. European trucks are low powered (by American standards) and most are powered by diesel engines. They should be more efficient—everything else in Germany is. But judging by the clouds of exhaust smoke, they are not. Also, they are slow on uphill grades. So chances are good that you will drive along the beautiful Alpine highways behind a truck in a cloud of smelly diesel exhaust smoke.

It is to be hoped that when standards are finally set for scenic highways in California, effective controls on truck exhaust fumes will be required.

Smog does NOT become the otherwise beautiful Alpine valleys and vistas. But you sometimes travel in a cloud of it.

GARMISH-PARTENKIRCHEN — along with Innsbruck, Mittenwald and Oberammergau—attract tourists by the thousands. As a result, streets are lined with "quaint" shops—just like Carmel. And like Carmel, prices are not exactly at bargain levels. Further, there is almost as much English spoken in these Alpine tourist center shops and restaurants as in Carmel.

If the American tourist in Europe gets homesick for English, he can get over it quickly in a couple of tourist traps.

GERMANS ARE AND ALWAYS have been known as hardworking people. The recovery of their nation in a short 20 years since it was almost totally destroyed in World War II is due, first, to German hard work.

They go to work earlier in the morning than Americans and they remain later at night. But prosperity has brought affluence. The two-hour lunch is now standard for big city business offices.

The coffee break, especially at 3 p.m., has become an institution.

In Germany, a coffee break done properly requires about an hour. You must go to a "cafe konditorei" for coffee and extremely high calorie pastry. One pastry is par, but several cups of coffee are necessary, it seems, each loaded with cream or milk and sugar.

It's no wonder that the standard German supper may consist only of cheese, sausage (wurst) and beer or wine.

Statistics recently published by the West German government indicate that the German work week—despite early starts and late closings — is the shortest in Europe. If the rise of German prosperity continues, the German work week may fall below that of the U.S.A.

But there is evidence that they still work hard when they work. How else would people who eat so much so often continue for the most part to remain in good physical condition and relatively slim and trim?

SKIPPER, 71, SOLOS ACROSS THE PACIFIC

A home-made raft reached harbor recently with a 12,000-mile solo voyage to its credit. The 115-day trip extended across the Pacific from Peru to Australia.

The 35-foot square-rigger called "Age Unlimited," had a jaunty 71-year-old skipper, who is planning another solo venture—this time across the Atlantic.

The dauntless sailor's purpose was to "prove that a 70-year-old man is worth something more than a comfortable seat in a rocking chair . . . In this civilization of ours, they want to dump a man in the ash can when he's 50."

Anyone's service and usefulness should not be measured by age alone. In fact, the later years with experience and wisdom can be most valuable both to oneself and others.

Do something, however little, to find new and challenging horizons of usefulness for the elderly amid the many opportunities right at their doorsteps.

"May the Lord make you to increase and abound in charity towards one another."
(1 Thessalonians 3:12)

Never let me underestimate, O Lord, the potential of any of Your children, young or old.

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

Fifth Grader Urges Vote

Editor, Independent-Journal:

All men have an equal right in their government.

It is important to vote properly. In the democratic system which has two candidates, the people can vote for either one they want. We vote because we want to be sure that we get good leaders. If we don't vote we may lose our right to vote.

Here are some ways that voting can help strengthen democracy. The people can vote a candidate out of office if he isn't doing his job well. It prevents one man ruling. All men have control over their government. The people can choose any candidate they want.

Here are some ways that we could get more people to vote. Use newspapers and radio. Schools should educate school children to learn and know the importance of voting so when they reach voting age they will take advantage of the privilege. They could put signs on the roads and have parades in the streets telling people to vote by telling them what they have to go through to get back on the voting card.

Vote so you can help choose who you want.

Gallinas Services District Defended

Editor, Independent-Journal:

As an original homeowner and firm supporter of our Community Service district board, I have been most upset by the recent degrading coverage given Gallinas Village. I should like to quote an article that is as applicable today as it was 76 years ago, when it appeared in the first issue of the P.E.O. Record, Jan. 1, 1889.

"In every organization and society there are to be found people who seem to be too busy in finding fault to have any time left to devote to actual work. They are the people who can get into the way of others. They can hinder every good work, defeat every good effort. They predict failure, and then exert themselves to secure the fulfillment of their own prophecies.

"Every society is composed of two classes — workers and grumblers. The workers never grumble and the grumblers never work."

Liquefied Gas Defended By Group

Editor, Independent-Journal:

Reference is made to your editorial appearing in the Sept. 28 issue . . . entitled "Valley Natural Gas Service Depends Upon Residents." We wish to register a strong protest to the tone of the editorial with its implication that modern gas service is not now available to the residents of San Geronimo Valley.

Nothing could be further from the truth, since clean, efficient and dependable liquefied petroleum gas (LP-gas) is now being used by many well-satisfied customers in the area. Natural gas service might be less expensive, but certainly no better.

Your bias in the matter is clearly indicated by your statement that unless residents sign up for natural gas they "will have to stumble along on more expensive butane, or wood and coal." For your information over 11 million families are using LP-gas in the United States.

To many housewives it means modern comfort and convenience. It heats homes, cooks food, heats water, and dries clothes.

To many industry executives LP-gas is a vital source of energy for running fork-lift trucks, cutting metals and powering generators.

To many farmers and ranchers LP-gas provides power for tractors and trucks and heat for crop dryers and brooders.

To many vehicle owners, including several bus and taxi fleets, LP-gas is a clean-burning and odorless fuel leaving no noxious fumes to contaminate the air.

In short, LP-gas is a highly beneficial and extremely versatile fuel, for use wherever there is need for heat and fuel. You do our industry a decided disservice by classifying our product with wood and coal, and implying that it is a second-class energy source in the modern world.

What's Value Of Second Deck

Editor, Independent-Journal:

Regarding the new proposal for a second deck on the Golden Gate Bridge, I fail to understand just what good this would accomplish.

As I understand the proposal, there would be ultimately five lanes in one direction on the lower deck and five lanes in the opposite direction on the upper deck. Since the bottleneck now occurs during the peak traffic periods in either direction and we now have four lanes available during these peak periods by virtue of the flexible center lanes, I cannot see any improvement over the present condition except for the one extra available lane in each direction . . .

I agree completely with Supervisor Peter Behr when he says it is a mistake to continue thinking that the automobile can solve metropolitan transportation problems.

The only sensible solution, as I see it, is to have Marin become a part of the overall Bay Area Rapid Transit system as quickly as possible . . .

Another thing I fail to understand is why the bridge can be remodeled to take another deck of four lanes of cars and cannot be remodeled and lightened to take two lines for light weight rapid transit trains. This simply does not make engineering sense, except for the fact that the engineers who said it should not take rapid transit trains were hired by the bridge directors . . .

Let us not make a mistake on this very important question that will affect the future of Marin County for a long time in the future. Let us not rush into a second deck without a complete study of its implications and the implications of getting a rapid transit line that will tie into the Bay Area Rapid Transit system.

College Overcrowding Happens Despite Being Long Predicted

By G. K. HODENFIELD

WASHINGTON (AP)—On a schedule as inexorable as the sun's rising, the college crush hit the nation's campuses this fall.

WITH RARE exception, the campuses weren't ready.

The final figures aren't yet in, but there are approximately 5.4 million college students enrolled this fall.

This is almost two million more than the 3.6 million students enrolled just five short years ago, and an eight per cent increase over last fall.

The biggest burden has fallen on the public colleges and universities, which enroll about 65 per cent of all undergraduates.

For example, the University of Minnesota enrolled a freshman class of 9,614 last month. This is more than the combined freshman enrollment of 9,240 in all eight Ivy League schools—Yale, Harvard, Dartmouth, Brown, the University of Pennsylvania, Columbia, Cornell and Princeton.

TO COPE WITH the hordes of students, the public institutions have started classes in early morning and run them late into the night. They have taken over private homes as dormitories, and rented space in motels. They have squeezed three students into rooms designed for two, increased the use of classroom television and opened branch campuses.

And, tragically they have shut the doors on thousands of qualified applicants for lack of space.

In New Jersey, 25,000 were turned away, some of them honor students and valedictorians. In North Carolina it was 5,000. The University of Illinois alone had to reject 7,000.

The college crush didn't just sneak upon the United States. Educators have seen it coming for years.

THEY SAW IT coming when the number of births jumped from 2.8 million in the 12 months ending June 20, 1946, to 3.9 million in the next year.

They saw it coming as the percentage of high school graduates going on to college zoomed upward. In 1939-40, only 14 per cent went on to college, in 1944-45 it was 29 per cent. In 1964-65 it was 43.2 per cent.

Although college enrollment will continue to climb, from this year's 5.4 million to 10 or 11 million by 1975, the crush may never again be as bad as it is now.

FIRST, the birth rate leveled off after that 1947 peak. Second, the public institutions are laboring almost frantically to expand their facilities.

BARKER ON CHINA

Red Regime Medical Training Slips Badly

By GEORGE BARKER

In China today graduates of the Chinese equivalent of our junior high school often perform appendectomies and other operations. These are the aptly titled "simple doctors." They are usually posted in the county seats of counties where they are the only surgeons available.

This is pretty terrible and helps remind us that—despite the A-bomb—China is still a scientifically backward country. However, before we get too smug, let us realize the problems inherent in providing medical care for 750 million people in an impoverished land. The problem of providing enough even partially qualified doctors is made difficult by the Communist Party.

THE PARTY is determined that all doctors shall receive large doses of political education along with their medical training. To implement this policy, in some cases, peasants with no medical knowledge have been put in charge of medical colleges. A group of medical student refugees who got out through Hong Kong reported they had spent five years in medical school, but only a total of four years was spent in actual medical studies. A fifth of their time was used in political indoctrination and working in the fields with the peasants.

The emphasis on "Red and expert," as the slogan goes, often results in anti-Red and inept, if we are to believe the evidence. A reasonably objective weekly published in Hong Kong, "China News Analysis," reported recently: "From Chung Shan Medical College in Canton close to Hong Kong many are allowed to come visit relatives in Hong Kong and Macau. A few years ago half the students came to Hong Kong for winter holidays one semester and did not return, because after graduation you are given your assignment and it becomes more difficult to get out. After some time, however, many of them did return because they found that there was no outlet for them and no possibility of their continuing their studies either in Hong Kong or in the Western world. The Hong Kong government was prepared to employ in hospitals and clinics doctors who graduated in the early years of the People's Republic but not those who have done their studies in later years, and, in view of the decline in medical education, this is understandable."

CHINA STILL produces some first-rate doctors, but they are the exception. The pressing need for quantity has led to a sacrifice of quality. At the summit, in a class by itself, stands the China Medical University, the old Peking Union Medical College, originally built by British and American missionary societies in 1906 and later supported by the Rockefeller Foundation. The highest specialized training is given here, even today, to a handful of selected, first-rank students.

TO TRY to make up for its lack of modern medical doctors, China still trains large numbers in accupuncture and herb medicine. A few years ago the authorities were pushing these traditional methods of healing. However, it appears unlikely that ginseng will ever prove an adequate substitute for streptomycin.

Campaigner Hides Party In New York

'Republican Kennedy' Denies Demo Charges

JOHN V. LINDSAY
Un-Republican GOP candidate

(EDITOR'S NOTE—It's an odd mayoralty campaign in New York, where the Democrats keep trying to "expose" Rep. John V. Lindsay as a Republican, while Lindsay seems oblivious of the party label. Young and handsome, is he a "Republican Kennedy?" A reporter who's followed him along the hustings provides a closeup of the candidate.)

By SAUL PETT

NEW YORK (AP)—The New York mayoralty campaign is getting rough. Someone has accused John V. Lindsay of being soft on Republicanism.

Abe Beame, the Democratic candidate, went further. He made the flat charge that Lindsay has met "secretly" with Republican leaders and they are "secretly" supporting him. Whispers even have been heard, among those convinced that Lindsay will end up one day in the White House, that he may be a "Republican Kennedy."

Nothing could be more serious in a city where Democrats normally out-register the Republicans by better than 3 to 1. However, political insiders doubt that either charge will stick.

True, Lindsay will have to explain why the Congressional Directory lists him as a Republican representative from the city's 17th District and why the Republican Party, as well as the Liberal Party, happened to nominate him for mayor.

Nonetheless, Lindsay insists he is a fusion candidate for mayor and almost never mentions the word Republican in speeches, "position papers" or billboards. He frequently invokes the memories of such Democratic Party heroes as Eleanor Roosevelt, Herbert H. Lehman and John F. Kennedy. He insists there is no Republican or Democratic way of cleaning up the streets of New York.

To his supporters, this is ample proof that John Vliet Lindsay long since has redeemed what many regard as the one mistake of his groping youth, when in a moment of confusion, he joined the Republican Party.

If voters in the Nov. 2 election require further evidence of Lindsay's un-Republicanism, he can always cite the fact that he refused to support Barry Goldwater in 1964, often failed to vote with his party in Congress. Despite Lyndon B. Johnson's sweep last year in the nation and city, it was Lindsay who out-polled the president in his district.

He is young, 43; tall, 6 feet 3; thin, 180 pounds, and spectacularly handsome, with pale blue eyes, classic sharp nose, heroic chin and boyishly tousled reddish-brown hair.

In style, Lindsay reminds one of an earnest young minister with a good tailor and an endless supply of righteous indignation. In oratory, he generally avoids humor, tends to thunder and does not shrink from hyperbole.

He frequently recalls his days in the Pacific — on a destroyer — and often attacks Beame, his principal opponent, as the prisoner of a political machine.

His infrequent humor tends to be heavy and somewhat startling.

Thus far in the campaign, Lindsay's Conservative Party opponent, William F. Buckley Jr., has been grabbing all the best lines. Recent newspaper polls of voter sentiment show Beame leading by about 45 per cent to 35 for Lindsay and 10 for Buckley.

BONDS LACK MAY IMPERIL SCHOOLS

State Allocation Board Worried Whether Voters Would Approve Bonds Next June

By EDWIN S. CAPPS

SACRAMENTO (CNS)—It will be nip and tuck whether funds for state loans for school building construction hold out until new bonds can be submitted to the people next June.

Paul I. Hoyenga, executive officer of the state allocation board, which approves the loans, said the volume was high in 1964, a total of about $149 million in loans being granted. While the total this year will be more on the order of $100 million, this could run the fund low before next June.

"If bonds are submitted to the voters next June and not approved, there probably will be no problem," Hoyenga said. "Once bonds are approved, we can go ahead with approving loans, with the actual money to be paid to the districts later."

Hoyenga said he expected the bond issue proposed for the voters next June would be $250 or $300 million.

Behind the present possible shortage of school loan funds lies a story of nearly four years of political maneuvering. It actually started in November, 1961, when it was disclosed the administration of Gov. Edmund G. Brown was planned to seek voter approval of more than $1 billion in bonds in 1962.

This quickly was denied by the governor's office and, by the time the June primary election rolled around, the debt requests had been cut to just under the $1 billion mark, to $970 million. The reduction was made in the school building aid bonds—while the proposal in 1960 had been for $300 million and this was normal for a two year period, the bond issue for 1962 was held to only $200 million.

Other bonds submitted in the disastrous bond issue series on the June, 1962, primary ballot included $250 million for veterans loan bonds (approved); $270 million in state construction bonds (rejected); $100 million for low-cost housing for the elderly (rejected); and $150 million for beach and park purchase (rejected).

While the school bond issue passed handily in June of 1962, it left the program on short rations until the next bonds could be submitted to the people. But before this could happen in June of 1964, some more politics had developed.

This was the qualification of the controversial housing initiative for the ballot—the measure which overturned the Rumford housing act. The attorney general's office ruled that, if any general bond issue went on the June primary ballot it would make the election a general one. The opinion said any initiatives qualified for the ballot thus would have to appear on the June, rather than the November, ballot.

Brown and other Democratic leaders feared the housing initiative would win if it were submitted to the voters in June. They wanted more time to campaign against it.

As a result, even though the time-table called for school bonds in June, the new school bond issue was delayed until the November election to postpone the voting on the housing measure. As it developed, of course, the housing initiative, Proposition 14, carried overwhelmingly in November anyway.

The only outcome of the Democrat maneuver was to delay making school loan money available. As a result, dozens of loans were approved but the payment of actual construction funds was deferred. And, when money from the bonds voted in November, $260 million, became available, a large chunk of it went to pay out the deferred loans.

This heavy drain on the 1964 bond funds, to make up prior deficiencies, is partially responsible for the present shortage.

The school building aid loan program could be complicated further if any reasons developed for delaying a vote on bonds next year from June to November. And, in fact, there is an initiative now being circulated for signatures on petitions which might prove to be controversial.

This Week In The World

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

A week after the incision that drew worldwide attention President Johnson was reacting just like any other postoperative patient. He was having gas pains, he wasn't sleeping too well, and he lacked pep.

Quite natural, said the doctors who had removed his gall bladder and a kidney stone. The President, they said, was having a completely normal recovery.

It was a week of heavy military action in Viet Nam, without spectacular results.

The U. S. Army's 1st Infantry Division wound up its week-long attempt to trap a major Viet Cong force in the central mountains of South Viet Nam, but the bag was nearly empty: 45 Viet Cong killed, 46 suspects captured.

The Viet Cong, apparently forewarned, had escaped from the Suai Ca Valley, near An Khe.

Fidel Castro was as vague as ever, but already the exodus had started.

All week long, despite safety warnings, little boats crossed the 90 miles of rough water to Florida, bringing Cubans happy to escape communism.

It was two weeks since Castro had announced that any Cubans who wished to do so might leave Cuba for the United States.

The United States had accepted his offer, still waited in vain for his plans on orderly movement. But many would not wait.

A sharp note was sent to Peking: The Red China attempt at a Communist coup against President Sukarno in Indonesia, there were these developments: Maj. Gen. Suharto, 44, who led the armed forces in crushing the coup, was named to command the Indonesian army, replacing a leftist general.

Suharto

Communist bookstores in Jakarta were raided, Communist youth headquarters was burned, some Communist-run secondary schools were ordered closed.

A sharp note was sent to Peking: the Red China Embassy in Jakarta had refused to fly its flag at half-staff in respect for six army generals killed in the Red-led coup.

Sukarno

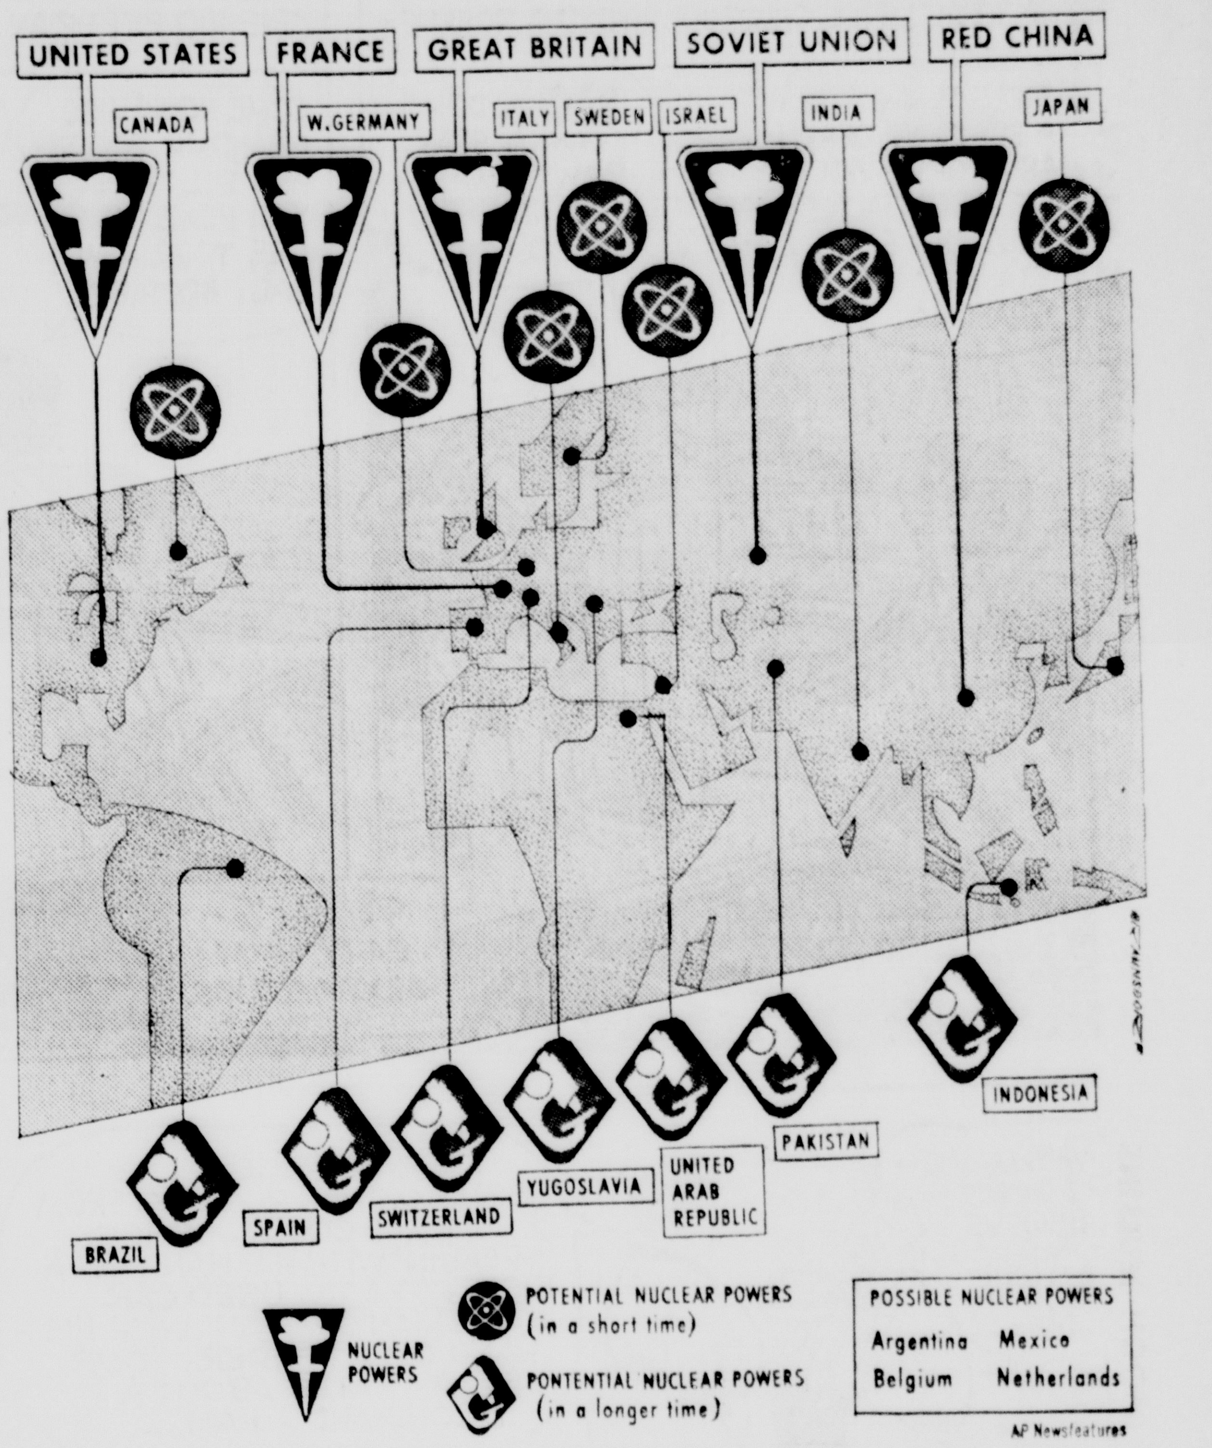
Thousands of Communists were rounded up and jailed, and the nation's Communist leader, D. N. Aidit, was still being sought. He was believed in hiding in central Java.

Sukarno was still pretty much under wraps, but he seemed to have made peace with the army elements which crushed the revolt. Who was ruling was still to be revealed.

To virtually no surprise in the literary world, the 1965 Nobel Prize for Literature was awarded to Mikhail Sholokov, 60, author of the four-volume Russian national epic, "And Quiet Flows the Don."

Who's Who In Atom Club

Keeping Up With Joneses



AP Newsfeatures

By FRANK CAREY

WASHINGTON (AP) — The once ultra-exclusive "nuclear weapons club"—a non-sociable outfit if ever there was one—has a grim potential for greatly increasing its membership. Concerned atomic observers on both sides of the Atlantic rate at least a dozen additional countries as having technological and other capabilities for eventually building atomic bombs—the only credential for joining the "club." The membership is now limited to the United States, Russia, Great Britain, France and Red China.

Top American and British government officials close to the atomic picture are wary of pinning down specific new membership timetables. However, unofficial estimates put a figure of two to five years for some of the nations prominently mentioned.

Dr. Glenn T. Seaborg, chairman of the U.S. Atomic Energy Commission, is on record as saying the following countries could be in the weapons club within "years" — presumably meaning three to seven years, depending upon the effort expended:

Japan, India, West Germany, Sweden, Italy, Canada and Israel.

And he adds that in a slightly longer time, Brazil, Switzerland, Spain, Yugoslavia and the United Arab Republic could perhaps get in on the act.

Britain's Minister of Disarmament Lord Chalfont echoes Seaborg's list, though with the exclusion of Spain and Yugoslavia. However, he adds two of his own: Pakistan and Indonesia.

Without naming them, Lord Chalfont has said that at least five of the countries on his list could become nuclear powers "in the next few years."

Also without naming names, Alastair Buchan of Great Britain's Institute of Strategic Studies estimates that the member nations of the club could grow from five to 15 in the next 20 years.

On the unofficial, but high-placed, side of the picture in the United States, Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, D-New York, says:

"At least a dozen, and perhaps a score, of (additional) nations are now in a position to develop nuclear weapons within three years. Two of these nations—Israel and India already possess weapons-grade fissionable material, and could fabricate an atomic device within a few months."

Without offering a full list of potential club members, Kennedy made clear in a senate speech late in June that he had in mind such countries as Australia and the Eastern European nations. Neither Australia nor the Eastern European nations were listed by Seaborg or Lord Chalfont, although each of those officials has indicated his list is not necessarily complete. Other nations mentioned on other unofficial lists include Belgium, The Netherlands, Argentina and Mexico.

What does a nation need to produce nuclear weapons?

It needs sufficiently powerful nuclear power reactors, or very large research reactors, to produce sufficient quantities of plutonium—a bomb ingredient—as a by-product of operating a reactor.

One unofficial estimate is that a country would have to have one 70 megawatt (million watt) reactor going full blast all the time to produce enough plutonium to make about five Hiroshima-type bombs a year.

By this same reckoning, the country would need to have about 100 tons of uranium to fuel the reactor. Some of the potential candidates—such as Japan and Italy—already have at least one reactor exceeding that power range. Others, including India, Israel, West Germany and Sweden have big ones planned or under construction.

President Sukarno of Indonesia has said his nation will produce an atomic bomb shortly. But Indonesia now has only a small research reactor—of only 250,000 watts in power—and U.S. atomic officials estimate it would take Indonesia 100 years to make enough plutonium for one bomb from that reactor.

A candidate country would also need complex chemical processing facilities to convert the raw, reactor-produced plutonium into weapons-grade stuff. Moneywise, the AEC's Seaborg has estimated that it would cost any country about $100 million to produce its first weapon. And why might any one of these countries want to get into the club?

John McCloy, a key official in the U.S. War Department during World War II, and long a close observer of defense and atomic matters, has this theory:

"Too many countries are simply trying to keep up with the Joneses. They want these weapons not only for defense, but as much for prestige."

Wilson's Freshman Year A Full One

Prime Minister Seems Expert At Brink Tactics

PRIME MINISTER—Worries of the crises which he faces as Prime Minister seem to weigh heavily on the shoulders of Britain's Harold Wilson. Here, in London, he pauses to underscore a statement made this week over a television broadcast on the situation in Rhodesia. (UPI Telephoto)

By ARTHUR L. GAVSHON

LONDON (AP)—Hours after his installation as prime minister, Harold Wilson was being escorted through the corridors of 10 Downing St.

Turning to a friend, Wilson—said with a grin:

"Nice place we've got here."

The tough little Yorkshireman meant then and means today to stay just where he is.

He begins his second year in office today with a fragile grip on parliamentary power but with his national rating high.

He has led near-bankrupt Britain within sight of solvency, slaughtered some sacred cows of international grandeur, and begun modernizing many hallowed but hoary institutions and practices. Now, he claims, the country is over the hump of its immediate difficulties with a pleansanter vista of popular measures ahead.

On the other hand, his nation still is in the red in world trade. The Labor government has retreated on big principles, at least temporarily, arousing controversy, criticism and confusion at home and abroad.

In the 630-member House of Commons, Labor's over-all margin soon may sag to a single vote, compared with five after last year's election.

Yet the pollsters report Wilson has an edge over Edward Heath's Conservatives ranging from 3.7 to 7.5 per cent. If this lead were reflected in an election it would substantially boost Labor's parliamentary margin.

In the past year, Wilson's government has survived setback after setback both inside and outside Parliament. Dominating all was his administration's fight to save the pound sterling from devaluation. That battle has been won, at least for the time being, but it has meant higher taxes, curbs on personal and national spending and the deferment of some promised Socialist reforms.

Wilson has seemingly convinced many Britons that the blame for these troubles lies not with him but with his Conservative predecessors.

"But now we can go forward," he claimed at the anual convention of the Labor party in Blackpool last month.

Wilson owes his survival to a combination of political brinkmanship and a readiness to govern with resolution. Even opponents acknowledge his performance has at times been shrewd, skillful, masterly. When the Tories in midsummer substituted Heath for Sir Alec Douglas-Home as leader, most commentators saw it as an attempt to match or better Wilson's own image of mangerial dynamism.

Wilson has shrugged aside three flash voting victories scored by the Conservatives in the Commons — victories which in normal times would compel the permier to consider resignation.

Wilson has temporarily corralled, if not silenced, Labor's vocal left wing, by using the party's very vulnerability in Parliament as an instrument of persuasion.

In the foreign field, Wilson has lined up with Johnson in big issues, improving day-to-day working relations between Britain and America. He also has set about mending British fences with the Russians and the East European Communist states. He wants more trade with the Reds.

Labor carried 65 bills through Parliament, well above the average since 1951. The centerpiece of these reformist, modernizing laws recast Britain's tax structure to clear the way for the planned redevelopment of economic resources.

By SAUL PETT

NEW YORK (AP)—The New York mayoralty campaign is getting rough. Someone has accused John V. Lindsay of being soft on Republicanism.

Abe Beame, the Democratic candidate, went further. He made the flat charge that Lindsay has met "secretly" with Republican leaders and they are "secretly" supporting him. Whispers even have been heard, among those convinced that Lindsay will end up one day in the White House, that he may be a "Republican Kennedy."

Nothing could be more serious in a city where Democrats normally out-register the Republicans by better than 3 to 1. However, political insiders doubt that either charge will stick.

True, Lindsay will have to explain why the Congressional Directory lists him as a Republican representative from the city's 17th District and why the Republican Party, as well as the Liberal Party, happened to nominate him for mayor.

Nonetheless, Lindsay insists he is a fusion candidate for mayor and almost never mentions the word Republican in speeches, "position papers" or billboards. He frequently invokes the memories of such Democratic Party heroes as Eleanor Roosevelt, Herbert H. Lehman and John F. Kennedy. He insists there is no Republican or Democratic way of cleaning up the streets of New York.

To his supporters, this is ample proof that John Vliet Lindsay long since has redeemed what many regard as the one mistake of his groping youth, when in a moment of confusion, he joined the Republican Party.

If voters in the Nov. 2 election require further evidence of Lindsay's un-Republicanism, he can always cite the fact that he refused to support Barry Goldwater in 1964, often failed to vote with his party in Congress. Despite Lyndon B. Johnson's sweep last year in the nation and city, it was Lindsay who out-polled the president in his district.

JOHN V. LINDSAY
Un-Republican GOP candidate

He is young, 43; tall, 6 feet 3; thin, 180 pounds, and spectacularly handsome, with pale blue eyes, classic sharp nose, heroic chin and boyishly tousled reddish-brown hair.

In style, Lindsay reminds one of an earnest young minister with a good tailor and an endless supply of righteous indignation. In oratory, he generally avoids humor, tends to thunder and does not shrink from hyperbole.

He frequently recalls his days in the Pacific — on a destroyer — and often attacks Beame, his principal opponent, as the prisoner of a political machine.

His infrequent humor tends to be heavy and somewhat startling.

Thus far in the campaign, Lindsay's Conservative Party opponent, William F. Buckley Jr., has been grabbing all the best lines. Recent newspaper polls of voter sentiment show Beame leading by about 45 per cent to 35 for Lindsay and 10 for Buckley.

BONDS LACK MAY IMPERIL SCHOOLS

State Allocation Board Worried Whether Voters Would Approve Bonds Next June

By EDWIN S. CAPPS

SACRAMENTO (CNS)—It will be nip and tuck whether funds for state loans for school building construction hold out until new bonds can be submitted to the people next June.

Paul I. Hoyenga, executive officer of the state allocation board, which approves the loans, said the volume was high in 1964, a total of about $149 million in loans being granted. While the total this year will be more on the order of $100 million, this could run the fund low before next June.

"If bonds are submitted to the voters next June and not approved, there probably will be no problem," Hoyenga said. "Once bonds are approved, we can go ahead with approving loans, with the actual money to be paid to the districts later."

Hoyenga said he expected the bond issue proposed for the voters next June would be $250 or $300 million.

Behind the present possible shortage of school loan funds lies a story of nearly four years of political maneuvering. It actually started in November, 1961, when it was disclosed the administration of Gov. Edmund G. Brown was planned to seek voter approval of more than $1 billion in bonds in 1962.

This quickly was denied by the governor's office and, by the time the June primary election rolled around, the debt requests had been cut to just under the $1 billion mark, to $970 million. The reduction was made in the school building aid bonds—while the proposal in 1960 had been for $300 million and this was normal for a two year period, the bond issue for 1962 was held to only $200 million.

Other bonds submitted in the disastrous bond issue series on the June, 1962, primary ballot included $250 million for veterans loan bonds (approved); $270 million in state construction bonds (rejected); $100 million for low-cost housing for the elderly (rejected); and $150 million for beach and park purchase (rejected).

While the school bond issue passed handily in June of 1962, it left the program on short rations until the next bonds could be submitted to the people. But before this could happen in June of 1964, some more politics had developed.

This was the qualification of the controversial housing initiative for the ballot—the measure which overturned the Rumford housing act. The attorney general's office ruled that, if any general bond issue went on the June primary ballot it would make the election a general one. The opinion said any initiatives qualified for the ballot thus would have to appear on the June, rather than the November, ballot.

Brown and other Democratic leaders feared the housing initiative would win if it were submitted to the voters in June. They wanted more time to campaign against it.

As a result, even though the time-table called for school bonds in June, the new school bond issue was delayed until the November election to postpone the voting on the housing measure. As it developed, of course, the housing initiative, Proposition 14, carried overwhelmingly in November anyway.

The only outcome of the Democrat maneuver was to delay making school loan money available. As a result, dozens of loans were approved but the payment of actual construction funds was deferred. And, when money from the bonds voted in November, $260 million, became available, a large chunk of it went to pay out the deferred loans.

This heavy drain on the 1964 bond funds, to make up prior deficiencies, is partially responsible for the present shortage.

The school building aid loan program could be complicated further if any reasons developed for delaying a vote on bonds next year from June to November. And, in fact, there is an initiative now being circulated for signatures on petitions which might prove to be controversial.

This Week In The World

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

A week after the incision that drew worldwide attention President Johnson was reacting just like any other postoperative patient. He was having gas pains, he wasn't sleeping too well, and he lacked pep.

Quite natural, said the doctors who had removed his gall bladder and a kidney stone. The President, they said, was having a completely normal recovery.

It was a week of heavy military action in Viet Nam, without spectacular results.

The U. S. Army's 1st Infantry Division wound up its week-long attempt to trap a major Viet Cong force in the central mountains of South Viet Nam, but the bag was nearly empty: 45 Viet Cong killed, 46 suspects captured.

The Viet Cong, apparently forewarned, had escaped from the Suai Ca Valley, near An Khe.

Fidel Castro was as vague as ever, but already the exodus had started.

All week long, despite safety warnings, little boats crossed the 90 miles of rough water to Florida, bringing Cubans happy to escape communism.

It was two weeks since Castro had announced that any Cubans who wished to do so might leave Cuba for the United States.

The United States had accepted his offer, still waited in vain for his plans on orderly movement. But many would not wait.

A sharp note was sent to Peking: The Red China attempt at a Communist coup against President Sukarno in Indonesia, there were these developments: Maj. Gen. Suharto, 44, who led the armed forces in crushing the coup, was named to command the Indonesian army, replacing a leftist general.

Suharto

Communist bookstores in Jakarta were raided, Communist youth headquarters was burned, some Communist-run secondary schools were ordered closed.

A sharp note was sent to Peking: the Red China Embassy in Jakarta had refused to fly its flag at half-staff in respect for six army generals killed in the Red-led coup.

Thousands of Communists were rounded up and jailed, and the nation's Communist leader, D. N. Aidit, was still being sought. He was believed in hiding in central Java.

Sukarno

Sukarno was still pretty much under wraps, but he seemed to have made peace with the army elements which crushed the revolt. Who was ruling was still to be revealed.

To virtually no surprise in the literary world, the 1965 Nobel Prize for Literature was awarded to Mikhail Sholokov, 60, author of the four-volume Russian national epic, "And Quiet Flows the Don."

Who's Who In Atom Club

Keeping Up With Joneses

By FRANK CAREY

WASHINGTON (AP) — The once ultra-exclusive "nuclear weapons club"—a non-sociable outfit if ever there was one—has a grim potential for greatly increasing its membership. Concerned atomic observers on both sides of the Atlantic rate at least a dozen additional countries as having technological and other capabilities for eventually building atomic bombs—the only credential for joining the "club." The membership is now limited to the United States, Russia, Great Britain, France and Red China.

Top American and British government officials close to the atomic picture are wary of pinning down specific new membership timetables. However, unofficial estimates put a figure of two to five years for some of the nations prominently mentioned.

Dr. Glenn T. Seaborg, chairman of the U.S. Atomic Energy Commission, is on record as saying the following countries could be in the weapons club within "years" — presumably meaning three to seven years, depending upon the effort expended:

Japan, India, West Germany, Sweden, Italy, Canada and Israel.

And he adds that in a slightly longer time, Brazil, Switzerland, Spain, Yugoslavia and the United Arab Republic could perhaps get in on the act.

Britain's Minister of Disarmament Lord Chalfont echoes Seaborg's list, though with the exclusion of Spain and Yugoslavia. However, he adds two of his own: Pakistan and Indonesia.

Without naming them, Lord Chalfont has said that at least five of the countries on his list could become nuclear powers "in the next few years."

Also without naming names, Alastair Buchan of Great Britain's Institute of Strategic Studies estimates that the member nations of the club could grow from five to 15 in the next 20 years.

On the unofficial, but high-placed, side of the picture in the United States, Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, D-New York, says: "At least a dozen, and perhaps a score, of (additional) nations are now in a position to develop nuclear weapons within three years. Two of these nations—Israel and India already possess weapons-grade fissionable material, and could fabricate an atomic device within a few months."

Without offering a full list of potential club members, Kennedy made clear in a senate speech late in June that he had in mind such countries as Australia and the Eastern European nations. Neither Australia nor the Eastern European nations were listed by Seaborg or Lord Chalfont, although each of those officials has indicated his list is not necessarily complete. Other nations mentioned on other unofficial lists include Belgium, The Netherlands, Argentina and Mexico.

What does a nation need to produce nuclear weapons?

It needs sufficiently powerful nuclear power reactors, or very large research reactors, to produce sufficient quantities of plutonium—a bomb ingredient—as a by-product of operating a reactor.

One unofficial estimate is that a country would have to have one 70 megawatt (million watt) reactor going full blast all the time to produce enough plutonium to make about five Hiroshima-type bombs a year.

By this same reckoning, the country would need to have about 100 tons of uranium to fuel the reactor. Some of the potential candidates—such as Japan and Italy—already have at least one reactor exceeding that power range. Others, including India, Israel, West Germany and Sweden have big ones planned or under construction.

President Sukarno of Indonesia has said his nation will produce an atomic bomb shortly. But Indonesia now has only a small research reactor—of only 250,000 watts in power—and U.S. atomic officials estimate it would take Indonesia 100 years to make enough plutonium for one bomb from that reactor.

A candidate country would also need complex chemical processing facilities to convert the raw, reactor-produced plutonium into weapons-grade stuff. Moneywise, the AEC's Seaborg has estimated that it would cost any country about $100 million to produce its first weapon. And why might any one of these countries want to get into the club?

John McCloy, a key official in the U.S. War Department during World War II, and long a close observer of defense and atomic matters, has this theory:

"Too many countries are simply trying to keep up with the Joneses. They want these weapons not only for defense, but as much for prestige."

Wilson's Freshman Year A Full One

Prime Minister Seems Expert At Brink Tactics

By ARTHUR L. GAVSHON

LONDON (AP)—Hours after his installation as prime minister, Harold Wilson was being escorted through the corridors of 10 Downing St.

Turning to a friend, Wilson—said with a grin:

"Nice place we've got here."

The tough little Yorkshireman meant then and means today to stay just where he is.

He begins his second year in office today with a fragile grip on parliamentary power but with his national rating high.

He has led near-bankrupt Britain within sight of solvency, slaughtered some sacred cows of international grandeur, and begun modernizing many hallowed but hoary institutions and practices. Now, he claims, the country is over the hump of its immediate difficulties with a pleansanter vista of popular measures ahead.

On the other hand, his nation still is in the red in world trade. The Labor government has retreated on big principles, at least temporarily, arousing controversy, criticism and confusion at home and abroad.

In the 630-member House of Commons, Labor's over-all margin soon may sag to a single vote, compared with five after last year's election.

Yet the pollsters report Wilson has an edge over Edward Heath's Conservatives ranging from 3.7 to 7.5 per cent. If this lead were reflected in an election it would substantially boost Labor's parliamentary margin.

In the past year, Wilson's government has survived setback after setback both inside and outside Parliament. Dominating all was his administration's fight to save the pound sterling from devaluation. That battle has been won, at least for the time being, but it has meant higher taxes, curbs on personal and national spending and the deferment of some promised Socialist reforms.

Wilson has seemingly convinced many Britons that the blame for these troubles lies not with him but with his Conservative predecessors.

"But now we can go forward," he claimed at the anual convention of the Labor party in Blackpool last month.

Wilson owes his survival to a combination of political brinkmanship and a readiness to govern with resolution. Even opponents acknowledge his performance has at times been shrewd, skillful, masterly. When the Tories in midsummer substituted Heath for Sir Alec Douglas-Home as leader, most commentators saw it as an attempt to match or better Wilson's own image of mangerial dynamism.

Wilson has shrugged aside three flash voting victories scored by the Conservatives in the Commons — victories which in normal times would compel the permier to consider resignation.

Wilson has temporarily corralled, if not silenced, Labor's vocal left wing, by using the party's very vulnerability in Parliament as an instrument of persuasion.

In the foreign field, Wilson has lined up with Johnson in big issues, improving day-to-day working relations between Britain and America. He also has set about mending British fences with the Russians and the East European Communist states. He wants more trade with the Reds.

Labor carried 65 bills through Parliament, well above the average since 1951. The centerpiece of these reformist, modernizing laws recast Britain's tax structure to clear the way for the planned redevelopment of economic resources.

PRIME MINISTER—Worries of the crises which he faces as Prime Minister seem to weigh heavily on the shoulders of Britain's Harold Wilson. Here, in London, he pauses to underscore a statement made this week over a television broadcast on the situation in Rhodesia.

ALMANAC

Today is Saturday, Oct. 16, the 289th day of 1965 with 76 to follow.

The moon is approaching its last quarter; the morning star is Jupiter; the evening stars are Mars, Venus and Saturn.

On this day in history:

In 1846, the first operation with a patient under ether anesthesia was performed at Massachusetts General Hospital in Boston.

In 1859, abolitionist John Brown staged a raid on Harpers Ferry, Va. He seized a hotel, arsenal, firehouse and 30 townspeople.

In 1934, Chinese Communists began their long march to the northwest where they established headquarters and planned to continue the attack against Nationalist China.

In 1959, U.S. Army Chief of Staff George Marshall died.

A thought for the day: Roman emperor Marcus Aurelius said: "Receive wealth or position with arragance and be ready to let it go."

South won the first trick with the king of diamonds and decided that he would surely be able to get back to his hand with a heart if East held either the king or the jack.

A great expert would surely make the right guess when the right time came.

South therefore cashed his high clubs, entered dummy with the act of hearts and took two more clubs, getting rid of the eight and nine of spades. Then he led a heart from dummy.

West had both the king and jack of hearts, and South had some explaining to do.

GOOD ODDS

"The odds were 3 to 1 that one or both heart honors would be in favorable position," South said. "Playing for the spades gives me just about the same chance."

There isn't much difference, actually, if you blindly assume that South is absolutely sure to guess right whenever the king and jack of hearts are divided. Still, South overlooked a preliminary play that could cost nothing.

South should cash the ace and king of spades before making up his mind. If only small spades fall, South can then play as he likes.

Actually, the 10 would drop, and South would continue with the queen and nine of spades to develop a fourth spade trick. The slam is then assured.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens with two spades (forcing to game), and the next player passes.

You hold:

♠ J 7 5 4 3 2
♥ 9 8 7
♣ 10 6

What do you say?

Answer: Big two no trump.

Show the weakness first, and the spade support at your next turn. Some experts agree that a jump to four spades shows trump support but no ace, king, or singleton in the hand. (Do not make such a jump raise unless you are positive that your partner understands just what it means.)

NO! I DON'T WANNA STAY! BAW! I WANNA GO WITH YOU! BOO HOO!
THEN WHEN MOM CAME TO TAKE HER HOME THE KID PUT UP AN EVEN BIGGER SQUAWK!
COME NOW! KISS GRANDMA GOODBY AND I'LL TAKE YOU HOME TO SEE YOUR NEW BABY BROTHER!
NO! I DON'T WANNA GO! I WANNA STAY WITH GRANDMA! I DON'T WANT NO BABY BROTHER! BAW!

ALMANAC

Today is Saturday, Oct. 16, the 289th day of 1965 with 76 to follow.

The moon is approaching its last quarter; the morning star is Jupiter; the evening stars are Mars, Venus and Saturn.

On this day in history:

In 1846, the first operation with a patient under ether anesthesia was performed at Massachusetts General Hospital in Boston.

In 1859, abolitionist John Brown staged a raid on Harpers Ferry, Va. He seized a hotel, arsenal, firehouse and 30 townspeople.

In 1934, Chinese Communists began their long march to the northwest where they established headquarters and planned to continue the attack against Nationalist China.

In 1959, U.S. Army Chief of Staff George Marshall died.

A thought for the day: Roman emperor Marcus Aurelius said: "Receive wealth or position with arragance and be ready to let it go."

TIME AND TIDE

Department of Commerce, United States Coast Geodetic Survey, Western District headquarters. Times and heights of tides at San Francisco (Golden Gate):

The column of heights gives the elevation in feet of each tide above or below the plane of Coast Survey chart soundings. The depths are always additive to the chart depths unless preceded by a minus sign (-), when the numbers are subtracted from the depth given in the chart. Light-face type indicates a.m. times; bold-face type indicates p.m. times.

HOW TO PLAY

WINNING BRIDGE

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

Sometimes A Test All Right And Will Cost You Nothing

One advantage of being an expert is that you can give a very learned reason for your failures. Your partner is no gentleman if he persists in asking if your result was good or bad for your side.

Opening lead — ◇ Q

South won the first trick with the king of diamonds and decided that he would surely be able to get back to his hand with a heart if East held either the king or the jack.

A great expert would surely make the right guess when the right time came.

South therefore cashed his high clubs, entered dummy with the act of hearts and took two more clubs, getting rid of the eight and nine of spades. Then he led a heart from dummy.

West had both the king and jack of hearts, and South had some explaining to do.

GOOD ODDS

"The odds were 3 to 1 that one or both heart honors would be in favorable position," South said. "Playing for the spades gives me just about the same chance."

There isn't much difference, actually, if you blindly assume that South is absolutely sure to guess right whenever the king and jack of hearts are divided. Still, South overlooked a preliminary play that could cost nothing.

South should cash the ace and king of spades before making up his mind. If only small spades fall, South can then play as he likes.

Actually, the 10 would drop, and South would continue with the queen and nine of spades to develop a fourth spade trick. The slam is then assured.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens with two spades (forcing to game), and the next player passes.

You hold:

♠ J 7 5 4 3 2
♥ 9 8 7
♣ 10 6

What do you say?

Answer: Big two no trump.

Show the weakness first, and the spade support at your next turn. Some experts agree that a jump to four spades shows trump support but no ace, king, or singleton in the hand. (Do not make such a jump raise unless you are positive that your partner understands just what it means.)

Real Compact Cars

SEATTLE, Wash. (UPI)—Business is pressing for Roy Parks of Seattle who makes compact cars. Parks recently received a patent for a device that squeezes a full sized automobile body into a two-by-two block of metal. He hopes his portable press will help spruce up unsightly auto junk yards.

San Rafael Runs Over Marin, 42-12

99-Yard Wildcat Score Fails To Halt Bulldogs

by Maurice Weinger

San Rafael scored everytime it got possession of the ball through the first three quarters to easily defeat Marin Catholic, 41-12, last night at Kentfield in the Wildcat's Homecoming contest.

The Bulldog victory, the second straight against one league loss in Marin Athletic League football, got a rude jolt in the early moments of the contest as the Wildcats scored their first touchdown in three league games on a 99-yard opening kick-off return by halfback George King.

King's run was quite a thrill as it surprised almost everyone—including most of the Marin fans. Taking the ball on his one, the runner started up the middle and bounced off three Bulldog defenders on the 35. Keeping his balance, King slipped to the right, and with a fine block by Ed Lencioni on the 40, ran the rest of the way in the first 16 seconds of the contest.

The brief lead was quickly erased as San Rafael combined the running of Rocky Shone and Shawn Easley and the passing of Jay Widmer to completely outclass the Wildcats.

SHONE SHINES

Shone was the star on the first San Rafael score as he made 31 of the 54 yards on the drive. Taking the ball on the first three carries, the senior made 20 yards and Easley, on a counter, added another eight to the 31. A 15-yard Marin penalty along with another two by Easley, moved the ball to the 14 where Shone went off left tackle for 10, and came back two plays later with the final yard.

The second Bulldog score found Easley handling the important ground gaining. Taking the ball on a fake pass situation, Easley moved 22 yards to the 27-yard line and added another 15 yards with three Marin men hanging on to him.

Tom Gagen, who kicked five of six conversions, finished the drive with the other 12 yards, all of them coming on plays off tackle.

PASSING ATTACK

The second quarter scores by San Rafael featured the passing of Widmer and the catching of end Joe Cunningham and Sam Crowell.

Crowell set up the third score with a 30-yard catch down the middle to the eight yard line and Easley added the finishing touches for the third score.

Cunningham, on a first down play, raced down the right sidelines to catch a 29-yard pass that set up the Bulldogs' fourth score. The pass from the 34 to the five yard line allowed Gagen to add three and Shone to make the final two yards on a pair of drives, for a 28-12 halftime lead.

In the third quarter Widmer really put the shock treatment to the Wildcats. On the first play of the quarter Widmer threw a short pass into the left flat to Shone and the speedy back went 45 yards to the 13. Wider came right back through the air, this time to Cunningham who speared a bullet on the right side for the 35th point.

FINAL TD

The final touchdown was another speedy one through the air with Widmer hitting Cunningham, the latter going between two Marin defenders for a 21-yard pass.

Marin got on the scoreboard early in the second half with its second score as quarterback Mike Giacomini found the range with a 37-yarder to John Grady which moved the ball to San Rafael's 21.

Three running plays moved the ball to the 12 and Giacomini then surprised the Bulldog defense with two quarterback keepers, the first for nine and the last for the final three.

San Rafael scoring: TDs — Rocky Shone 2 (both 1-yard runs); Tom Gagen (2-yard run); Shawn Easley (8-yard run); Joe Cunningham 2 (13 and 21-yard passes from Jay Widmer). PATs — Tom Gagen 5 (placements).

Marin Catholic scoring: TDs—George King (99-yard kickoff return); Mike Giacomini (3-yard run).

Spahn Released, But Wants To Continue

HARTSHORNE, Okla. (AP) — The winningest left-hander pitcher in major league baseball — Warren Spahn — interrupted his ranch chores long enough to say he thought the San Francisco Giants may have made a wise move in giving him his unconditional release.

But the 44-year-old veteran hurler immediately added:

"I want to play baseball next year."

All other National League clubs have waived on Spahn and the Giants' release yesterday will allow him to seek his own contract next season.

"I might be with the Giants again next year," Spahn said at his 3,000-acre cattle ranch in Southeastern Oklahoma.

"I think it was to their advantage to give me a release. Everyone is thinking of roster room."

Spahn, who lives on the ranch in the winter-time with his wife LoRene and 16-year-old son, Greg, signed with the Giants last July about a week after his release by the New York Mets.

He built a fabulous 20-year-career with the Braves in Boston and later in Milwaukee. During his career Spahn won 363 games. This is a record for southpaws and ranks him sixth on the all-time list.

It obviously isn't money that keeps Spahn hanging onto baseball. He has earned in the neighborhood of $80,000 annually for years and has made wise investments.

He sincerely feels that despite his age he is in top physical condition and still can turn in a credible pitching job if given the opportunity.

Spahn was dropped by the Braves at the end of the 1964 season. With the Mets, he had a 4-12 won-lost record and a 4.43 earned run average.

Signed as a free agent by the Giants July 19, Spahn finished the season with an overall 7-16 record.

Undefeated Tam Scores Fifth Win

Defense Stars In 14-0 Score Over Analy '11'

Coach Willie Hector's Tamalpais Indians, Marin County's winningest football team, had trouble generating any offensive punch but their opportunistic defensive team again sparkled last night in a 14-0 non-league victory over the Analy Tigers of the North Bay League at Sebastopol.

In winning their fifth game of the year, the undefeated Indians killed Analy's offense by intercepting six passes while their offense managed to punch across touchdowns in the first and last quarters.

Against a team that had yielded 132 points while scoring only 6 in four previous games, Tam's 14-0 victory was not impressive. "We just have to get some offense going," said Hector, eyeing next Saturday's important Marin Athletic League game against strong Novato. "We controlled the ball all night but just couldn't move it."

Hector used all 37 varsity players last night in his search for more talent and was pleased with the offensive work of halfback James Cook, fullback Steve Meyers and tackle Ernie Bergman. On defense, stars were end Honor Jackson who made life miserable for the Analy passer, middle guard John Henry Bennett, linebacker Horace White and cornerback Jerry Geissinger.

Linebacker Gary Cotten intercepted two Analy passes and Scott Laurie, Geissinger, Ken Blasingame and Dave Salaun one each. Blasingame had a clear shot at a touchdown after his interception, but tripped over a teammate and fell.

Tam scored the first time it got the ball with Cook making a nifty runback of the opening kickoff to the Analy 40. A few plays later quarterback Tom Lecy threw a 25-yard touchdown pass to Mike Biber. Mike Fowler ran over the extra point.

Tam's final TD came in the fourth period after an exchange of punts, the Indians driving to the Analy three. Three consecutive touchdown plays were nullified by backfield-in-motion penalties before Fowler finally plunged over for the six-pointer. Kirk Sparks ran over the extra point for the final 14-0 measure.

Four Drivers Crack Mark At Laguna

MONTEREY (AP) — Hap Sharp of Midland, Texas, emerged today as the top qualifier so far for the $30,000 Monterey Grand Prix. Four drivers set new records.

Sharp's time was moved up late last night after discrepancies were discovered in the electric timing system and a night heat was run off with manually operated timing watches.

Sharp's final time was listed at 1.07 flat. Jim Hall, of Midland, Texas, who previously had been listed as top man improved his time from 1.07:46 to 1.07.2 for the 1.9 mile course.

Jerry Grant of Kent, Wash., retained third spot with 1.07:4 and Parnelli Jones of Torrance, Calif., fourth at 1.07.6.

All four broke the track record of 1.08:8 set by Roger Penske last October.

Twelve cars are yet to qualify for starting slots before the Grand Prix start at 1:30 p.m. tomorrow.

Robert Dick Is Tourney Winner

Robert Dick has won the month-long eclectic golf tournament which concluded yesterday for members of the Las Gallinas Junior Golf Club. His score was 25-1—24.

John Hahn was second with 30-3½—26½ and Dewey Forry third at 29-1½—27½.

In yesterday's nine-hole, medal handicap play, Tony Metcalf led the way with 35-5—30, while Robert Dick had fewest putts, 12. Boys 12 through 16 interested in joining the Las Gallinas Club should contact the course.

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—He was only his team's third leading scorer, but both coach Fred Schaus of the Lakers and Alex Hannum of the Warriors pinpointed Leroy Ellis as the difference in last night's National Basketball Assn. opener.

The defending Western Division champion Lakers are considered strong on the corners, but weak at center so when Ellis is hot—the Lakers are too.

They downed the Warriors, 122-115, last night before a good Civic Auditorium crowd of 5,836. The Warriors rallied from a half-time deficit of 61-45 to tie the count at 92-all with 8 minutes to play.

But then Jerry West, who wound up with 36 points, and Ellis hit all their shots to push their team out in front again.

Rudy Larusso wound up with 23 Laker points and Ellis, who hit on 10 of 11 attempts, got 22.

"We always know that West will get his points, but Ellis is the guy who killed us," Hannum said after the game. Schaus also praised the veteran pivot man.

Guards Paul Neumann, who hit 10 of 16, and Guy Rodgers led the Warriors with 26 and 22 respectively.

Rookie Rick Barry from Miami, whom many think will prove to be in the Jerry Lucas-Bob Petit class before he's through, hit only two points in a nervous first half but added 15 more in the second half.

"The pressure was on him after that bad first half and he responded to it," Hannum said. "He'll be a great one." Barry averaged nearly 23 points per game to lead the Warriors to a 6-5 exhibition record.

Walt Hazzard started at guard for the Lakers in place of the departed Dick Barnett and looked good with a 14-point performance. Barnett was traded to New York for forward Bob Boozer.

Keith Erickson, defensive star of last year's UCLA national champs, came off the bench for the Warriors to hit 7 points and do a nice defensive job on Elgin Baylor of the Lakers. Gail Goodrich, the All America scoring star of the Bruins, saw only a little bit of action for the Lakers.

Nicholson Is Star In S.F. Ice Victory

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—It looks like another wild season for the San Francisco Seals. They have played one game and had one fight.

A big Cow Palace crowd of 8,469 turned out to watch the Seals, picked for about third in this year's Western Hockey League race, battle the Los Angeles Blades, everybody's cellar pick.

They saw the Seals take a 9-5 decision despite a flashy performance by Willie O'Ree of the Blades. O'Ree was last year's top goal-getter in the league and he had three last night.

Two of them helped push the Blades out to a 4-1 lead early in the second stanza before seven straight San Francisco goals turned the tide.

The fight occurred early in the second stanza and wound up with eight penalties and three men left on each side. Five goals were scored, three by the Seals and two by the Blades, before those punished returned.

Big Al Nicholson wound up Seals high scorer with three goals. Tom Thurlby added two and Forbes Kennedy, Charlie Burns, John Gravel, and George Swarbrick hit singles.

O'Ree got a little help from Norm Johnson and Gordy Vejprava, ho had single tallies.

Jack Norris, Los Angeles netminder, managed to stop 30, while the Seals' Jack McCartan blocked 26.

The Seals are at Portland next Wednesday in the first of a northwest swing. The Blades will head east since they are the first to do battle with American Hockey League teams in the new interlocking schedule.

1:11 To Go, Troy Gets Equalizer

By RALPH CHATOIAN

After giving away a touchdown in the first half, the Terra Linda High School Trojans scored one of their own late in the second half to tie the Redwood Giants 6-6 last night in a Marin Athletic League football game before 3,400 chilled spectators at the San Rafael High School field.

Terra Linda dominated the offensive phase of the game, 246 to 79 total yards, but once again—as has been the case with quite a few prep games this season — fumbles snuffed out scoring chances.

An intercepted pass by Redwood's Len Pieri cut off Terra Linda's first scoring opportunity in the opening quarter, when the Trojans got the ball as far as the Redwood 21.

Sticking to the ground, Redwood drove all the way back to Terra Linda's seven-yard line before the Trojans' defense stiffened and held. But four plays later, Redwood got the ball again when Terra Linda halfback Jim Paydo fumbled Sid Norman's handoff and Pete Bricca fell on the ball on the Trojans' 23.

Breaks evened out when Terra Linda's Tom Loback intercepted a Dane Durham pass on the Trojan 22 three plays later to stop Redwood from hitting paydirt.

TOUCHDOWN GIFT

Then for the rest of the second quarter, the teams exchanged punts, Terra Linda and Redwood each booting the ball twice. With only eight seconds left in the first half, the touchdown gift was presented to Redwood and the Giants graciously accepted.

Faced with a fourth down and 33 yards to go for a first down, Terra Linda was on its own 10-yard stripe. Fred Daniele went back in punt formation, but when the ball snapped to him, in his own end zone, he tried to run with the ball instead of kicking it. Redwood defensive end Jim Tupper wasn't going to be fooled. He charged in and wrestled Daniele to the ground on the one-yard line. It was Redwood's ball, first and goal from the one.

The Giants wasted no time, since there were only eight seconds in the half. Durham bulled over on the first play, a quarterback sneak. Redwood didn't have much of a chance on the conversion attempt when the ball sailed over the head of Tom Sather who was set to try the kick for PAT. When he finally reached the ball back on the 20, he was swarmed over by blue shirted Trojans.

Terra Linda head coach Brad Squires, after the game, admitted sending in the play that had Daniele running instead of kicking.

"I hadn't realized we were so deep in our own territory," Squires said. The two plays previous to the fourth down gamble had lost a total of 18 yards, pushing Terra Linda back from the 28 to the 10.

In the third quarter, Terra Linda drove all the way from its own 19 to the Redwood 16 before giving up the ball—because of another fumble. Fullback Jim Taylor lost the ball after a hard tackle and Redwood's Pieri was on it in a flash, playing the role of thief once again. (See photo.)

Terra Linda had another drive going early in the fourth quarter but it stalled on the Redwood 28 because of more Giants thievery. Norman was trying to pitch out in back of him on an option play and he tried to flip the ball over Tupper's head. Not satisfied with being the tackler who set up Redwood's touchdown, Tupper jumped up and grabbed the ball before it ever had a chance of getting near any Trojan, and another Terra Linda threat was choked.

GAME COMEBACK

Norman completed four of seven attempts in that TD drive. He hit Hill with one for 13 yards, one to Ron Laufer for 6 yards, another to Hill for 32 yards, and then the final one for the 31 yards that were worth six points. Hill made a great catch on the TD toss, jumping up between four Redwood defenders to come down with the ball. The Giants were dropping seven men back for pass defense against Norman's tosses.

The stands became quiet as Terra Linda lined up to try for the big extra point. Brian Perron, Trojans' kicking specialist, waited for the snap from center and then down swung his foot. The ball started for the goal posts, but too far to the right. Both teams had to be content with a tie.

San Rafael Runs Over Marin, 42-12

99-Yard Wildcat Score Fails To Halt Bulldogs

by Maurice Weinger

San Rafael scored everytime it got possession of the ball through the first three quarters to easily defeat Marin Catholic, 41-12, last night at Kentfield in the Wildcat's Homecoming contest.

The Bulldog victory, the second straight against one league loss in Marin Athletic League football, got a rude jolt in the early moments of the contest as the Wildcats scored their first touchdown in three league games on a 99-yard opening kick-off return by halfback George King.

King's run was quite a thrill as it surprised almost everyone—including most of the Marin fans. Taking the ball on his one, the runner started up the middle and bounced off three Bulldog defenders on the 35. Keeping his balance, King slipped to the right, and with a fine block by Ed Lencioni on the 40, ran the rest of the way in the first 16 seconds of the contest.

The brief lead was quickly erased as San Rafael combined the running of Rocky Shone and Shawn Easley and the passing of Jay Widmer to completely outclass the Wildcats.

SHONE SHINES

Shone was the star on the first San Rafael score as he made 31 of the 54 yards on the drive. Taking the ball on the first three carries, the senior made 20 yards and Easley, on a counter, added another eight to the 31. A 15-yard Marin penalty along with another two by Easley, moved the ball to the 14 where Shone went off left tackle for 10, and came back two plays later with the final yard.

The second Bulldog score found Easley handling the important ground gaining. Taking the ball on a fake pass situation, Easley moved 22 yards to the 27-yard line and added another 15 yards with three Marin men hanging on to him.

Tom Gagen, who kicked five of six conversions, finished the drive with the other 12 yards, all of them coming on plays off tackle.

PASSING ATTACK

The second quarter scores by San Rafael featured the passing of Widmer and the catching of end Joe Cunningham and Sam Crowell.

Crowell set up the third score with a 30-yard catch down the middle to the eight yard line and Easley added the finishing touches for the third score.

Cunningham, on a first down play, raced down the right sidelines to catch a 29-yard pass that set up the Bulldogs' fourth score. The pass from the 34 to the five yard line allowed Gagen to add three and Shone to make the final two yards on a pair of drives, for a 28-12 halftime lead.

In the third quarter Widmer really put the shock treatment to the Wildcats. On the first play of the quarter Widmer threw a short pass into the left flat to Shone and the speedy back went 45 yards to the 13. Wider came right back through the air, this time to Cunningham who speared a bullet on the right side for the 35th point.

FINAL TD

The final touchdown was another speedy one through the air with Widmer hitting Cunningham, the latter going between two Marin defenders for a 21-yard pass.

Marin got on the scoreboard early in the second half with its second score as quarterback Mike Giacomini found the range with a 37-yarder to John Grady which moved the ball to San Rafael's 21.

Three running plays moved the ball to the 12 and Giacomini then surprised the Bulldog defense with two quarterback keepers, the first for nine and the last for the final three.

San Rafael scoring: TDs — Rocky Shone 2 (both 1-yard runs); Tom Gagen (2-yard run); Shawn Easley (8-yard run); Joe Cunningham 2 (13 and 21-yard passes from Jay Widmer). PATs — Tom Gagen 5 (placements).

Marin Catholic scoring: TDs—George King (99-yard kickoff return); Mike Giacomini (3-yard run).

Spahn Released, But Wants To Continue

HARTSHORNE, Okla. (AP) — The winningest left-hander pitcher in major league baseball — Warren Spahn — interrupted his ranch chores long enough to say he thought the San Francisco Giants may have made a wise move in giving him his unconditional release.

But the 44-year-old veteran hurler immediately added:

"I want to play baseball next year."

All other National League clubs have waived on Spahn and the Giants' release yesterday will allow him to seek his own contract next season.

"I might be with the Giants again next year," Spahn said at his 3,000-acre cattle ranch in Southeastern Oklahoma.

"I think it was to their advantage to give me a release. Everyone is thinking of roster room."

Spahn, who lives on the ranch in the winter-time with his wife LoRene and 16-year-old son, Greg, signed with the Giants last July about a week after his release by the New York Mets.

He built a fabulous 20-year-career with the Braves in Boston and later in Milwaukee. During his career Spahn won 363 games. This is a record for southpaws and ranks him sixth on the all-time list.

It obviously isn't money that keeps Spahn hanging onto baseball. He has earned in the neighborhood of $80,000 annually for years and has made wise investments.

He sincerely feels that despite his age he is in top physical condition and still can turn in a credible pitching job if given the opportunity.

Spahn was dropped by the Braves at the end of the 1964 season. With the Mets, he had a 4-12 won-lost record and a 4.43 earned run average.

Signed as a free agent by the Giants July 19, Spahn finished the season with an overall 7-16 record.

Nicholson Is Star In S.F. Ice Victory

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—It looks like another wild season for the San Francisco Seals. They have played one game and had one fight.

A big Cow Palace crowd of 8,469 turned out to watch the Seals, picked for about third in this year's Western Hockey League race, battle the Los Angeles Blades, everybody's cellar pick.

They saw the Seals take a 9-5 decision despite a flashy performance by Willie O'Ree of the Blades. O'Ree was last year's top goal-getter in the league and he had three last night.

Two of them helped push the Blades out to a 4-1 lead early in the second stanza before seven straight San Francisco goals turned the tide.

The fight occurred early in the second stanza and wound up with eight penalties and three men left on each side. Five goals were scored, three by the Seals and two by the Blades, before those punished returned.

Big Al Nicholson wound up Seals high scorer with three goals. Tom Thurlby added two and Forbes Kennedy, Charlie Burns, John Gravel, and George Swarbrick hit singles.

O'Ree got a little help from Norm Johnson and Gordy Vejprava, ho had single tallies.

Jack Norris, Los Angeles netminder, managed to stop 30, while the Seals' Jack McCartan blocked 26.

The Seals are at Portland next Wednesday in the first of a northwest swing. The Blades will head east since they are the first to do battle with American Hockey League teams in the new interlocking schedule.

1:11 To Go, Troy Gets Equalizer

By RALPH CHATOIAN

After giving away a touchdown in the first half, the Terra Linda High School Trojans scored one of their own late in the second half to tie the Redwood Giants 6-6 last night in a Marin Athletic League football game before 3,400 chilled spectators at the San Rafael High School field.

Terra Linda dominated the offensive phase of the game, 246 to 79 total yards, but once again—as has been the case with quite a few prep games this season — fumbles snuffed out scoring chances.

An intercepted pass by Redwood's Len Pieri cut off Terra Linda's first scoring opportunity in the opening quarter, when the Trojans got the ball as far as the Redwood 21.

Sticking to the ground, Redwood drove all the way back to Terra Linda's seven-yard line before the Trojans' defense stiffened and held. But four plays later, Redwood got the ball again when Terra Linda halfback Jim Paydo fumbled Sid Norman's handoff and Pete Bricca fell on the ball on the Trojans' 23.

Breaks evened out when Terra Linda's Tom Loback intercepted a Dane Durham pass on the Trojan 22 three plays later to stop Redwood from hitting paydirt.

TOUCHDOWN GIFT

Then for the rest of the second quarter, the teams exchanged punts, Terra Linda and Redwood each booting the ball twice. With only eight seconds left in the first half, the touchdown gift was presented to Redwood and the Giants graciously accepted.

Faced with a fourth down and 33 yards to go for a first down, Terra Linda was on its own 10-yard stripe. Fred Daniele went back in punt formation, but when the ball snapped to him, in his own end zone, he tried to run with the ball instead of kicking it. Redwood defensive end Jim Tupper wasn't going to be fooled. He charged in and wrestled Daniele to the ground on the one-yard line. It was Redwood's ball, first and goal from the one.

The Giants wasted no time, since there were only eight seconds in the half. Durham bulled over on the first play, a quarterback sneak. Redwood didn't have much of a chance on the conversion attempt when the ball sailed over the head of Tom Sather who was set to try the kick for PAT. When he finally reached the ball back on the 20, he was swarmed over by blue shirted Trojans.

Terra Linda head coach Brad Squires, after the game, admitted sending in the play that had Daniele running instead of kicking.

"I hadn't realized we were so deep in our own territory," Squires said. The two plays previous to the fourth down gamble had lost a total of 18 yards, pushing Terra Linda back from the 28 to the 10.

In the third quarter, Terra Linda drove all the way from its own 19 to the Redwood 16 before giving up the ball—because of another fumble. Fullback Jim Taylor lost the ball after a hard tackle and Redwood's Pieri was on it in a flash, playing the role of thief once again. (See photo.)

Terra Linda had another drive going early in the fourth quarter but it stalled on the Redwood 28 because of more Giants thievery. Norman was trying to pitch out in back of him on an option play and he tried to flip the ball over Tupper's head. Not satisfied with being the tackler who set up Redwood's touchdown, Tupper jumped up and grabbed the ball before it ever had a chance of getting near any Trojan, and another Terra Linda threat was choked.

GAME COMEBACK

Norman completed four of seven attempts in that TD drive. He hit Hill with one for 13 yards, one to Ron Laufer for 6 yards, another to Hill for 32 yards, and then the final one for the 31 yards that were worth six points. Hill made a great catch on the TD toss, jumping up between four Redwood defenders to come down with the ball. The Giants were dropping seven men back for pass defense against Norman's tosses.

The stands became quiet as Terra Linda lined up to try for the big extra point. Brian Perron, Trojans' kicking specialist, waited for the snap from center and then down swung his foot. The ball started for the goal posts, but too far to the right. Both teams had to be content with a tie.

Marin Catholic Tops Cage Loop

Marin Catholic Wildkittens took over possession of first place in Marin Athletic League Class C basketball standings Thursday when they whipped Tamalpais 41-27.

The win gave Marin a 5-1 record after completing the first half of the double round-robin schedule. Thursday's scoring by Marin again was paced by Robert McCarthy who meshed 13 points. He scored a total of 72 points in the first half for a 12 point average per game. Mike Harris of Tam scored 10 points yesterday.

One-half game behind Marin Catholic are Redwood and Terra Linda, each with 4-1 records with one game remaining in the first half. Redwood dumped San Rafael Thursday 58-22. Leading the Redwood scoring were Andy McIlroy with 12 and Bob Purtell with 10. Paul Kent hit 10 points for San Rafael.

Marin Tars Host West Valley Tonight

Incensed by what he called a lack - luster performance last week, College of Marin football coach Dick Read this week sent his Tars through bruising practice sessions preparatory to tonight's non-conference contest with West Valley Junior College of Campbell.

Marin's last practice encounter of the season will be played at Kentfield starting at 8 o'clock. The Tars open Golden Valley Conference action next Friday against Sierra College, also at Kentfield.

In losing 34-14 to American River J. C. last week in Sacramento, the Tars did not play up to their potential and made too many mistakes to suit Read, so the demanding Tar coach poured on extra doses of good old fashioned head knocking and fundamentals in practice this week. "Their tongues were hanging out," the fiery mentor declared. "We gave away too much to American River and we're going to have to shape up against this West Valley team. They've won two of three games, dumping Hartnell and Los Angeles City College (15-6 and 14-7, respectively). West Valley's lone loss was to Merritt J. C. of Oakland, 19-12.

Marin, on the other hand, hasn't visited the winner's circle since Sept. 17 when the Tars upset Menlo College, 14-9. A 14-14 tie with Vallejo and last week's thumping by ARJC evened the Tars' record at 1-1-1.

Read said his first teams are in good physical condition, except for bruises sustained in last week's game and this week's practice.

Read announced two lineup changes: Les Wisner, the 5-11, 180-pounder from Boonsboro, Md., will start at quarterback in place of Mike Kemp (Drake High); and Fred Rodoni, (6-0, 185) of Tomales will be at fullback in place of Ray Miller (Terra Linda). Tim Garvin and Dave Auerbach will start at halves.

Desperate 49ers, L.A. Rams Clash

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The San Francisco 49ers and the Los Angeles Rams, teams desperate to escape the second division of the National Football League, collide tomorrow in Memorial Coliseum.

A crowd of around 37,000—far from the capacity turnouts in years past—is expected to sit in on the 1:05 p.m. kickoff.

These California rivals go into the contest with two straight losses behind them—the 49ers to the top contenders in the NFL western conference, Baltimore and Green Bay; the Rams to Minnesota and Chicago.

TELEVISION

Tomorrow's game will be televised (Channel 5) starting at 12:45 p.m.

San Francisco is 2-2 and Los Angeles 1-3 for the season.

In a pre-season game, quarterback Bill Munson led the Rams to a 34-14 triumph over the 49ers.

Despite a badly crippled defense, quarterback John Brodie has managed to keep San Francisco even in the standings.

The 49ers were severely hurt when they lost via injuries defensive stars Dan Colchico, Matt Hazeltine and Mike Dowdle.

The Rams are handicapped, too, with the loss of their best defensive back, Aaron Martin. He is out for the year with a broken arm.

Munson took a beating from the Chicago Bears' blitz crew last week, and the Rams have worked all week trying to set up protection for their quarterback.

Brodie is enjoying his finest year in the NFL.

"He is an excellent quarterback and always has been," said the Rams' coach, Harland Svare.

"We are still beating ourselves," Svare continued, reviewing last week's 31-6 debacle in Chicago.

Los Angeles' defensive front four, Lamar Lundy, Roosevelt, Grier, Merlin Olsen and David Jones, appear in the healthiest condition of the year for this one.

Only Olsen has escaped injuries and been consistently effective thus far.

Key offensive stars behind Brodie are Ken Willard and John David Crow in the running department and pass catchers Bernie Casey, Dave Parks and Monty Stickles.

The Rams can counter with runners Les Josephson, Dick Bass and Terry Baker and for aerial duty, Tommy McDonald, Jack Snow and Marlin McKeever.

Alston Top Manager; Franks 2nd

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The response was typical when Walter Alston of the Los Angeles Dodgers was advised he'd been voted National League Manager of the Year for 1965.

"The only thing I can say," said the tall, 53-year-old skipper, "is that the ball club made it possible."

Alston was named for the honor in the annual Associated Press poll of sportswriters and sportscasters.

It came, of course, a day after the Dodgers won the seventh and deciding game of the World Series over the Minnesota Twins.

It was the third time Alston had earned the title since he took over the old Brooklyn Dodgers in 1954. He won in 1955 in Flatbush and 1959 when the club was in Los Angeles. Both teams were world champions.

Of the 328 ballots received, Alston got 171 votes. Herman Franks of the second-place San Francisco Giants was second with 115, followed by Harry Walker of the Pittsburgh Pirates with 31.

Bobby Bragan of the Milwaukee Braves and Dick Sisler of the Cincinnati Reds, who was ousted from the position after the season ended, also received votes — Bragan seven and Sisler four.

The poll was based on regular season performance.

4 Marin Winners In Fish Contest

Four Marin County anglers were among the latest winners in the Schenley Sportsmen's Club salmon fishing contest. All four caught their fish near Duxbury Buoy.

Tony Weber of Sausalito caught one weighing 38 pounds, 4 ounces, Oct. 9; Joe Marks of 899 Appleberry Road, San Rafael, caught one weighing 49 pounds, 12 ounces, Oct. 10; Wesley Thomas of 88 Jewel Street, San Rafael, pulled in one weighing 38 pounds, 6 ounces on Oct. 8, and Leif M. Harris of 20 Green Valley Court, San Anselmo, caught one weighing 40 pounds on Oct. 9.

Raiders Vs. Jets, Namath In New York

NEW YORK (AP)—Oakland's Raiders, battling to stay alive in the Western Division race, battle the New York Jets and their $400,000 quarterback Joe Namath tonight in an American Football League battle.

Namath, the Alabama star who signed the big money contract with the Jets, makes his first start at Shea Stadium before a crowd expected to reach 50,000.

He has, however, started the last two road games and aims this time to get New York into the victory column. The Jets have lost all four of their games while Oakland is 3-2 yet hasn't won two in a row.

To stop the Raiders, the Jets must stop pass catching Art Powell who already this season has 27 receptions and five touchdowns. For the first time, New York has its defensive secondary intact with Willie West and Cornell Gordon at the cornerback posts and Jim Hudson and Dainard Paulson at safety. Hudson has been out with pneumonia and Paulson with a broken wrist.

Veteran Tom Flores, one of the original Raiders, starts again at quarterback. Dick Wood, an ex-Jet, will take over if Flores fails to move the ball. But already this year, Tom has thrown six scoring passes, second best in the league.

Oakland beat Boston 24-10 last week but as yet this season hasn't won two consecutive games—losing to San Diego and Buffalo, while holding victories over Kansas City and Houston as well as Boston.

The Raiders' ground attack rests primarily with Clem Daniels, Alan Miller and Roger Hagberg.

49ers Face Coliseum Jinx; Will They Lose Before The Kickoff?

RANDOL

It is about time the San Francisco 49ers did something about the jinx of the Los Angeles Coliseum, and tomorrow would be a good time to start. Maybe a better word would be hex. Whatever you call it, it has been hanging over the heads of 49er teams for a good many years.

As one ex-49er puts it, "Laugh about a hex if you will, but this is a real thing. Something tangible. Every time we would go on the field there would be a feeling of impending doom. That feeling would carry into the game and more often than not we would lose to the Rams even when we had the better team."

NO DOUBT the hex started years ago when the Rams were a real power in the National Football League and the Coliseum would be jammed with more than 100,000 thirsty fans. A situation like that could intimidate a pretty good squad.

When the 49ers came to hard times, with wins as scarce as neckties in a nudist camp, intimidation became sheer despair. The fact that the Rams weren't much better didn't matter.

THIS YEAR the 49ers are on an upsurge, even though they have lost the last two games. Already they have been clobbered by the Rams in an exhibition game at the Coliseum, and looked bad in losing. If the hex is still holding it could be worth a touchdown or two to the Rams before the game is even under way.

INJURIES HAVE hurt both clubs. It is probable that the Rams are hurting the most as their "Fearsome Foursome" has been broken up. These defensive monsters were tough on quarterbacks for a while but last week Rudy Burich of Chicago had a field day against them.

If you will concede that the 49ers are not going to win a title this year, it could be that the injuries they have suffered will prove to be a blessing in disguise. First and second year men are forced into action and are gaining most valuable experience under fire.

IT MUST be noted, too, that this crop of rookies is a great one, or they would have wilted before now. Barring more serious injuries the 49ers should get stronger as the year progresses and should be real contenders within the next two years.

QUARTERBACK John Brodie had a bad day in the pre-season game with the Rams. If he starts poorly tomorrow, I hope Coach Jack Christiansen will give George Mira a shot at the Rams. I have an idea that George's scrambling play would be more effective against the Rams than against any other club in the league.

DODGER PLANS

World Champs Won't Stand Pat

LOS ANGELES (AP)—No one can fault the Los Angeles Dodgers for what they did with what they had—win the world championship of baseball.

Never, it has been said, have so few gone so far with so little.

In winning the World Series in seven games with the Minnesota Twins, the Dodgers, in effect, duplicated what they did in winning the National League pennant.

They used pitching, skill, speed, larceny and mirrors.

But in the interest of public sanity, it would be just as well if the Dodgers don't subject their patrons to another year of one-run, late-inning, last - gasp heroics.

The least they can do is come up with a third baseman, a fourth starting pitcher and a batter they can rely on more than pitcher Don Drysdale to hit .300.

Yes, Drysdale, a 23-game winner, as the Dodgers' leading hitter, with an even .300, and he frequently went in as a pinch-hitter. Baseball purists remain aghast at a pitcher-pinchhitter.

"No, we're not going to stand pat," said Vice President Buzzie Bavasi, who obviously was in no mood at this immediate stage to talk about 1966.

"We are always trying to help ourselves. Next week we'll sit down and take a look at the future."

The reference to third base is certainly no slap at Jim Gilliam, who did a superb job at the position all year and in the Series.

But Gilliam is 37 years old. He retired last spring to be named a Dodger coach, the first Negro to hold such a job, and then was ushered out of retirement because the Dodgers had to have help at third base.

John Kennedy, who did a brilliant job as late-inning defensive relief for Gilliam, did not hit much more than the club had anticipated.

Manager Walter Alston managed to stretch his Big Three pitching corps of Sandy Koufax, Drysdale and Claude Osteen through 162 games, with majestic help from the bullpen star, Ron Perranoski.

Veteran Johnny Podres was ready and willing, but unable to help most of the year because of recurring trouble in his throwing elbow.

Whether the popular Podres can come back next year is a distinct gamble, it would seem.

Another veteran, 32-year - old Lou Johnson, an escapee from a decade in the minor leagues, proved a star all season and in the Series as the replacement for the sidelined Tommy Davis.

Slugging Tommy missed the year with a broken ankle. He'll be back and the Dodgers feel they have added strength with Johnson, Ron Fairly and Willie Davis.

Meanwhile, worrying about next year can wait awhile for the Dodgers. No one should disturb their current ride on cloud nine.

Marin Catholic Tops Cage Loop

Marin Catholic Wildkittens took over possession of first place in Marin Athletic League Class C basketball standings Thursday when they whipped Tamalpais 41-27.

The win gave Marin a 5-1 record after completing the first half of the double round-robin schedule. Thursday's scoring by Marin again was paced by Robert McCarthy who meshed 13 points. He scored a total of 72 points in the first half for a 12 point average per game. Mike Harris of Tam scored 10 points yesterday.

One-half game behind Marin Catholic are Redwood and Terra Linda, each with 4-1 records with one game remaining in the first half. Redwood dumped San Rafael Thursday 58-22. Leading the Redwood scoring were Andy McIlroy with 12 and Bob Purtell with 10. Paul Kent hit 10 points for San Rafael.

Marin Tars Host West Valley Tonight

Incensed by what he called a lack - luster performance last week, College of Marin football coach Dick Read this week sent his Tars through bruising practice sessions preparatory to tonight's non-conference contest with West Valley Junior College of Campbell.

Marin's last practice encounter of the season will be played at Kentfield starting at 8 o'clock. The Tars open Golden Valley Conference action next Friday against Sierra College, also at Kentfield.

In losing 34-14 to American River J. C. last week in Sacramento, the Tars did not play up to their potential and made too many mistakes to suit Read, so the demanding Tar coach poured on extra doses of good old fashioned head knocking and fundamentals in practice this week. "Their tongues were hanging out," the fiery mentor declared. "We gave away too much to American River and we're going to have to shape up against this West Valley team. They've won two of three games, dumping Hartnell and Los Angeles City College (15-6 and 14-7, respectively). West Valley's lone loss was to Merritt J. C. of Oakland, 19-12.

Marin, on the other hand, hasn't visited the winner's circle since Sept. 17 when the Tars upset Menlo College, 14-9. A 14-14 tie with Vallejo and last week's thumping by ARJC evened the Tars' record at 1-1-1.

Read said his first teams are in good physical condition, except for bruises sustained in last week's game and this week's practice.

Read announced two lineup changes: Les Wisner, the 5-11, 180-pounder from Boonsboro, Md., will start at quarterback in place of Mike Kemp (Drake High); and Fred Rodoni, (6-0, 185) of Tomales will be at fullback in place of Ray Miller (Terra Linda). Tim Garvin and Dave Auerbach will start at halves.

Desperate 49ers, L.A. Rams Clash

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The San Francisco 49ers and the Los Angeles Rams, teams desperate to escape the second division of the National Football League, collide tomorrow in Memorial Coliseum.

A crowd of around 37,000—far from the capacity turnouts in years past—is expected to sit in on the 1:05 p.m. kickoff.

These California rivals go into the contest with two straight losses behind them—the 49ers to the top contenders in the NFL western conference, Baltimore and Green Bay; the Rams to Minnesota and Chicago.

San Francisco is 2-2 and Los Angeles 1-3 for the season.

In a pre-season game, quarterback Bill Munson led the Rams to a 34-14 triumph over the 49ers.

Despite a badly crippled defense, quarterback John Brodie has managed to keep San Francisco even in the standings.

The 49ers were severely hurt when they lost via injuries defensive stars Dan Colchico, Matt Hazeltine and Mike Dowdle.

The Rams are handicapped, too, with the loss of their best defensive back, Aaron Martin. He is out for the year with a broken arm.

Munson took a beating from the Chicago Bears' blitz crew last week, and the Rams have worked all week trying to set up protection for their quarterback.

Brodie is enjoying his finest year in the NFL.

"He is an excellent quarterback and always has been," said the Rams' coach, Harland Svare.

"We are still beating ourselves," Svare continued, reviewing last week's 31-6 debacle in Chicago.

Los Angeles' defensive front four, Lamar Lundy, Roosevelt, Grier, Merlin Olsen and David Jones, appear in the healthiest condition of the year for this one.

Only Olsen has escaped injuries and been consistently effective thus far.

Key offensive stars behind Brodie are Ken Willard and John David Crow in the running department and pass catchers Bernie Casey, Dave Parks and Monty Stickles.

The Rams can counter with runners Les Josephson, Dick Bass and Terry Baker and for aerial duty, Tommy McDonald, Jack Snow and Marlin McKeever.

TELEVISION
Tomorrow's game will be televised (Channel 5) starting at 12:45 p.m.

Alston Top Manager; Franks 2nd

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The response was typical when Walter Alston of the Los Angeles Dodgers was advised he'd been voted National League Manager of the Year for 1965.

"The only thing I can say," said the tall, 53-year-old skipper, "is that the ball club made it possible."

Alston was named for the honor in the annual Associated Press poll of sportswriters and sportscasters.

It came, of course, a day after the Dodgers won the seventh and deciding game of the World Series over the Minnesota Twins.

It was the third time Alston had earned the title since he took over the old Brooklyn Dodgers in 1954. He won in 1955 in Flatbush and 1959 when the club was in Los Angeles. Both teams were world champions.

Of the 328 ballots received, Alston got 171 votes. Herman Franks of the second-place San Francisco Giants was second with 115, followed by Harry Walker of the Pittsburgh Pirates with 31.

Bobby Bragan of the Milwaukee Braves and Dick Sisler of the Cincinnati Reds, who was ousted from the position after the season ended, also received votes — Bragan seven and Sisler four.

The poll was based on regular season performance.

4 Marin Winners In Fish Contest

Four Marin County anglers were among the latest winners in the Schenley Sportsmen's Club salmon fishing contest. All four caught their fish near Duxbury Buoy.

Tony Weber of Sausalito caught one weighing 38 pounds, 4 ounces, Oct. 9; Joe Marks of 899 Appleberry Road, San Rafael, caught one weighing 49 pounds, 12 ounces, Oct. 10; Wesley Thomas of 88 Jewel Street, San Rafael, pulled in one weighing 38 pounds, 6 ounces on Oct. 8, and Leif M. Harris of 20 Green Valley Court, San Anselmo, caught one weighing 40 pounds on Oct. 9.

Raiders Vs. Jets, Namath In New York

NEW YORK (AP)—Oakland's Raiders, battling to stay alive in the Western Division race, battle the New York Jets and their $400,000 quarterback Joe Namath tonight in an American Football League battle.

Namath, the Alabama star who signed the big money contract with the Jets, makes his first start at Shea Stadium before a crowd expected to reach 50,000.

He has, however, started the last two road games and aims this time to get New York into the victory column. The Jets have lost all four of their games while Oakland is 3-2 yet hasn't won two in a row.

To stop the Raiders, the Jets must stop pass catching Art Powell who already this season has 27 receptions and five touchdowns. For the first time, New York has its defensive secondary intact with Willie West and Cornell Gordon at the cornerback posts and Jim Hudson and Dainard Paulson at safety. Hudson has been out with pneumonia and Paulson with a broken wrist.

Veteran Tom Flores, one of the original Raiders, starts again at quarterback. Dick Wood, an ex-Jet, will take over if Flores fails to move the ball. But already this year, Tom has thrown six scoring passes, second best in the league.

Oakland beat Boston 24-10 last week but as yet this season hasn't won two consecutive games—losing to San Diego and Buffalo, while holding victories over Kansas City and Houston as well as Boston.

The Raiders' ground attack rests primarily with Clem Daniels, Alan Miller and Roger Hagberg.

49ers Face Coliseum Jinx; Will They Lose Before The Kickoff?

RANDOL

It is about time the San Francisco 49ers did something about the jinx of the Los Angeles Coliseum, and tomorrow would be a good time to start. Maybe a better word would be hex. Whatever you call it, it has been hanging over the heads of 49er teams for a good many years.

As one ex-49er puts it, "Laugh about a hex if you will, but this is a real thing. Something tangible. Every time we would go on the field there would be a feeling of impending doom. That feeling would carry into the game and more often than not we would lose to the Rams even when we had the better team."

NO DOUBT the hex started years ago when the Rams were a real power in the National Football League and the Coliseum would be jammed with more than 100,000 thirsty fans. A situation like that could intimidate a pretty good squad.

When the 49ers came to hard times, with wins as scarce as neckties in a nudist camp, intimidation became sheer despair. The fact that the Rams weren't much better didn't matter.

THIS YEAR the 49ers are on an upsurge, even though they have lost the last two games. Already they have been clobbered by the Rams in an exhibition game at the Coliseum, and looked bad in losing. If the hex is still holding it could be worth a touchdown or two to the Rams before the game is even under way.

INJURIES HAVE hurt both clubs. It is probable that the Rams are hurting the most as their "Fearsome Foursome" has been broken up. These defensive monsters were tough on quarterbacks for a while but last week Rudy Burich of Chicago had a field day against them.

If you will concede that the 49ers are not going to win a title this year, it could be that the injuries they have suffered will prove to be a blessing in disguise. First and second year men are forced into action and are gaining most valuable experience under fire.

IT MUST be noted, too, that this crop of rookies is a great one, or they would have wilted before now. Barring more serious injuries the 49ers should get stronger as the year progresses and should be real contenders within the next two years.

QUARTERBACK John Brodie had a bad day in the pre-season game with the Rams. If he starts poorly tomorrow, I hope Coach Jack Christiansen will give George Mira a shot at the Rams. I have an idea that George's scrambling play would be more effective against the Rams than against any other club in the league.

DODGER PLANS

World Champs Won't Stand Pat

LOS ANGELES (AP)—No one can fault the Los Angeles Dodgers for what they did with what they had—win the world championship of baseball.

Never, it has been said, have so few gone so far with so little.

In winning the World Series in seven games with the Minnesota Twins, the Dodgers, in effect, duplicated what they did in winning the National League pennant.

They used pitching, skill, speed, larceny and mirrors.

But in the interest of public sanity, it would be just as well if the Dodgers don't subject their patrons to another year of one-run, late-inning, last - gasp heroics.

The least they can do is come up with a third baseman, a fourth starting pitcher and a batter they can rely on more than pitcher Don Drysdale to hit .300.

Yes, Drysdale, a 23-game winner, as the Dodgers' leading hitter, with an even .300, and he frequently went in as a pinchhitter. Baseball purists remain aghast at a pitcher-pinchhitter.

"No, we're not going to stand pat," said Vice President Buzzie Bavasi, who obviously was in no mood at this immediate stage to talk about 1966.

"We are always trying to help ourselves. Next week we'll sit down and take a look at the future."

The reference to third base is certainly no slap at Jim Gilliam, who did a superb job at the position all year and in the Series.

But Gilliam is 37 years old. He retired last spring to be named a Dodger coach, the first Negro to hold such a job, and then was ushered out of retirement because the Dodgers had to have help at third base.

John Kennedy, who did a brilliant job as late-inning defensive relief for Gilliam, did not hit much more than the club had anticipated.

Manager Walter Alston managed to stretch his Big Three pitching corps of Sandy Koufax, Drysdale and Claude Osteen through 162 games, with majestic help from the bullpen star, Ron Perranoski.

Veteran Johnny Podres was ready and willing, but unable to help most of the year because of recurring trouble in his throwing elbow.

Whether the popular Podres can come back next year is a distinct gamble, it would seem.

Another veteran, 32-year - old Lou Johnson, an escapee from a decade in the minor leagues, proved a star all season and in the Series as the replacement for the sidelined Tommy Davis.

Slugging Tommy missed the year with a broken ankle. He'll be back and the Dodgers feel they have added strength with Johnson, Ron Fairly and Willie Davis.

Meanwhile, worrying about next year can wait awhile for the Dodgers. No one should disturb their current ride on cloud nine.

A MESSAGE TO OUR ADVERTISERS!

The next time you call an ad taker to place a Classified Ad in the I-J, stop and consider this. You are about to spend some money for an advertisement and of course you want to get the utmost in results. To accomplish this your ad should tell ALL THE DETAILS about the things you are trying to accomplish. Be sure you don't make any of the following errors that frequently prevent results . . .

DON'T: OMIT THE PHONE NUMBER!

DON'T: OMIT THE ADDRESS!

Many out of town readers will write you but will not spend money for a long distance phone call.

DON'T: USE BLIND BOX NUMBERS!

Avoid them at all costs. They are difficult to answer. It is more convenient to phone or write directly.

DON'T: LEAVE HOME ON DAYS OTHERS MIGHT ANSWER YOUR AD!

DON'T: OMIT WORDS THAT WOULD TEND TO INCREASE THE NUMBER OF RESPONSES!

DON'T: CONCEAL THE PRICE DESIRED!

Surveys show that many people will not answer an ad unless the price is given.

NO FRILLS
This older home in downtown Mill Valley is right in the middle of things—within easy walking distance of everything—perfect for an older couple and capable of expansion by a younger. Sensibly priced at $21,500.

WHO WANTS IT?
A small, neat, hillside house with a view. Has 2 bedrooms, dining room, breakfast room and den. This is an excellent, low-maintenance home for a young family. Good commute—and only $21,500.

YOU CAN'T LOSE!
This superb corner lot has fruit and nut trees ALSO a 2-bedroom home. This habitable home is capable of remodeling and expansion. We are asking $22,500 with a low down.

BIRDSEYE VIEW
A very gemutlich, Bavarian type farm house high on a hill above Mill Valley. The 2-plus bedrooms and charming kitchen—dining area are only a few of the features which make this an excellent buy at only $22,000.

INVESTMENT DELUXE
A two-bedroom home in excellent condition is located on a lot with 167' frontage on the most promising commercial street in Mill Valley. Live in this while your investment grows in value. Truly an EXCELLENT buy at $25,500.

TIBURON TREASURE

WHAT MAKES
A house a home? You'll get the feeling on entering this delightful 3-bdrm and den, large family kitchen. Plus dream workshop—sep. bldg. Close to everything. $27,000.

BIRD WATCHERS
And bargain hunters—an 1800 sq. ft. home on secluded, view lot. 3 bed, 2 baths, beamed ceiling, built-ins, 3 yrs. old—a forced sale. Make the necessary steal at $32,500.

NON-CONFORMING
In a conforming area gives this home distinction. 3 plus bedrooms—clean as a whistle—near all conveniences and level too. $26,950.

Everyone's Talking About THE MEADOWS at TERRA LINDA

WHY? . . . Because this award-winning apartment community has everything you are looking for: Furnished or unfurnished apartments and townhouses . . . a relaxed setting of incomparable beauty situated on 25 acres . . . family buildings separated from adult buildings . . . all schools just steps away . . . townhouse units have over 1500 sq. ft. with their own private outdoor patios.

THE OAK VIEW CLUB—your own Private Club, is just a short walk from your beautiful Apartment or Townhouse. There is a putting green, lockers, men's and women's lounges, showers and sauna baths . . . 2 wind-free championship tennis courts acclaimed as the best in Marin County . . . two large heated swimming pools and a wading pool . . . shuffleboard, ping-pong and a large, comfortable sunning area . . . all this amidst rolling hills, studded with ancient oaks and beautifully landscaped.

THE CLUB HOUSE itself is luxuriously furnished . . . the cocktail lounge is carpeted and has a huge fireplace . . . intimate social-dining room . . . spacious facilities for private receptions, parties, bridge, teen-age dances and indoor movies.

APARTMENTS consist of one, two and three bedrooms.

TOWNHOUSES consist of two and three bedrooms, 1½ baths.

CHOICES of parquet flooring or area carpeting. All are beautifully draped. All have louvered doors within. Kitchens are completely electric. All refrigerators are self-defrosting and have separate freezer tops. THESE UNITS ARE THE ONLY ONES IN MARIN COUNTY WITH CENTRAL AIR CONDITIONING THERMOSTATICALLY CONTROLLED BY YOU.

Rents start at $160 per month and afford family membership in the Oakview Club.

MODEL apartments, townhouses and the Oakview Club are open for YOUR inspection. We invite you to compare The Meadows with ANY other apartment development in Marin County before renting.

DIRECTIONS: Past San Rafael take Terra Linda turnoff, continue to the end of Freitas Parkway, and then you enter THE MEADOWS.

OPEN every day, 8:30 a.m. to 6:00 p.m.

Everyone's Talking About THE MEADOWS
TERRA LINDA

WHY? . . . Because this award-winning apartment community has everything you are looking for: Furnished or unfurnished apartments and townhouses . . . a relaxed setting of incomparable beauty situated on 25 acres . . . family buildings separated from adult buildings . . . all schools just steps away . . . townhouse units have over 1500 sq. ft. with their own private outdoor patios.

THE OAK VIEW CLUB—your own Private Club, is just a short walk from your beautiful Apartment or Townhouse. There is a putting green, lockers, men's and women's lounges, showers and sauna baths . . . 2 wind-free championship tennis courts acclaimed as the best in Marin County . . . two large heated swimming pools and a wading pool . . . shuffleboard, ping-pong and a large, comfortable sunning area . . . all this amidst rolling hills, studded with ancient oaks and beautifully landscaped.

THE CLUB HOUSE itself is luxuriously furnished . . . the cocktail lounge is carpeted and has a huge fireplace . . . intimate social-dining room . . . spacious facilities for private receptions, parties, bridge, teen-age dances and indoor movies.

APARTMENTS consist of one, two and three bedrooms.

TOWNHOUSES consist of two and three bedrooms, 1½ baths.

CHOICES of parquet flooring or area carpeting. All are beautifully draped. All have louvered doors within. Kitchens are completely electric. All refrigerators are self-defrosting and have separate freezer tops. THESE UNITS ARE THE ONLY ONES IN MARIN COUNTY WITH CENTRAL AIR CONDITIONING THERMOSTATICALLY CONTROLLED BY YOU.

Rents start at $160 per month and afford family membership in the Oakview Club.

MODEL apartments, townhouses and the Oakview Club are open for YOUR inspection. We invite you to compare The Meadows with ANY other apartment development in Marin County before renting.

DIRECTIONS: Past San Rafael take Terra Linda turnoff, continue to the end of Freitas Parkway, and then you enter THE MEADOWS.

OPEN every day, 8:30 a.m. to 6:00 p.m.

TELEVISION REVIEW

Some Notes To Help Selecting Programs

By RICK DU BROW

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Notes to watch television by:

The Headliners: Henry Fonda hosts a musical salute to Veterans Day on NBC-TV's "Telephone Hour" Nov. 7, and the U.S. Naval Academy Glee Club will appear on the show...Ray Bolger is the host of ABC-TV's "Hollywood Palace" Nov. 6...Leonard Bernstein's first Young People's Concert of the season for CBS-TV, is scheduled for Nov. 29 . . . Oscar Levant and his wife June are guests on ABC-TV's one-hour daytime discussion show, "The Young Set," Oct. 29... Sammy Davis visits the same program Oct. 27 in a disussion of photographers as social critics and artists...Davis is regarded as a promising photographer.

Jack Lemmon stars in "The Wackiest Ship in the Army" on CBS-TV's Thursday Night Movie Nov. 11...This is the film which was the basis of NBC-TV's new one-hour series of the same name this season...Cornelia Otis Skinner, Inga Swenson, Ruby Dee and Elaine Stritch give advice to aspiring young actresses on CBS-TV's "Camera Three" Sunday . . . Mary Martin's international tour with "Hello Dolly!"—which went to Viet Nam to entertain American troops—will be the subject of a one-hour NBC-TV color documentary . . . Norman Vincent Peale talks about his new book, "Sin, Sex and Self-Control," on the same network's "Today" program Thursday.

Maury Wills, shortstop and captain of the world champion Los Angeles Dodgers, will not only do his banjo-and-singing act on video's "Hollywood Palace" next Saturday, but will make a nightclub tour as well, including Lake Tahoe, Nev., and Seattle... The narrator of those excellent razor blade commercials during NBC-TV's broadcasts of the World Series was that fine actor Ed Binns, who formerly appeared in CBS-TV's "The Doctors and the Nurses"...Comedian - actor Bill Cosby, co-star of NBC-TV's successful new series "I Spy," would like to take on the famous Humphrey Bogart role in a remake of the movie "The Petrified Forest."

Lucille Ball has signed on for the Zero Mostel-Carol Burnett CBS-TV special scheduled for later this season...Clint Walker, star of the old Western series entitled "Cheyenne," appears as a construction superintendent who romances Miss Ball in the Nov. 15 episode of her "Lucy Show" on CBS-TV...Actor William Gargan, who won his battle against cancer, will receive the Criss Award —given to a personality who has figured prominently in the world of medicine—in a special half-hour Oct. 31 NBC-TV broadcast of the ceremony and dinner-...Audrey Meadows is a guest of CBS-TV's Red Skelton Nov. 2.

The Programs: ABC-TV's twice-weekly rock 'n' roll series, "Shindig," will be canceled in December because of bad ratings ...Same network has also axed its Saturday afternoon baseball telecasts for next year for the same reason, and because of a big financial loss on the games this season ...Also on ABC-TV, the "Amos Burke, Secret Agent" series—formerly "Burke's Law"—is expected to disappear pretty soon as a result of the ratings figures . . . The "Today" show offers a report Tuesday on a non-profit organization that seeks jobs for older executives...Same day, "Today" has interviews with Paul Johnson, who crossed the Atlantic alone, and William Willis, who crossed the Pacific solo.

Juan Bosh, former president of the Dominican Republic, is the guest on CBS-TV's "Face the Nation" Oct. 24 in a Santo Domingo interview...Thurgood Marshall, new solicitor general of the United States and the first Negro to hold the post, will join former President Dwight Eisenhower and U.N. Ambassador Arthur Goldberg on CBS-TV's Oct. 26 "Town Meeting of the World," in which the three will answer questions from students in European universities via the Early Bird satellite.

LAW IN ACTION

From the State Bar Of California

Widow Entitled To Allowance

In a recent case, a wealthy man's widow asked and got the court to allow her $5,000 a month to support her, pending probate of her late husband's estate. She needed that amount to continue her standard of living.

These payments are part of the "family allowance" to support the family that comes out of a decedent's estate. After a husband's death, the family may face financial problems and the court will order a family allowance until it orders the estate distributed.

The courts strongly favor the family allowance so long as the estate can pay certain basic expenses such as those for administering the estate, the costs of last illness and the funeral. Other creditors come after the family allowance. After creditors, heirs get what is left. Although the estate cannot pay all creditors, the court can still order the family allowance for up to one year, whether or not the widow or children have other means of support. The court, of course, may reduce the payments in view of these independent means.

In a recent case Mrs. Smith for years before her husband's death had been living apart from him. In fact she had filed for divorce and was getting temporary alimony. When Mr. Smith died, Mrs. Smith asked for a family allowance. Mr. Smith's other heirs objected, claiming that the widow was no longer a part of the "family."

The court ruled for the widow since no divorce had been granted.

No wife would have claim to the allowance if she had deserted or abandoned her husband without reason. She would have renounced her right to it.

However, if the wife had left her husband because he was cruel, she could still claim an allowance upon his death.

Recently a court ruled that a father's illegitimate child, who lived apart, had a claim on a family allowance so long as his father had acknowledged his obligation to the child.

The law also provides for a "probate homestead" which sets aside a modest home for the widow, widower, or minor children before general creditors or other heirs have any right to the estate.

Note: California lawyers offer this column so you may know about our laws.

Costly Mink Stolen From Alto House

Loss of a $4,000 full-length mink coat and about $1,000 worth of other items in burglary of the home of Galen V. Miller, 35 Bay Vista Drive, Alto, was reported yesterday by sheriff's officers.

Deputies said Miller told them he returned home about 3 p.m. yesterday and discovered someone had slipped a lock-bolt on the front door. The coat, another fur piece worth $350, two women's rings with pearls, and a transistor radio were missing, officers said.

The house had been ransacked.

Crystal Mazer, 808 Spring Drive, Muir Beach, told deputies her residence was entered by prying a front door. Two brown pigskin suitcases, a typewriter, and a small quantity of clothing and books were taken.

She said she was moving to another address and the burglars apparently pried the front door.

Guitar Stolen

A guitar worth $500 was stolen from Sherman Clay Music School, San Rafael Thursday, the instrument's owner, Rex Anthony Larson, 4 Chestnut Avenue, Ross, reported to police.

Historical Humor

STANTON, Mo. (UPI)—Tourists at Meramec Caverns on U.S. 66 get a laugh out of a sign which reads: "Jesse James Crept Here." The notorious outlaw used the cave as a hideout during the 1870's.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Irradiating Blood Outside Body May Be Remedy For Leukema

VAN DELLEN

An unusual remedy for leukemia was described recently in the New England Journal of Medicine by a medical team at the University of Washington. Blood is shunted in the forearm from an artery to a vein by means of a silastic-Teflon tube that remains outside the body. The skin is shielded with lead and the flow of blood is irradiated for two hours daily for a month or more. The idea is to kill the leukemic cells as they pass under the rays of the X-ray machine.

In leukemia, the bone marrow and lymph glands manufacture large numbers of abnormal white blood cells. Some authorities believe that the basic cause is a cancer of the blood-forming organs. Others are of the opinion that these cells live longer than do normal cells and the overaccumulation is responsible for the high white count.

THERE ARE two main types of leukemia. The acute form favors children and begins with fever followed by a rapidly developing pallor and prostration.

Chronic leukemia begins insidiously and is more common in adults. The victim may appear healthy but consults his physician because of enlarged lymph glands in the neck, armpit, and groin.

A blood count is done and the number of white cells may be in excess of 100,000 (normal is less than 10,000). Weakness and loss of appetite and weight may develop months later.

IRRADIATION of the lymph glands and bones via X-ray or the injection of radioactive phosphorus help to control the disease. Chemical agents such as busulfan, urethane, or 6-mercaptopurine also are used.

Treatment is not curative and is used mainly when the individual has symptoms or when the white count exceeds 50,000.

Irradiation of the blood flowing through the shunt outside the body is relatively simple and safe. Encouraging results were obtained in four individuals with chronic leukemia but not in one with the acute type.

(Dr. Van Dellen will answer questions on medical topics by mail if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request.)

BABY'S SQUINT

Mrs. F. writes: My baby was not born cross-eyed but now, at 18 months, he is. Could teething cause the eyes to turn?

REPLY

No. Your child may have a disturbance in one eye or weakness of the muscles. At any rate, a good ophthalmologist should be consulted because squints can be corrected with drops, a patch, glasses, or surgery.

DILATED BRONCHI

E. H. writes: Does bronchiectasis follow bronchitis?

REPLY

It may follow repeated attacks of bronchitis or sinus infection. Other causes include pneumonia, lung abscess, or faulty development of the lungs. Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope for leaflet on bronchiectasis.

MORNING SICKNESS

Mrs. B. writes: How soon after pregnancy does vomiting in the morning begin?

REPLY

As early as the first week, but usually in the fifth. As a rule, the condition tends to subside by the end of the third month, but in a few instances, morning sickness continues until term.

WON'T PENETRATE

Mrs. L. writes: My child developed ringworm of the scalp. Could this disease go through the skull to the brain?

REPLY

No. The skull acts as a barrier. Besides, the fungus prefers hair to brain tissue and is quite content to remain on the scalp.

ACID AND NAUSEA

U. T. writes: Would a shortage of hydrochloric acid in the stomach cause a person to feel nauseated, whether the stomach is empty or full?

REPLY

Indigestion may stem from too little or too much hydrochloric acid. This seems paradoxical but proof is offered by the good results that follow the use of hydrochloric acid in the former, and antacids in the latter.

FATIGUE

E. Q. writes: Does high blood pressure cause a person to feel tired all the time?

REPLY

Fatigue occurs in a certain percentage of cases, but is not a major symptom. Many medications used in treating hypertension cause relaxation, and your physician would not object to your relaxing in this way, as it helps lower tension.

BOUTS OF BURSITIS

I. M. K. writes: Does bursitis of the shoulder tend to recur?

REPLY

One attack does not immunize the individual against another bout. The same conditions that produced the first attack will bring on others if the cause is not corrected or if it recurs.

TRAVELING MUCUS

C. E. writes: What causes a rattling chest?

REPLY

The noise from the up and down movement of mucus in the main bronchus, or windpipe.

Today's Health Hint—Cultivate good mental hygiene habits.

Kettenhofen Hits Airport Land Costs

County Supervisor Ernest N. Kettenhofen yesterday brought up some more artillery in his battle over the proposed county airport development near Novato.

The county public works department has estimated the county must pay about $4,000 an acre for the 63 acres needed for expansion.

The supervisor declared that assessor's records show some of the land adjacent to the existing landing strip valued at $588 an acre.

"The $4,000 figure seems drastically out of line," Kettenhofen declared today.

Kettenhofen intends to ask supervisors Tuesday to reconsider the vote last week to go ahead with an application for federal aid in building a $500,000 facility at Novato.

One of the most outstanding grant holders, both in accomplishments and physical proportions, was the huge and kindly Irishman, Don Timoteo Murphy, whose three Mexican land grants included what is now San Rafael and land to the north.

Driver Gets Fined, Draws Probation

Clifton Brown Briggs, 68, of 46 Santa Barbara Avenue, San Anselmo, was fined $166, placed on a year's probation, and given a 30-day suspended jail sentence yesterday in Marin Municipal Court for drunken driving.

He was arrested on Fourth Street by San Rafael police Aug. 7.

TELEVISION REVIEW

Some Notes To Help Selecting Programs

By RICK DU BROW

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Notes to watch television by:

The Headliners: Henry Fonda hosts a musical salute to Veterans Day on NBC-TV's "Telephone Hour" Nov. 7, and the U.S. Naval Academy Glee Club will appear on the show...Ray Bolger is the host of ABC-TV's "Hollywood Palace" Nov. 6...Leonard Bernstein's first Young People's Concert of the season for CBS-TV, is scheduled for Nov. 29 . . . Oscar Levant and his wife June are guests on ABC-TV's one-hour daytime discussion show, "The Young Set," Oct. 29... Sammy Davis visits the same program Oct. 27 in a disussion of photographers as social critics and artists...Davis is regarded as a promising photographer.

Jack Lemmon stars in "The Wackiest Ship in the Army" on CBS-TV's Thursday Night Movie Nov. 11...This is the film which was the basis of NBC-TV's new one-hour series of the same name this season...Cornelia Otis Skinner, Inga Swenson, Ruby Dee and Elaine Stritch give advice to aspiring young actresses on CBS-TV's "Camera Three" Sunday . . . Mary Martin's international tour with "Hello Dolly!"—which went to Viet Nam to entertain American troops—will be the subject of a one-hour NBC-TV color documentary . . . Norman Vincent Peale talks about his new book, "Sin, Sex and Self-Control," on the same network's "Today" program Thursday.

Maury Wills, shortstop and captain of the world champion Los Angeles Dodgers, will not only do his banjo-and-singing act on video's "Hollywood Palace" next Saturday, but will make a nightclub tour as well, including Lake Tahoe, Nev., and Seattle... The narrator of those excellent razor blade commercials during NBC-TV's broadcasts of the World Series was that fine actor Ed Binns, who formerly appeared in CBS-TV's "The Doctors and the Nurses"...Comedian - actor Bill Cosby, co-star of NBC-TV's successful new series "I Spy," would like to take on the famous Humphrey Bogart role in a remake of the movie "The Petrified Forest."

Lucille Ball has signed on for the Zero Mostel-Carol Burnett CBS-TV special scheduled for later this season...Clint Walker, star of the old Western series entitled "Cheyenne," appears as a construction superintendent who romances Miss Ball in the Nov. 15 episode of her "Lucy Show" on CBS-TV...Actor William Gargan, who won his battle against cancer, will receive the Criss Award —given to a personality who has figured prominently in the world of medicine—in a special half-hour Oct. 31 NBC-TV broadcast of the ceremony and dinner-...Audrey Meadows is a guest of CBS-TV's Red Skelton Nov. 2.

The Programs: ABC-TV's twice-weekly rock 'n' roll series, "Shindig," will be canceled in December because of bad ratings ...Same network has also axed its Saturday afternoon baseball telecasts for next year for the same reason, and because of a big financial loss on the games this season ...Also on ABC-TV, the "Amos Burke, Secret Agent" series—formerly "Burke's Law"—is expected to disappear pretty soon as a result of the ratings figures . . . The "Today" show offers a report Tuesday on a non-profit organization that seeks jobs for older executives...Same day, "Today" has interviews with Paul Johnson, who crossed the Atlantic alone, and William Willis, who crossed the Pacific solo.

Juan Bosh, former president of the Dominican Republic, is the guest on CBS-TV's "Face the Nation" Oct. 24 in a Santo Domingo interview...Thurgood Marshall, new solicitor general of the United States and the first Negro to hold the post, will join former President Dwight Eisenhower and U.N. Ambassador Arthur Goldberg on CBS-TV's Oct. 26 "Town Meeting of the World," in which the three will answer questions from students in European universities via the Early Bird satellite.

LAW IN ACTION

From the State Bar Of California

Widow Entitled To Allowance

In a recent case, a wealthy man's widow asked and got the court to allow her $5,000 a month to support her, pending probate of her late husband's estate. She needed that amount to continue her standard of living.

These payments are part of the "family allowance" to support the family that comes out of a decedent's estate. After a husband's death, the family may face financial problems and the court will order a family allowance until it orders the estate distributed.

The courts strongly favor the family allowance so long as the estate can pay certain basic expenses such as those for administering the estate, the costs of last illness and the funeral. Other creditors come after the family allowance. After creditors, heirs get what is left. Although the estate cannot pay all creditors, the court can still order the family allowance for up to one year, whether or not the widow or children have other means of support. The court, of course, may reduce the payments in view of these independent means.

In a recent case Mrs. Smith for years before her husband's death had been living apart from him. In fact she had filed for divorce and was getting temporary alimony. When Mr. Smith died, Mrs. Smith asked for a family allowance. Mr. Smith's other heirs objected, claiming that the widow was no longer a part of the "family."

The court ruled for the widow since no divorce had been granted.

No wife would have claim to the allowance if she had deserted or abandoned her husband without reason. She would have renounced her right to it.

However, if the wife had left her husband because he was cruel, she could still claim an allowance upon his death.

Recently a court ruled that a father's illegitimate child, who lived apart, had a claim on a family allowance so long as his father had acknowledged his obligation to the child.

The law also provides for a "probate homestead" which sets aside a modest home for the widow, widower, or minor children before general creditors or other heirs have any right to the estate.

Note: California lawyers offer this column so you may know about our laws.

Costly Mink Stolen From Alto House

Loss of a $4,000 full-length mink coat and about $1,000 worth of other items in burglary of the home of Galen V. Miller, 35 Bay Vista Drive, Alto, was reported yesterday by sheriff's officers.

Deputies said Miller told them he returned home about 3 p.m. yesterday and discovered someone had slipped a lock-bolt on the front door. The coat, another fur piece worth $350, two women's rings with pearls, and a transistor radio were missing, officers said.

The house had been ransacked.

Crystal Mazer, 808 Spring Drive, Muir Beach, told deputies her residence was entered by prying a front door. Two brown pigskin suitcases, a typewriter, and a small quantity of clothing and books were taken.

She said she was moving to another address and the burglars apparently pried the front door.

Guitar Stolen

A guitar worth $500 was stolen from Sherman Clay Music School, San Rafael Thursday, the instrument's owner, Rex Anthony Larson, 4 Chestnut Avenue, Ross, reported to police.

Historical Humor

STANTON, Mo. (UPI)—Tourists at Meramec Caverns on U.S. 66 get a laugh out of a sign which reads: "Jesse James Crept Here." The notorious outlaw used the cave as a hideout during the 1870's.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Irradiating Blood Outside Body May Be Remedy For Leukema

VAN DELLEN

An unusual remedy for leukemia was described recently in the New England Journal of Medicine by a medical team at the University of Washington. Blood is shunted in the forearm from an artery to a vein by means of a silastic-Teflon tube that remains outside the body. The skin is shielded with lead and the flow of blood is irradiated for two hours daily for a month or more. The idea is to kill the leukemic cells as they pass under the rays of the X-ray machine.

In leukemia, the bone marrow and lymph glands manufacture large numbers of abnormal white blood cells. Some authorities believe that the basic cause is a cancer of the blood-forming organs. Others are of the opinion that these cells live longer than do normal cells and the overaccumulation is responsible for the high white count.

THERE ARE two main types of leukemia. The acute form favors children and begins with fever followed by a rapidly developing pallor and prostration.

Chronic leukemia begins insidiously and is more common in adults. The victim may appear healthy but consults his physician because of enlarged lymph glands in the neck, armpit, and groin.

A blood count is done and the number of white cells may be in excess of 100,000 (normal is less than 10,000). Weakness and loss of appetite and weight may develop months later.

IRRADIATION of the lymph glands and bones via X-ray or the injection of radioactive phosphorus help to control the disease. Chemical agents such as busulfan, urethane, or 6-mercaptopurine also are used.

Treatment is not curative and is used mainly when the individual has symptoms or when the white count exceeds 50,000.

Irradiation of the blood flowing through the shunt outside the body is relatively simple and safe. Encouraging results were obtained in four individuals with chronic leukemia but not in one with the acute type.

(Dr. Van Dellen will answer questions on medical topics by mail if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request.)

BABY'S SQUINT

Mrs. F. writes: My baby was not born cross-eyed but now, at 18 months, he is. Could teething cause the eyes to turn?

REPLY

No. Your child may have a disturbance in one eye or weakness of the muscles. At any rate, a good ophthalmologist should be consulted because squints can be corrected with drops, a patch, glasses, or surgery.

DILATED BRONCHI

E. H. writes: Does bronchiectasis follow bronchitis?

REPLY

It may follow repeated attacks of bronchitis or sinus infection. Other causes include pneumonia, lung abscess, or faulty development of the lungs. Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope for leaflet on bronchiectasis.

MORNING SICKNESS

Mrs. B. writes: How soon after pregnancy does vomiting in the morning begin?

REPLY

As early as the first week, but usually in the fifth. As a rule, the condition tends to subside by the end of the third month, but in a few instances, morning sickness continues until term.

WON'T PENETRATE

Mrs. L. writes: My child developed ringworm of the scalp. Could this disease go through the skull to the brain?

REPLY

No. The skull acts as a barrier. Besides, the fungus prefers hair to brain tissue and is quite content to remain on the scalp.

ACID AND NAUSEA

U. T. writes: Would a shortage of hydrochloric acid in the stomach cause a person to feel nauseated, whether the stomach is empty or full?

REPLY

Indigestion may stem from too little or too much hydrochloric acid. This seems paradoxical but proof is offered by the good results that follow the use of hydrochloric acid in the former, and antacids in the latter.

FATIGUE

E. Q. writes: Does high blood pressure cause a person to feel tired all the time?

REPLY

Fatigue occurs in a certain percentage of cases, but is not a major symptom. Many medications used in treating hypertension cause relaxation, and your physician would not object to your relaxing in this way, as it helps lower tension.

BOUTS OF BURSITIS

I. M. K. writes: Does bursitis of the shoulder tend to recur?

REPLY

One attack does not immunize the individual against another bout. The same conditions that produced the first attack will bring on others if the cause is not corrected or if it recurs.

TRAVELING MUCUS

C. E. writes: What causes a rattling chest?

REPLY

The noise from the up and down movement of mucus in the main bronchus, or windpipe.

Kettenhofen Hits Airport Land Costs

County Supervisor Ernest N. Kettenhofen yesterday brought up some more artillery in his battle over the proposed county airport development near Novato.

The county public works department has estimated the county must pay about $4,000 an acre for the 63 acres needed for expansion.

The supervisor declared that assessor's records show some of the land adjacent to the existing landing strip valued at $588 an acre.

"The $4,000 figure seems drastically out of line," Kettenhofen declared today.

Kettenhofen intends to ask supervisors Tuesday to reconsider the vote last week to go ahead with an application for federal aid in building a $500,000 facility at Novato.

One of the most outstanding grant holders, both in accomplishments and physical proportions, was the huge and kindly Irishman, Don Timoteo Murphy, whose three Mexican land grants included what is now San Rafael and land to the north.

Driver Gets Fined, Draws Probation

Clifton Brown Briggs, 68, of 46 Santa Barbara Avenue, San Anselmo, was fined $166, placed on a year's probation, and given a 30-day suspended jail sentence yesterday in Marin Municipal Court for drunken driving.

He was arrested on Fourth Street by San Rafael police Aug. 7.

800 young tigers earn their stripes

I-J newspaperboys learn a lot more than how to make money. They also learn something NO MONEY CAN BUY, NO TEXTBOOK CAN TEACH.

They earn, with the aid of I-J advisors, the single most important thing which leads to success in their adult years—the feeling of self-reliance and initiative.

This isn't just talk. I-J boys become aware, through serving you, that THEY CAN DO A JOB. They become responsible. They become keen businessmen. They learn the value of money and the greater value of saving it. And they make the always satisfying discovery that a paper route leads to personal independence.

In the beginning, our boys are no better equipped than other youngsters. But as they serve, collect money, handle accounts, see their savings grow—they develop qualities which lead to success in any field in life.

To help our young tigers, the I-J has a complete training program. Friendly supervisors encourage and counsel the boys, offer worthwhile incentives, and help each do a job of which he and his parents can be proud.

Pretty good way to start life, don't you think?

I-J newspaperboys get a headstart on earning, learning and leadership

HERE'S HOW YOU DO IT. Each boy can count on personal aid from his district advisor. No matter what the problem, there's always a friendly hand to guide and help each boy achieve his goals.

YOU EARNED IT, SON. The I-J offers countless incentives, prizes and awards for boys who do an outstanding job. You'd be surprised to know how many boys qualify. (Proving they're young tigers, just as we said above.)

ALL ABOARD FOR FUN. Major holiday trips (such as this one to Disneyland) are offered boys who handle their routes well, make collections on time, bring in new subscriptions. Boys make many a close friend on these fun trips.

'Big Brother' To The Violin

Violist Meets Challenge Of In-Between Instrument

BY MAYBELLE SPECKMAN

Lovers of chamber music, if not actually musicians, are usually highly knowledgeable people musically — especially those who prefer string quartet music.

DEVOTEES of fine music who are not familiar with this music do not know what they are missing. The acme of chamber music, the string quartet is the ideal of this form in which each voice may have solo independence, yet must be an integral part of the ensemble.

Since the subscription campaign for the ninth annual season of the Marin Arts Quartet opens this month, it may be of interest to know a little more about the viola—least familiar of the instruments—the other being the first and second violins and the cello.

Elizabeth Bell, violist with the Marin Arts Quartet, provided information in a recent interview.

"The viola is most like the violin," she said, "but it is larger and is tuned differently, a fifth lower in tone, and it plays mostly in the alto clef. Incidentally, no two violas are the same size unless they are purposely made as copies of some instrument.

SINCE IT has a bigger sound box and thicker strings than the violin, it has a different timbre or more sombre and throaty sound, although on the A string it can be brilliant. It can really scream in the upper register. This kind of sound is what is heard more in contemporary music, but Brahms's use of the viola is the norm for the instrument.

"It is not unusally considered a solo instrument," she continued. "William Primrose is largely responsible for furthering interest in the viola as a solo instrument.

"Repertoire for solo viola is small. We don't know whether this is because there are fewer viola players than players of other stringed instruments, or whether there are few solo violists because there are so few solo works for the viola.

ONE OF the really great viola solos—"Harold in Italy" by Berlioz—was written for the great violinist Paganini.

"In the string quartet," she explained, "the melodic line is frequently assigned to the viola, and it is not duplicated in the way the second violin frequently duplicates the first, because the timbre is different.

"PLAYING THE viola in a quartet is difficult because extra effort must be used—the same is true of the second violin — to make it heard as well as the first violin and cello, which stand out because they are the highest and lowest voices.

"Seating position often complicates this problem," she pointed out. "Usually at the extreme right facing the first violin, the viola does not project its sound toward the audience. The violist must often turn slightly toward the audience, though this results in difficulties of visual contact with the other players.

"In orchestral works, especially Hayden's, the viola follows the cello or doubles the bass. In Bach and Mozart it becomes more interesting, and in romantic works of Beethoven and Brahms there are more interesting parts," she said.

IN THE MIDDLE of the scale among string instruments is the viola, held here by Elizabeth Bell of the Marin Arts Quartet. It takes extra effort, she explains, to make this instrument heard as clearly as the violin, which has the highest voice, and the cello, with the lowest. The viola is comparable to the alto in a vocal quartet, yet it plays a tenor role.

While members of the quartet tend to lose their identity as individuals in their ensemble performances, it is important that each member be an outstanding musician in his own right with an enviable reputation for musical achievement.

ELIZABETH Bell Fulfills these requirements.

A student of the violin since she was 14, she turned to the viola when the Portland Junior Symphony needed viola players, though she continued violin lessons.

After studying with private teachers she attended the Juilliard School of Music in New York City and for six years was with the Portland Symphony as a violist, three of these years as principal of the section.

Since coming to the Bay Area, Mrs. Bell has played eight years with the Bach Festival in Carmel, with the San Francisco Little Symphony under Gregory Miller five years and with the Cappella di Musica eight years.

OVER a period of four years she has played with the Bach to Mozart Chamber Players and has been principal of the viola section with the Marin Symphony.

Since 1961 she has been violist with the Marin Arts Quartet, which was founded in 1957 under the leadershlp of violinist Charles Meacham.

The quartet presents three concerts in a season at the Outdoor Art Club in Mill Valley at 3 p.m. on Sunday, each of which is followed by a reception and tea.

THIS YEAR'S concerts are scheduled on Nov. 14, Feb. 6 and March 27.

VIOLIST Elizabeth Bell (right) poses here with the entire Marin Arts Quartet, whose other members are first violinist Charles Meacham, second violinist Cicely Edmunds (left) and Jean Maguire, cello. The chamber group plays three concerts each year. Subscription campaign for their ninth season begins this month.

JUMPING like this usually takes place at horse shows, not auctions. However, in an effort to inject the flavor of the famed Tattersall auctions of London, the Atherton Club stable plans to put the horses through their paces in the club's show ring before they go on sale tomorrow. Shown going over the hurdle is The Grey Ghost, with Nancy Kimbell of Novato up.

Flavor Of London Auctions Comes To Novato Horse Ring

"Gentlemen, what can you hesitate about?

"ONLY LOOK at her. She is one of the most beautiful creatures I have ever had the honor of submitting to your notice!

"So gentle in her paces; indeed, so safe a goer that a child might ride her. Her pedigree is excellent. She is thoroughbred from her ear to her hoof.

"My Lord Duke, will you allow me to say 250 pounds for your grace?"

The place was London. The time was 100 years ago, and the speaker was auctioneer Richard Tattersall, whose name is synonymous with horse auctions still held at the market on Knightbridge Green.

At least one Marin resident recalls those auctions. He is Douglas G. Hertz, executive director of the Atherton Club in Novato.

RECALLING with excitement his boyhood attendance at the Tattersall auctions — black tie events at which London's gentry arrived in horse-drawn carriages — Hertz decided to re-create their mood as much as he could at an American sale.

How well this could be done in mid-20th century America will become evident at 11 a.m. tomorrow, when the club stable holds its first "Tattersall style" event.

A writer of the 19th century described the original London auctions thusly:

"In attendance were the dashing heroes of the military, the fox-hunting clericals, sprigs of nobility, stylish coachmen, smart guards, saucy butchers, natty grooms, knowing horse dealers, sporting men of all descriptions, and the picture is finished by numbers of real gentlemen."

WHETHER all of these precise types will be present in Novato tomorrow remains to be seen. But Hertz is hopeful that

OWNERS groom their thoroughbreds in the show ring at the Atherton Club stable's show ring in Novato, site of an unusual show and auction planned tomorrow in hopes of bringing the British Tattersall style auction to this country. As a climax to the show, the horses which are for sale will line up in the ring, with their owners beside them in full equestrian dress.

At least one Marin resident recalls those auctions. He is Douglas G. Hertz, executive director of the Atherton Club in Novato.

RECALLING with excitement his boyhood attendance at the Tattersall auctions — black tie events at which London's gentry arrived in horse-drawn carriages — Hertz decided to re-create their mood as much as he could at an American sale.

How well this could be done in mid-20th century America will become evident at 11 a.m. tomorrow, when the club stable holds its first "Tattersall style" event.

A writer of the 19th century described the original London auctions thusly:

"In attendance were the dashing heroes of the military, the fox-hunting clericals, sprigs of nobility, stylish coachmen, smart guards, saucy butchers, natty grooms, knowing horse dealers, sporting men of all descriptions, and the picture is finished by numbers of real gentlemen."

WHETHER all of these precise types will be present in Novato tomorrow remains to be seen. But Hertz is hopeful that the auction, which will take place in the club's show ring instead of the usual narrow area, will capture much of the Tattersall flavor—and will "bring California to the fore as a thoroughbred horse sale market."

OWNERS groom their thoroughbreds in the show ring at the Atherton Club stable's show ring in Novato, site of an unusual show and auction planned tomorrow in hopes of bringing the British Tattersall style auction to this country. As a climax to the show, the horses which are for sale will line up in the ring, with their owners beside them in full equestrian dress.

POLO PLAYER Douglas G. Hertz of Novato continued his polo career, begun in the British Army, for years after he came to this country in 1919. This photo was taken in 1930. He often competed against cowboys, and startled his jeans-clad opponents and spectators by wearing a tuxedo in a Madison Square Garden rodeo.

Hertz, who is 80, recently told how a life-long interest in horses got its start at the Tattersall auctions.

Most vivid in his memories, he said, is the picture of a magnificent collection of animals circling in endless procession, led or guided by their grooms while high stepping hackneys and other breeds of harness horses spurned the tanbark impatiently.

TROTTERS, thoroughbreds, saddle horses, jumpers, polo and harness ponies mingled in the ring, which resounded with neighing and the calls of the grooms and handlers. Hoofs of others pounded and thundered as they came to the ring from their stalls.

Horses which were not guaranteed were sold under what was called "the red flag." Hertz and his brother took advantage of the lower price on such animals and began buying them. After training the "red flag" horses, the boys re-sold them at Tattersall's. The profits helped finance their education.

The love of horses continued to thread its way through Hertz's life, a colorful series of careers which were described in detail earlier this year in the Marin Magazine.

As a mounted officer in the British Army, for instance, he distinguished himself as a polo player. He came to America in 1907 and 1910 to play in international polo competition.

AFTER he came to this country to stay in 1919, Hertz competed against cowboys, riding an English saddle in spite of his opponents' Western models. Once, in Madison Square Garden, spectators were treated to the sight of Hertz in a tuxedo, surrounded by American cowboys in jeans and 10 gallon hats.

In 1935, he established the swank Pegasus Polo Club in Rockleigh, N.J. and remained as its "master of hounds" until the club was taken over by the government in 1942. Then, he moved west.

Tomorrow's event, which reflects much of its planner's equestrian background, will take advantage of the Atherton Club's 240 by 120 foot show ring, and will combine much of the excitement of a first-rate horse show along with the business aspects of the sale itself.

JUMPERS will hurdle the brick wall and the jumps. Entries in eight classes will be shown in the ring so buyers will be able to see how well each one performs. Finally, all will be lined up in the ring's center.

Instead of receiving trophies, as at an actual show, however, they will go up for bid.

And if anyone really wants to know how close the Novato event comes to capturing the spirit of an actual Tattersall auction, there is a way to find out, provided one has the plane fare.

TATTERSALL'S is still going, as attested to by a news item from London earlier this month. The story reported that an American sportsman paid 17,000 guineas for a colt at the Tattersall market's October yearling sale.

In American money, that comes to $49,980.

TWO ARTISTS — well known painter Geoffrey Lewis and hobbyist Harry Barnes of San Anselmo — compare notes over one of Barnes' seascapes, which bear a style similar to that used by Lewis. Barnes will have his first one-man show starting tomorrow at Buffs Galleries in Fairfax.

Marinite Once Faced Mexican 'Banditos', Now He Just Paints

Amateur Painter Barnes To Have His First Show

An unusual art show in Fairfax next week will bring attention to an 80-year-old San Anselmo man whose quiet life today belies an amazing background.

Harry Barnes, in his youth, did many of the things most of us dreamed of doing when we were children.

Son of a Methodist circuit riding minister, he was born in Osceola, Ohio. At age 15, he went to work for the Toledo and Ohio Central Railroad as a waterboy, a job which gave him a chance to railroad into the wide-open, still developing West.

Highway robbers, Indians and the long-barrelled Colt. 44 were still a part of everyday life, he recalls.

By the time he was 20, Barnes had become an expert telegrapher. He worked in that capacity many times after that for several railroads and for Postal Telegraph, which eventually was swallowed up by Western Union.

When he was 21, he went to work for Wells-Fargo as a special agent and guard. The stagecoach company transferred him to its San Francisco office.

Harry Barnes' first look at San Francisco, he says now, was an unforgetable one. The reason: he arrived the morning after the great 1906 earthquake, when the city was in flame. Like everyone else in this area, he was swept into the cauldron of catastrophe during those terrible days.

From then until 1912, he traveled out of the San Francisco office. It was these years that Barnes went through some memorable adventures of his life, including the difficult task of revolution and "banditos."

The United Statee in those days was buying Mexican gold to mint into money. Wells-Fargo was the agent to bring it up from mines near and south of Guadalajara.

Carrying the gold out by rail, stagecoach and on horseback, Barnes found it a dangerous and exciting business. He recalls many times when he was lucky to get back alive.

Life settled down in 1919, however, when he wed his boyhood sweetheart, Florence McGill. Giving up the adventurous life, Barnes went back to work as a telegrapher.

As a hobby, Barnes began to paint. He taught himself how to do it for the most part, but eventually became engrossed enough to enroll at the California School of Fine Arts in San Francisco.

Although few outside his family knew of his interest in art, Barnes turned out more than 100 canvasses — oils and water colors — over a period of years. He began sending paintings to his grandchildren each year as birthday presents.

One of the few Barnes works which is on public display is an oil for Florence Nightingale which he gave to the University of California's nursing school in 1952.

Much of his self-teaching consisted of meticulous copying of classic paintings of the Old West by Russell, Remington and Miller. He also, however, has done many seascapes and landscapes around San Franciso and Marin, as well as some southwestern desert scenes.

Recently, Barnes' granddaughter, Mrs. Karen Brown, entered Buff''s Galleries in Fairfax to see the works of well known Marin artist Geoffery Lewis. After seeing Lewis' landscapes, she told him that her grandfather used a similar style.

Interested, Lewis asked to meet Barnes.

After two afternoons talking shop with the elderly artist, Lewis persuaded gallery proprietor Nancy Ford to set up an exhibit of his works.

The show opens at 11 a.m. tomorrow and runs through Thursday.

Sailing School: Hard But Fun

Instructor Finds Bay Ideal Spot

Running a sailing school is a good job for a man who does not like to work very hard, but who will work hard if he has to.

AND, according to Hoyt Barnett, who organized his own sailing school in Sausalito shortly after Christmas last year, you usually have to work hard.

Dolphin Sailing School wasn't really started on purpose — at least not as a sailing school

"Early this year, "says Barnett," when Mrs. Barnett and I were fretting away a winter aboard our 10-ton ketch (which has been our home for 10 years), I discovered that quite a few people wanted to sail—but didn't know how.

"At that time," he added, "I was taking care of the rental sloops owned by my friend, Cass Gidley, who has a habit of spending winter months at La Paz, Baja California. So, to make a buck for myself and another for a friend, I began giving sailing lessons.

"IN THE months since we started, we have had more than 90 students in either the basic or advanced sailing courses," he said.

Barnett operates the school on the theory that one learns best by doing.

"I'm not against books. But you can't put a reef in one, or sail her into the shelter of a cove. Still, we supply two books to each student as part of our courses, and expect the students to learn what is in the books. That way an instructor need not spend time yakking about obvious things when he should be showing a student how to synchronize such things as tiller and mainsheet tensions."

Barnett, who has had much sailing experience, feels San Francisco Bay provides some of the finest sports sailing in the world.

OFTEN it is tricky," he says, "but, except for winter storms, San Francisco Bay is a safe sailing area for any keel boat that is at all well-rigged.

"Sure, tidal currents, especially the strong ebbs, can be tough with a westerly beating it up. But when a sailor learns that all a man has to plan for is living five minutes at a time, he has

HEADING for broad water, the 34-foot ketch "Content" moves past the Spinnaker restaurant in Sausalito with a group of advanced students in Hoyt Barnett's sailing school. Bay sailing goes on with few interruptions throughout the year. Barnett says San Francisco Bay offers an interesting change of pace due to changes in wind directions from one season to another.

Plastic Boats Offer Trouble Free Sailing

San Francisco Bay—and a lot of other things—under control.

Autumn months are particularly nice here, he feels. Between now and spring he predicts, "we will have fewer gusts down Hurricane Gulch to set up weird tunes in the rigging, and except for southerly and southeasterly storms, virtualy every winter day is a good sailing day on San Francisco Bay."

SINCE Barnett first took sailing lessons from his father nearly 50 years ago, he has seen many changes in the 'sailing picture".

Twenty-five years ago, particularly along the East Coast, sailing was pretty much for those who were wealthy, or smart enough to figure out a way to adjust problems—like money—which are important to poor people.

He traded experience and some caulking-iron labor for a place in a boat.

"I wouldn't have so much trade goods today, because more than half the sloops I see are made of plastic.

If his personal life were organized more along conventional lines, Barnett said he would, for use on San Farncisco Bay, select any of several plastic boats that are receiving acceptance by the public.

"The best marine architects in the world are preparing the designs for the plastic boats now selling for $3,000 up," he said.

"These men know how to balance a boat: what her sail plan should carry for each hundred pounds of weight and how to establish a center of effort that will maintain effective relationships to the center of lateral resistance.

'The woodwork on some of the plastic production jobs is rough, but by and large there is no other way except by such production methods—and the use of plastics—that so many sailors could have so many boats and, perhaps more important, have the maintenance-free time to sail them."

Between plastic boats and the open, bright weather of San Francisco Bay's usual winter, Barnett feels that the only factor to create a limit on the number of boats sailed regularly on local waters is marina space.

"We do have a lot of shoreline. "It should be developed for maximum recreational use, and it should be developed now, because each year that intelligent development is delayed, the greater will be the deterioration of the shoreline."

HEADING for broad water, the 34-foot ketch "Content" moves past the Spinnaker restaurant in Sausalito with a group of advanced students in Hoyt Barnett's sailing school. Bay sailing goes on with few interruptions throughout the year. Barnett says San Francisco Bay offers an interesting change of pace due to changes in wind directions from one season to another.

Plastic Boats Offer Trouble Free Sailing

San Francisco Bay—and a lot of other things—under control.

Autumn months are particularly nice here, he feels. Between now and spring he predicts, "we will have fewer gusts down Hurricane Gulch to set up weird tunes in the rigging, and except for southerly and southeasterly storms, virtualy every winter day is a good sailing day on San Francisco Bay."

SINCE Barnett first took sailing lessons from his father nearly 50 years ago, he has seen many changes in the 'sailing picture".

Twenty-five years ago, particularly along the East Coast, sailing was pretty much for those who were wealthy, or smart enough to figure out a way to adjust problems—like money—which are important to poor people.

He traded experience and some caulking-iron labor for a place in a boat.

"I wouldn't have so much trade goods today, because more than half the sloops I see are made of plastic.

If his personal life were organized more along conventional lines, Barnett said he would, for use on San Farncisco Bay, select any of several plastic boats that are receiving acceptance by the public.

"The best marine architects in the world are preparing the designs for the plastic boats now selling for $3,000 up," he said.

"These men know how to balance a boat: what her sail plan should carry for each hundred pounds of weight and how to establish a center of effort that will maintain effective relationships to the center of lateral resistance.

PROFILE OF A MARINITE

She Works To Aid Marin's Children

San Anselmo Woman's Determination Paved Way For Easter Seal Socety

By LOIS SENS

"She works in the center (Easter Seal Society) every Monday, all day, and has more pep than women many years her junior . . . and she's a fairly rapid and accurate typist, too."

Mrs. Dare Morgan of San Anselmo, the lady candidly described above, is quite a remarkable person, a woman of determination who, seeing a need for action in the county, paved the way for the formation of Marin's Easter Seal Society, formerly known as the Marin County Society For Crippled Children and Adults, Inc.

The Morgans' first child was handicapped, and "we found we (Marin County) had nothing in the way of helping those children." Thus, Mrs. Morgan who was born in San Francisco and moved to the family summer home in San Anselmo after the earthquake and fire in 1906, was spearheaded into a crusade which would eventually bring aid to handicapped and crippled children.

The dedication and open house marking the opening of The Marin County Society for Crippled Children and Adults, Inc., held on May 6, 1962, climaxed some thirty years' struggle on the part of philanthropic Marinites dedicated to helping the physically handicapped.

Mrs. Morgan, one of those Marinites, approached county school superintendent James B. Davidson in 1926 on the possibility of conducting a survey in the county's schools to determine the number of handicapped children and the nature of their difficulties. At this time there were no programs for children unable to attend regular schools.

The survey revealed there were about 20 children who could benefit by special attention, yet the succeeding county superintendent, George Kendall, opposed the school program on the basis of cost.

Whenever Mrs. Morgan became discouraged about the tangled web of proddings without progress, she would "take my woes to Wade Thomas (of the San Anselmo School District). He was the one person who urged me not to give up . . . and gave me encouragement when it was most needed."

Thomas agreed to hire a home teacher, Mrs. Lewis Cummings, who was inexperienced, yet developed her own techniques in teaching cerebral palsied children.

In 1940, on a January evening which Mrs. Morgan describes as "one of the stormiest of the year," interested persons met at the Red Cross headquarters in San Rafael to form the society. Mrs. Charles Reindollar, wife of the senator, was elected president and Mrs. Morgan became historian and charter member.

The society sponsored a summer class for the handicapped children which operated every summer at Wade Thomas School (then called Main School) and a similar class was started in Mill Valley at the Tamalpais Park School. The organization later extended its services to give faith and hope to physically handicapped adults. Even now it encourages handicapped adults to meet each Thursday at the 629 Mission Ave. location to work with ceramics and looms.

Mrs. Morgan also worked on the program in which the society initiated a drive collecting $21,000 to establish a temporary school for handicapped children at the Marin General Hospital Annex building. Within three years, an increase in attendance called for a permanent school which was established in Terra Linda under the name, Marindale School.

Mrs. Morgan, whose husband died in January this year, has two sons and a daughter living near the Bay Area. The Rev. Dare Morgan, S.J., who heads the mathematics department at St. Ignatius High School in San Francisco, dedicated the society's new building at the May, 1962, open house. Another son, Herbert Morgan, was graduated from University of California at Davis in animal husbandry and resides in Chico where he is employed with a land development corporation.

Mrs. Morgan's daughter, Mrs. Eleanor Douglas Faulkner of Walnut Creek, formerly lived in Novato and races with the Marin Ski Club. She was graduated from College of Marin with a major in business.

As a public minded citizen, Mrs. Morgan felt she had to join the women of the county in promoting the county health program. "And since I could type and take shorthand, they made me secretary," she adds.

She and her husband enjoyed traveling. During his retirement, the couple made annual trips reaching such places as New York, Niagara Falls and parts of Canada including Victoria and Vancouver. One year they took a Caribbean Cruise which stopped at Cuba and covered the southern states. Another time they headed south, driving to Acapulco and Puebla in Mexico.

A recent cruise took them to Alaska through the inside passage as far as Norcross in the Yukon territory.

Mrs. Morgan treasures a blue and gold mosaic, copied from the Madonna at the Basilica of St. Mark's Cathedral in Venice. Her cousin, who owns a glass factory in Morano, Italy, sent the portrait to her as a gift.

Her interest in schools led to her election as president of Main School Parent-Teacher Assn. in San Anselmo and to a life membership in the California Congress of Parents and Teachers. She is also a past president of the Easter Seal Society, presiding during its early years.

Active in religious as well as civic affairs, Mrs. Morgan is a charter member of the National Council of Catholic Women of Marin and belongs to the Holy Family Guild of Marin and Jesuit Mother's Guild of San Francisco as well. For 20 years she has followed current events more closely through her membership in the Town Hall Lecture Series.

This active lady has many interests: theater, art, business. "I merely get on a bus and go to whatever is currently appearing." In her garden she tends an impressive group of thornless roses in reds and purples, and fruit trees including peach, plum and apple.

Her interests go on and on— as well they might for one so vitally attuned to the welfare of the county.

MRS. DARE MORGAN poses with a blue and gold mosaic which hangs over the mantel in her San Anselmo home. The mosaic, copied from the Madonna in the Basilica of St. Mark's Cathedral in Venice, was given her by a cousin who operates a glass factory in the nearby city of Morano.

An interest in schools and a personal reason for being concerned about handicapped youngsters have combined to place her in the forefront in spearheading drives for county agencies which aid children and adults victimized by handicaps.

Home Blends Quarry Tile, Muted Hues

An air of warmth and charm greets the visitor to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Morgan of 230 Summit Avenue, San Rafael.

Approached by a long driveway bordered by fruit trees, the low, wooden house fits neatly into its surroundings.

Its entrance is dominated by a beautifullly carved Mexican crest and a brass-washed tin lantern hanging from the ceiling.

Builder was the William H. McDevitt Co. of San Rafael, while the design was by San Francisco architect John J. van der Ploeg. Mill Valley interior decorator Betty Perdue aided Mrs. Morgan in planning colors throughout the interior.

Since the bedroom wing was designed with a large family in mind, the three Morgan children each have separate rooms. Each was given the chance to express his or her own personality in them.

FOCAL point of the Harold Morgan family's living room is an unusual old Mexican table. It is, however, only one of several interesting decorative accents used by Mrs. Morgan in decorating her San Rafael home. The table has a hammered iron brazier, used in another era both for heating and cooking. Glass walls and sliding door extend the room into the outdoors. They lead to a terrace and the yard.

BRASS sconces over raised hearth fireplace in the San Rafael home of the Harold Morgan family echo warm tones of brick and tile used throughout. Dining area, seen in background, has rosewood furniture bought by the Morgans in Copenhagen. The orange and brown rug reflects sunny tones of the rosewood and quarry tile.

MEXICAN chest and hanging tin lantern dominate the lovely extrance to the Harold Morgan home. Red-brown quarry tile, used inside, is here also. Home was designed by John J. van der Ploeg of San Francisco, built by William H. McDevitt of San Rafael.

'Dramatic' Is The Only Word

Architect Callister's Work Follows Bold, Strong Lines

A subconscious admiration for old Fort Ross may have been at work when Tiburon architect Charles Warren Callister designed a house in Mendocino County.

At least Callister thinks so.

The house, built of redwood lumber in the town of Gualala, has captured the imagination of many people living along the rugged Mendocino Coast. They have, in fact, named the home "Little Fort Ross."

Marin residents have come to a high regard for the work of the 47-year-old architect, who has designed several striking homes, schools and churches in this county.

They have had fewer chances, of course, to see what he has done elsewhere. One such opportunity, however, comes through a display now on view in San Francisco.

Titled "Charles Warren Callister—A Photographic Review of His Architecture," the exhibit features 37 photographs of his buildings, taken by six photographers. Some are in five-foot mural size.

Born in Rochester, N. Y., Callister studied architecture and fine arts at the University of Texas in Austin from 1935 to 1941, when he joined the Army. He was in the Army Air Corps and Corps of Engineers until 1945.

After the war, Callister came to Marin and began work in Tiburon.

Since that time, he has built a national reputation, winning numerous awards and having his work described in popular magazines as well as leading architectural journals.

He has had photographic exhibits at architectural schools on both coasts and at private galleries in California and Oregon. In 1957, the U.S. Department of State commissioned an exhibit at the World Trade Fair in Vienna.

Among his Marin County buildings are Belvedere's First Church of Christ, Scientist, the Belvedere Cove apartments, and his own dramatic office building in Tiburon.

In addition, he did initial planning on the Reedlands subdivision in Tiburon and has collaborated with J. Martin Rosse on several schools in Marin as well as San Mateo County.

In a recent project, a retirement community in Contra Costa County, he developed a new concept.

Blending groups of redwood structures into the hillsides of Walnut Creek, he replaced the old institutional one-building idea with a community of neighbor-

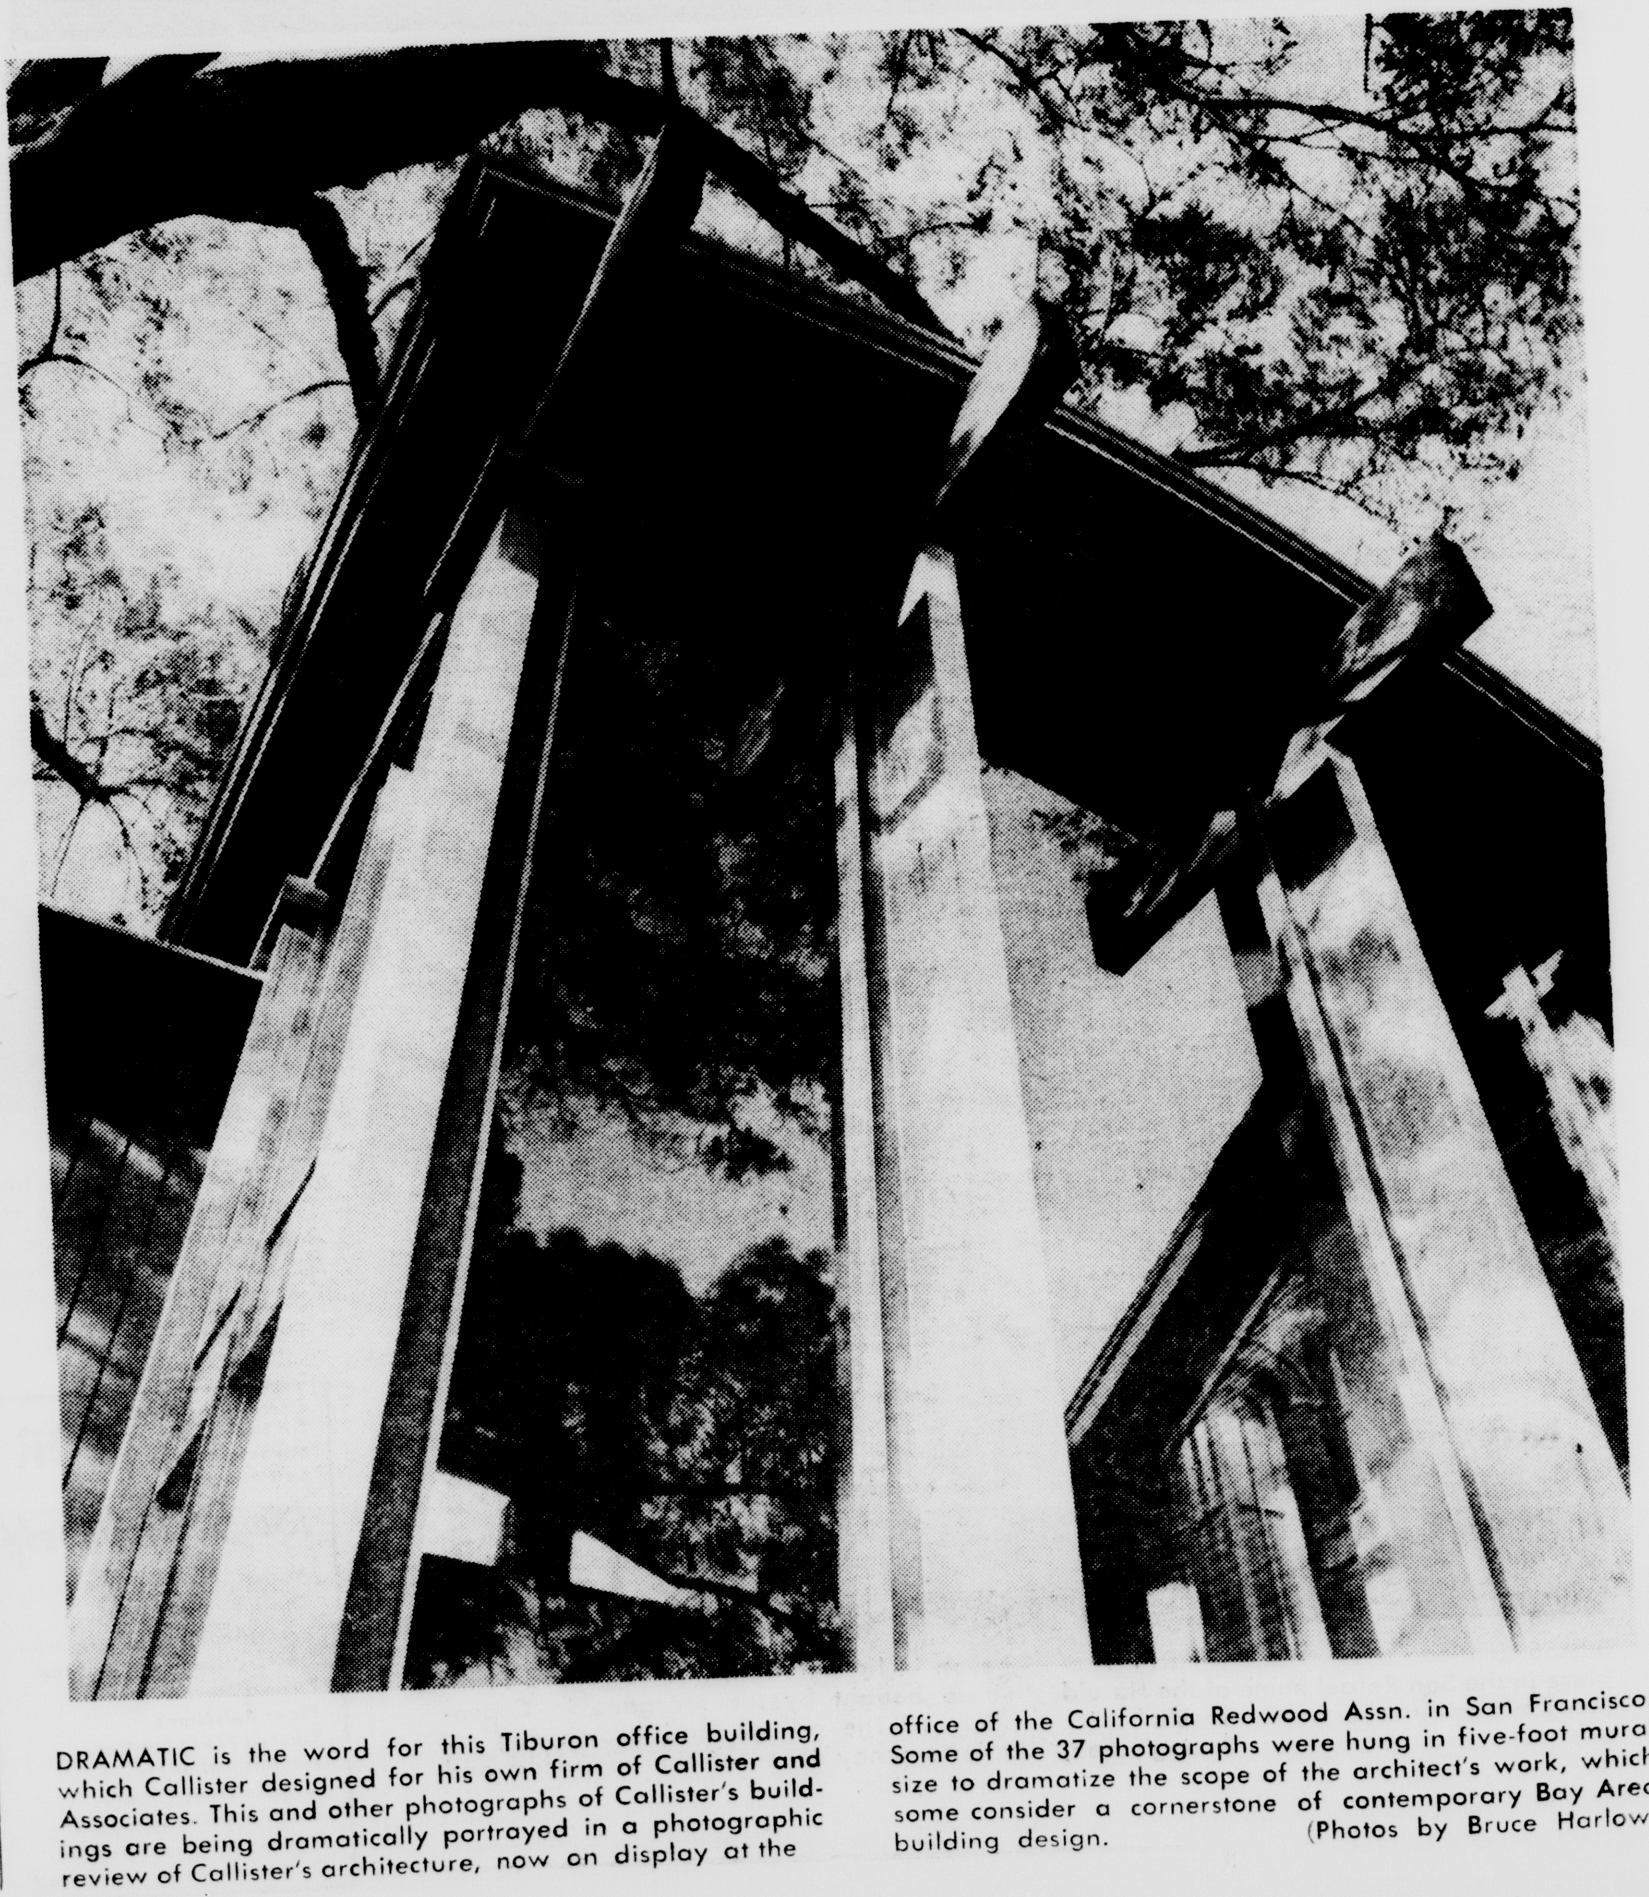
COVE Apartments in Belvedere form backdrop for this portrait of Marin architect Charles Warren Callister, whose recent work is being featured in a photographic exhibit in San Francisco. He has designed more than 150 homes, plus many schools, churches and other buildings throughout the Bay Area since he started his practice in Tiburon in 1946. He is famous for his work with natural woods, which won him this year's American Lumber Industry award in wood structure design.



DRAMATIC is the word for this Tiburon office building, which Callister designed for his own firm of Callister and Associates. This and other photographs of Callister's buildings are being dramatically portrayed in a photographic review of Callister's architecture, now on display at the office of the California Redwood Assn. in San Francisco. Some of the 37 photographs were hung in five-foot mural size to dramatize the scope of the architect's work, which some consider a cornerstone of contemporary Bay Area building design. The two churches are totally different in their shape. Yet both bear the distinctive Callister stamp of mood and character, largely derived from an imaginative use of traditional forms and natural woods.

The current exhibit will be on display through Nov. 12 at the headquarters of the California Redwood Assn., 617 Montgomery Street, San Francisco.

Photography in the display is by Bruce Harlow, Lucille Dandelet, Phillip Moulton, Karl Riek, George Knight and Leslie Flowers.

The two churches are totally different in their shape. Yet both bear the distinctive Callister stamp of mood and character, largely derived from an imaginative use of traditional forms and natural woods.

The current exhibit will be on display through Nov. 12 at the headquarters of the California Redwood Assn., 617 Montgomery Street, San Francisco.

Photography in the display is by Bruce Harlow, Lucille Dandelet, Phillip Moulton, Karl Riek, George Knight and Leslie Flowers.

Hamilton's Illustrators Are The First To Know

A select group of men at Hamilton Air Force Base has long been drawing everything but attention.

MADE UP of talented illustrators and draftsmen, it is officially known as the 28th Air Division's "graphics section."

All are assigned to the Air Defense Command. All are listed as being in the Air Force's photomapping career field. In actual fact, however, they have little or nothing to do with maps, except for reproducting maps like those used for plotting boards in ADC installations throughout the United States and Canada.

The noncommissioned officers and airmen assigned to the section find it as easy to illustrate with the modern equipment supplied by the Air Force as to draw free-hand.

WHEN SPECIAL events are planned at the base, these men are the first to know about it, because there inevitably are posters, handouts or other illustrated items which must be distributed as part of the advance publicity.

Too, there often are programs, menus and invitations to prepare. Illustrators and draftsmen must be in on the initial planning for these items.

When the time of such an affair arrives, the graphics section again may be called upon to make signs, posters or table cards.

CRASH programs, in many instances, speed up specific projects. Such things as a display for a quick briefing by a high level base officer often take priority over routine work requests.

The six airmen and one civilian in the section have their work cut out for them.

Routine tasks include covers for reports, illustrations for briefing charts, art work for official histories of each unit on the base and special inserts for brochures being sent to higher headquarters.

Armed with the tools of their trade — ranging from thumb tacks to fully equipped drawing boards—the talented corps of artists completes most job orders on schedule.

IN A far corner of their workroom sits a large optical viewing device where graphs made there can be examined for errors. Here, also, officers often are given rapid demonstrations of material which they plan to use in briefings.

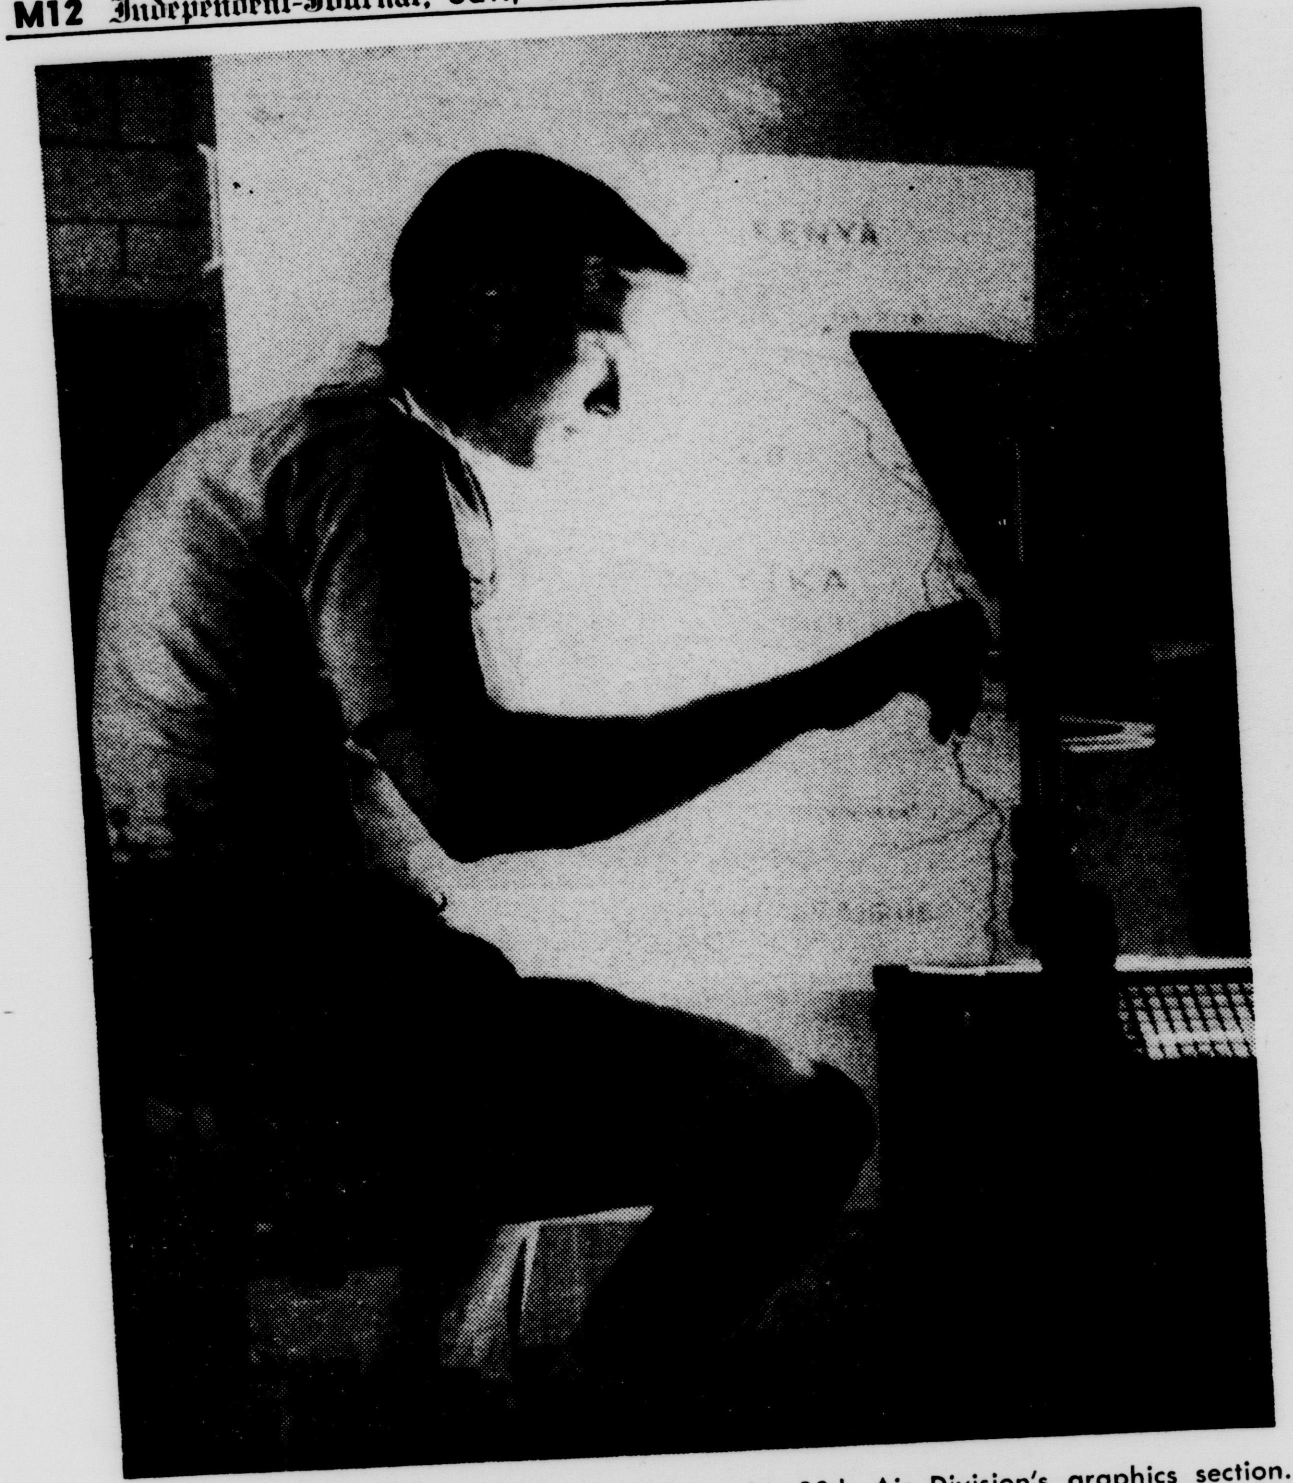
The unit uses its share of water colors and paper "zipstone" (used for background shading), as well as the type of film used for the silk screening process.

WHAT MUST an Air Force illustrator or draftsman be able to do? To start with, he must be experienced at making sketches, cartoons or drawings. Also, he must become qualified to handle detailed work plans.

These he must often make to scale—utilizing charts, graphs or overlays which show the construction or repair of many mechanical or electrical construction parts.

BALANCE, TOO, is a crucial requirement. It involves talent, styling and intiative.

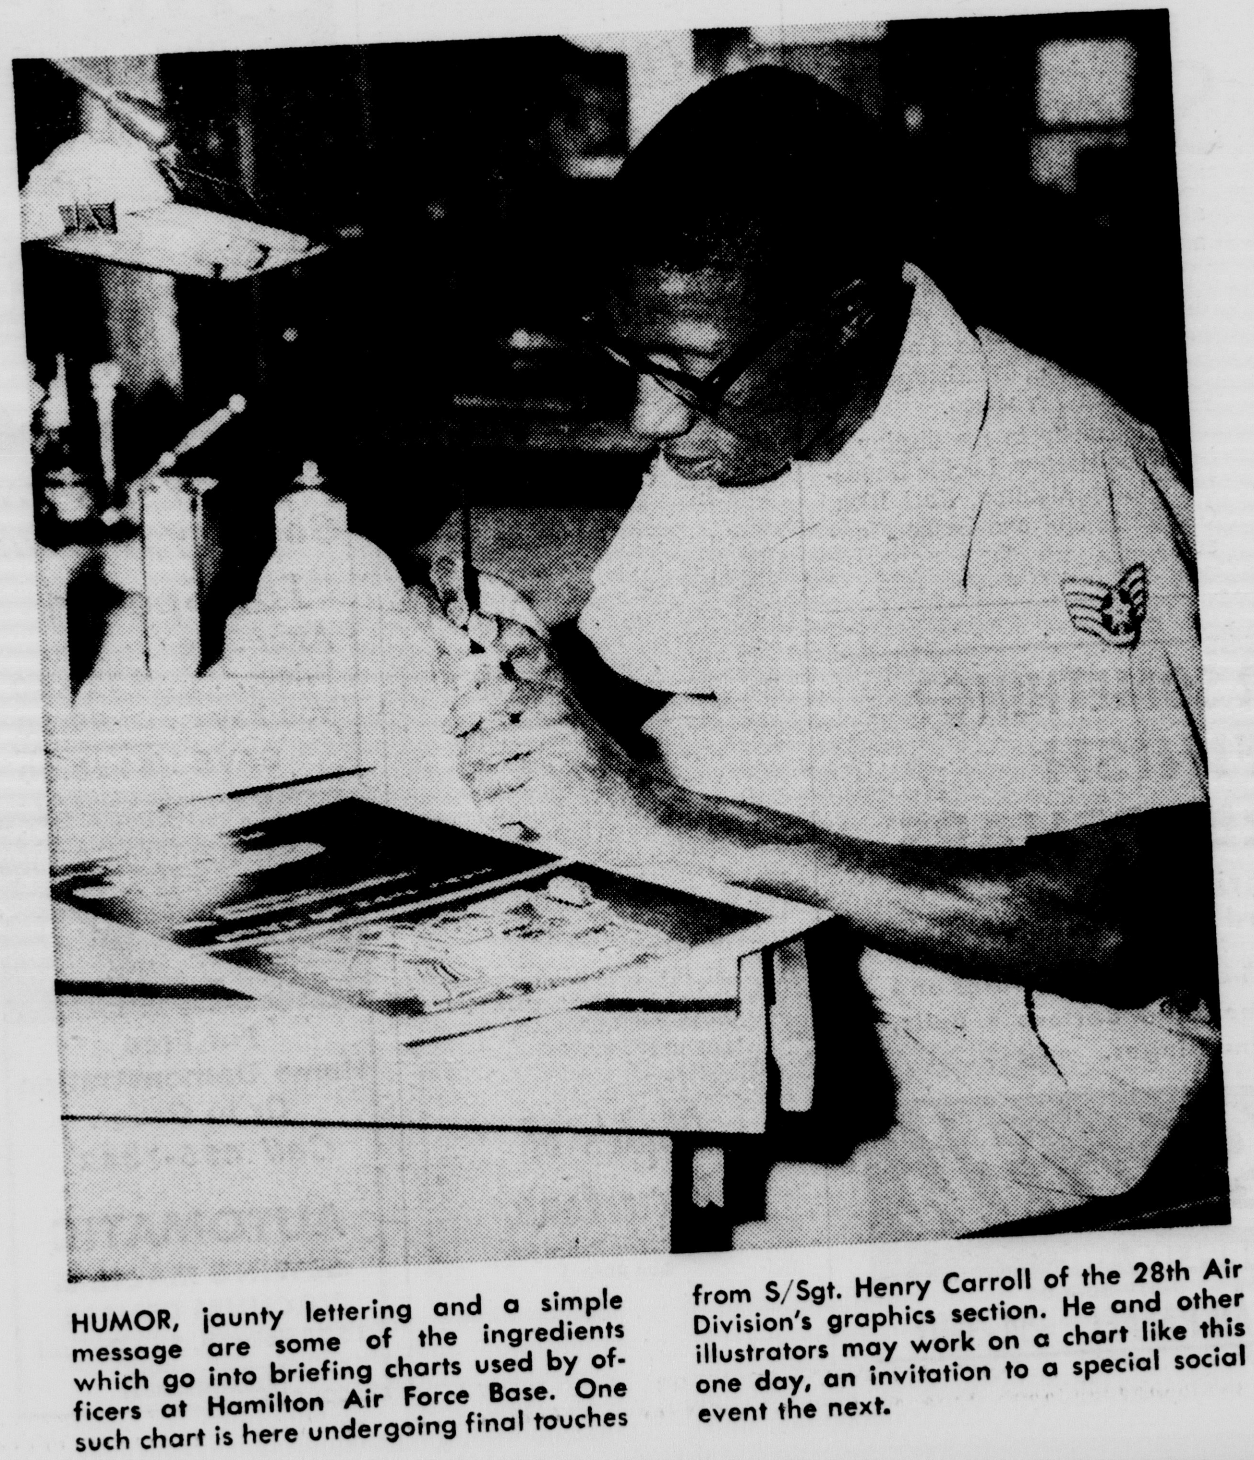
Military and civilian personnel in the Air Defense Command say the men of Hamilton's graphics section have these attributes. But the hard-working illustrators continue to seek better ways of improving the quality of their work.



A COLORED MAP of Central Africa, part of the materials used in a recent operational briefing for pilots at Hamilton Air Force Base, is here checked for accuracy by A/2c Todd W. Wiebold, a member of the 28th Air Division's graphics section. The section produces these and many other visual aids, using the view-graph both to check their work and to "audition it" for those who plan to use it.

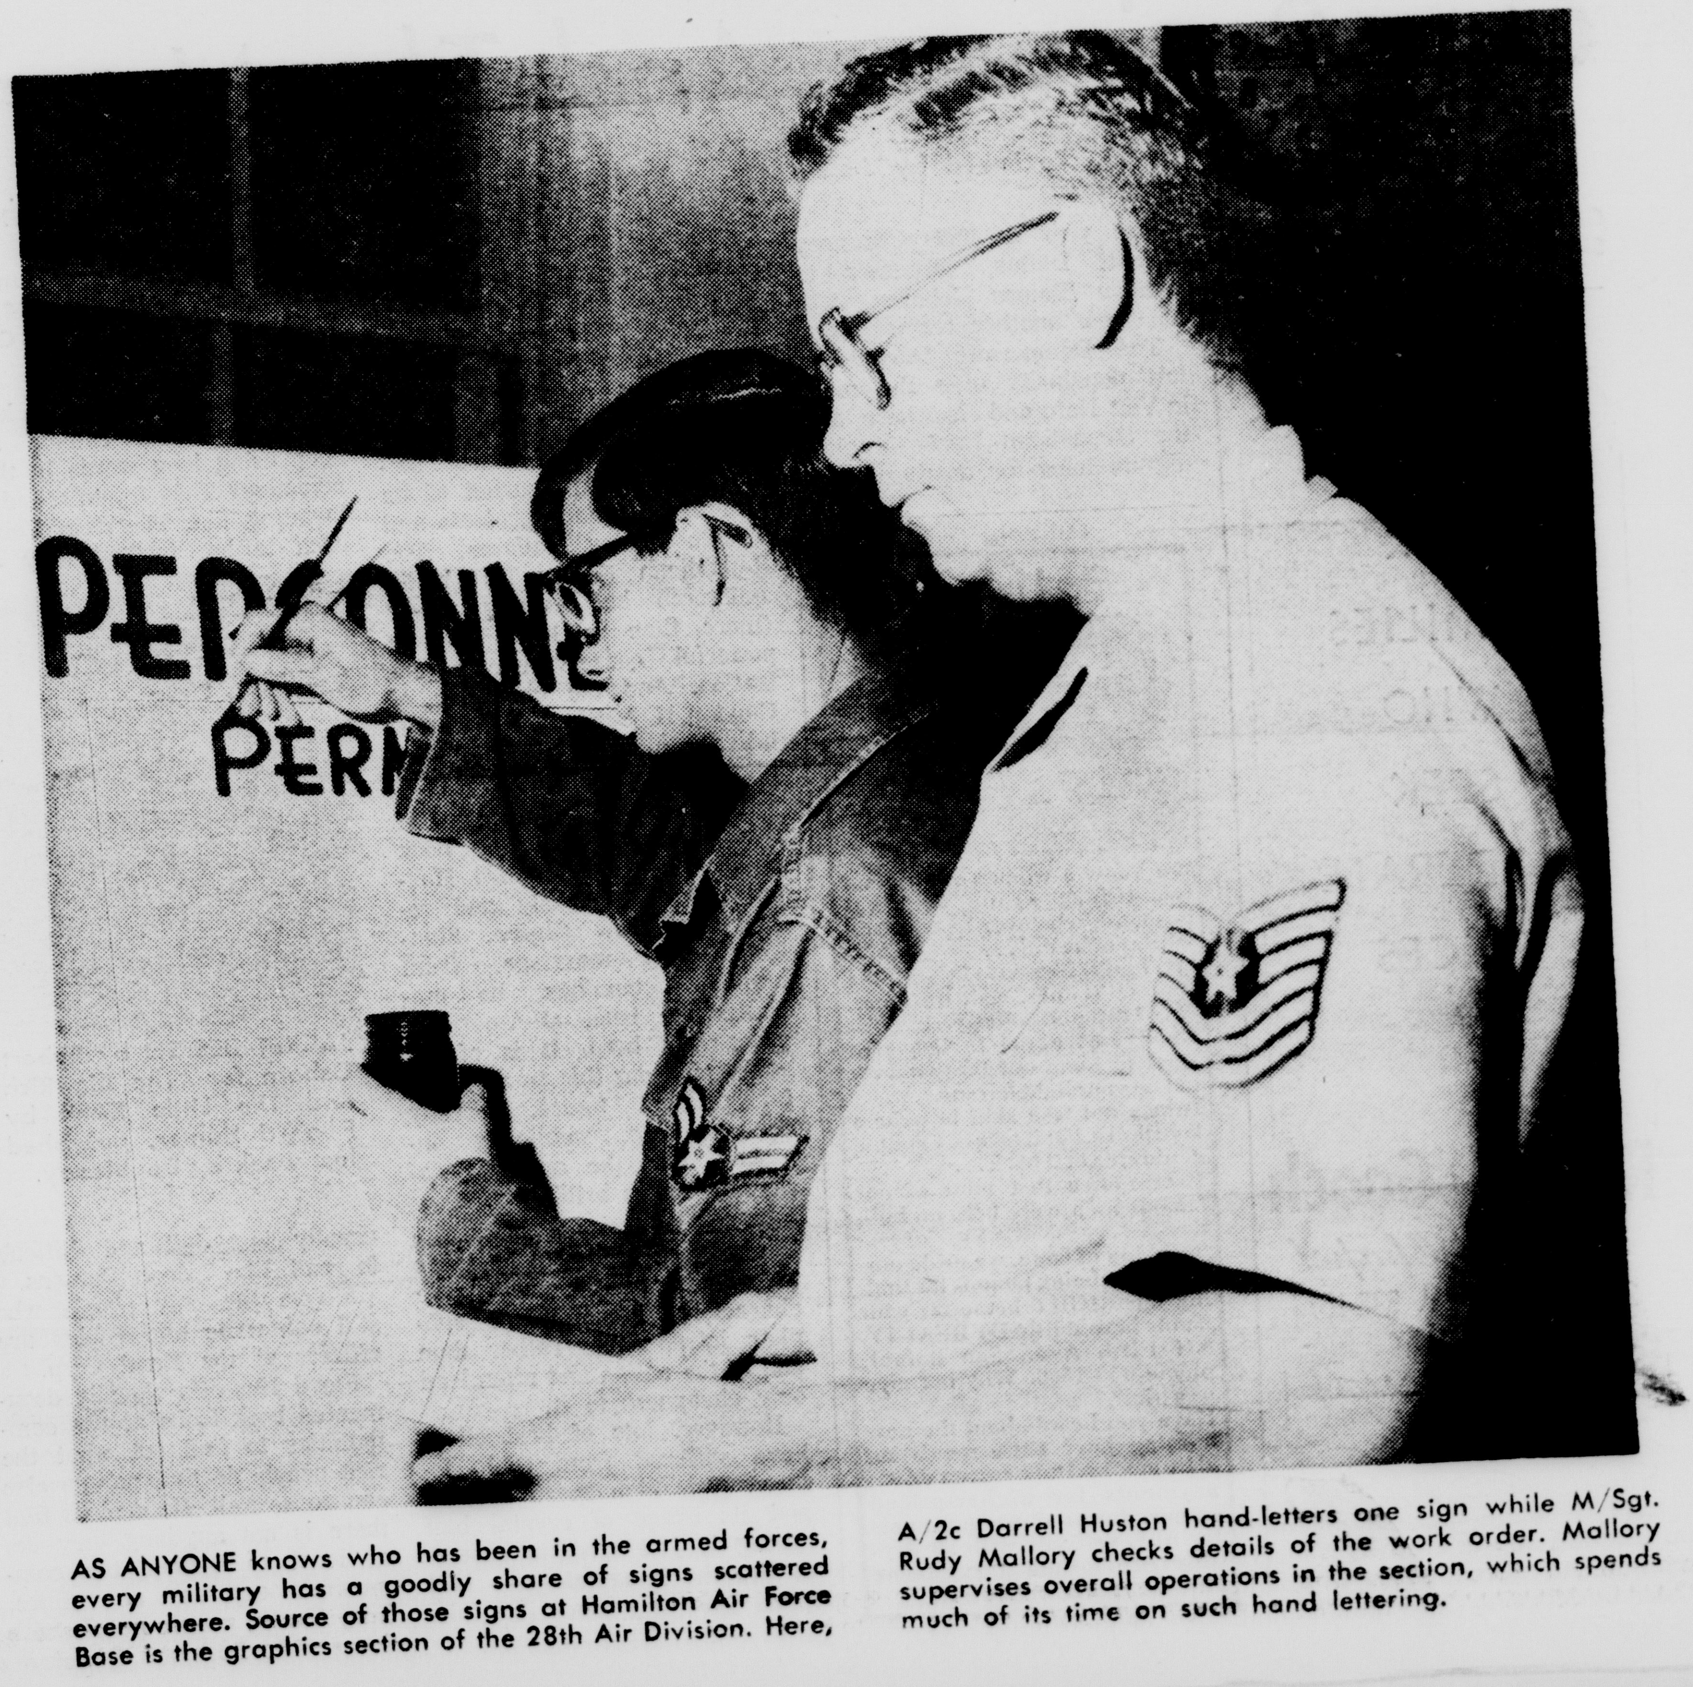
(Air Force photos)

A CIVILIAN, too, helps make up the talented crew of illustrators and draftsman who produce lettered and illustrated materials at Hamilton Air Force Base. Here, illustrator supervisor Al Robles stands on a step-ladder as he reproduces Air Defense Command plotting boards, using a huge scaled map of the California coast. Such plotting boards are used at Air Force radar sites across the North American continent.



HUMOR, jaunty lettering and a simple message are some of the ingredients which go into briefing charts used by officers at Hamilton Air Force Base. One such chart is here undergoing final touches from S/Sgt. Henry Carroll of the 28th Air Division's graphics section. He and other illustrators may work on a chart like this one day, an invitation to a special social event the next.

MODERN MACHINES like this Headliner lettering device make the job easier for A/2c Stanley J. Nelson (seated) and A/3c Gary Smith, members of the graphics section in the 28th Air Division at Hamilton Air Force Base. Here, Nelson operates the machine while Smith looks on. Details of the job they are working on are laid out by work order sheet mounted on the machine itself.



AS ANYONE knows who has been in the armed forces, every military has a goodly share of signs scattered everywhere. Source of those signs at Hamilton Air Force Base is the graphics section of the 28th Air Division. Here, A/2c Darrell Huston hand-letters one sign while M/Sgt. Rudy Mallory checks details of the work order. Mallory supervises overall operations in the section, which spends much of its time on such hand lettering.

Bogart Was Real Human Being In Midst Of Hollywood Facade

By DON KEOWN

BOGART by Richard Gehman, Fawcett, 159 pages, paperback, 50 cents.

Hardcover publishers have scheduled a deluge of books about the late Humphrey Bogart, but apparently one of the most interesting of the lot slipped through their fingers.

"Bogart" by Richard Gehman, an intimate of the late actor, appears instead as a Fawcett Gold Medal paperback original and as a piece in True Magazine.

It is not so much a biography, although it does offer a resume of Bogart's life, as it is a character study, and even more a perceptive analysis of the peculiar lasting qualities which the Bogart on-screen and off-screen personalities have held for the American public.

For most Hollywood figures, such a study would be a wasted enterprise. Behind the facade, there is little depth. But Bogart—"the existential man," he has been called—was a complex and fascinating individual who reflected much of the America of his time as it was, and a great deal more of what it aspired to be, but could achieve only vicariously.

He was a blend of the exceptional and the commonplace, of cynicism and romanticism, of tough maturity and appealing boyishness. When he "acted," often brilliantly, it was not so much that he became the character he was playing as that the character seemed to fit into one of the many Bogart facets. His was a flexible personality, and yet always a distinctive one.

In private life, he was an individualist, a humanitarian and a liberal, outspoken in his disgust for the bland and the timid. He lived with much of the same flair for life he displayed so magnificently on the screen, all the time seeming to sit back with that sardonic grin, enjoying himself as he watched himself "perform."

His pictures include some of the all-time great movies — "Casablanca," "The African Queen," "Beat the Devil," "The Caine Mutiny," "The Treasure of the Sierra Madre," "The Maltese Falcon," etc. He was also in a good many duds. But never, no matter how poor the picture, was Bogart dull.

Gehman has done a commendable job of explaining, as far as explanation is possible, why Bogart has become the rallying point for what is virtually a cult of followers, especially strong along the eastern seaboard. The small book is well illustrated with photographs, both from Bogart pictures and from his private life. And a complete list of Bogey's movies will be especially apreciated by his fans.

THE NATION magazine has marked its 100th anniversary with a special centennial issue that has been sent free to regular subscribers and is available to others for $1.25 per copy.

In a special slick paper format, the issue carries the bylines of the likes of Barbara Tuchman, Mark Van Doren, Alfred Kazin, Ralph Ellison, Carleton Beals, Dalton Trumbo, Harvey Swados and many others, covering a wide range of subjects from the fresh and perceptive points of view that have stamped The Nation as foremost among the country's liberal publications.

Prentice-Hall will publish in book form a selection of the major articles from the centennial issue early next year. Tentative title: "The State of the Nation."

Already out is "One Hundred Years of The Nation," published by Macmillan and containing the best from the magazine during its 100 years of vigorous, enlightened service.

AFTER LBJ, what? Niven Busch, shown in this San Francisco pose, uses the fiction medium to speculate on the answer in "The Gentleman From California," published recently by Simon and Schuster. His imaginary candidate, a real grass-roots hero, embodies facets of several familiar California personalities. See review below.

THE TO-BE-expected spate of books about unrest on collegiate campuses with special attention to the University of California at Berkeley has occurred, with the most recent addition being Grove Press' "Berkeley: The New Student Revolt," written by journalist Hal Draper with introduction by Mario Savio.

PUBLICATION day for Dwight D. Eisenhower's "Waging Peace, 1956-61" has been set by Doubleday for Oct. 14.

THE GENTLEMAN FROM CALIFORNIA by Niven Busch, Simon and Schuster, 347 pp., $5.95. Reviewed by Jean Langham.

The year is 1972. Chauncey Talcott Dallas, successor to Lyndon Baines Johnson, will not seek another term.

The Democratic Party has lost popularity over the mess in Viet Nam and elsewhere, and the Republican Party is girding its loins for another crack at the Presidency. Their candidate, Clayton H. Belshaw, "The Gentleman From California."

Political novels are almost always fun, but this one misses the mark. The projection of seven years is not really that but more a reworking of our present political conditions.

The Democratic Party suffers only from a surfeit of its own most popular projects and foreign policy failures. The Republican Party is badly splintered but gaining power (more than in 1964) from a powerful conservative organization. And the character of Clayton H. Belshaw is a speculative composite of some very familiar personalities.

It is in the delineation of this character that the book puts its best foot forward. Having risen laboriously and respectably (law degree, Stanford, good marriage) from humble beginnings, he embodies the true, all-American, grass-roots hero. It is of his evolution from this to a powerful political figure, secretly compromising, publically inviolate, that the author occasionally writes brilliantly.

Where he is most subtle, he is also very good, but he tends to over dramatize with pale characters. Some minor subplots intrude into rather than add to the action and often lend only cheapness to it.

However, lots of best-sellers have suffered from such defects. It is high speed reading and its brand of crystal ball gazing is just credible enough to fire the imagination — 1972 could look very much like this.

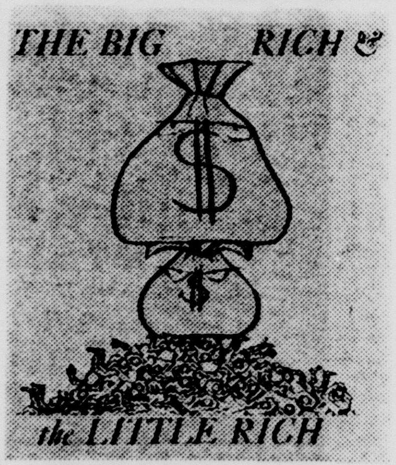
Sloppy Research

THE BIG RICH AND THE LITTLE RICH by Floyd Hunter, Doubleday, 181 pages, $4.50. Reviewed by Robert M. Coppock.

Why is it economists keep trying to sound cynical and keep using long words in their invective? They try to sound infuriating like Thorstein Veblen used to be. Instead they are usually just dull and difficult to read, like Talcott Parsons.



JACKET DESIGN by Robert Osborn for "The Big Rich and The Little Rich" by Floyd Hunter, published last week by Doubleday.

Maybe the only people who still can write like Veblen are officers of the Rand Corp.

Floyd Hunter's sloppily documented book looks at two communities to find out what the rich people do that no one else can do as well. He decides that there is not anything they do, at least to further the community's economy or culture, that a lot of poorer people with eighth grade educations could not do better.

They merely have more money than they can use, while too many people have less money than they need.

The trickle-down theory of capitalism obviously doesn't work, he goes on, and our computers should come up with something better for distributing wealth. Communism and socialism don't work either, he notes.

This book will probably be "must" reading for some people of Marin because one of the communities studied was the San Francisco Bay Area. The names of the very rich people have been changed, but many people will find their friends within the book.

The other community studied was a small university town in a southern state.

Hunter claims the traditional theory of the American economy is that the main job is to accumulate wealth, and that the most productive people accumulate the most, but that these people also produce the most goods for the benefit of all.

In fact, he claims, the purpose of the economy is to produce and distribute consumer goods, and anyone who gets more than his share is being wasteful, especially if others get less than they need. He says the American system produces hugely, but inefficiently.

He says the consumer is continuously being rooked by people who take his money for goods or services or taxes or insurance policies.

From Egypt to Florida In Books For Juniors

"Egypt to the End of the Old Kingdom" by Cyril Aldred (McGraw-Hill, $5.50) is a brilliantly portrayed adventure in the past with 41 color plates and 95 black-and-white illustrations. It has been the author's aim to select the best specimens that trace the flowering of Egypt from its earliest beginnings and, in doing so, he has included all the treasures of great distinction. Aldred, keeper of the Department of Art and Archaeology of the Royal Scottish Museum in Edinburgh, offers the reader a deeper insight into the pre-scientific culture of Old Kingdom Egypt.

"Little Hurricane Happy" by Wilma Pitchfor Hays (Little, Brown $2.75) is a story based on the true adventure of a boy who rescued a stranded porpoise after a Florida storm. The current popularity of porpoises practically insures its appeal to youngsters, and the illustrations by Wesley Dennis are another example of his fine work.

Animals remain a prime subject among authors of books for juveniles. In "Police Dog" (Harper, $2.95), Roderic Jeffries has writen both a suspense story of a dog under suspicion and a death sentence for sheep killing and also an informative account of how police dogs are trained. Boys 10 and 11 will find the story exciting.

Newest title in the fine Horizon Caraval history series is "Leonardo da Vinci" by Jay Williams (American Heritage, $3.95). It is William's third book for this quality series, and in this one he has Brown University history professor Bates Lowry as his expert consultant. The biography of the great da Vinci is presented in an interesting and enlightening fashion, and there are 182 illustrations, 46 of which are in color. Included are all of the 11 paintings generally attributed to the Renaissance genius.

In Provence, France, whole families spend the long winter evenings making small figures for creches, for their own use or to sell to tourists. They call these figures Santons, and in "The Twelfth Night Santons" by Marion Garthwaite (Doubleday, $3.25) we have the story of a young shepherd named Pierre whose greatest wish was to make Santons instead of herding sheep. As a result of helping an old man, he finally realizes his ambition. The colored illustrations by Winifred Lubell make this a beautiful and authentic looking book.

"Treasure at Flying Spur" by Shirley Sargent (Abelard-Schuman, $3), illustrated by Susannah Holden, is a mystery adventure, set in a hidden mountain meadow. When Mancy Ashburn comes to visit friends at their mountain cabin she makes a discovery that soon absorbs everyone's attention and involves them in a fight to keep the land from exploitation by threatening developers.

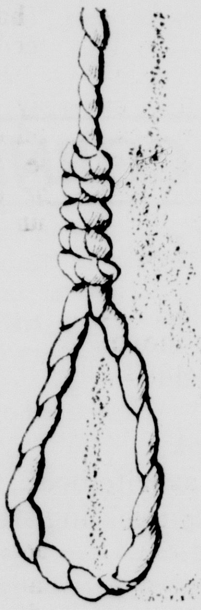
Sleuths & Suspense



THE HOUSE AT SATAN'S ELBOW by John Dickson Carr, Harper and Row, 249 pages, $3.95. Reviewed by Don Keown.

A new John Dickson Carr detective novel featuring the portly Dr. Gideon Fell always finds a large and eager audience awaiting its publication.

We have never fully shared that enthusiasm, finding the Carr-Fell pace a bit too deliberate for our taste. And this one seems almost plodding, slowed down by an excess of talk.

The scene is an English country home where there have been ghostly goings-on and where family stresses have created an air of potential violence. Sure enough, violence does occur. And Dr. Fell soon makes his appearance to unravel the puzzle.

It is the kind of denouement often referred to as "cerebral," but to us it seems a bit fragile, depending as it does so heavily upon Fell's interpretation of personality traits. Still, we don't doubt for a moment that Carr fans will enjoy this, just as they have the exploits of Dr. Fell that have come before it.

Sloppy Research

THE BIG RICH AND THE LITTLE RICH by Floyd Hunter, Doubleday, 181 pages, $4.50. Reviewed by Robert M. Coppock.

Why is it economists keep trying to sound cynical and keep using long words in their invective? They try to sound infuriating like Thorstein Veblen used to be. Instead they are usually just dull and difficult to read, like Talcott Parsons.

Maybe the only people who still can write like Veblen are officers of the Rand Corp.

Floyd Hunter's sloppily documented book looks at two communities to find out what the rich people do that no one else can do as well. He decides that there is not anything they do, at least to further the community's economy or culture, that a lot of poorer people with eighth grade educations could not do better.

They merely have more money than they can use, while too many people have less money than they need.

The trickle-down theory of capitalism obviously doesn't work, he goes on, and our computers should come up with something better for distributing wealth. Communism and socialism don't work either, he notes.

This book will probably be "must" reading for some people of Marin because one of the communities studied was the San Francisco Bay Area. The names of the very rich people have been changed, but many people will find their friends within the book.

The other community studied was a small university town in a southern state.

Hunter claims the traditional theory of the American economy is that the main job is to accumulate wealth, and that the most productive people accumulate the most, but that these people also produce the most goods for the benefit of all.

In fact, he claims, the purpose of the economy is to produce and distribute consumer goods, and anyone who gets more than his share is being wasteful, especially if others get less than they need. He says the American system produces hugely, but inefficiently.

He says the consumer is continuously being rooked by people who take his money for goods or services or taxes or insurance policies.

On The Stereo Scene With John Sunier--

JOAN RIVERS PRESENTS MR. PHYLLIS & OTHER FUNNY STORIES — Warner Bros. W 1610:

There has been a slight resurgence in the release of humor and comedy recordings lately.

For a while there, the bottom fell out of the market except for an occasional Bob Newhart or Jonathan Winters.

Here is an obvious follower of madcap Phyllis Diller, right down to cackingly uproariously at her own gags. But Joan Rivers is more than an imitation—she's an excellent commedianne, and there aren't too many of those around these days.

The title sketch is about her hair dresser. Naturally there is a sketch about airlines, as well as one about a pet—in this case a drunk dog.

Converts to the science of wiggery may also dig her extended descriptions of wiglets as if they were live animals.

I notice record companies have given up releasing lp's like this in both stereo and mono. Stereo is great, but for a single stand-up comic? — there are limits.

DON ADAMS MEETS THE ROVING REPORTER — GNP Cresendo Records 91:

I understand this is a re-release of an older lp, recorded live in New York clubs. But that doesn't explain why a sketch about J.F.K. was left in the album on an abominable breach of good taste.

Bits on Hitler always seem to go over well, and Adams has one, as well as Airlines, Movie Star, and the Prison Break.

Good, but a lot of rather blatant borrowing from Lenny Bruce, Reiner & Brooks, and others.

DYLAN JAZZ—The Gene Norman Group — GNP Cresendo Records 2015:

Ten compositions by the biggest thing in pop music today, Bob Dylan, are here given a very enjoyable jazz treatment by reed man Jim Horn, guitarist Glenn Campbell and rhythm section.

Dylan's lyrics are usually of great value, so some listeners might not appreciate these instrumental versions, but they do highlight the new folk-music hero's musical creations without interference of words.

From Egypt to Florida In Books For Juniors

"Egypt to the End of the Old Kingdom" by Cyril Aldred (McGraw-Hill, $5.50) is a brilliantly portrayed adventure in the past with 41 color plates and 95 black-and-white illustrations. It has been the author's aim to select the best specimens that trace the flowering of Egypt from its earliest beginnings and, in doing so, he has included all the treasures of great distinction. Aldred, keeper of the Department of Art and Archaeology of the Royal Scottish Museum in Edinburgh, offers the reader a deeper insight into the pre-scientific culture of Old Kingdom Egypt.

"Little Hurricane Happy" by Wilma Pitchfor Hays (Little, Brown $2.75) is a story based on the true adventure of a boy who rescued a stranded porpoise after a Florida storm. The current popularity of porpoises practically insures its appeal to youngsters, and the illustrations by Wesley Dennis are another example of his fine work.

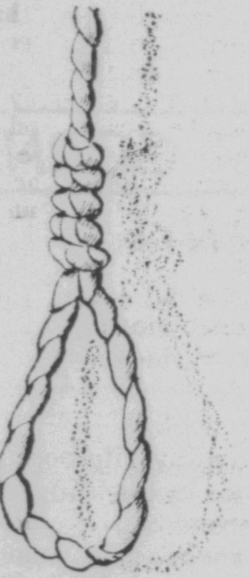
Animals remain a prime subject among authors of books for juveniles. In "Police Dog" (Harper, $2.95), Roderic Jeffries has writen both a suspense story of a dog under suspicion and a death sentence for sheep killing and also an informative account of how police dogs are trained. Boys 10 and 11 will find the story exciting.

Newest title in the fine Horizon Caraval history series is "Leonardo da Vinci" by Jay Williams (American Heritage, $3.95). It is William's third book for this quality series, and in this one he has Brown University history professor Bates Lowry as his expert consultant. The biography of the great da Vinci is presented in an interesting and enlightening fashion, and there are 182 illustrations, 46 of which are in color. Included are all of the 11 paintings generally attributed to the Renaissance genius.

In Provence, France, whole families spend the long winter evenings making small figures for creches, for their own use or to sell to tourists. They call these figures Santons, and in "The Twelfth Night Santons" by Marion Garthwaite (Doubleday, $3.25) we have the story of a young shepherd named Pierre whose greatest wish was to make Santons instead of herding sheep. As a result of helping an old man, he finally realizes his ambition. The colored illustrations by Winifred Lubell make this a beautiful and authentic looking book.

"Treasure at Flying Spur" by Shirley Sargent (Abelard-Schuman, $3), illustrated by Susannah Holden, is a mystery adventure, set in a hidden mountain meadow. When Mancy Ashburn comes to visit friends at their mountain cabin she makes a discovery that soon absorbs everyone's attention and involves them in a fight to keep the land from exploitation by threatening developers.

Sleuths & Suspense



THE HOUSE AT SATAN'S ELBOW by John Dickson Carr, Harper and Row, 249 pages, $3.95. Reviewed by Don Keown.

A new John Dickson Carr detective novel featuring the portly Dr. Gideon Fell always finds a large and eager audience awaiting its publication.

We have never fully shared that enthusiasm, finding the Carr-Fell pace a bit too deliberate for our taste. And this one seems almost plodding, slowed down by an excess of talk.

The scene is an English country home where there have been ghostly goings-on and where family stresses have created an air of potential violence. Sure enough, violence does occur. And Dr. Fell soon makes his appearance to unravel the puzzle.

It is the kind of denouement often referred to as "cerebral," but to us it seems a bit fragile, depending as it does so heavily upon Fell's interpretation of personality traits. Still, we don't doubt for a moment that Carr fans will enjoy this, just as they have the exploits of Dr. Fell that have come before it.

Pantries Starting To Return

The "old-fashioned" pantry is beginning to make a noticeable comeback in the American home, and its "new look" makes it a far cry from the popular pantry of grandmother's day.

DESIGNED TO fill the need for space to store the holiday decorations, punch bowl, roasting pan, turkey platter, canned goods and the hundreds of items required in the household, but used infrequently, the modern pantry is a well-designed room featuring the latest effects in homefurnishings.

Since very few homeowners can justify the cost of remodeling work merely to provide additional storage space, the combination of attractive interior design with the functional features of adequate storage has made the concept of a pantry room very appealing.

Members of one flooring manufacturer's bureau of interior design, most of whom are housewives and mothers, collected ideas on how to create ample storage space in an all-purpose room, adjacent to the kitchen, that would also serve as a "general headquarters" for mother.

THE ROOM they designed would provide an area for mother to do her menu and party planning, sewing and ironing; include an eating counter for easy-to-serve lunches, breakfast and snacks; and could double as a relaxing area for TV and cards.

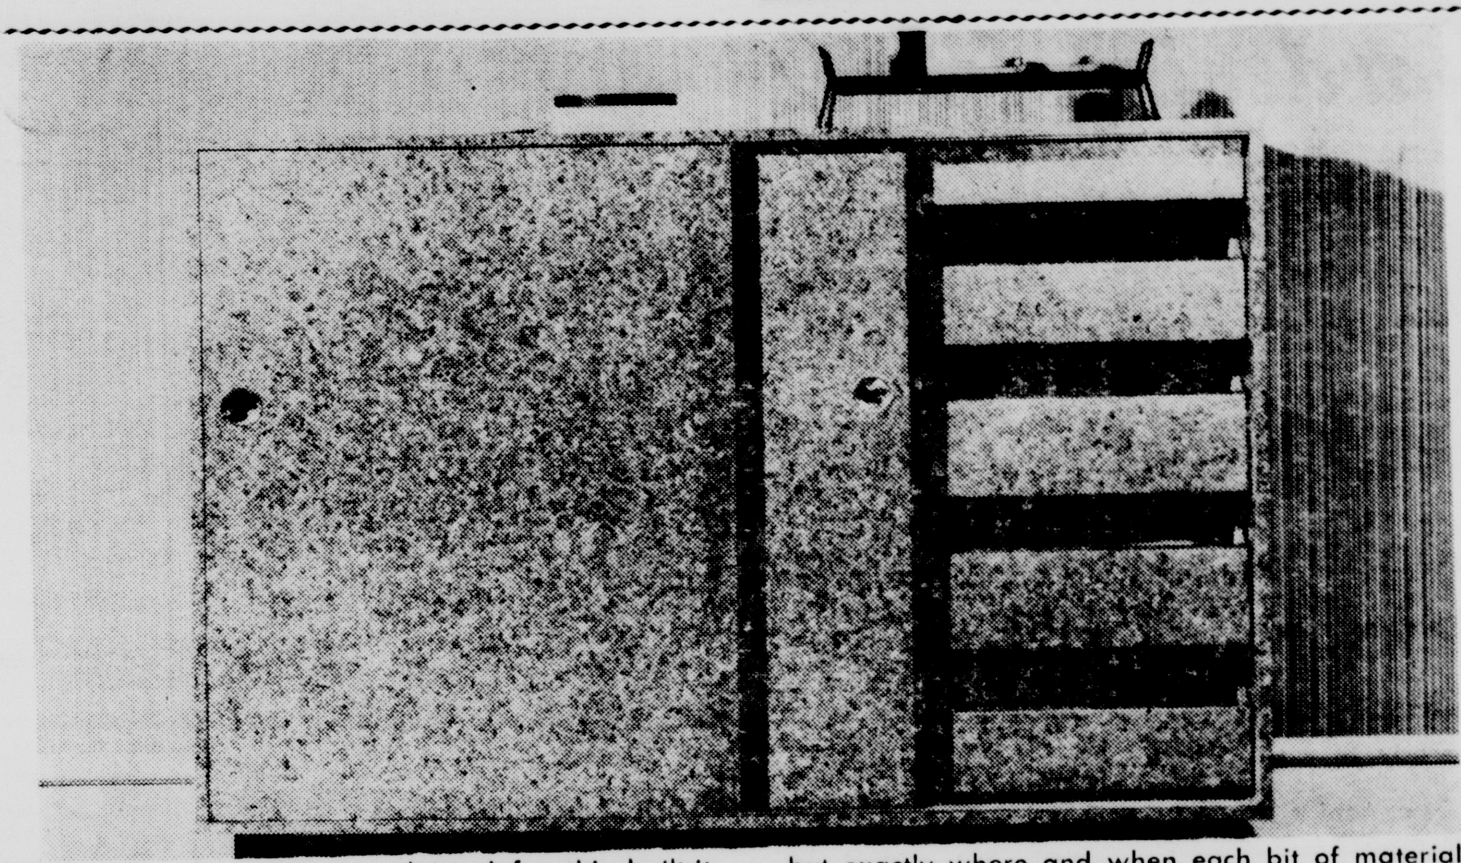
The selection of a location was relatively simple. Many of the homes built in recent years have a garage or carport located adjacent to the kitchen. Converting the garage into an all-purpose room for mother has several cost-saving advantages since the basic construction and the concrete subfloor are already in place.

In planning the room—which they agreed should have an Early American theme—a deliberate effort was made to create the effect of two separate areas. Storage area, the women decided, would dominate half the room while the other half would primarily be a work center close to the kitchen.

THE TRADITIONAL effect of exposed ceiling beams complemented the rustic furnishings of their model pantry and carried out its colonial theme. The beams in this ceiling were different, however, in that they were part of a suspended ceiling system.

This new box beam suspended ceiling consisted of two-by-four acoustical ceiling panels supported by a metal framework which is hung from the existing ceiling structure by wires.

The "beams" were part of this supporting framework and were lithographed with a realistic wood graining.



THREE BIG advantages are claimed for this built-it-yourself "Mr. and Mrs." wardrobe. First, it provides plenty of storage for a man's or woman's clothing. Second, it is easy to build and, finally, it is inexpensive. For the instructions, send 75 cents to ndependent-Journal, Post Office Box 215, Briarcliff Manor, N.Y., 10510, and ask for Wardrobe Pattern No. 139. To simplify matters, the pattern not only tells what to buy, but exactly where and when each bit of material is used. Every piece is accounted for so there is little waste. The cabinet provides ample storage for shirts, shorts, suits, ties and accessories. It is large enough for the average homeowner to store a complete wardrobe without crowding. It even offers a pull-out rack for such things as ties and belts. The instructions assume you have built nothing before.

'Marin's Own' Cascade Mum

Gardener Chikaji Hattori Developed Hearty Strain

By PEG KEENER

For nearly 10 years, Marin chrysanthemum lovers have been working hard to keep alive a flower in which they take special pride.

Local growers think of the mum, called "Hattori's Yellow," as their own, because it was developed by a Marin County man, the late, highly talented gardener Chikaji Hattori.

THE FLOWER is a single or daisy-type yellow chrysanthemum with unusual growing habits. Its developer was a master in the ancient art of "cascading." His cascade mums earned for him many prizes and honors in shows throughout the Bay Area until he died in 1957.

Hattori's Yellow, and the memory of its developer, will be spotlighted at the Marin Chrysanthemum Society's show, scheduled for two days next weekend at the San Rafael office of the Crocker Citizens Bank.

Ask any mum grower and he will tell you that raising the flowers from seed is difficult indeed. Even specialists often start new plants from root stolons or cuttings in the spring.

HATTORI, however, had a talent for germinating seed, most of which was sent him by friends or relatives and Japan. One so gifted can bring a chrysanthemum to bloom in a single season. Thus, Hattori was able to breed a better strain by saving only the strongest and best plants each year, starting them again the next spring.

From those which showed promise in the first year, he saved seeds. Then he started over again with his own seedlings, saving only the best of these crosses for further propagation.

Among his own seedlings, one in particular caught his fancy and he selected it for special attention. This was the seedling which was later named for him.

TO MUM growers today, it is no wonder that Hattori was proud and pleased with this one. Its green "eye" makes an interesting and strong contrast to the strong petal yellow. It has a profusion of bloom, with strong, wiry growth habits, and a good bloom date for late October.

In one season it can attain from five to six foot length, or even more if started early from stolons in December or January.

The stems are so flexible it can be twisted, turned, bent into unusual forms without breaking. It can be trained not only as a cascade, but as a standard or tree, developing an unusually thick trunk when stopped for lateral branching.

IT IS ONE of the few cultivars that can be grown into an umbrella shape, and it makes a beautiful espalier against a wall, fence or trellis—growing just about like a vine with a little help in intertwining.

Very weather resistant, it provides fine sprays of cut flowers late into November.

Hattori had found a chrysanthemum so fine and so adaptable to his specialty culture that he bestowed his name upon it, and generously distributed it among his friends, as he also did with many of the other fine cultivars he grew.

Unfortunately, all but Hattori's

Pantries Starting To Return

The "old-fashioned" pantry is beginning to make a noticeable comeback in the American home, and its "new look" makes it a far cry from the popular pantry of grandmother's day.

DESIGNED TO fill the need for space to store the holiday decorations, punch bowl, roasting pan, turkey platter, canned goods and the hundreds of items required in the household, but used infrequently, the modern pantry is a well-designed room featuring the latest effects in homefurnishings.

Since very few homeowners can justify the cost of remodeling work merely to provide additional storage space, the combination of attractive interior design with the functional features of adequate storage has made the concept of a pantry room very appealing.

Members of one flooring manufacturer's bureau of interior design, most of whom are housewives and mothers, collected ideas on how to create ample storage space in an all-purpose room, adjacent to the kitchen, that would also serve as a "general headquarters" for mother.

THE ROOM they designed would provide an area for mother to do her menu and party planning, sewing and ironing; include an eating counter for easy-to-serve lunches, breakfast and snacks; and could double as a relaxing area for TV and cards.

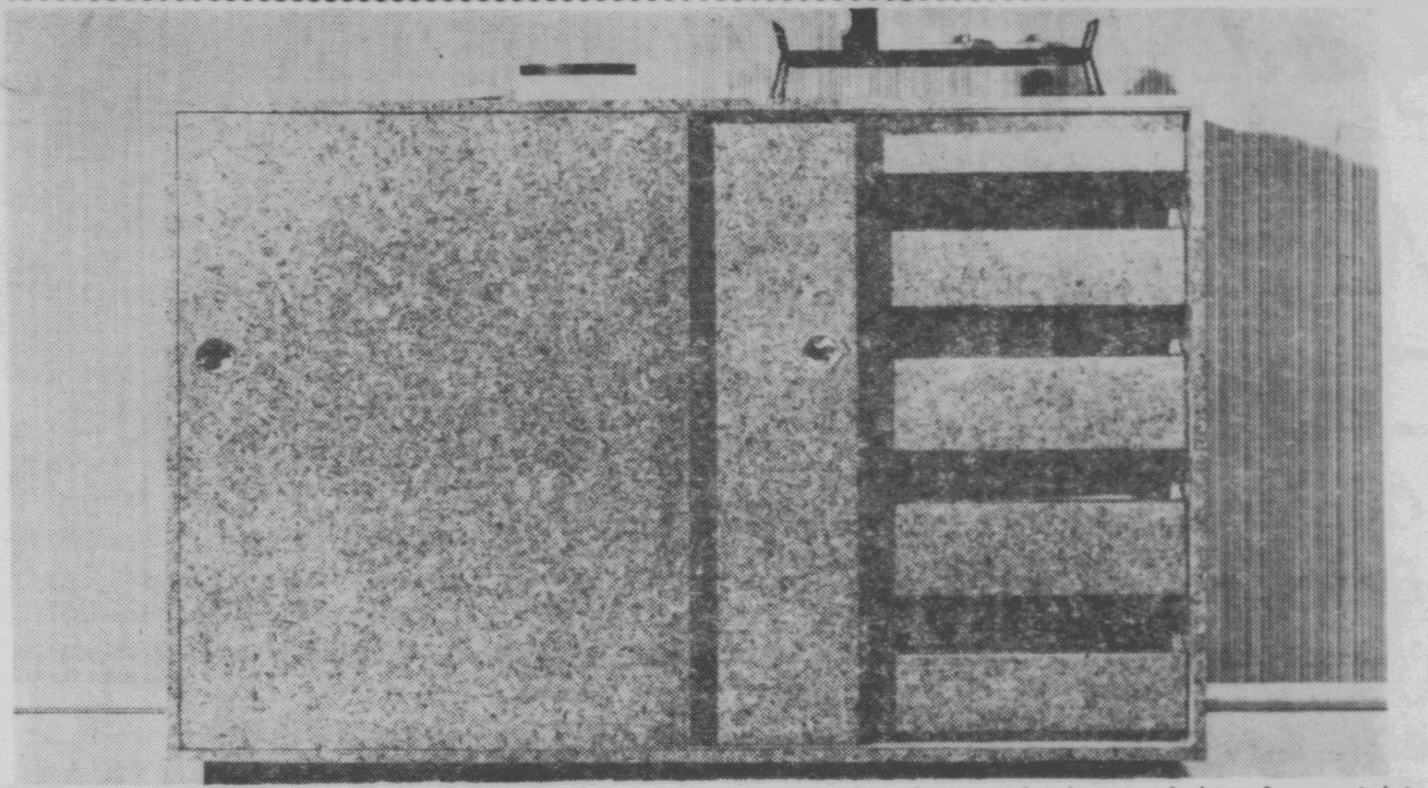
The selection of a location was relatively simple. Many of the homes built in recent years have a garage or carport located adjacent to the kitchen. Converting the garage into an all-purpose room for mother has several cost-saving advantages since the basic construction and the concrete subfloor are already in place.

In planning the room—which they agreed should have an Early American theme—a deliberate effort was made to create the effect of two separate areas. Storage area, the women decided, would dominate half the room while the other half would primarily be a work center close to the kitchen.

THE TRADITIONAL effect of exposed ceiling beams complemented the rustic furnishings of their model pantry and carried out its colonial theme. The beams in this ceiling were different, however, in that they were part of a suspended ceiling system.

This new box beam suspended ceiling consisted of two-by-four acoustical ceiling panels supported by a metal framework which is hung from the existing ceiling structure by wires.

The "beams" were part of this supporting framework and were lithographed with a realistic wood graining.



THREE BIG advantages are claimed for this built-it-yourself "Mr. and Mrs." wardrobe. First, it provides plenty of storage for a man's or woman's clothing. Second, it is easy to build and, finally, it is inexpensive. For the instructions, send 75 cents to ndependent-Journal, Post Office Box 215, Briarcliff Manor, N.Y., 10510, and ask for Wardrobe Pattern No. 139. To simplify matters, the pattern not only tells what to buy, but exactly where and when each bit of material is used. Every piece is accounted for so there is little waste. The cabinet provides ample storage for shirts, shorts, suits, ties and accessories. It is large enough for the average homeowner to store a complete wardrobe without crowding. It even offers a pull-out rack for such things as ties and belts. The instructions assume you have built nothing before.

He Loved To Teach And Gave Much Of What He Grew

Yellow have been lost by growers.

BORN IN Japan, Hattori was brought to this country as a child, and lived in Ross and San Anselmo for more than 30 years.

At one time, just before the depression years, he left the county to establish his own nursery business on the peninsula, but returned when the business folded.

Only one of his children, his eldest son, had his father's love and talent for the ancient culture of their people, but he was killed in action in Italy during World War II.

Hattori's widow, Mrs. Katu Hattori, survived him, and lives with a married daughter in Long Beach.

Hattori, a professional gardener, worked in many fine gardens in Ross and Kentfield. At one of these, the John F. Forbes estate on Upper Road in Ross, he spent 15 years and did most of his mum growing and seedling development.

A CHARTER member of the Marin Chrysanthemum Society when it was formed in 1949, he was featured in the Independent-Journal several times for lectures and demonstrations to members of the society and other garden groups on the art of cascading.

Meanwhile, he continued to grow the rooted plants about which he taught.

Mrs. H. B. Sturgeon of Greenbrae, first president of the Chrysanthemum Society, recalls that Hattori "was a true gentleman in every sense of the word, and a good friend. He was an inspiration to the society, giving much of his time and effort to introduce and teach cascade culture to the members."

ANOTHER GOOD friend was Shingo Sumi of San Rafael, another charter member of the society. Also a specialist in cascading as well as bonsai growing, Sumi is probably the one person most instrumental in keeping Hattori's Yellow in existence and circulation.

Of Hattori, Sumi says, "He was a master in cascade culture here when few people in the country knew little about the art, and was as well-known in Japan as the Bay Area for his knowledge, his specimen plants and seedlings.

"Hattori not only tested each seedling one or two years, but grew it for up to four years to make sure it was the proper cultivar for this purpose before giving it out.

"He could have been a rich man had he sold the flowers he developed, but he was overly generous of himself, time, and plants."

Now, Hattori's Yellow has become a memorial to its originator. Several specimens trained to cascade, standard, espalier and umbrella—plus a combination of the standard-cascade—will be entered in the society's 16th annual show.

IVAN JOHNSON of Novato, who specializes in these forms of culture, expects to have some top entries. Other cascades in the show will be Smith's Innocense, Bronze Charm, White Daphne and Liquid Amber, a new anemone recently introduced.

Society members say this has been an ideal growing year with perfect climatic conditions, thus the show should be a good one.

The free show, whose theme is "Autumn Enchantment," will run from 2 to 8 p.m. next Saturday and from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Sunday, Oct. 24.

ADMIRING another tree-like plant which he has cultivated from "Hattori's Yellow," Shingo Sumi of San Rafael shows how the strong plant's foliage cascade over wire framework placed around its trunk or stem. Sumi is a charter member of the Marin Chrysanthemum Society and knew talented gardener Chikaji Hattori well.

'Green Belt' Around Home Can Help Prevent Fires

A well planted, green hillside is not only beautiful in season, but according to safety researchers, is an important factor in the prevention of fire.

The native chapparal that covers many California areas is an explosively combustible plant. Easily ignited by a chance spark or cigarette, a fire in chapparal burns with intense heat and moves with terrifying speed, destroying everything in its path.

EVERY year such fires destroy California homes and property, and replanting for safety and beauty is the only answer to this threat.

Publicly owned areas are being cleared of native chapparal and replanted with non-flammable ground covers. Now it is up to the individual homeowner to do his part.

By creating a "green belt" barrier around his home, each homeowner can help to limit the spread of fire and make it possible for fire services to stop a brush fire before it becomes a catastrophe.

ACCORDING to California nurserymen, fall is an excellent time to do hillside planting and clearing. If you have a great deal of native brush to remove, it's a good idea to consult your local nurseryman about the easiest methods, tools and materials to use.

The following shrubs and ground covers are some that research has shown to be relatively non-flammable.

Creeping Rosemary—Drought resistant, with glossy, dark green fine-needled foilage, this aromatic ground cover grows low and spreading, and produces light blue flowers in April and May. It thrives on sun, little water, and poor soil. Plant one and one-half to two feet apart.

ROCKROSES — Whoever brought the first rockrose from the Mediterranean to California brought a handsome answer to hillside problems in our state. Shrubs that grow from two to five feet high (depending on variety) have a graceful habit of massing together to form a mounding cover of soft green.

Flowers that look like single roses, cover the plants in white, pink, rose-lilac or purple in spring and early summer, adding a pastel beauty to hillsides and other low - maintenance areas. But its usefulness doesn't stop with good looks.

Tested by researchers, it has been found to be highly resistant to fire. It competes will with native vegetation, and its roots go deep, making it an excellent plant for preventing soil erosion. It never needs water after established, it prefers poor, lean soil, takes hot sun and desert conditions, and last but not least — deer won't even nibble it leaves.

THE TWO varieties of rockroses especially recommended for fire safety planting are the Browneyed Rockrose and the Purple Rockrose. Plant three to four feet apart.

All forms of ivy make good looking, fire resistant ground covers. English ivy, while it prefers shade, will grow in sun if given water, and does a fine thorough covering job on large banks.

ICEPLANT — The small leafed varieties of this succulent rate high as a non-inflammable ground cover in warm winter areas. They will root on slopes that are almost vertical, need little water and thrive in sterile soils. Plant one and one-half to two feet apart.

GARDEN ornaments are much more effective in a rich setting of polished, green foliage. This gives an illustration: holly-like leaves of Dwarf Oregon Grape make a permanent base planting. In addition, they contribute bright yellow flowers and attractive blue fruits in season.

'Marin's Own' Cascade Mum

Gardener Chikaji Hattori Developed Hearty Strain

By PEG KEENER

For nearly 10 years, Marin chrysanthemum lovers have been working hard to keep alive a flower in which they take special pride.

Local growers think of the mum, called "Hattori's Yellow," as their own, because it was developed by a Marin County man, the late, highly talented gardener Chikaji Hattori.

THE FLOWER is a single or daisy-type yellow chrysanthemum with unusual growing habits. Its developer was a master in the ancient art of "cascading." His cascade mums earned for him many prizes and honors in shows throughout the Bay Area until he died in 1957.

Hattori's Yellow, and the memory of its developer, will be spotlighted at the Marin Chrysanthemum Society's show, scheduled for two days next weekend at the San Rafael office of the Crocker Citizens Bank.

Ask any mum grower and he will tell you that raising the flowers from seed is difficult indeed. Even specialists often start new plants from root stolons or cuttings in the spring.

HATTORI, however, had a talent for germinating seed, most of which was sent him by friends or relatives and Japan. One so gifted can bring a chrysanthemum to bloom in a single season. Thus, Hattori was able to breed a better strain by saving only the strongest and best plants each year, starting them again the next spring.

From those which showed promise in the first year, he saved seeds. Then he started over again with his own seedlings, saving only the best of these crosses for further propagation.

Among his own seedlings, one in particular caught his fancy and he selected it for special attention. This was the seedling which was later named for him.

TO MUM growers today, it is no wonder that Hattori was proud and pleased with this one. Its green "eye" makes an interesting and strong contrast to the strong petal yellow. It has a profusion of bloom, with strong, wiry growth habits, and a good bloom date for late October.

In one season it can attain from five to six foot length, or even more if started early from stolons in December or January.

The stems are so flexible it can be twisted, turned, bent into unusual forms without breaking. It can be trained not only as a cascade, but as a standard or tree, developing an unusually thick trunk when stopped for lateral branching.

Dunk Dahlias Deeply Daily

Heavy flowers, such as dahlias, need more water to keep them fresh in vases than smaller flowers.

Submerge the entire arrangement in water, including the flowers, for a few minutes daily to help prolong their freshness. Don't do this to delphiniums, orchids or iris, as they water-spot.

Zinnias will last longer if most of the leaves are removed. Spraying zinnia and chrysanthemum leaves will make them last longer. Remove wilted leaves.

Olive Is Fine Tree To Plant

The first olive trees apeared in California at the Mission San Diego de Alcala before 1800, and they've been a picturesque addition to our landscape ever since.

ONE OF the nicest things about this spreading, gray-green tree is that it lives so happily with modern architecture. Plant an olive tree in front of your house, in a lawn, or in a square in the patio, and you'll find you've added not only character and charm, but lively foliage that has a way of picking up house colors and flattering them no end.

According to most nurserymen, either the Manzanillo Olive or the Mission Olive is excellent for landscape use. For giant fruit, get the Sevillano. All are beautiful specimen trees, small in stature—(They grow slowly to 15-20 feet) with picturesquely gnarled and twisted trunk and limbs.

The Manzanillo Olive is available in espaliered form for gardeners who want to feature its shimmering leaves and interesting branches against a fence or wall.

OLIVE trees need full sun. Although they are most lush when growing in deep, rich soil, they'll grow in even the poorest soil with little water or fertilizer. They are noted for being extremely drought resistant.

You can prune olive trees heavily if you wish. In fact, thinning each year shows off the handsome and often gnarled branch pattern to better advantage. Many gardeners enjoy harvesting and curing their own crop of olives.

However, if you prefer that your tree does not produce fruit, you can control the crop by spraying the blossoms with oil emulsion.

Fall is an excellent time to plant olive trees from containers. Give them a generous hole and they'll make fine root growth now, then establish themselves for good in the winter rains.

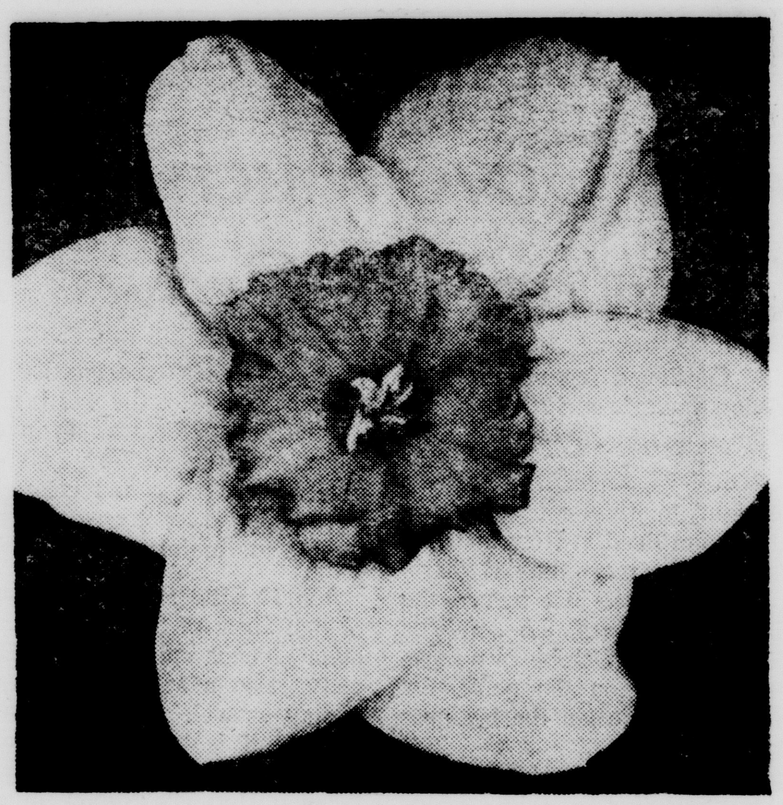
CHECKLIST GARDENERS

Here is the Marin gardener's checklist for the coming week:

✓ Thin out evergreen shrubs and trees that have put on excessive frowth this summer to avoid damage from winter wind and rain. Prune lightly, as major pruning jobs should be done in late winter or early spring.

✓ Choose shrubs, trees and vines in fall colors at the nursery. Keep them watered during warm October days.

✓ Hyacinths are easy to force in water, and can be in flower by late November or early December. Use a hyacinth glass or a shallow bowl filled with pebbles. Bulbs of these fragrant beauties are available in a wide range of colors and your C.A.N. nurseryman will show you the best way to force them.



ONE OF the fascinating varieties which can be planted for next spring is "Jezebel," shown here. It has petals of rich, red gold with a crown of barn red. Like other varieties, it is one of the first major garden flowers to bloom and is a joy to behold year in and year out.

King Alfred Leads Popularity Parade Among Daffodils

Daffodils are the essence of the spring garden. Of all the plants and flowers we associate with spring gardens, daffodils are in the forefront.

AND IN the forefront of the hundreds of daffodil varieties is an old standby created in the last century: King Alfred. It is classed as a "yellow trumpet." It has many cousins, all of whom resemble King Alfred, but bloom a little earlier or a little later.

King Alfred is so popular that many gardeners do not know of, or never took the time to investigate, some of the other trumpet-flowered kinds.

Mount Hood has pure white flowers on sturdy stems. Ada Finch is ivory and white; Spring Glory is pale yellow and white. A popular variety, Mrs. R. O. Backhouse, has white petals and an apricot trumpet. It is more often called the "pink daffodil."

When the trumpet part of the flower is shorter in length than the petals, the variety falls in a class called "large cups". Fortune, with golden petals and a flaring orange-red cup is a good example of this group. So is Dick Wellband, white petals with orange cup and Sunshine, with white petals and an orange-rimmed yellow cup.

THERE IS a curious classification of daffodils called the "doubles". Instead of having a distinct cup, the petals are bunched and frilled in the center. Twink is yellow and white; Texas is a yellow and orange combination.

Very popular with feminine flower arrangers is a little cluster-flowered double daffodil called Cheerfulness. It comes in yellow or white and it is fragrant, stems are short and sturdy. Another good "arranger" is a white cluster-flowered "Triandrus Hybrid" called Thalia.

Daffodils are the best-known members of genus Narcissi, a name commonly reserved for the fragrant little cluster-flowered bulbs grown in pebbles and water, or in the garden for midwinter flowers.

A GROUP of Narcissi that should be better known are the tiny "species" varieties, gathered from their natural European sources. Ideal for setting between stones in the rock garden, they can also be grown as pot plants for early spring flowers.

No matter which kinds of daffodils or Narcissi you decide to plant, it is advisable to plant the largest bulbs available. For example, King Alfred bulbs are offered in sizes ranging from "commercial" to jumbo. The small size will have a small flower on a short stem. The jumbo bulbs will have three or four large flowers on tall stems.

In-between grades are double-nose number one, producing two large flowers and double-nose number two, producing two smaller flowers. Round-nose bulbs produce one large flower stalk.

SOIL preparation insures good results. Work compost, redwood soil conditioner, steer manure or peat moss into the top 12 inches of ground. Rake the surface level, set the bulbs out from six to eight inches apart, then dig a hole deep enough so the top of the bulb will be five or six inches below the surface.

Some gardeners like to put in a little bone meal with the soil set under the bulb. Others prefer to feed in January, with a balanced fertilizer, just as growth starts underground. Daffodils and Narcissi may be left in the ground for a period of three or four years, but be sure to allow the tops to stay on until completely dry and water and feed twice during the summer.

Dunk Dahlias Deeply Daily

Heavy flowers, such as dahlias, need more water to keep them fresh in vases than smaller flowers.

Submerge the entire arrangement in water, including the flowers, for a few minutes daily to help prolong their freshness. Don't do this to delphiniums, orchids or iris, as they water-spot.

Zinnias will last longer if most of the leaves are removed. Spraying zinnia and chrysanthemum leaves will make them last longer. Remove wilted leaves.

Olive Is Fine Tree To Plant

The first olive trees apeared in California at the Mission San Diego de Alcala before 1800, and they've been a picturesque addition to our landscape ever since.

ONE OF the nicest things about this spreading, gray-green tree is that it lives so happily with modern architecture. Plant an olive tree in front of your house, in a lawn, or in a square in the patio, and you'll find you've added not only character and charm, but lively foliage that has a way of picking up house colors and flattering them no end.

According to most nurserymen, either the Manzanillo Olive or the Mission Olive is excellent for landscape use. For giant fruit, get the Sevillano. All are beautiful specimen trees, small in stature—(They grow slowly to 15-20 feet) with picturesquely gnarled and twisted trunk and limbs.

The Manzanillo Olive is available in espaliered form for gardeners who want to feature its shimmering leaves and interesting branches against a fence or wall.

OLIVE trees need full sun. Although they are most lush when growing in deep, rich soil, they'll grow in even the poorest soil with little water or fertilizer. They are noted for being extremely drought resistant.

You can prune olive trees heavily if you wish. In fact, thinning each year shows off the handsome and often gnarled branch pattern to better advantage. Many gardeners enjoy harvesting and curing their own crop of olives.

However, if you prefer that your tree does not produce fruit, you can control the crop by spraying the blossoms with oil emulsion.

Fall is an excellent time to plant olive trees from containers. Give them a generous hole and they'll make fine root growth now, then establish themselves for good in the winter rains.

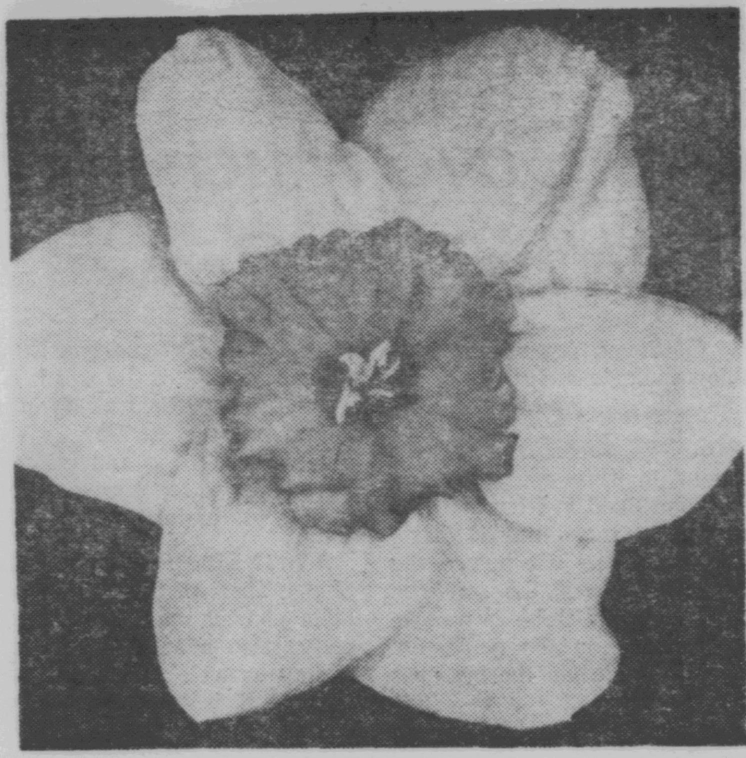
CHECKLIST GARDENERS

Here is the Marin gardener's checklist for the coming week:

✓ Thin out evergreen shrubs and trees that have put on excessive frowth this summer to avoid damage from winter wind and rain. Prune lightly, as major pruning jobs should be done in late winter or early spring.

✓ Choose shrubs, trees and vines in fall colors at the nursery. Keep them watered during warm October days.

✓ Hyacinths are easy to force in water, and can be in flower by late November or early December. Use a hyacinth glass or a shallow bowl filled with pebbles. Bulbs of these fragrant beauties are available in a wide range of colors and your C.A.N. nurseryman will show you the best way to force them.



ONE OF the fascinating varieties which can be planted for next spring is "Jezebel," shown here. It has petals of rich, red gold with a crown of barn red. Like other varieties, it is one of the first major garden flowers to bloom and is a joy to behold year in and year out.

King Alfred Leads Popularity Parade Among Daffodils

Daffodils are the essence of the spring garden. Of all the plants and flowers we associate with spring gardens, daffodils are in the forefront.

AND IN the forefront of the hundreds of daffodil varieties is an old standby created in the last century: King Alfred. It is classed as a "yellow trumpet." It has many cousins, all of whom resemble King Alfred, but bloom a little earlier or a little later.

King Alfred is so popular that many gardeners do not know of, or never took the time to investigate, some of the other trumpet-flowered kinds.

Mount Hood has pure white flowers on sturdy stems. Ada Finch is ivory and white; Spring Glory is pale yellow and white. A popular variety, Mrs. R. O. Backhouse, has white petals and an apricot trumpet. It is more often called the "pink daffodil."

When the trumpet part of the flower is shorter in length than the petals, the variety falls in a class called "large cups". Fortune, with golden petals and a flaring orange-red cup is a good example of this group. So is Dick Wellband, white petals with orange cup and Sunshine, with white petals and an orange-rimmed yellow cup.

THERE IS a curious classification of daffodils called the "doubles". Instead of having a distinct cup, the petals are bunched and frilled in the center. Twink is yellow and white; Texas is a yellow and orange combination.

Very popular with feminine flower arrangers is a little cluster-flowered double daffodil called Cheerfulness. It comes in yellow or white and it is fragrant, stems are short and sturdy. Another good "arranger" is a white cluster-flowered "Triandrus Hybrid" called Thalia.

Daffodils are the best-known members of genus Narcissi, a name commonly reserved for the fragrant little cluster-flowered bulbs grown in pebbles and water, or in the garden for midwinter flowers.

A GROUP of Narcissi that should be better known are the tiny "species" varieties, gathered from their natural European sources. Ideal for setting between stones in the rock garden, they can also be grown as pot plants for early spring flowers.

No matter which kinds of daffodils or Narcissi you decide to plant, it is advisable to plant the largest bulbs available. For example, King Alfred bulbs are offered in sizes ranging from "commercial" to jumbo. The small size will have a small flower on a short stem. The jumbo bulbs will have three or four large flowers on tall stems.

In-between grades are double-nose number one, producing two large flowers and double-nose number two, producing two smaller flowers. Round-nose bulbs produce one large flower stalk.

SOIL preparation insures good results. Work compost, redwood soil conditioner, steer manure or peat moss into the top 12 inches of ground. Rake the surface level, set the bulbs out from six to eight inches apart, then dig a hole deep enough so the top of the bulb will be five or six inches below the surface.

Some gardeners like to put in a little bone meal with the soil set under the bulb. Others prefer to feed in January, with a balanced fertilizer, just as growth starts underground. Daffodils and Narcissi may be left in the ground for a period of three or four years, but be sure to allow the tops to stay on until completely dry and water and feed twice during the summer.

AUTHOR Theodore H. White has adopted his best-selling book "The Making of The President: 1964" for a 90-minute television special, scheduled for 9:30 p.m. Tuesday on KPIX.

WEEKEND SHOWS

Sinatra, Basie To Team Up

The swinging combination of singer Frank Sinatra and the Count Basie band promises to keep things lively on ABC's "Hollywood Palace" at 8:30 tonight on KGO.

The 1946 Academy Award winning film "The Best Years of Our Lives," which starred Fredric March, Myrna Loy, Dana Andrews, Hoagy Carmichael and others, will have its first San Francisco showing on "The Big Movie" at 11:20 p.m. on KPIX.

Also unusual this weekend:

SATURDAY:

Sandie Shaw, English singer who sheds her shoes, joins her countrymen, Peter and Gordon, on "Shindig!" (KGO, 7:30 p.m.)

Guests on "Grand Ole Opry" will include veteran Tex Williams, George Hamilton, Margie Bowes and Willie Nelson (KTVU, 7 p.m.)

"Boys' Night Out," a 1962 comedy film, stars James Garner, Kim Novak, Tony Randall and others. (KRON, 9 p.m.)

ABC's "Wide World of Sports" will show a championship figure eight stock car "thrill race," then will switch to the all-Ireland hurling competition. (KGO, 5 p.m.)

The golden age of racing, in which names like Deusenberg, Fiat and Bugatti became famous, will be the topic of "Films A La Carte." (KQED, 7 p.m.)

Alfred Knopf, board chairman of one of the world's biggest publishing houses, will be interviewed on "The Open Mind" (KQED, 9 p.m.)

Don Ameche plays a man who values gambling above all else in the movie "That's My Man," also starring Catherine McLeod. (KRON, 11:30 p.m.)

SUNDAY

Alabama Atty. Gen. Richard Flowers, who will prosecute in the second murder trial of Ku Klux Klansman Collie LeRoy Wilkins Jr., will be on "Face because the malaren rugs are so spirited and lively

so warm and vivacious
they bring immediate beauty and bounce to a room. they are reminiscent of hand made scandinavian rugs with a dense shaggy thick wool pile of unusual texture.
the colors are exhilerating: light tones blend into the intensity of deeper hues . . . suggesting a nordic sky.

"Broadloom" is a term of measurement for carpets. It does not designate any particular style, quality or type of construction, but simply means carpet made in a seamless width 6 feet or wider.

Steam Iron Helps

Fall housecleaning time? If you rearrange furniture and find crushed spots on your carpet, use your steam iron. Steam the spots for a few seconds—without actually touching the iron to the carpet–

Nylon Is First

Man-made fibers were used in approximately 70 per cent of the carpets produced in the United States during 1964. Nylon replaced wool as the single most important surface fiber, accounted for 30 per cent.

Our Ancestors Used Daring

Early American Furniture Retains Old Popularity

In these days of daring space travel, there is a certain comfort in remembering our ancestors.

BACK IN America's youthful days, they had their own problems while traveling into the unknown—but they succeeded in the long run.

Perhaps this is one reason for the continued great popularity of early American and provincial furnishings. Whatever the cause, this type of decor is warm, inviting, easy to live with, and popular.

Happily, too, the taste for early American furniture is an easy one to indulge, for there is a tremendous selection available.

CLASSICS IN this field are such features as spindle turnings, antique brass hardware, and scalloped effects. New is the addition of colored fixtures instead of staying with natural maple or fruitwoods.

New, too, is the introduction in some lines of a subtle Mediterranean influence — not inconsistent when we recall that the first settlements made by Europeans in North America were by the Spaniards, and that the Spanish Armada had to be overcome before certain areas could be permanently settled.

An example of early American with Mediterranean touches is an informal dining group in a maple finish. An octagonal table is supported by four turned legs, heavier at the base, which rest on a shaped platform.

CHAIRS ARE ladderback with square turnings on back and legs. Storage pieces are detailed with hand-carved effects, including a spool work lattice at the bottom of the china cabinet deck's glass doors.

A classic of early Americana is the massive cannonball bed. The large posts with round turnings give this bed sturdy construction for the long and hard use to which the early settlers put their furniture; heirloom to be passed from generation to generation.

To accompany fine early American furniture and create the nostalgic atmosphere of long ago, add harmonizing accessories.

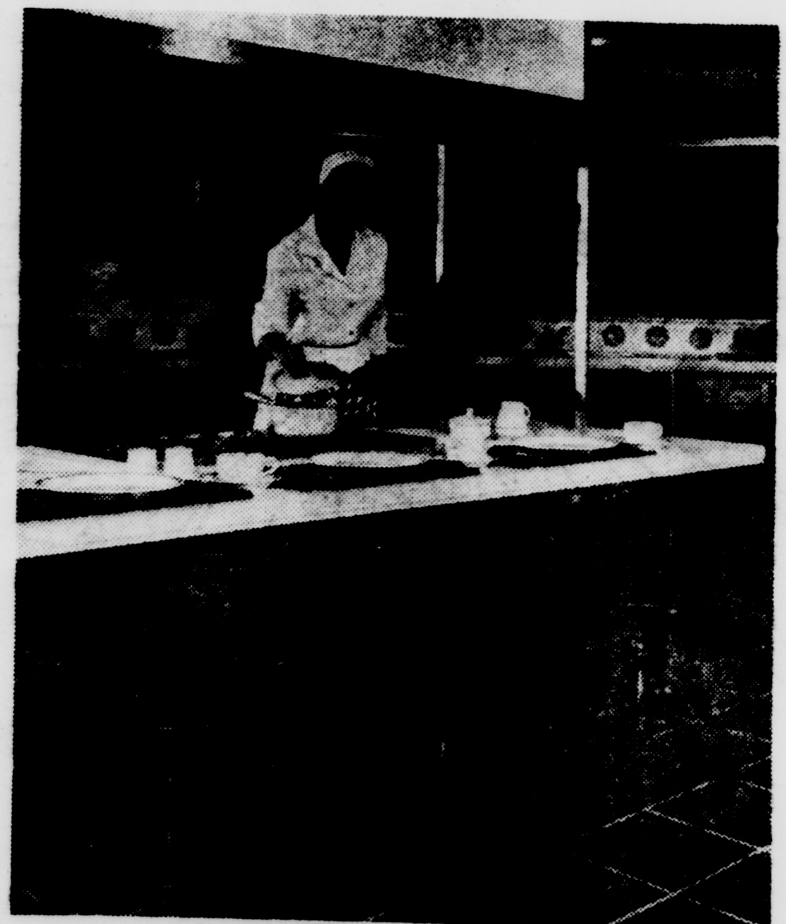
A grandfather clock, similar to many which were carried across the plains from the original family homes, is a traditional accessory in the early American home.

FAMILIAR design motifs such as the spool turning and scalloped fan are also widely seen. These are combined in a new spindle wall clock which is a simulated wood reproduction of a hand-carved original.

Finished in mellow fruitwood tone, it is available with eight-day key wind movement or with battery-powered electronic movement. Matching plaques may be obtained.

The eagle, one of the oldest known decorative themes, has a special significance to Americans. A handsome 41" spread eagle wall plaque finished in Roman gold or fruitwood with multi-color accents is available in simulated "weathered" wood.

Another eagle graces a Roman-numeraled clock, with a design sugested by a late 18th century girandole. Harmonizing bootjack sconces accented with brass are available.



A NEW 12-inch modular size ceramic tile is the Franciscan Terra Floor in this modern, attractive kitchen. It is featured by Tile Sales Co., San Rafael. Franciscan tile "Hacienda" decoratives in a scored pattern coordinate well with Franciscan's dinnerware of the same name.

French Provincial Furniture Has Real Staying Power

In an era of changing home fashions, finding furniture that meets both contemporary living moods and needs can be a problem.

BUT THERE is one period of furniture that has proven staying power. It has never faded away or needed to be revived for well-decorated homes. It is French provincial, born right after the 18th century revolution.

Often described in dictionaries as "a modification of French court styles," French provincial really could be called history's first contemporary furniture, thanks to its basic qualities of being comfortable, lightly scaled and usable.

Smaller Homes, Bigger Families Force Changes

With the population exploding and the world shrinking (not to mention rising building costs), homes are necessarily getting smaller. But, since people are the same size, and busier than ever, something's got to give!

SOMETHING HAS. There are now many new types of home furnishings to make a small house seem larger and live better.

FOR EXAMPLE, one spacemaker chest performs in a minimum of space the services of pieces normally taking up much of a bedroom area.

Slim (26″ wide x 16″ deep) and 70″ tall, the chest provides behind its arched doors all of the following: a dressing mirror with overhead, recessed lighting; a white plastic cosmetic shelf, an electrical outlet, and four drawers especially designed to accommodate toiletries, jewelry, and various wardrobe accessories.

STORAGE SPACE for bulky items, such as hat boxes and shoes, is provided in the base cabinet. Simple in design, the spacemaker is of butternut and pecan woods, finished in a light spice brown.

For the small apartment, or the house without a separate dining room, a compact, completely folding drop leaf table is ideal. From a correlated modular grouping, this table stands only 13½″ away from the wall and can have one extending leaf or two.

Even one person can open it easily, because the legs operate on a scissors action; when one side is moved, the other automatically moves also.

IN A WALNUT finish, classically simple, the table may be used with correlated chairs, suitable for upholstering to suit the home color scheme. Storage decks in the grouping are sized so that one may be placed atop the table at mealtime; some feature tortoise accents.

Another compact arrangement for eating (as well as for working, reading, hiding the television, the stereo, or what-have-you) is available in modular units to be set up like a custom grouping, to your individual needs.

You may choose from the various sizes, types of units, kinds of doors, even colors, as you like. Table tops are laminated plastic.

NOT ONLY may you sit and sleep on a new multipurpose piece which looks like a handsome sofa, you may also store your pillow and extra blanket in it.

In a Spanish design, this unit features exposed wood at the ends in a curved open-arch effect. Its bolster back provides storage space. Many other types of dual-purpose bedding pieces are available to make one space serve two purposes.

Also dual-purpose is a long, low chest styled in the Spanish manner, with a sculptured effect in diamond motifs on six decorative panels on the front.

IT IS AVAILABLE in two finishes, pecan and gold leaf. Its tufted upholstered top makes it useful and comfortable as a bench, as well as a capacious storage piece. Large casters give it easy mobility.

LARGE variety of colonial and provincial styled furniture made by Ethan Allen for the living and dining area is shown here. Maple predominates in the arrangement. Such furniture is shown exclusively by Marin County Furniture of San Rafael, which stocks one of the largest collections of these styles in the Bay Area.

Homes Should Reflect Occupants' Activities

Decorating a-go-go is part of the modern homemaker's way of life.

Today everything is in motion. And homes should reflect activity and flow, and also new interests of its owners. Interior decorating is a dynamic force, a lively challenge that is never finished.

Homemakers see decorating as a woman's privilege to constantly gather, add, subtract, rearrange and put away.

This improvising method of redecorating is easily accomplished and a complete new look or mood can be created with little or no spending. Knowing how to work with what one has in the space available is the crux of a successful change in decor. Accessorizing—conservatively or with poetic license—can then be applied to win a homemaker plaudits for creative genius.

The most versatile and mobile piece of furniture to adapt to a switch in decor is a chair, according to a leading designer. A chair can be an anchor—the springboard or focal point to a setting—or be rotated to blend harmoniously with surroundings. By merely shifting a chair from a corner to a center grouping—or vice versa—a room takes on a refreshing perspective. Often an upholstered chair makes a gracious nook of an unused corner or hard to furnish alcove.

Chairs also can fit in diverse decorating themes. The same classic lines in a chair from one collection, for example, can sit comfortable in traditional elegance or an avant-garde Oriental mood setting, Keller said.

For the Oriental mood, the carved, slope sided chair was finished antique white. It was eased into the bold pageantry of far-out Far Eastern as the foil for a built-in console with simple white top and beams for legs. Inexpensive accessories helped turn the East-meets-West trick, including a copy of an antique Oriental screen and a Ming dynasty horse. Straw mats on the floor; straw fruit; contemporary ceramic ware and a scrolled metal lantern helped to orient the setting, converting an ordinary wall into an atmospheric one.

THERE is no longer any limitation on where one can put a fireplace in the home, say the makers of this free-standing, lightweight FireHood, available in either wood-burning or gas-filled models at Casper's, San Anselmo. The fireplace offers warmth and decorative style in a corner where one might not have dreamed of putting such a fixture.

MUCH like a home furnishings magazine in three dimensions is the display room of newly opened Young Bros., Novato. Dave Young (left) and his brother Harold have set up completely furnished room layouts so buyers can picture a selection just as it may look in their homes. Included in this and other arrangements are such details as wallpaper, lamps, chandeliers and paintings.

New Opulence In Fabrics Aid Demand For Brightness

In keeping with the decorative trend of the times — in which beauty once demanded by Vikings is now the accepted norm in even the low-budget tract house—upholstery fabrics too, have taken on new opulence.

BASKING IN the glories of gilt-rubbed colored wood finishes, on which they reflect their own beauties, are rich velvets, luxurious matelasses, handsome floral patterns, in glowing hues with the romance of the Renaissance.

That these fabulous fabrics are practical, too, protected by special treatment, or by manmade fibers of which they are constructed, is actually beside the point.

Their beauty is sufficient unto itself (although it is comforting to realize that such beauty can be maintained with no particular effort or care).

THE NEWEST upholstered pieces feature such textures as antique slubbed silks, cut velvets, plushes, jacquards. Many are quilted in patterns which contribute to the overall design of the furniture.

Floral patterns reflect today's decorating, featuring large, showy blossom and leaf motifs. Stripes are shown in dramatic color combinations, some with textured effect in the weaves.

Colors glow in deep tones with greens, blue, golds leading the parade. Earth-tones, including oranges and browns, are still popular, but most un-earthy in their treatment.

COMBINING some of the qualities desired in upholstery fabrics today, one firm is offering hand-printed vat-dyed velvets, in stripes and florals, matched to correlated solid colors, in 100% cotton with an easy-care finish.

Textured jacquard in warm tones is used on a sofa to enhance its Mediterranean heritage handsomely. In the same mood is a woven scroll pattern, used on a king-size sleeper-sofa.

For a contemporary line, one designer has produced four richly colored fabrics—chenille, jacquard, and two woven prints.

Outline quilting adds elegance to many of the new seating pieces. A pattern of country flowers is accented by this treatment on the back cushions of a love seat with button-tufted arms and self decking.

FULL-BLOWN roses on the seat and back cushions of a 94" sofa are also dramatized by outlining. All over quilting gives a soft, finished look to a sofa and loveseat covered in flat fabric with a spaced pattern of a period bouquet.

Softness achieved by fabric itself is illustrated in a plush-covered sofa, handled in a "boneless" manner, without front seams or welting.

The seat is button-tufted and rectangular back cushions have rounded edges, Textured tweed stripes cover the high-backed chair by the same manufacturer.

Velvet, widely seen now, achieves the ultimate in luxury and opulence when it incorporates a cut floral pattern, or when it is panne or quilted. Suitable for the most glamorous of queens is an upholstered group combining both cut-patterned and panne velvets.

THE PANNE is set into the patterned covering on the back and deck. Similar richness is illustrated in a Spanish-inspired sectional grouping by this producer, featuring rich velvet with a scrolled quilting pattern on arms, as well as on seat and back cushions.

Another firm has combined solid color and cut-patterned velvets by using the solid on the flared frame and covering all cushions in the patterned fabric.

Variegated stripes and florals are combined in a cut velvet covering used on a living room grouping by this manufacturer.

Homes Should Reflect Occupants' Activities

Decorating a-go-go is part of the modern homemaker's way of life.

Today everything is in motion. And homes should reflect activity and flow, and also new interests of its owners. Interior decorating is a dynamic force, a lively challenge that is never finished.

Homemakers see decorating as a woman's privilege to constantly gather, add, subtract, rearrange and put away.

This improvising method of redecorating is easily accomplished and a complete new look or mood can be created with little or no spending. Knowing how to work with what one has in the space available is the crux of a successful change in decor. Accessorizing—conservatively or with poetic license—can then be applied to win a homemaker plaudits for creative genius.

The most versatile and mobile piece of furniture to adapt to a switch in decor is a chair, according to a leading designer. A chair can be an anchor—the springboard or focal point to a setting—or be rotated to blend harmoniously with surroundings. By merely shifting a chair from a corner to a center grouping—or vice versa—a room takes on a refreshing perspective. Often an upholstered chair makes a gracious nook of an unused corner or hard to furnish alcove.

Chairs also can fit in diverse decorating themes. The same classic lines in a chair from one collection, for example, can sit comfortable in traditional elegance or an avant-garde Oriental mood setting, Keller said.

For the Oriental mood, the carved, slope sided chair was finished antique white. Velvet, widely seen now, achieves the ultimate in luxury and opulence when it incorporates a cut floral pattern, or when it is panne or quilted. Suitable for the most glamorous of queens is an upholstered group combining both cut-patterned and panne velvets.

THE PANNE is set into the patterned covering on the back and deck. Similar richness is illustrated in a Spanish-inspired sectional grouping by this producer, featuring rich velvet with a scrolled quilting pattern on arms, as well as on seat and back cushions.

Another firm has combined solid color and cut-patterned velvets by using the solid on the flared frame and covering all cushions in the patterned fabric.

Variegated stripes and florals are combined in a cut velvet covering used on a living room grouping by this manufacturer.

Room Dividers Highly Popular

The numerous room dividers being introduced by furniture manufacturers recently are no accident; room dividers have taken hold because they WORK.

Properly planned, a room divider can perform as a closed storage piece, bookcase, magazine rack, desk, table, and entertainment center, plus attractively providing privacy or separating home activity centers. What more can you ask?

A typical grouping leaves little to be desired. Designed in modular units to permit versatile arrangement, the pieces feature laminate tops, recessed pulls, and cane, glass, or tambour fronts.

Included among the available units are cabinets, desks, shelves, and cupboards in varying sizes. They are offered in handsome walnut or colored finishes.

A BROAD selection of finishes is also available in other wall units — interchangeable chests, cabinets, desks (or dressing tables), shelves, tables, and magazine racks.

Seven colors — Curacao orange, golden straw, Malibu, winter pear, white, tea, and oiled walnut — are in the one group; painted units may be had with alternate-colored drawers and sliding doors.

All tables and 16″-deep cabinets and chests include matching laminated plastic tops. Shelf-dividers and spring poles are satin bronze-plated.

Still another collection includes a handsome credenza and deck, with backs niched to permit use of the combination as a room divider. Contemporary in design, the group is finished in velvety walnut and features parquet inlays and black bases.

BLACK CAST brass hardware accents the pieces, which are part of a broad collection of correlated bedroom, dining room, and wall units.

Sometimes storage or other utility is not required in a room divider. When simple partition service is desired, you can go all out for handsome appearance in small space.

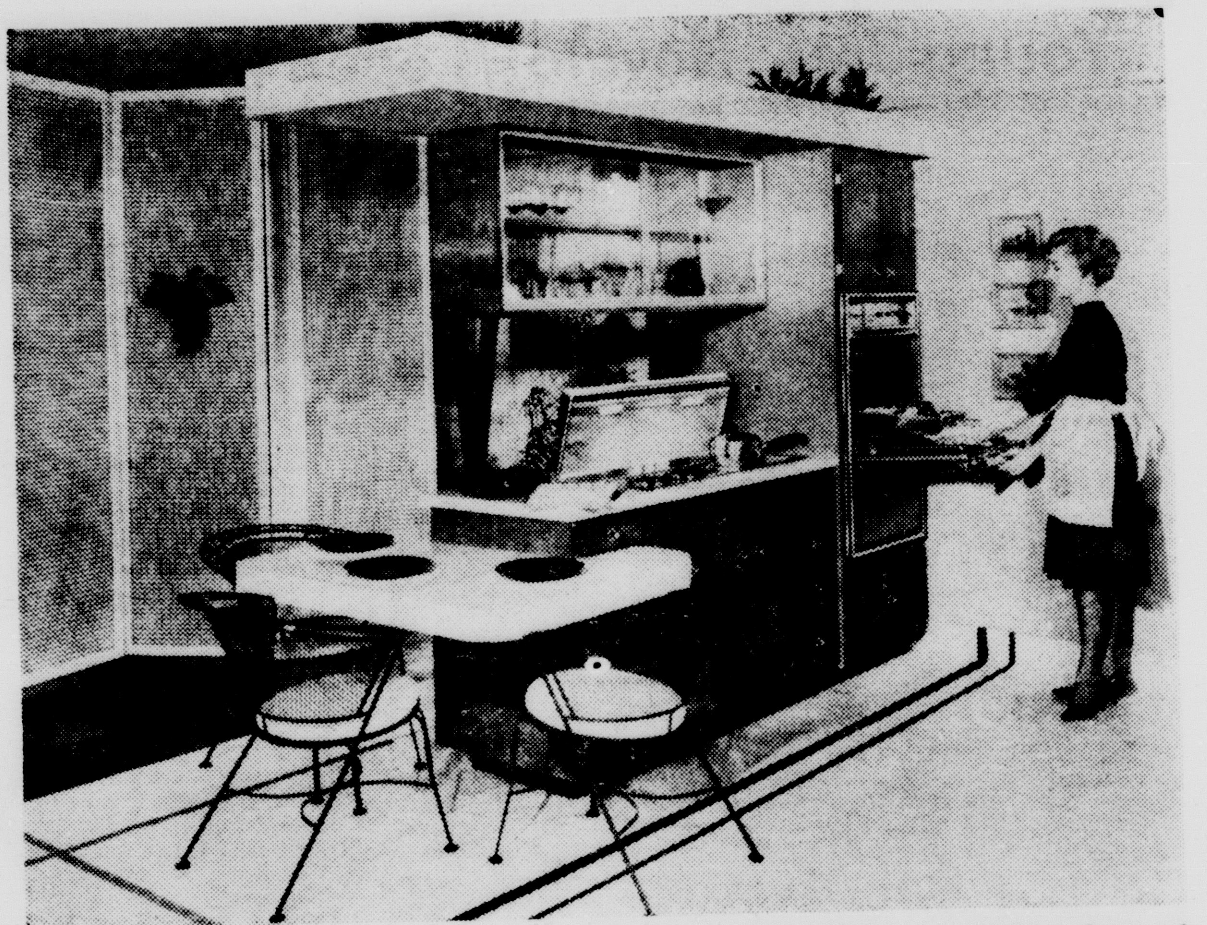
Decorative see-through panels can be purchased in Mediterranean, traditional, provincial, early American, and contemporary designs, and in such finishes as antique black, wood tones, white, and gold.

ONE GROUP of divider systems includes Seville, Classique, Teardrop, and Woven Reed panels which may be used with tapered or Corinthian fluted tension poles.

These may be used to create a reception area, separating the front door from the living room, or to set off a dining area. A pole lamp in this divider system is ideal for creating a secluded reading corner.

Adjustable trays on tension poles are also among these components, which may be combined to create dividers of any desired length.

Fine solid walnut in a rectangular perforation pattern is utilized in a new divider available in 24″ and 36″ sections. Black or pot aluminum frames and tension poles support the unit.



A DESIGN break-through in kitchen planning, this air conditioned range by Jenn-Air allows total freedom of placement, eliminating the need for a hood over the range. It is featured at Rafael Appliances of San Rafael. The glass sliding doors of the cupboard will not become greasy because fumes and grease are drawn away from the front heating elements through a slot in the raised lid of the range. The oven has a similar feature.

Exotic New Colors Add Spice

Life today is exciting. And it is, literally, colorful, too . . . because home furnishings manufacturers are turning out all types of home needs in a rainbow variety of colors.

BEST OF all, since they are related in their rich depth, the myriad new hues can be used in handsome, combinations to create true decorative distinction for each home. No more mass production "show window" sameness!

Color is taking over from the bottom up, too, with wall-to-wall carpeting and area rugs alike running the palette from most-popular golds and greens through blues, and up to vivid, glowing red. One manufacturer is exploring "the electric power of potent pastels," such as olivene, turquoise, azalea, and Persian yellow.

Equally broad is the color range in furniture itself. Upholstery coverings are offered in all thep rimary hues, generally in warm, mellow tones—with continual emphasis here, also, on greens and golds, and some blues. Brilliant prints are widely available—even including velvets in stripes and all-over florals.

WOOD, TOO, is reflecting today's trend toward color. All of the newest wood furniture groupings are offered in a wide selection of colored finishes.

One new line of tables, armoires, commodes, and other wood pieces is available in ten standard colors, as well as such to-order finishes as Palos Verde (green glaze), Tiffany (silver glaze), Antique White (white glaze), Old World Glaze (yellow-gold glaze).

Sparkling gold finishes are offered in a new bedroom collection in the Mediterranean mood, "Palatine".

GREEN AND gold tones, ranging from olive and avocado to turquoise, are leading the lamp color list, with one firm introducing a 9-light electrified wall sconce in a hand-rubbed antique gold finish with crystals. A collection of wrought iron light fixtures in the Spanish mood is shown in black, white, verde, and other antique colored finishes.

Your Bed Can Help, Hinder Your Sleep

Is your bed living up to your need for a good night's sleep?

With the numerous sizes, types of construction and other choices available, the process of choosing is often confusing.

For example, the fact that Americans are growing taller generation by generation has brought about a big boom in super size bedding. Extra length or extra width or both puts a mattress into the super size category. But many persons do no know which size to choose or which sizes are available.

Here are some examples: 39 inches is standard width for a twin or single bed; 54 inches is standard width for a double bed. Because each sleeper in a standard double bed has only 27 inches to call his own, it is no wonder extra widths are so popular.

'Square Look' Is Part Of New Trend To Simplicity

With more and more emphasis being concentrated on color and texture in home decorating today, some furniture designers are moving, quite logically, in the opposite direction. The new pieces that are causing most comment are those that stress elegant simplicity.

"CONTRAST is regarded as the key to smart, livable decor," according to Henry O. Radloff, dining furniture division sales manager of a Chicago firm.

"Therefore, as drapery fabrics and floor coverings become more elaborate in pattern and color, we can expect to see more purely geometric design in furniture to provide the necessary contrast," he predicted.

A forerunner of this trend seems to be the "square look." Already established in high-priced occasional tables and upholstered pieces, it has now been adapted to metal dining furniture for the coming season.

One company, for example, has introduced square-look styling in new tables and chairs that also sport bucket seats obviously inspired by the expensive sports car. Table legs and chair frames are finished in a choice of sparkling chromes, bronze tone or white, depending on the type of room setting the homemaker has in mind.

Styling details include arrow-straight table legs of square metal tubing; gracefully curved aprons outlined in metal; and convex rectangular extension tops, smoothly surfaced with melamine laminate to combine modern elegance with practicality.

Your Bed Can Help, Hinder Your Sleep

Is your bed living up to your need for a good night's sleep?

With the numerous sizes, types of construction and other choices available, the process of choosing is often confusing.

For example, the fact that Americans are growing taller generation by generation has brought about a big boom in super size bedding. Extra length or extra width or both puts a mattress into the super size category. But many persons do no know which size to choose or which sizes are available.

Here are some examples: 39 inches is standard width for a twin or single bed; 54 inches is standard width for a double bed. Because each sleeper in a standard double bed has only 27 inches to call his own, it is no wonder extra widths are so popular.

'Square Look' Is Part Of New Trend To Simplicity

With more and more emphasis being concentrated on color and texture in home decorating today, some furniture designers are moving, quite logically, in the opposite direction. The new pieces that are causing most comment are those that stress elegant simplicity.

"CONTRAST is regarded as the key to smart, livable decor," according to Henry O. Radloff, dining furniture division sales manager of a Chicago firm.

"Therefore, as drapery fabrics and floor coverings become more elaborate in pattern and color, we can expect to see more purely geometric design in furniture to provide the necessary contrast," he predicted.

A forerunner of this trend seems to be the "square look." Already established in high-priced occasional tables and upholstered pieces, it has now been adapted to metal dining furniture for the coming season.

One company, for example, has introduced square-look styling in new tables and chairs that also sport bucket seats obviously inspired by the expensive sports car. Table legs and chair frames are finished in a choice of sparkling chromes, bronze tone or white, depending on the type of room setting the homemaker has in mind.

Styling details include arrow-straight table legs of square metal tubing; gracefully curved aprons outlined in metal; and convex rectangular extension tops, smoothly surfaced with melamine laminate to combine modern elegance with practicality.

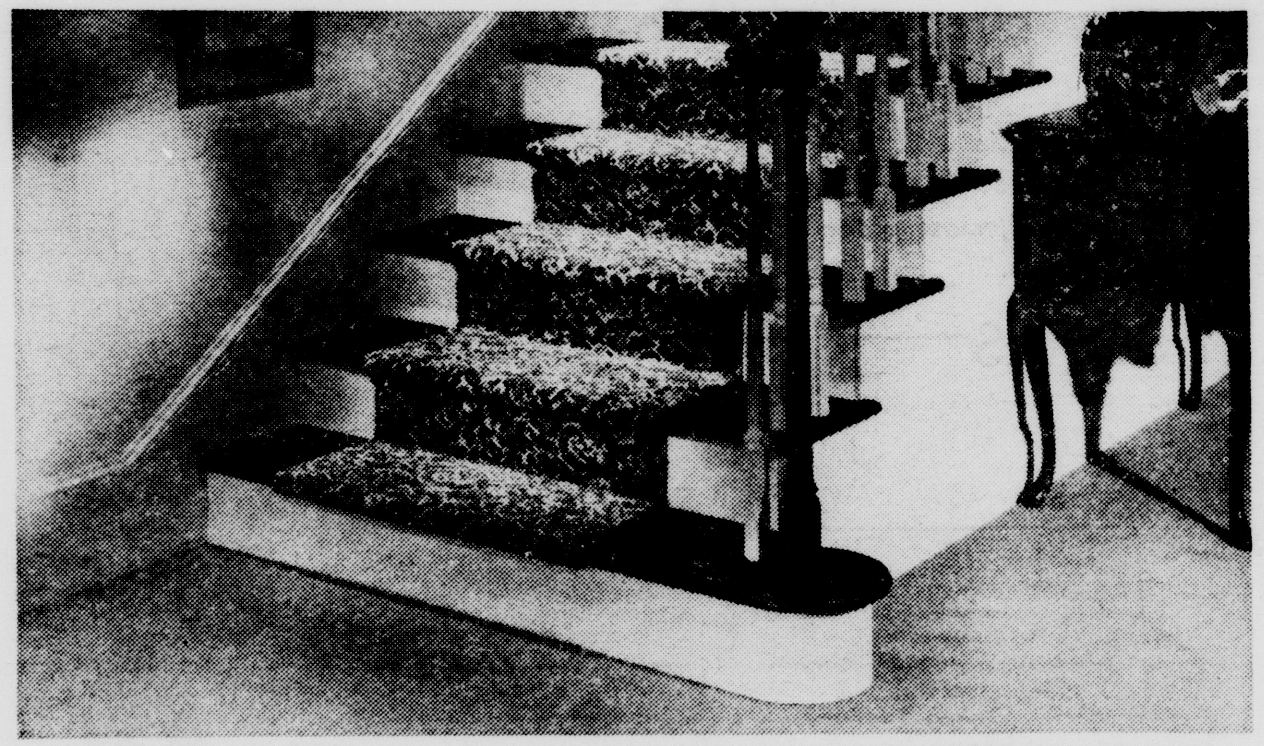
BIG news in fall carpet trends is the idea of contrasting a brightly-patterned carpet or rug with another, nearby carpet of a solid color. First rule is that the solid color bring out one of the hues in the pattern. The combination, designers say, heightens design interest and makes a color scheme workable. In this bedroom-sitting room, furnished with a Victorian air, a large classic floral design is combined wtih a solid-color looped-pile carpet.



TEAM a patterned stairway with a solid-color carpet in the foyer and hallway, emphasizing one of the hues in the patterned carpet. Stairway carpeting can be used in "runner" form, as is shown here, or it can be fitted and installed in a completely covered look, as shown elsewhere on this page. Either way, say carpet makers, it absorbs the clatter of footsteps while it is adding comfort and reducing the chances that anyone will tumble down the stairs.

SEPARATE conversation and entertaining areas are established in a split-level living room with wall-to-wall carpeting as the unifying factor. The style chosen underscores the mood of comfort and hospitality: a multi-level looped pile, highlighted by a mixture of related colors. The carpet, however, is more than decorative. It plays a major role in quieting noise and provides comfort underfoot for family and guests.

Carpets Are Getting Shaggy

Carpet designers have a shaggy texture story to tell for fall, 1965.

IT'S JUST one in a repertoire, all highlighting the importance of texture in forward-looking carpet and rug styles for today's homes.

Texture makes a unique contribution to any room, providing appeal that can be both seen and felt. The pile surface of a carpet or rug is its distinguishing feature, adding comfort underfoot and a decorative note at the same time.

Current carpets and rugs make the most of texture, ranging from the shaggy, tousled look to trim, tight-looped styles, from the plush, deep velvety appearance to the handcrafted appearance of multi-level loops.

Here are just a few of the variations you'll see on the texture theme:

SHAGGY CARPETS and rugs are having a heyday. There are further variations in this group, including those with long, plushy straight yarns; a "tousled" style cropped a bit closer; shaggy carpets and rugs with a twist, or crimped yarns with a nubby feel.

These shaggy styles lend themselves beautifully to use in rug form, as well as for wall-to-wall use. The texture itself often invites the use of frings, and the depth of the texture highlights solid colors or adds a wonderful richness to multi-color combinations.

Texture makes an impact on color in other ways, too. Equally important in new carpet and rug styles are multi-level textures, whether composed entirely of looped pile or a combination of cut-and-looped yarns.

A POPULAR version of this styling is the random-sheared carpet. This style is achieved by constructing the carpet with some loops left purposely higher than others, then shearing them off in a random pattern.

The result is a carpet with a "plushier" look than all-looped pile—and again, the texture heightens color interest. A solid color may have a tone-on-tone effect, since light is reflected in different ways from cut pile and looped pile.

A "classic" carpet texture is, of course, the deep, plush velvet with a straight-yarn, cut-pile surface. Even this comparatively "plain" texture, however, lends a new richness to solid colors because of its depth.

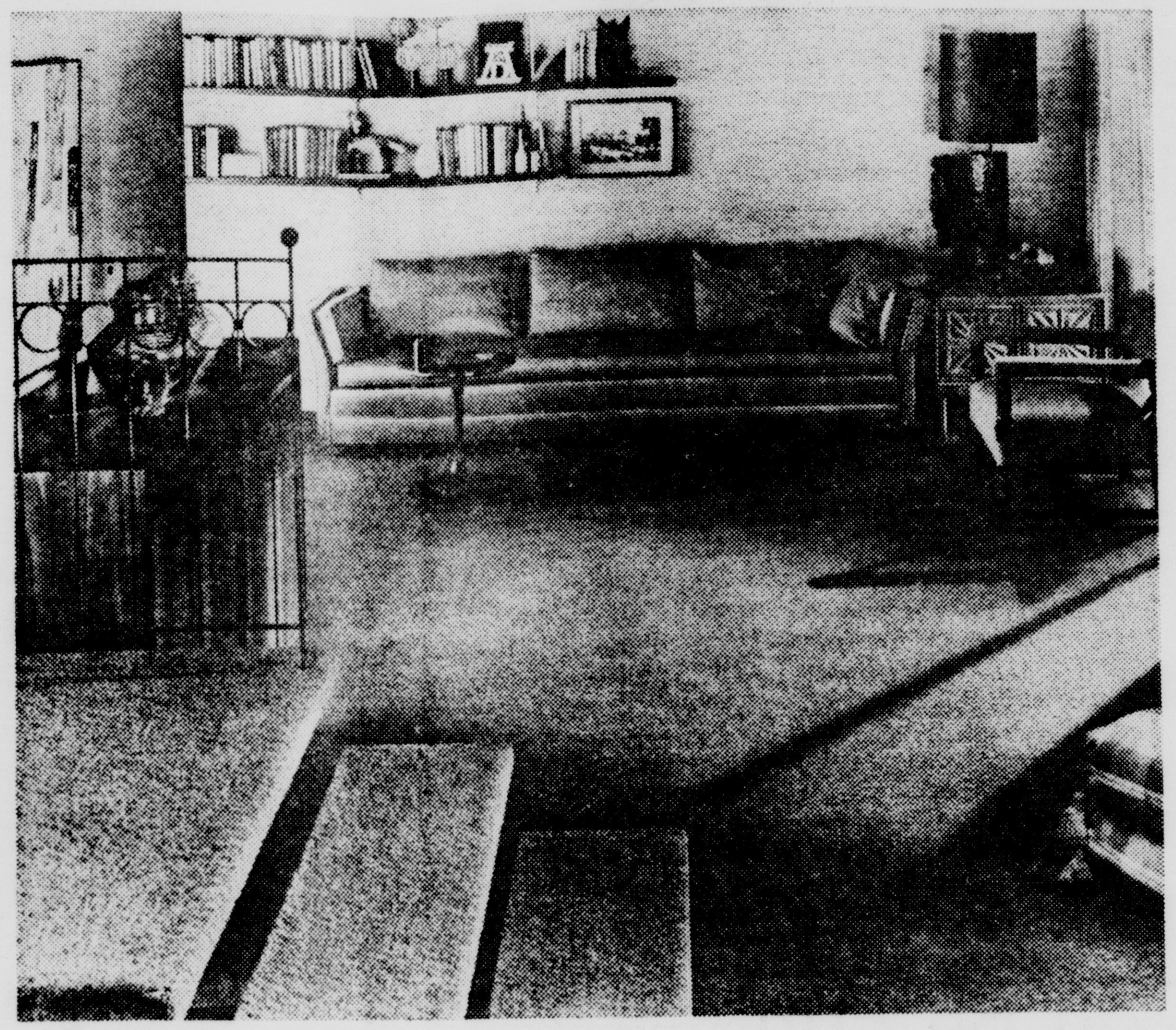
WITH SO many texture styles now available, which should you choose?

Consider the decorative factor. Texture helps to establish the "mood" of a room, and a carpet should underscore the style you prefer. Luxurious plush textures or texture designs such as scrolls or curves may immediately suggest traditional styling. Tight trim loops may suggest more functional furnishings; shaggy textures underscore informal decor or complement the sleek lines of contemporary furnishings.

There are no hard-and-fast rules to follow in selecting texture, but in a general way texture combines with color to suggest a carpet style that is formal or informal, traditional or contemporary.

TEXTURE HAS a practical side, too. Soft, plush textures are at their best in rooms not subject to hard, daily use; tight loops, tight twists or texture patterns combining cut and looped pile help to disguise signs of use between cleanings in the most functional areas of the home.

AND, AS IS true of any carpet, "the deeper, the denser, the better." Regardless of style, the carpet of greatest density wears better. In a dense texture, closely-packed surface yarns help to support each other and resist blending and abrasion —resulting in longer wear and better appearance-retention.



CONTEMPORARY free-standing steps are here "wrapped" with a wool, twist-textured carpet to provide the right emphasis for an inviting living room. This, carpetmakers point out, is just one example of many ways in which stairs may be carpeted and coordinated with carpet in adjoining areas. Putting a carpet on the stairs not only is fashionable, but it makes for greater safety and greatly reduces noise.

Rugs Work Magic By Helping Fool The Eye

No one has yet come up with a magic carpet—not since the days of the Arabian Nights, at least—but modern carpets can work a little magic.

In these days of op art, carpets and rugs can help "fool the eye" if used properly.

CONSIDER, for example, the problem of the room that's too long and narrow. Magic wands aren't readily available, but decorative devices are. Furniture placement can help in adding width to this problem area; a wall treatment with a different color can help eliminate the "hallway" look. And carpeting with a pattern or texture which runs horizontally can help push the walls out and make the room look like a different place.

Or there's the room which is too dark, perhaps because it has few windows or is on the dark side of the house. Rebuilding is one solution—but too expensive is most cases. So light colors in furnishings and better artificial light work the magic.

CARPET in this case should be a light color—and if this seems impractical because of constant, daily use, look at new styles which are easy to clean. Even in a heavy-traffic area, tweeds and color blends in light hues help to disguise soil between cleanings.

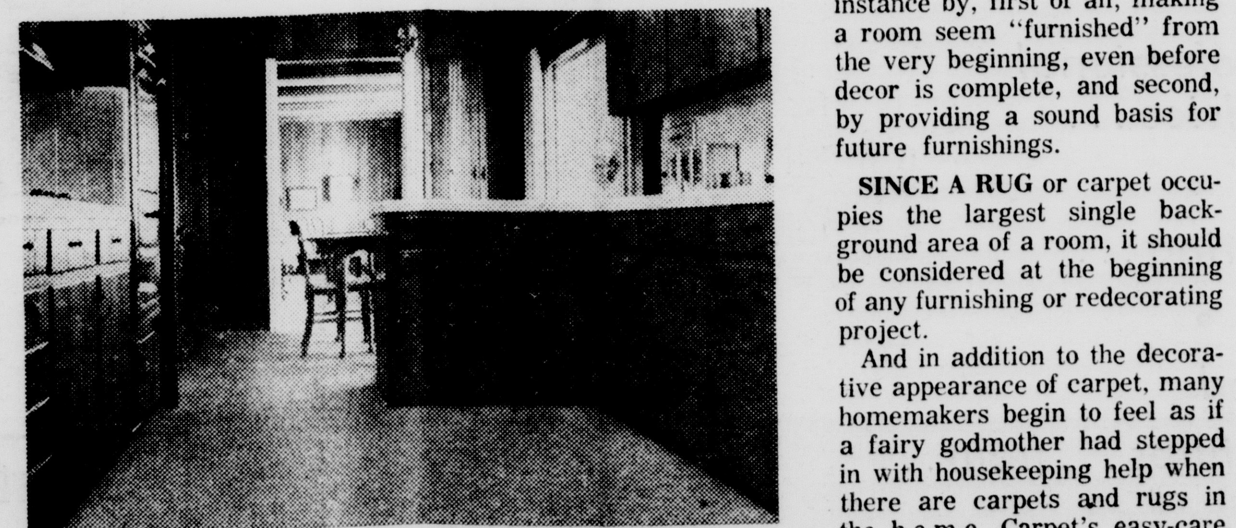
Carpet in adjoining rooms or areas can often be combined in a way that works wonders. Related colors can be used in adjacent rooms, or rugs and carpets in the same color and texture can be effectively combined.

What about the home which is being decorated step by step? That's often the case these days, and a budget-minded homemaker wants to be sure that the process will be sure even if slow.

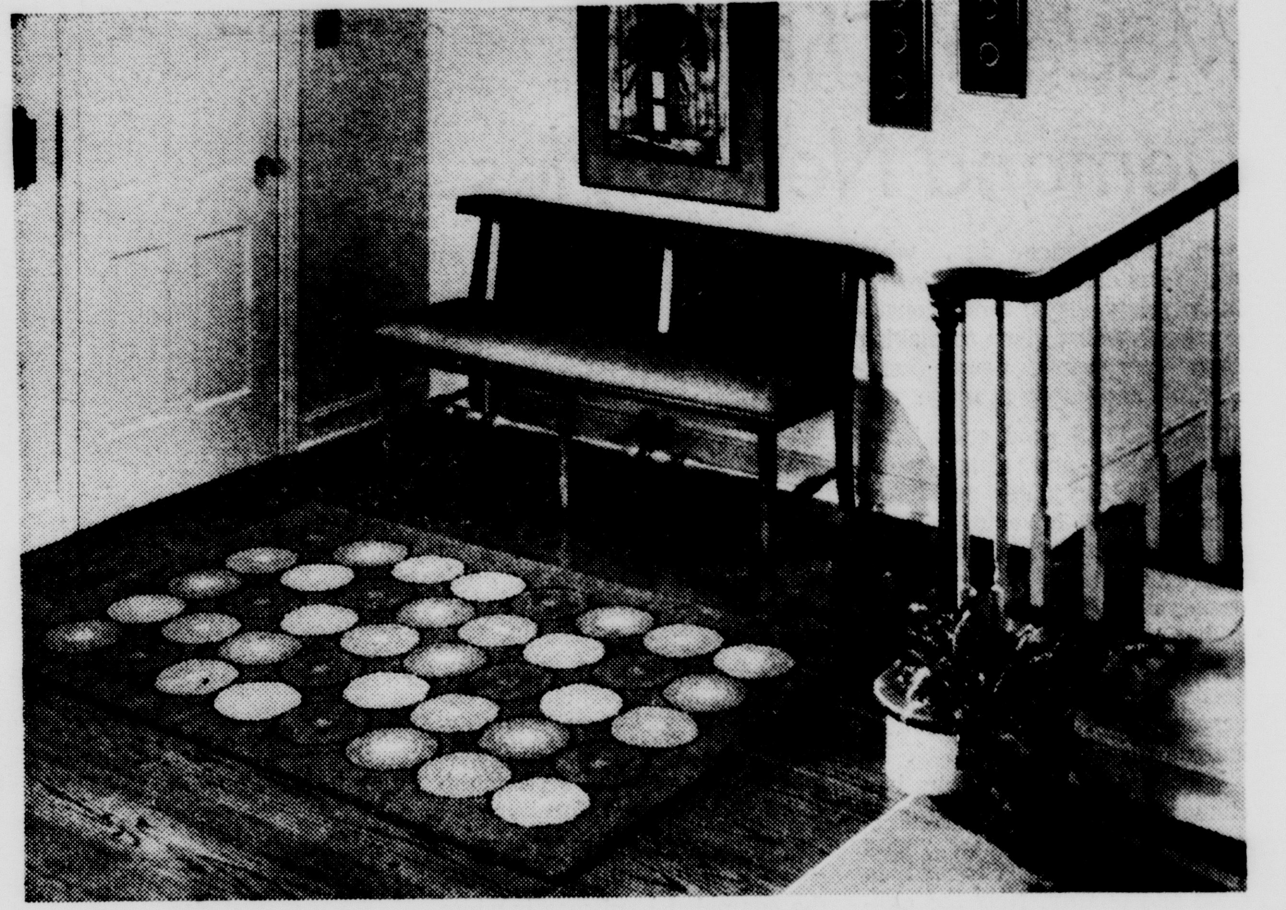
It's another job for the magic of carpet. Carpeting helps in this instance by, first of all, making a room seem "furnished" from the very beginning, even before decor is complete, and second, by providing a sound basis for future furnishings.

SINCE A RUG or carpet occupies the largest single background area of a room, it should be considered at the beginning of any furnishing or redecorating project.

And in addition to the decorative appearance of carpet, many homemakers begin to feel as if a fairy godmother had stepped in with housekeeping help when there are carpets and rugs in the home. Carpet's easy-care features—its ability to give a room a "picked-up" look without constant attention — truly accomplish a little magic in today's busy households.

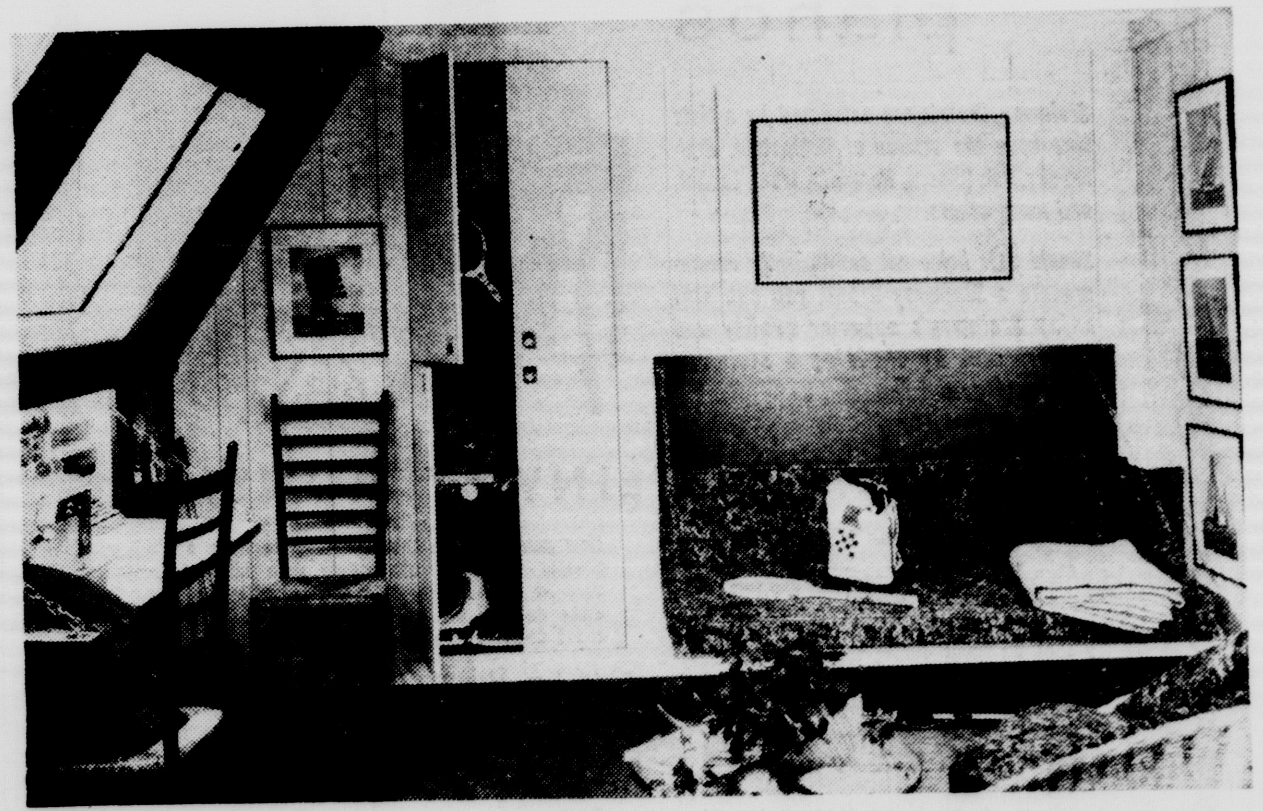


QUIETER, safer and, say carpet manufacturers, much more pleasant is the kitchen which has a carpet. This sturdy, loop-textured acrylic carpet not only does these things for the kitchen, but extends through into a dining alcove and family room.



EXCITEMENT came into this entry hall when a striking patterned rug was put on the floor. Its design was inspired by colored glass discs. One of the bright hues from the rug is emphasized in solid-color carpeting used on the stairway and in an adjoining hallway. The rug-carpet combination serves a further design purpose in defining the foyer area and establishing the color scheme.

PATTERNS on the floor might surprise some people, but new carpet designs for Fall, 1965, show combinations of color and texture which result in subtle patterns. The rug chosen for this living room has a multi-level looped texture and a russet-gold coloring, with darker yarns emphasizing the texture and giving a "quilted" effect. It is one example of interesting new patterns available at modest prices.



THERE IS space at the top of many a house just waiting to be converted into a warm, useable family room. This one has been designed to provide work and storage areas for the interests and hobbies of a family. Walls and storage areas of laminated plastic are easy to clean, need no painting. The acrylic fiber carpet is soil resistant and deep enough for floor sitters.

Modern Children Demand New Styles

In this space age, when youth has come into prominence in so many ways, more consideration is being given to making even very young people comfortable and happy at home, too.

WHAT WAS good enough for big brother and sister won't always do for junior and baby. And it doesn't have to.

Home furnishings manufacturers have taken a long look at tomorrow's adults and come up with a multitude of pieces designed especially to suit their needs and likes. So even the very young can be home-fashionable today.

While the style of diapers has changed little in the past several years, furniture for young children has moved ahead in style and quality. Now the children's room can look as smart as the rest of the house—even be coordinated with it, if you wish.

A FEW seasons ago, miniature maple pieces, just like Mom's early American groupings, were introduced by juvenile furniture manufacturers.

Now, the latest trend for children's room, as elsewhere in the house, is a painted finish, with the accent on white and gilt. Not only is baby's crib white, with gold accents, but so is dolly's bed, a child's rocker, or a traditional table and chair set for children.

White—wipe-offable and nondelicate—is also a strong favorite in a high style contemporary line. Smaller versions of handsome, practical grown-up pieces, these are light, strong, and easy to clean (impervious to stains).

THEY ARE constructed of such child-indestructible materials as cast aluminum, Formica, fused plastics, and vinyl-covered plastic foams.

Accenting the white in this line of simple, classic modern shapes is a selection of clear tones of red, mustard, green, and blue.

Other colors are available for the youngster's rooms, too. Especially for girls, one manufacturer has added "sweetheart-pink" to its colonial style budget-priced bedroom furniture.

SNOWY WHITE IS used here as an accent with the pink, and the enameled hardware is white also. Decorative interest is enhanced by a dainty floral trim on beds and case pieces.

Even little girls spill things sometimes, though!

So all case tops are surfaced with color-matched laminated plastic for easy maintenance and protection against scars and stains.

And there is encouragement to keep dresser drawers neat when they are finished, as these are, with quaint reproductions of early 19th century newspapers (which can be wiped clean with a damp cloth).

BEST OF ALL, and dear to the heart of almost any little girl, a ruffle-topped tester bed in twin or full size is available in this group.

FUTURE living rooms will surely include television consoles featuring a built-in video tape recorder, which may be used to record a family's favorite programs for later showing, or can even tape scenes in the home using a small video camera. The Ampex unit shown here is already a reality. It is available from Catania Sound, San Rafael.

Laundry Room Can Be Fun

A party in the laundry room?

IT'S NOT as eccentric as it sounds.

Often, the only practical solution to a family space-squeeze is to "double-up" on room functions, with one room serving two distinctly different purposes. Interior designers point out, for example, how a functional basement laundry can be efficiently combined with an attractive recreation room.

"Convenience is the principal advantage of this laundry," according to Margaret Gordon Dana of one firm's bureau of interior design.

The entire cleaning operation —clothes hamper, washer, dryer, sink, and ironing board—is concentrated into one corner. Shelves above the appliances hold detergent, bleach, and other necessary items within easy reach.

MENDING can be done with a portable sewing machine placed on the center table. A fold-out cutting table provides sufficient space for laying out patterns.

Changing the laundry into a party room is simple. The cutting table knocks down and folds against the wall. Colorful red, white, and blue panels slide in front of the appliances. The ironing board slides under the counter, the clothes hamper tilts back into place, the sewing machine goes up on a shelf, place mats are set on the table, a swirling plastic decoration is wound around the lolly column, and presto—it's party time!

Thanks to careful planning, this room is just as practical for parties as it is convenient in its laundry role, Mrs. Dana said. The built-in refrigerator holds enough food for full course dinners or simple midnight snacks.

THE MOBILE oven-range can be rolled out from under the counter to any part of the room. If charcoal broiled steaks are on the menu, the waist high fireplace doubles as a barbecue.

pianos

Steinway Grands are esteemed by artists who have the stature of Rubinstein, Brailowsky, Van Cliburn, Horowitz, Liszt, Levant, and many others.

Should your home not conveniently accommodate a Steinway Grand, you can still enjoy Steinway's superior quality and performance by choosing a Steinway Console piano.

OCTOBER IS STEINWAY MONTH

During October Sherman Clay celebrates having been Steinway's exclusive representative in this area for over 75 years. Orders have been placed for Steinways far in advance to ensure having a wide selection of these pianos on hand during this celebration.

Now you can see, test, and choose from a greater collection of models than usually seen at one time, and be assured of immediate delivery on most, or no more than a short delay.

Here he works on a table base for the Estada line of Spanish furniture originated by Franz and sold in his San Anselmo shop.

Fireplaces Changing

Like the old gray mare of the familiar song, the open fireplace in many of today's homes "ain't what it used to be."

FOR EXAMPLE, the traditional mantel has nearly disappeared from all but the most formal of homes. And so, as a result, have the candlesticks, vases, standing clocks and figurines that were once standard fare for the wel-dressed mantel.

Because fireplace design has undergone so many changes of late, many homemakers are at a loss when it comes to decorating the hearth area, according to Mary Ann Wills, interior designer and consultant to the makers of one line of wall accessories.

There are no hard-and-fast rules to follow in selecting texture, but in a general way texture combines with color to suggest a carpet style that is formal or informal, traditional or contemporary.

TEXTURE HAS a practical side, too. Soft, plush textures are at their best in rooms not subject to hard, daily use; tight loops, tight twists or texture patterns combining cut and looped pile help to disguise signs of use between cleanings in the most functional areas of the home.

AND, AS IS true of any carpet, "the deeper, the denser, the better." Regardless of style, the carpet of greatest density wears better. In a dense texture, closely-packed surface yarns help to support each other and resist blending and abrasion —resulting in longer wear and better appearance-retention.

Carpet in adjoining rooms or areas can often be combined in a way that works wonders. Related colors can be used in adjacent rooms, or rugs and carpets in the same color and texture can be effectively combined.

say carpet manufacturers, much kitchen which has a carpet. This acrylic carpet not only does these but extends through into a dining om.

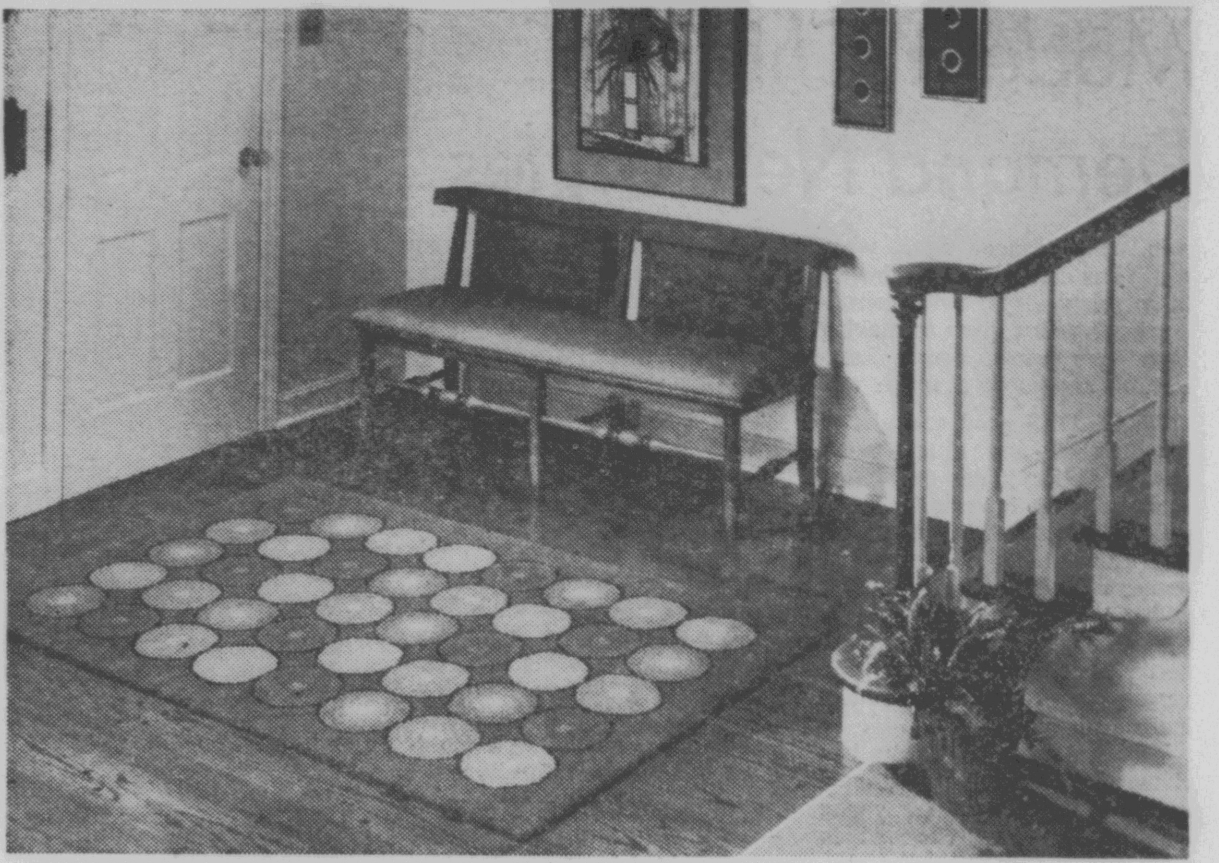
What about the home which is being decorated step by step? That's often the case these days, and a budget-minded homemaker wants to be sure that the process will be sure even if slow.

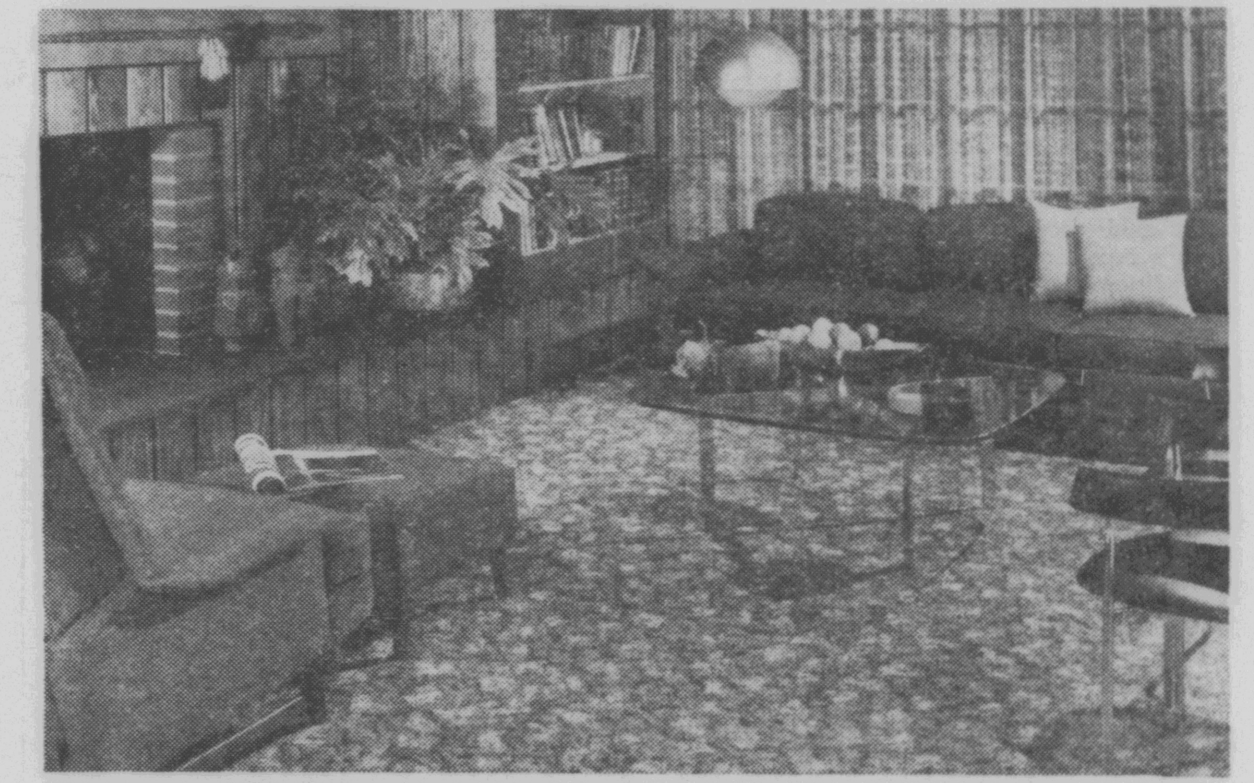
It's another job for the magic of carpet. Carpeting helps in this instance by, first of all, making a room seem "furnished" from the very beginning, even before decor is complete, and second, by providing a sound basis for future furnishings.

SINCE A RUG or carpet occupies the largest single background area of a room, it should be considered at the beginning of any furnishing or redecorating project.

And in addition to the decorative appearance of carpet, many homemakers begin to feel as if a fairy godmother had stepped in with housekeeping help when there are carpets and rugs in the home. Carpet's easy-care features—its ability to give a room a "picked-up" look without constant attention — truly accomplish a little magic in today's busy households.



EXCITEMENT came into this entry hall when a striking patterned rug was put on the floor. Its design was inspired by colored glass discs. One of the bright hues from the rug is emphasized in solid-color carpeting used on the stairway and in an adjoining hallway. The rug-carpet combination serves a further design purpose in defining the foyer area and establishing the color scheme.

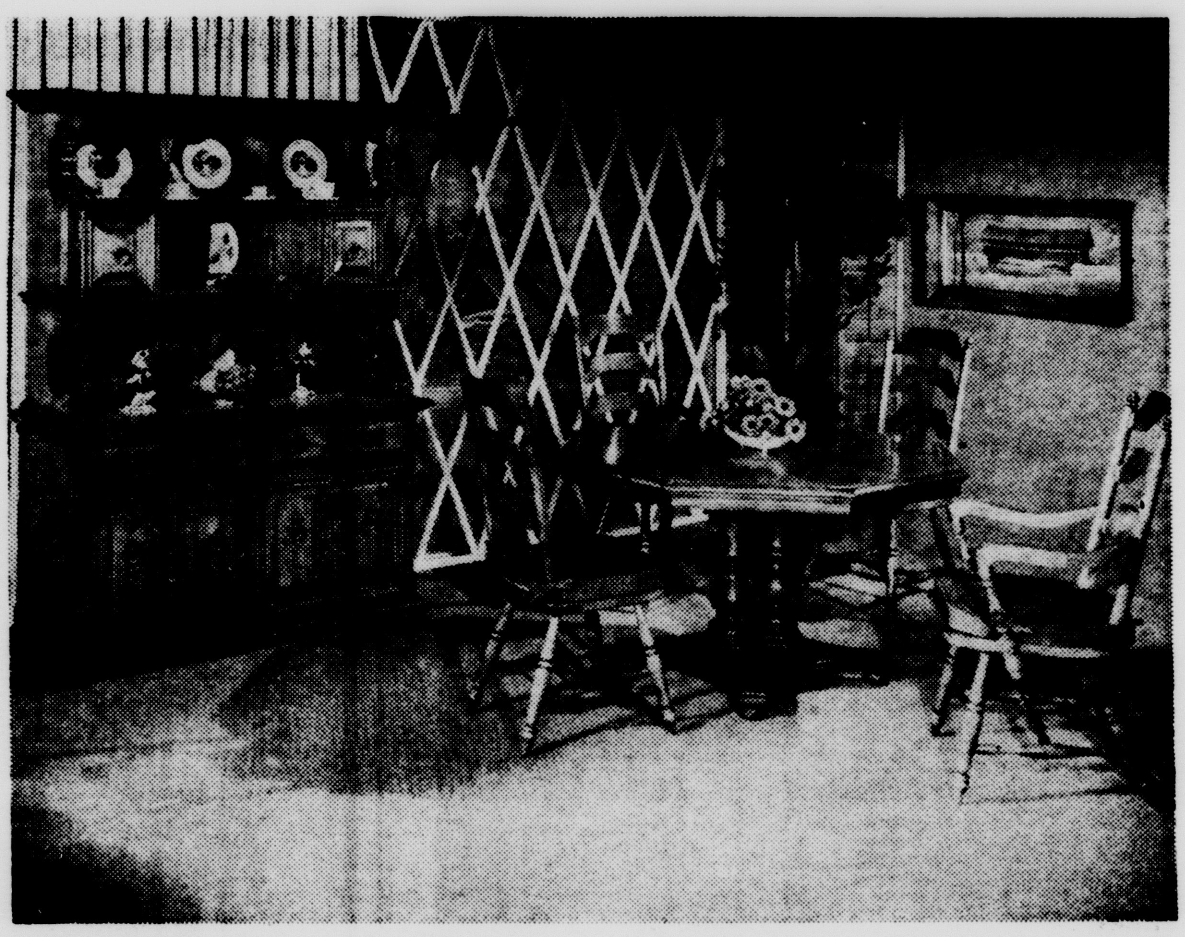


PATTERNS on the floor might surprise some people, but new carpet designs for Fall, 1965, show combinations of color and texture which result in subtle patterns. The rug chosen for this living room has a multi-level looped texture and a russet-gold coloring, with darker yarns emphasizing the texture and giving a "quilted" effect. It is one example of interesting new patterns available at modest prices.

THERE IS space at the top of many a house just waiting to be converted into a warm, useable family room. This one has been designed to provide work and storage areas for the interests and hobbies of a family. Walls and storage areas of laminated plastic are easy to clean, need no painting. The acrylic fiber carpet is soil resistant and deep enough for floor sitters.

Beauty Playing A Bigger Role

Better Construction Frees Buyers To Think Of Looks



THE COLONIAL styling of this dining room suite features solid hard eastern birch and is on display at Johnson's Red Barn, Novato. The 48-inch octagonal table extends to a full 96 inches. The hutch cupboard has felt-lined silver compartments and linen drawer.

The last decade has witnessed a new trend in furniture buying habits. As with fashions, style and design, not durability, are now the determining factors in the selection of furniture.

THE REASON for the emphasis being placed on esthetic preference and design lines, according to leading manufacturers, is partly due to the fact that shoppers today take certain structural factors for granted.

In the thirties, a consumer first wanted to know whether the joints of furniture would hold, if the veneers would remain glued and not warp or peel, if the finishes would stand up to demands of time and wear. Today's homemaker is confident that she can expect a high degree of performance and quality from most reputable brands sold through reliable local outlets.

In most cases—regardless of price—design, finish and utility today are the three main factors that influence the purchase of furniture. This new buying attitude has evolved since the furniture industry has, in the past few decades, made great strides in revolutionizing production.

THANKS TO technical improvements in machinery and equipment, development of new glues and finishing materials, and advanced engineering, packing and shipping methods, the public is getting more value in furniture than before.

Veneered furniture, taboo in the thirties, is highly popular today due to the use of improved glues which have virtually eliminated separating. In fact, the use of wood veneers has expanded the range of furniture design since they are available in a wider variety from all over the world than are solid woods.

Another giant step made by the industry is the development of plastic laminates that are virtually indistinguishable from real wood. Offering the best of two worlds, protection and beauty, these wood-grained laminates are particularly popular and practical for occasional and party table tops.

Highly improved machinery and methods also have resulted in a new excellence of intricate carvings in traditional furniture styles. Although most of these carvings are hand done, the use of new techniques has put furniture of this style within reach of the medium income group.

ANOTHER IMPORTANT selling feature which adds distinction and character to furniture is the finish. It is second in importance to style in the selection of furniture, and there are numerous types offered, including opaque, translucent, painted, pigmented, distressed and brushed finishes.

Hand-padding, the actual application of pigment by hand, and distressing, the intentional marking of wood to simulate an antique look, contribute greatly to the character, interest and quality of the furniture.

The trend towards fashion as the basic motivating factor in selection of furniture, in contrast to other factors which dominated consumer purchasing not too many years ago, is also attributable to the fact that consumers today are much more fashion - conscious and knowledgeable than they were as recently as the fifties.

This trend to fashion and style, whether it be in apparel or home furnishings, is expected to continue to grow in importance in the years ahead.

Hold Their Color

Because of hardy dyes, American carpets do not fade easily. Give them the normal protection from direct sunlight you would give any colored fabric, and you'l find that they hold their color well. In most cases, what seems to be "fading" is just a film of atmospheric soil which dulls colors. Thorough cleaning will quickly correct the situation.

Modern Children Demand New Styles

In this space age, when youth has come into prominence in so many ways, more consideration is being given to making even very young people comfortable and happy at home, too.

WHAT WAS good enough for big brother and sister won't always do for junior and baby. And it doesn't have to.

Home furnishings manufacturers have taken a long look at tomorrow's adults and come up with a multitude of pieces designed especially to suit their needs and likes. So even the very young can be home-fashionable today.

While the style of diapers has changed little in the past several years, furniture for young children has moved ahead in style and quality. Now the children's room can look as smart as the rest of the house—even be coordinated with it, if you wish.

A FEW seasons ago, miniature maple pieces, just like Mom's early American groupings, were introduced by juvenile furniture manufacturers.

Now, the latest trend for children's room, as elsewhere in the house, is a painted finish, with the accent on white and gilt. Not only is baby's crib white, with gold accents, but so is dolly's bed, a child's rocker, or a traditional table and chair set for children.

White—wipe-offable and non-delicate—is also a strong favorite in a high style contemporary line. Smaller versions of handsome, practical grown-up pieces, these are light, strong, and easy to clean (impervious to stains).

THEY ARE constructed of such child-indestructible materials as cast aluminum, Formica, fused plastics, and vinyl-covered plastic foams.

Accenting the white in this line of simple, classic modern shapes is a selection of clear tones of red, mustard, green, and blue.

Other colors are available for the youngster's rooms, too. Especially for girls, one manufacturer has added "sweetheart-pink" to its colonial style budget-priced bedroom furniture.

SNOWY WHITE IS used here as an accent with the pink, and the enameled hardware is white also. Decorative interest is enhanced by a dainty floral trim on beds and case pieces.

Even little girls spill things sometimes, though!

So all case tops are surfaced with color-matched laminated plastic for easy maintenance and protection against scars and stains.

And there is encouragement to keep dresser drawers neat when they are finished, as these are, with quaint reproductions of early 19th century newspapers (which can be wiped clean with a damp cloth).

BEST OF ALL, and dear to the heart of almost any little girl, a ruffle-topped tester bed in twin or full size is available in this group.

FUTURE living rooms will surely include television consoles featuring a built-in video tape recorder, which may be used to record a family's favorite programs for later showing, or can even tape scenes in the home using a small video camera. The Ampex unit shown here is already a reality. It is available from Catania Sound, San Rafael.

Laundry Room Can Be Fun

A party in the laundry room?

IT'S NOT as eccentric as it sounds.

Often, the only practical solution to a family space-squeeze is to "double-up" on room functions, with one room serving two distinctly different purposes. Interior designers point out, for example, how a functional basement laundry can be efficiently combined with an attractive recreation room.

"Convenience is the principal advantage of this laundry," according to Margaret Gordon Dana of one firm's bureau of interior design.

The entire cleaning operation—clothes hamper, washer, dryer, sink, and ironing board—is concentrated into one corner. Shelves above the appliances hold detergent, bleach, and other necessary items within easy reach.

MENDING can be done with a portable sewing machine placed on the center table. A fold-out cutting table provides sufficient space for laying out patterns.

Changing the laundry into a party room is simple. The cutting table knocks down and folds against the wall. Colorful red, white, and blue panels slide in front of the appliances. The ironing board slides under the counter, the clothes hamper tilts back into place, the sewing machine goes up on a shelf, place mats are set on the table, a swirling plastic decoration is wound around the lolly column, and presto—it's party time!

Thanks to careful planning, this room is just as practical for parties as it is convenient in its laundry role, Mrs. Dana said. The built-in refrigerator holds enough food for full course dinners or simple midnight snacks.

THE MOBILE oven-range can be rolled out from under the counter to any part of the room. If charcoal broiled steaks are on the menu, the waist high fireplace doubles as a barbecue.

STEINWAY
pianos

Steinway Grands are esteemed by artists who have the stature of Rubinstein, Brailowsky, Van Cliburn, Horowitz, Liszt, Levant, and many others.

Should your home not conveniently accommodate a Steinway Grand, you can still enjoy Steinway's superior quality and performance by choosing a Steinway Console piano.

OCTOBER IS STEINWAY MONTH

During October Sherman Clay celebrates having been Steinway's exclusive representative in this area for over 75 years. Orders have been placed for Steinways far in advance to ensure having a wide selection of these pianos on hand during this celebration.

Now you can see, test, and choose from a greater collection of models than usually seen at one time, and be assured of immediate delivery on most, or no more than a short delay.

Steinway prices start at $1550

Outdoor Furniture Can Last Long Time If Properly Made

Outdoor furniture takes a real beating from sun, rain, wind, dew and water splashes at poolside.

If it's constructed well and with materials that can take this punishment, it can provide comfort, good looks and easy maintenance for 10 years and longer.

THREE OF THE most important criteria are weather-resistance, quick usability after a soaking and stability combined with portability, said Jack Wallace, designer for Lee L. Woodard Sons, Owosso, Mich., manufacturer of wrought iron furniture.

"The first requirement of outdoor furniture is that it be water - resistant, especially to moisture," he said.

This means that metal surfaces must be protected against rust, preferably by the use of shot blasting, metallic zinc, undercoats, and several coats of baked enamel."

With this kind of finish, wrought iron can be guaranteed to resist rust and corrosion for 10 years, even in coastal areas where corrosive salt air is a problem, Wallace said. There's no need to repaint every two or three years.

NON-METAL materials on the furniture also should be weather resistant. Seats and back wrapping made of heavy plastic to simulate woven rush are especially good since moisture can't affect them.

"Nowadays you can even get upholstered cushions that resist the ravages of moisture," Wallace said. "Up to now, if you upholstered outdoor furniture, you had to bring the cushions inside at night and whenever it rained. But a new type of cushion construction called Drain-dri eliminates this nuisance."

Drain-dri cushions permit the water to pass right through. Because they "breathe," the cushions dry quickly inside and out, and resist mildew. Mud and dirt can be removed with a garden hose and by scrubbing with a detergent and water. You can sit on these cushions, wearing a wet bathing suit, and not damage them.

ANOTHER development in weather-resistant materials for outdoor furniture is the fiberglass table top made to resemble slate but without the combersome weight of real slate. One version of an outdoor dining table using this fiberglass material comes with an octagonal top large enough to seat eight people.

"A second requirement for good outdoor furniture is that it be usable as soon as possible after a rainstorm or splashing from a nearby pool," Wallace said.

For this reason, mesh top table and woven mesh chairs are recommended. Drain-dri cushions also are suitable since water passes right through and there is a minimum of surface to remain wet.

THESE MATERIALS also are comfortable to sit on and use even after they've been baking in the hot sun all day, because of the open construction that lets them breathe.

"Solid metal surfaces on tables and chairs, even if they have drain or weep holes, will usually need wiping to dry them before use, especially after a heavy dew," Wallace said. "And a hot sun makes them really uncomfortable."

If a glass top table is desired for outdoor use, Wallace recommends a top of translucent tempered safety glass. The translucent surface won't show the dew or water spots as readily as clear glass, and tempered glass supplies strength.

Stability combined with portability is a third requirement. Outdoor furniture should be heavy enough to withstand toppling by a strong wind, yet light enough to be easily moved on the patio or lawn.

Solution For Stains

Here's a simple cleaning solution to use for most foodstains on carpet: One teaspoonful of neutral detergent and one teaspoonful of white vinegar in a quart of warm water. After blotting up excess stain, gently wipe the carpet with a clean white cloth or sponge moistened in this solution. Then dry the spot, again by blotting, and brush carpet pile gently.

Fireplaces Changing

Like the old gray mare of the familiar song, the open fireplace in many of today's homes "ain't what it used to be."

FOR EXAMPLE, the traditional mantel has nearly disappeared from all but the most formal of homes. And so, as a result, have the candlesticks, vases, standing clocks and figurines that were once standard fare for the wel-dressed mantel.

Because fireplace design has undergone so many changes of late, many homemakers are at a loss when it comes to decorating the hearth area, according to Mary Ann Wills, interior designer and consultant to the makers of one line of wall accessories.

Parents Find Teeners Eager To Participate In Redecorating Plan

While the teen years are those in which young people begin to look beyond their families and homes for broader horizons, this is also the period when they make a closer, more critical study of those families and homes.

MANY PARENTS, therefore, find this an ideal time to redecorate, allowing the teen-age members of the family to participate.

Of special interest to the young people are their own rooms — which can provide their first taste of what it will be like to have homes of their own.

A teen-ager's room can offer an opportunity for creative decoration, a refuge against the world that doesn't (at the moment, anyway) understand, and an entertainment center — all needs of the busy, changeable moods and life of the average teener.

IN DECORATING his or her room, today's young person will find ample inspiration among the new home furnishings. Ideal for the sleep-sit use the teen room caters to are dual-purpose sleepers, which now don't show their duplicity.

A handsome example from one manufacturer is a collection featuring a bed and sofa which will seat three or four by day and sleep two by night.

Avaliable in a selection of striking print upholstery coverings, the piece is handsomely framed in exposed wood, with a simple, classic carved design for decorative interest.

ANOTHER upholstered piece which should find favor with teens is a "curl up" chair — tufted, barrel-backed, and half again as wide as a conventional chair.

Comfortable even for an adult, seated in normal position, this chair lends itself beautifully to the many conformations of the reading, studying, or telephoning teenager.

It can be had in a wide selection of upholstery fabrics, alive with color and textures for creative decorating.

FOR SERIOUS studying, another manufacturer has introduced a modular collection, to combine in any desired groupings. Chests, desks, and bookshelves are included, to stow the clutter and provide spacious, convenient work areas as well.

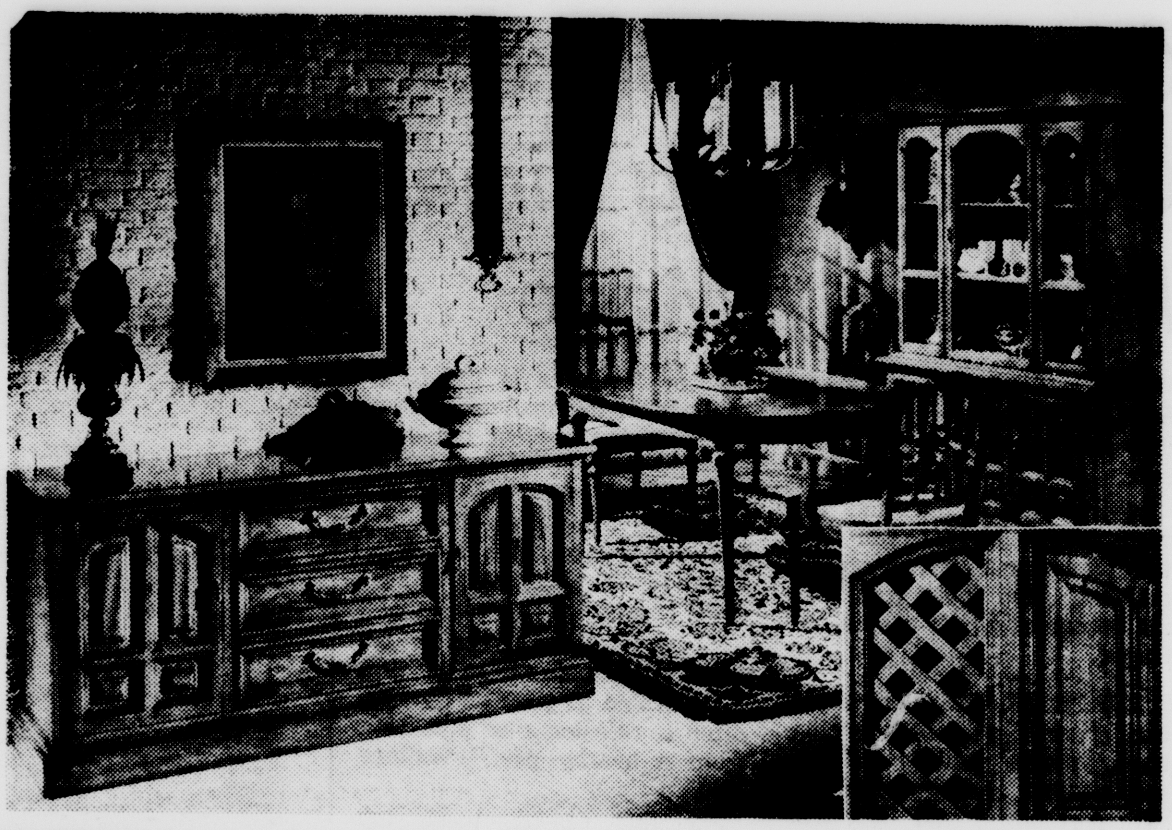
Open and glass-fronted shelves provide handy spots for collections, and tilted magazine or book racks are decorative and practical.

Corner units facilitate arrangement of the pieces in any shape or size room. They are in a bright variety of colored finishes, topped with white plastic, some with natural cane accents.

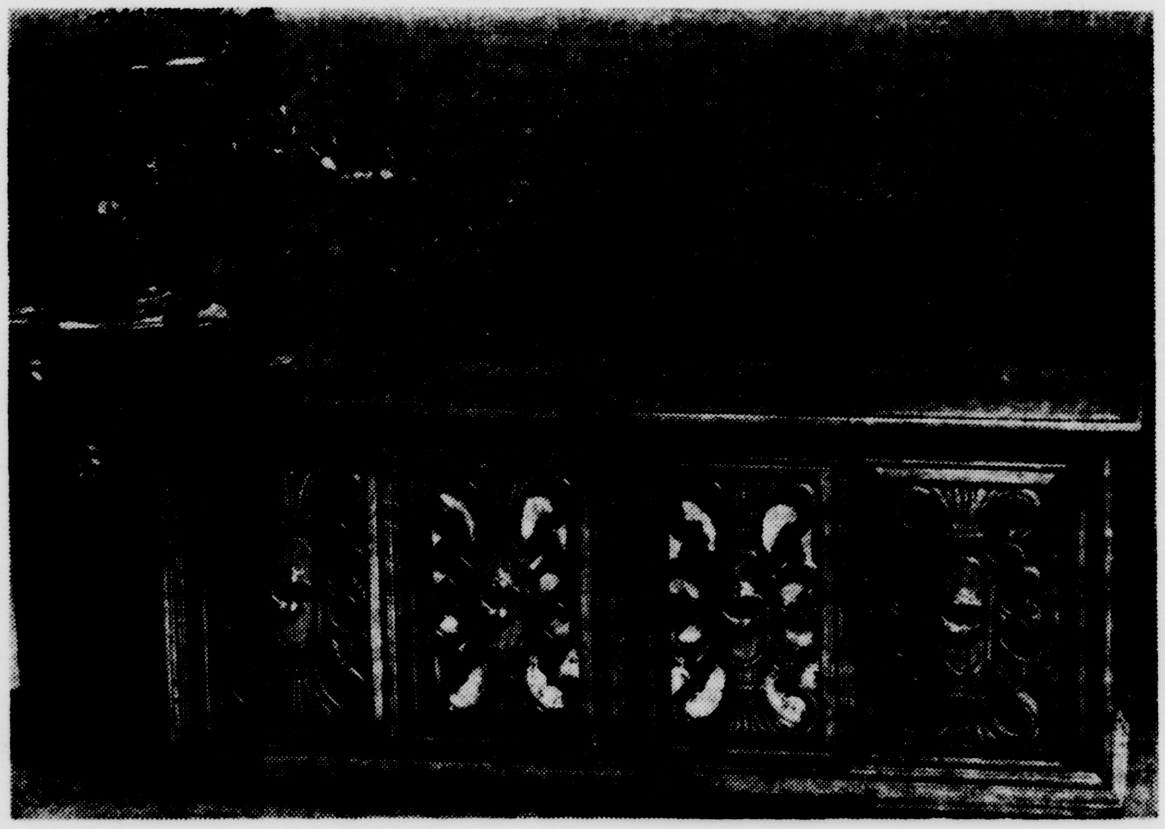
HAVING BEEN looking ahead for over half a century, a case goods manufacturer which originally limited its production to cedar chests has expanded its line to a full collection of storage pieces.

Still specializing in an age market—under 25—which it believes of extreme importance, this firm has introduced a versatile collection.

Small, scaled and offering infinite variations in combining unit arrangements of its chests, cupboards, and bookcases, this collection achieves broad versatility with a combination of only 2 basic widths (32" and 24" units), from which any number of groupings can be created to fill the needs of any size room.



REVERSIBLE front panels (see inset) on the buffet and china cabinet doors highlight this dining room group by Bernhardt at Bell's Interiors of San Rafael. The Spanish set is in walnut with a golden brown fruitwood finish. It is shown here in an early California setting.



KIM'S Sound Center of Northgate Shopping Center is featuring the new Scott stereo console in Copley Mediterraneean design, either in distressed walnut or custom antique lacquer finishes. Cloth covers behind the snap-out grills may be chosen to match room decor.

Change The Lanes

Do you have regular "traffic lanes" in your home? Most homes do—and changing these from time to time will distribute wear evenly on carpets and rugs, thus increasing service from your floor coverings.

Outdoor Furniture Can Last Long Time If Properly Made

Outdoor furniture takes a real beating from sun, rain, wind, dew and water splashes at poolside.

Elegance Gives Bath A Brand New Look

No room presents such a creative challenge in home modernization as the bathroom. Perhaps it's because so much can be done with it.

First of all, the bathroom must satisfy the utility and esthetic needs of the family whose personality it reflects. It should reveal the homemaker's good taste and understanding of decorating fundamentals.

Today's bathroom is often the showplace of the home — and it's seen by almost every guest. A real sense of pride comes from having it admired by visitors.

NO EFFORT has been spared to give the modern bathroom a look of elegance. Many of the country's top interior decorators have contributed. While the average homemaker probably won't try to duplicate the lavish bathrooms illustrated in "home fashion" magazines precisely, she nevertheless can pick up many valuable and practical tips to work into her own modernization plans.

One of the newest and most practical ideas is compartmentizing—that is, separating toilet, lavatory and bathtub with some form of partitioning. This enables two or more persons to use the bathroom simultaneously in complete privacy.

Lavish use of color gives new glamor to the bathroom. Think back to the bathrooms of just a few years ago. They were about as imaginative as a blank wall—three white fixtures, white tiled floors and walls, and even white bathmat and curtains. They looked cold and clinical.

MANY PEOPLE, of course, still prefer white fixtures, directing color accents to walls, floors and accessories for interest and contrast. Still, the trend today definitely is toward colored fixtures: rich tones of pink, blue, green, ivory, suntan, lilac and yellow. They come in more solid shades of the basic colors, too.

Bathtubs are available in a wider range of styles and sizes than ever before. Much attention has been focused in recent years on the small tub, but large ones are making a strong comeback. Nearly every fixture manufacturer offers five and five-and-a-half-foot models. Some even have six-foot tubs, long enough for the tallest folks to stretch out for a relaxing soak.

Today's tubs are smartly styled and sleek-looking, built low—making it easier to get in and out. Front edges are flat. One or more integral seats often are provided as a convenience in foot bathing, or bathing small children. Another new feature on some tubs is a built-in whirlpool bath device, for soothing and relaxing muscles and nervous strain.

IT IS NOW common to include an overhead shower with the tub, and attractive effects can be achieved by enclosing the tub with safety glass or highly decorative and durable synthetic doors that swing out or slide on rust-proof hinges or runners.

Individual built-in or pre-fabricated shower stalls are becoming more popular. There's a thermostatic shower control available that can be set to any desired temperature and held there, regardless of pressure fluctuations.

It permits dialing exactly the right temperature before stepping into the shower. Modern showerheads are self-cleaning and have a regulating valve to control size and intensity of the spray.

This year's lavatories are another good example of the drive to put beauty into the bathroom. Some high-style types feature floral and other designs around the perimeter of the bowl. Matching accessories in faucet handles, toilet seats, towels and tile also are available.

FOR THE ultimate in bathroom elegance and luxury, the homemaker will choose a vanity lavatory. Here, the lavatory is built into stainproof, waterproof plastic or marble-like countertops, with plenty of drawer and storage beneath. There is usually foot space below to permit using a chair, as well.

More and more toilets now are installed on the wall, making it a breeze to clean the floor, and even permitting the use of wall-to-wall carpeting, without having to cut a hole for the base.

While many improvements in bathroom fixtures are apparent to the eye, even more have been built into the inner workings to improve operating efficiency. The one-piece toilets, which combine bowl and tank into a single, integral fixture bear little resemblance to the antiques of yesterday.

One of the most objectionable features of the old toilet was the conspicuous noise it made when flushed, clearly audible through out the house. Thanks to major engineering improvements, today's models are virtually silent.

FOR SAFETY'S sake, modern toilets are equipped with vacuum breakers to prevent back-siphonage of contaminated water into the drinking water supply. Some water closets are designed to prevent "sweating" (moisture condensation) on the outside of the tank in hot weather.

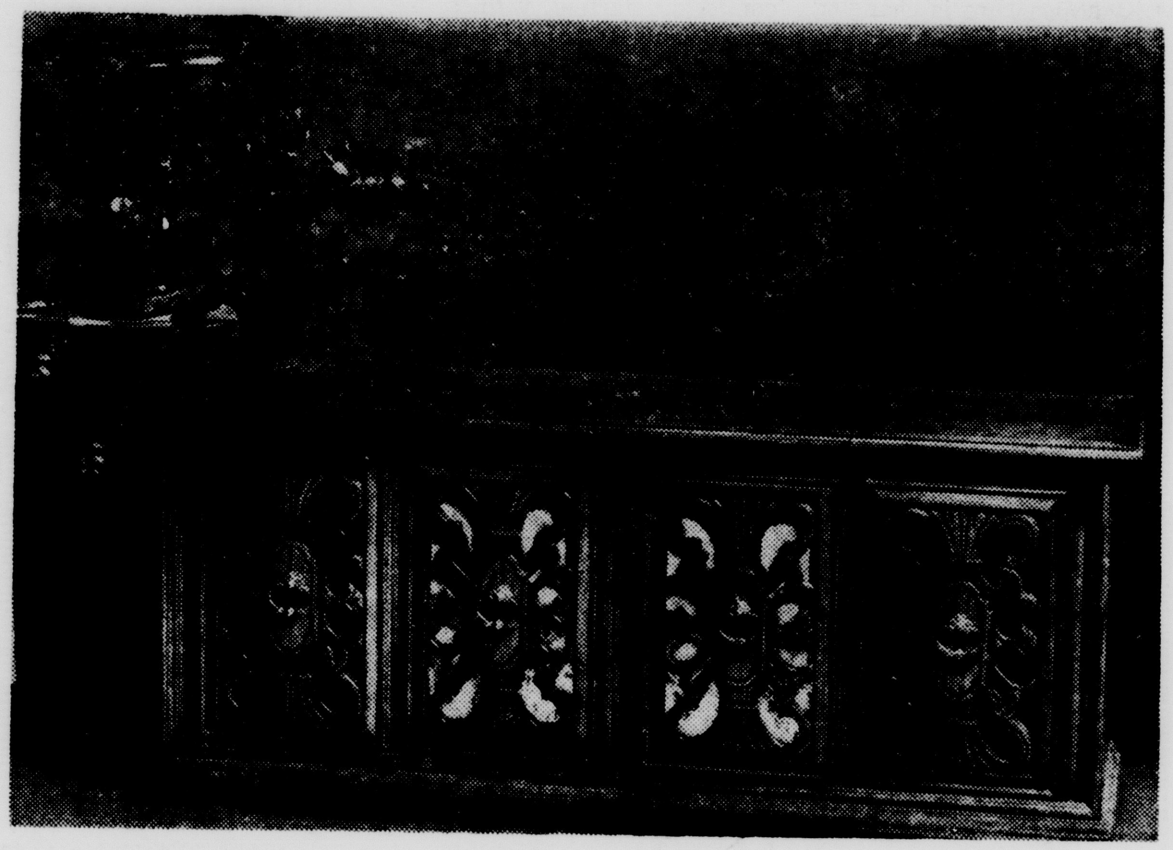
Once the basic fixtures have been selected, the homeowner can plan the bathroom decor around them. Many beautiful and unique effects are possible with the wide range of materials available in wall and floor coverings.

One popular wall treatment is a combination of tile and waterproof wallpaper. Floors can be finished in tile or linoleum, or carpeted wall-to-wall. Lighting can be provided by either direct or indirect means, in a host of modern attractive fixtures. Interesting color accents are provided with drapes or curtains on the bathroom window, and also with bathmats and shower curtains.

Today's medicine cabinet is spacious inside, and comes with a large mirror flanked with lights to reflect the room and give it an extra touch of luxury. Many come with locks to keep medicine beyond the reach of small children.

FINISHING TOUCHES include recessed soap dishes, towel bars and chromium-plated grab bars for convenience and safety in the tub and shower. Also available are revolving combination soap, toothbrush and water tumbler holders which disappear into the wall when not in use, and a variety of other modern accessories—such as magazine racks.

Many homeowners no longer are satisfied with just one bathroom. Most new homes now have at least a bath and a half or a powder room.



CHARM and warmth of the French Provincial period are shown in this Magnavox instrument featuring stereo FM, monaural FM/AM radio phonograph, available at Hoy's TV and Music Stores, San Anselmo and San Rafael. The hi-fi is available in distressed cherry or antique ivory finish accented with gold striping.

"What Happened To The Yellow Color In My Drapes?"

It is generally known that fabrics, when exposed to light, lose their strength. However, what is not so well known is that fabrics which are dyed with yellow, orange or dyes which contain these colors, are especially susceptible to damage from light. Sunlight, direct or even indirect, combined with high humidity, form hydrogen peroxide that weakens the printed areas. This is not noticable at first. However, when the fabric is cleaned, the mechanical action causes the weakened areas to break.

Silk and nylon are more quickly affected than rayon or cotton. However, if the yellow-printed areas were the ones to shred, as in your drapes, it is apparent that the fault is not that of the fabric or the cleaning. The fault is in the dye. The yellow. It reacted to sunlight and humidity first. because certain yellow dyes generate more peroxide than others and peroxide weakens the fabric. Knowing this, most drycleaners accept drapery fabrics only at the owner's risk.

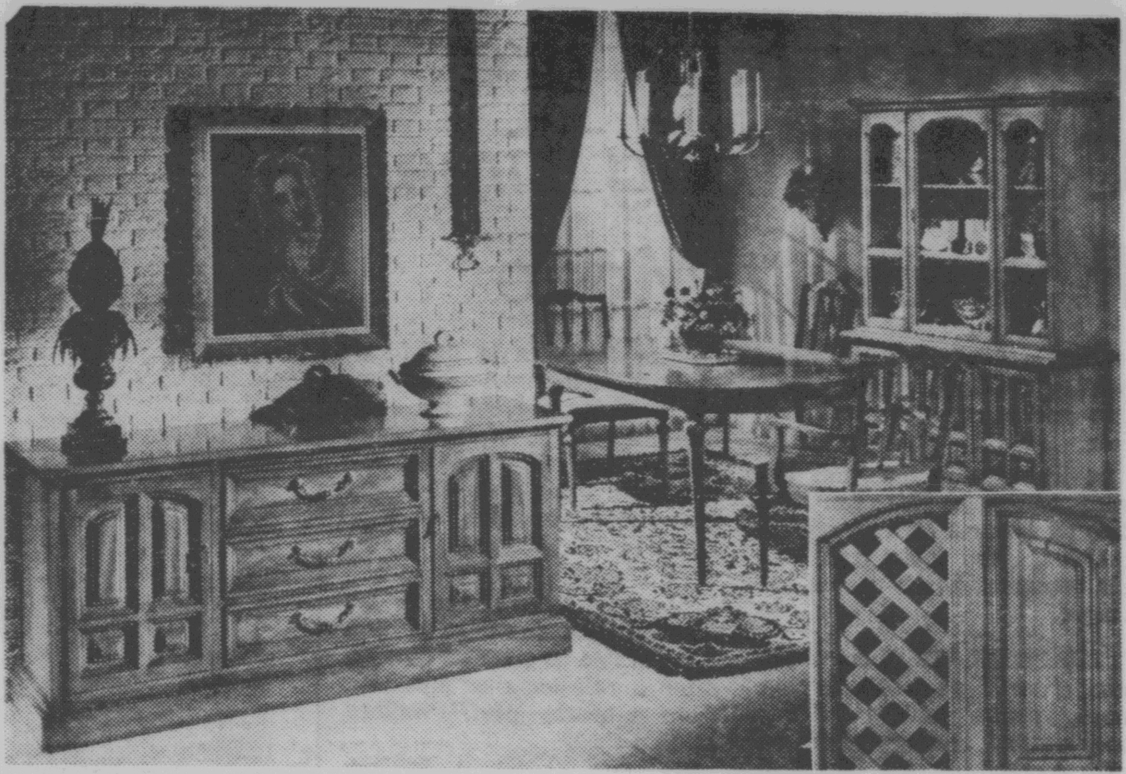
Parents Find Teeners Eager To Participate In Redecorating Plan



REVERSIBLE front panels (see inset) on the buffet and china cabinet doors highlight this dining room group by Bernhardt at Bell's Interiors of San Rafael. The Spanish set is in walnut with a golden brown fruitwood finish. It is shown here in an early California setting.

While the teen years are those in which young people begin to look beyond their families and homes for broader horizons, this is also the period when they make a closer, more critical study of those families and homes.

MANY PARENTS, therefore, find this an ideal time to redecorate, allowing the teen-age members of the family to participate.

Of special interest to the young people are their own rooms — which can provide their first taste of what it will be like to have homes of their own.

A teen-ager's room can offer an opportunity for creative decoration, a refuge against the world that doesn't (at the moment, anyway) understand, and an entertainment center — all needs of the busy, changeable moods and life of the average teener.

IN DECORATING his or her room, today's young person will find ample inspiration among the new home furnishings. Ideal for the sleep-sit use the teen room caters to are dual-purpose sleepers, which now don't show their duplicity.

A handsome example from one manufacturer is a collection featuring a bed and sofa which will seat three or four by day and sleep two by night.

Avaliable in a selection of striking print upholstery coverings, the piece is handsomely framed in exposed wood, with a simple, classic carved design for decorative interest.

ANOTHER upholstered piece which should find favor with teens is a "curl up" chair — tufted, barrel-backed, and half again as wide as a conventional chair.

Comfortable even for an adult, seated in normal position, this chair lends itself beautifully to the many conformations of the reading, studying, or telephoning teenager.

It can be had in a wide selection of upholstery fabrics, alive with color and textures for creative decorating.

FOR SERIOUS studying, another manufacturer has introduced a modular collection, to combine in any desired groupings. Chests, desks, and bookshelves are included, to stow the clutter and provide spacious, convenient work areas as well.

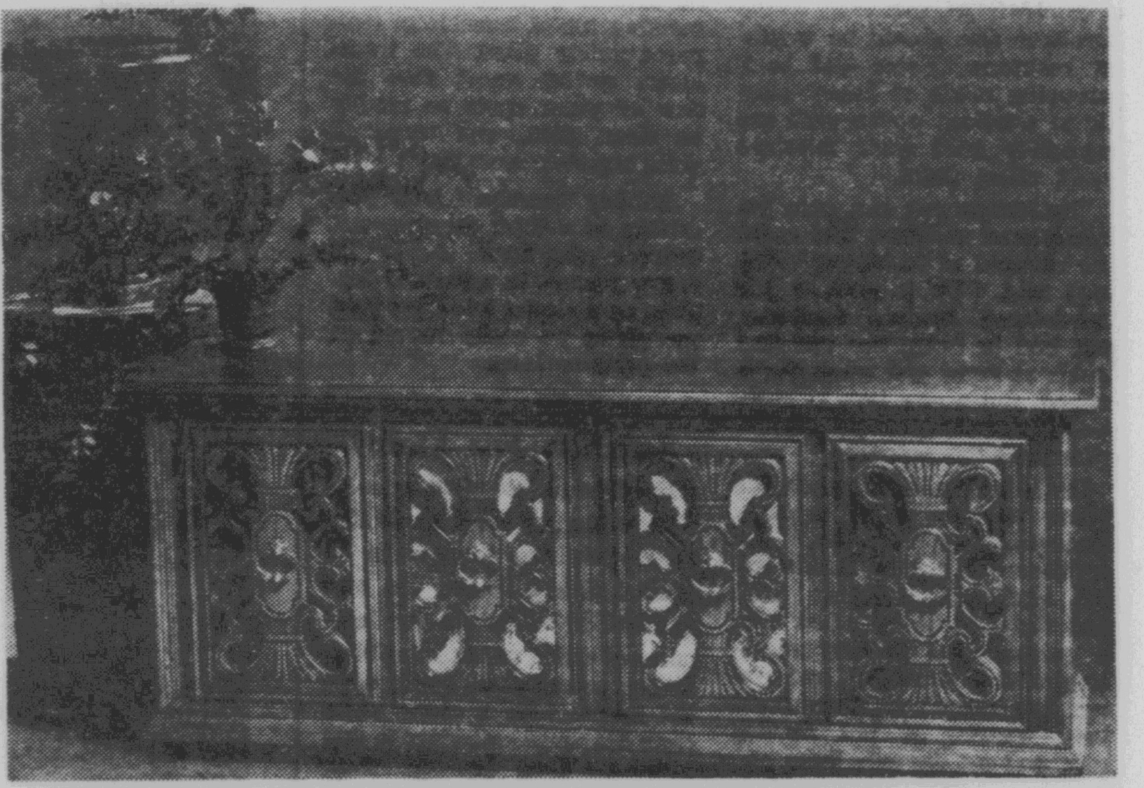
Open and glass-fronted shelves provide handy spots for collections, and tilted magazine or book racks are decorative and practical.

Corner units facilitate arrangement of the pieces in any shape or size room. They are in a bright variety of colored finishes, topped with white plastic, some with natural cane accents.

HAVING BEEN looking ahead for over half a century, a case goods manufacturer which originally limited its production to cedar chests has expanded its line to a full collection of storage pieces.

Still specializing in an age market—under 25—which it believes of extreme importance, this firm has introduced a versatile collection.

Small, scaled and offering infinite variations in combining unit arrangements of its chests, cupboards, and bookcases, this collection achieves broad versatility with a combination of only 2 basic widths (32" and 24" units), from which any number of groupings can be created to fill the needs of any size room.



KIM'S Sound Center of Northgate Shopping Center is featuring the new Scott stereo console in Copley Mediterraneean design, either in distressed walnut or custom antique lacquer finishes. Cloth covers behind the snap-out grills may be chosen to match room decor.

Stereo Hi-Fi

By C. J. Catania
Audio Engineer

FURNISHING YOUR HOME. During the past several years, I have been in hundreds of homes where it was extremely difficult to find an area for a stereo music system. Why? In those homes, there was so much furniture—most of it not adding any utility or comfort to the room—that there was no place for additional furniture.

If you are newlyweds or are starting the furnishing of your home, remember that one of the most often used items in the home will be the stereo home music system. A good stereo console should be 75 or more inches long. That is not small. It has to be that long to provide adequate separation of the speakers. If the music console is going to be in three separate pieces of furniture; that is, the equipment console in the center and a speaker system on each end, the entire length may be 8 feet or more. These lengths require planning.

Too long you say? Just walk into a home that has an elegant 75 inch console along one wall with a tall lamp or vase on one end of the console. You will find it to be the focal point of the room, and you will find that it adds tremendously to the decor of the room.

Start your planning by allocating a place for a long console in the living room. Then plan your end tables and seating to;blend in with the console. The stereo furniture piece can be a thing of beauty. Large pieces can be quite outstanding. Why clutter your room with large quantities of meaningless furniture pieces that do nothing! Make each piece of furniture a functional piece.

When you are ready to choose your stereo system, don't just shop around for some ready made thing in the hopes of finding something that will meet with your furniture requirements. Shop around for an elegant furniture cabinet specifically designed for stereo, then have your stereo specialist put in the components to fit your budget and taste in sound.

There are hundreds of styles to choose from. The new Spanish and Mediterranean series can add a graceful touch to your home. The Italian Provincials and the French Provincials are still favorites for some. There are many new contemporary designs. Some designs, like our Mediterranean Barcelona, will blend in with many styles of furniture.

Rules To Follow In Papering

Color Scheme, Drape Designs Offer Clues

Walls can set the decorating scheme in a room, so the right selection of pattern, scale, color and type of wallpaper can be a confusing one for do-it-yourself decorators.

There is a wealth of wallpaper patterns and colors available, ranging from textures, stripes, florals and flocks to toiles, geometrics, novelties and scenic designs.

BASIC DECORATING ground rules should guide the selection of the right paper for a room, says the Wallpaper Council, Inc. It offers these suggestions for a tasteful decorating scheme:

—If you are refreshing a room, rather than completely redecorating, be guided by floor and furniture coverings and draperies.

For instance, if you have a multi colored pattern in your floor covering or figured draperies or furniture coverings, your walls can be colorful, but not predominantly patterned. Select a paper in colors that will blend with other furnishings or consider a wallpaper in a design of grasscloth, shiki silk, a textured effect or a simple stripe in soft colors that will repeat the colors of your dominating pattern.

—A damask pattern is an excellent choice for a traditional room, or a geometric for a contemporary room. Don't overlook papers in three-dimensional effects such as spatter, brick, plaster, fret or wood paneling.

IF THE FABRICS and floor coverings are plain, tweeds or textures, there are hundreds of wallpaper patterns from which to choose.

—For a small room, the Council suggests a pattern with a light background and a widely spaced design to create the feeling of more space. Avoid patterns that are too bold when treating all walls alike.

Scenics can be found in many different themes and are excellent for one wall of a small room. The other three walls can be covered in a matching ground paper.

IF YOU SHOULD decide on a bold pattern to add zip to a small room, use it on one wall as an accent. Use a textured paper in the pattern's background color for the other walls.

—Large rooms are ideal for wallpapers because you can select almost any design without too much concern for scale. Remember only to limit your large pattern to one category of furnishings—either floor, furniture, windows or walls.

Wide Wide World

Sales of broadloom—or wide-width carpet—keep growing annually. It is estimated that 85 per cent or more of total United State production is in 12-foot or wider widths.

DINING elegance is achieved with a graceful traditional or contemporary chandelier, which now can be regulated with new inexpensive electronic dimmers. Such dimmers may be purchased at Marin Lights of San Rafael and used in many rooms of the house, making rooms dim for watching television or bright for family games.

Old Outdoor Standby Is Moving Indoors

Wrought iron, long the furniture of choice for outdoor use, is now moving indoors to grace the family dining room.

DISPLAYS AT the 1965 summer home furnishings markets, where the newest fall and winter furniture is being shown, indicate that manufacturers are discovering new ways to blend wrought iron with indoor dining decor.

Traditional materials such as wood and new synthetics, including plastic laminates, are being used as table tops on wrought iron bases for an atmosphere of warmth and style.

Expandable tables with rectangular and round tops make a wrought iron dining ensemble equally suitable for serving a family of four people or a dinner for eight.

IN DESIGNS, finishes, colors, and upholstery, the newest showings offer variety that makes it possible to select a wrought iron dining set for any type of decor, including Mediterranean, Traditional, Provincial, and Contemporary.

One leading manufacturer is introducing new pedestal and rectangular dining tables which it believes will make wrought iron a best-seller for breakfast areas and kitchens as well as for dining rooms.

"UNTIL RECENTLY, if you wanted to use wrought iron indoors, you had to be satisfied with tables with glass or mesh tops—hardly suitable for many types of decor," explained Jack Wallace, stylist for the company.

The addition of wood and plastic laminate tops expands the usefulness of wrought iron indoors. Wallace feels that many people will buy a wrought iron dining ensemble of table and chairs, and then purchase conventional wood dining case goods, such as a buffet or china cabinet, to complement it.

"The old practice of buying a completely matched dining suite is almost passe," he said. "Interior designers today are mixing correlated pieces of various designs to create a truly individualized appearance."

EXPANDIBILITY is one of the most important features people look for in choosing dining furniture, Wallace said.

Bellach's OCTOBER Show of Styles FOR HOMES

Here's an open invitation to come in and see the new furniture and decorating ideas that are making fashion headlines this fall. The emphasis is on classic silhouettes . . . demanded by America's sophisticated tastes! Featured woods are oak and pecan, along with such perennial favorites as cherry, maple and walnut. Finishes are light—white is gaining prominence—and the antiqued or "heirloom" look is everywhere, adding to the authenticity of period designs. Upholstery fabrics are sumptuously luxurious . . . textured, figured or patterned for interest. Colors are bold, exciting, daringly combined for a refreshing feeling of youthful verve. Carpeting is thicker, softer, with a marked accent on color and pattern!

Stereo Hi-Fi

By C. J. Catania
Audio Engineer

FURNISHING YOUR HOME. During the past several years, I have been in hundreds of homes where it was extremely difficult to find an area for a stereo music system. Why? In those homes, there was so much furniture—most of it not adding any utility or comfort to the room—that there was no place for additional furniture.

If you are newlyweds or are starting the furnishing of your home, remember that one of the most often used items in the home will be the stereo home music system. A good stereo console should be 75 or more inches long. That is not small. It has to be that long to provide adequate separation of the speakers. If the music console is going to be in three separate pieces of furniture; that is, the equipment console in the center and a speaker system on each end, the entire length may be 8 feet or more. These lengths require planning.

Too long you say? Just walk into a home that has an elegant 75 inch console along one wall with a tall lamp or vase on one end of the console. You will find it to be the focal point of the room, and you will find that it adds tremendously to the decor of the room.

Start your planning by allocating a place for a long console in the living room. Then plan your end tables and seating to blend in with the console. The stereo furniture piece can be a thing of beauty. Large pieces can be quite outstanding. Why clutter your room with large quantities of meaningless furniture pieces that do nothing! Make each piece of furniture a functional piece.

When you are ready to choose your stereo system, don't just shop around for some ready made thing in the hopes of finding something that will meet with your furniture requirements. Shop around for an elegant furniture cabinet specifically designed for stereo, then have your stereo specialist put in the components to fit your budget and taste in sound.

There are hundreds of styles to choose from. The new Spanish and Mediterranean series can add a graceful touch to your home. The Italian Provincials and the French Provincials are still favorites for some. There are many new contemporary designs. Some designs, like our Mediterranean Barcelona, will blend in with many styles of furniture.

Rules To Follow In Papering

Color Scheme, Drape Designs Offer Clues

Walls can set the decorating scheme in a room, so the right selection of pattern, scale, color and type of wallpaper can be a confusing one for do-it-yourself decorators.

There is a wealth of wallpaper patterns and colors available, ranging from textures, stripes, florals and flocks to toiles, geometrics, novelties and scenic designs.

BASIC DECORATING ground rules should guide the selection, of the right paper for a room, says the Wallpaper Council, Inc. It offers these suggestions for a tasteful decorating scheme:

—If you are refreshing a room, rather than completely redecorating, be guided by floor and furniture coverings and draperies.

For instance, if you have a multi colored pattern in your floor covering or figured draperies or furniture coverings, your walls can be colorful, but not predominantly patterned. Select a paper in colors that will blend with other furnishings or consider a wallpaper in a design of grasscloth, shiki silk, a textured effect or a simple stripe in soft colors that will repeat the colors of your dominating pattern.

—A damask pattern is an excellent choice for a traditional room, or a geometric for a contemporary room. Don't overlook papers in three-dimensional effects such as spatter, brick, plaster, fret or wood paneling.

IF THE FABRICS and floor coverings are plain, tweeds or textures, there are hundreds of wallpaper patterns from which to choose.

—For a small room, the Council suggests a pattern with a light background and a widely spaced design to create the feeling of more space. Avoid patterns that are too bold when treating all walls alike.

Scenics can be found in many different themes and are excellent for one wall of a small room. The other three walls can be covered in a matching ground paper.

IF YOU SHOULD decide on a bold pattern to add zip to a small room, use it on one wall as an accent. Use a textured paper in the pattern's background color for the other walls.

—Large rooms are ideal for wallpapers because you can select almost any design without too much concern for scale. Remember only to limit your large pattern to one category of furnishings—either floor, furniture, windows or walls.

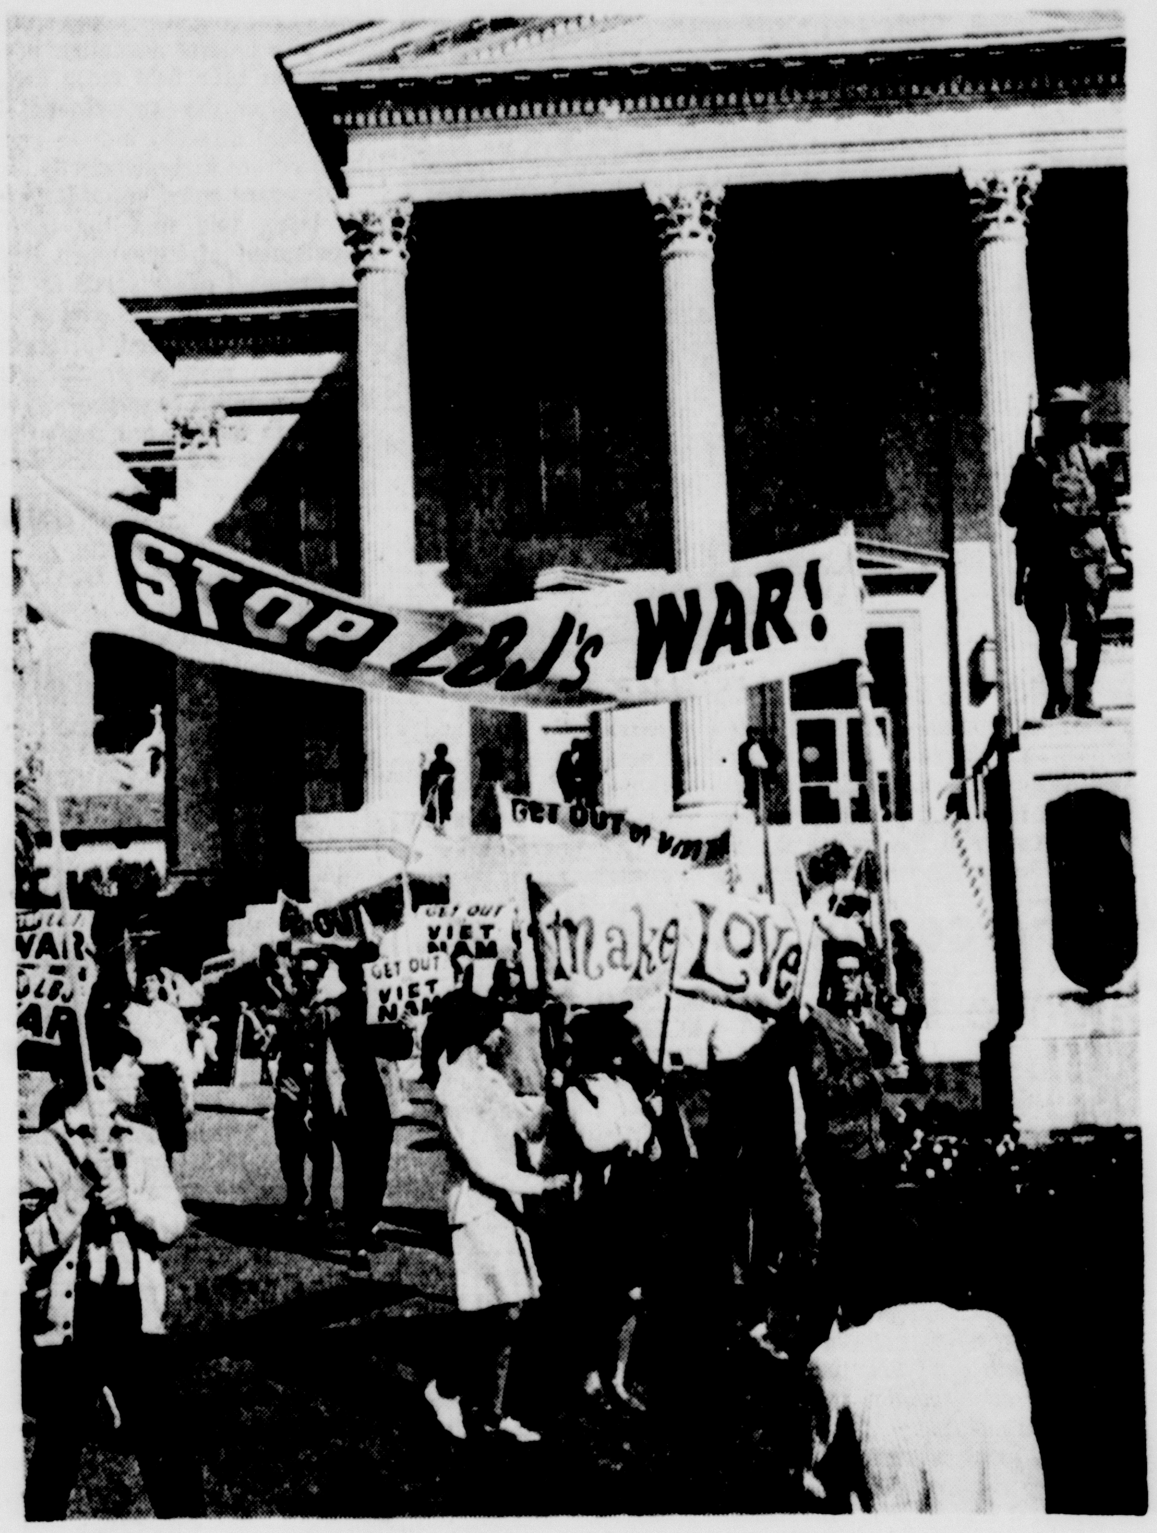
Marin Marchers Take Part In Nationwide Viet Protest



ANTI-WAR BANNERS AND SIGNS—Marin County residents joined others across the country today in a protest demonstration asking for an end to the war in Viet Nam. Unlike the demonstration across the Bay, in Berkeley, this display started quietly in front of the Marin County Courthouse in the shadow of the county's World War I memorial. The meeting was held with a permit from the County Board of Supervisors. Demonstrators heard Unitarian Minister Karel Boderman and San Francisco attorney Mrs. Beverly Axelrod.

Marchers, Hecklers Gather In Cities

NEW YORK (AP) — Marchers gathered on New York's Fifth Avenue today for a demonstration protesting U.S. involvement in Viet Nam. There were similar protests throughout the country.

In New York, the Young Americans for Freedom, a student group, said they would stage a counter-demonstration on the Fifth Avenue route.

The protest marchers also were mostly students and young people.

The nationwide marches yesterday and today were part of a weekend of protest organized by opponents of U.S. Viet Nam policy.

In New York City a student burned his draft card during a rally beside the armed forces induction center. He was one of the first to do so since such destruction was made a federal offense.

THROW EGGS

Hecklers threw eggs at 40 pickets in Chicago and there was a minor scuffle. A bystander smashed a placard carried by a marcher and tried to strike him, but a policeman stepped between them. There were no arrests.

Most of the demonstrators across the nation were college students, but their numbers were few in comparison to the enrollments of the schools they attend.

Between 500 and 1,000 students from across Oregon planned a protest rally today in Salem on the Capitol steps. Oregon Secretary of State Tom Mc-Call closed the Capitol to all but state employees.

RALLIES, PARADE

Across New England, rallies, demonstrations and parades are scheduled today at colleges. A veterans' group in Bennington, Vt., said it would hold a counterprotest when students from Bennington College join with Williams College students in a 17-mile march from Bennington to Williamstown, Mass.

Fifteen University of Rhode Island students began a 24-hour vigil Friday night.

There was little official reaction in Washington, although some sources said they fear the demonstrations will be interpreted overseas as evidence of widespread American opposition to the Viet Nam buildup.

Silent Circle Goes Around Memorial

Students, housewives and children walked in a silent circle around the war memorial to the dead of World War I outside San Rafael's courthouse today with banners proclaiming: "Down With LBJ's War" and "Make Love, Not War."

Several hundred people gathered to watch the start of a demonstration organized by the Marin Viet Nam Committee to protest the government's policy in Viet Nam.

Committee members passed out posters and car stickers as Neil Abercrombie of Mill Valley, committee chairman, called for support of the Viet Nam Day Committee's picketing of Oakland Army Base planned later today.

His brother, Hal Abercrombie of Tiburon was among those from Marin taking part in the protest teach-in and march at Berkeley and Oakland last night.

"We were gassed," he said, "Boy, that was something."

Lars Erickson, 24, of Lagunitas, a carpenter, explained why he was taking part in the Marin protest: "The Viet Nam business is a national crime," he said. "This sort of demonstration will be good if it only shows that we protest such policy."

At start, the demonstration was orderly. Among those watching was Marin County Sheriff, Louis P. Mountanos and other officers in plain clothes.

Down as scheduled speakers were Karel Botermans, of the Unitarian Church of Marin County, and attorney Mrs. Beverley Axelrod of San Francisco.

The protest attracted an anti-picket. Carrying a poster saying "Win in Viet Nam," Jim Smith, of San Anselmo said, "I'll walk up and down here as long as I have to."

WAITING FOR THE ACTION— Three demonstrators protesting the war in Viet Nam but dressed as revolutionary soldiers of a sort, wait yesterday in Berkeley while a child joins in for the start of the abortive march toward Oakland. The march was stopped at the Oakland city limit and turned back.

5,000 Berkeley Marchers Halted En Route To Oakland Army Base

BERKELEY, Calif. (UPI)—More than 5,000 foes of U.S. involvement in Viet Nam spent the chilly night in Berkeley's Constitution Square after police and hostile onlookers blocked their mach toward the Oakland Army Base.

Their night-long vigil was briefly interrupted at midnight when a small tear-gas bomb was thrown into their midst. Police blamed it on a heckler and said one girl had been sent to the hospital with an eye injury. Officers also broke up a scuffle between the demonstrators and bystanders early today but there were no arrests.

The decision to turn back was made last night in a bizarre scene at the Oakland city limits illuminated by candles, neon and street lights. The paraders met an estimated 1,000 citizens and 400 helmeted Oakland officers and decided to retreat rather than risk a riot.

Leaders of the sponsoring Viet Nam Day Committee said another march might be tried today.

The all-night stay at Constitution Square climaxed yesterday's largest in a series of nationwide demonstrations against U.S. policy in Southeast Asia.

It started on the Berkeley campus with a "teach-in" at

Police Think Mill Valley Fire Set

Mill Valley police and fire departments said today they believe a fire, which did $8,000 damage in the home of Pierre Arretche of 41 Locke Lane early this morning was deliberately set.

"From the little evidence which we already have we know that something was definitely wrong with the way the fire started. We feel sure it was set," said Chief Leslie Armager of the Mill Valley Fire Department.

Armager said the blaze broke out in the living room and bedroom of the single-story house. "The fire started in the bed and at the same time in the living room chairs and couch. The fires were at least 15 feet away from each other."

Police discovered the fire at 1:05 a.m. today, reported Armager. He said that no one was at home on arrival by the fire department.

Flames burned the living room walls and ceiling, and one spot in the floor, he said.

Member Resigns Gallinas Board

By ALAN ADELSON

Director Harry W. Thomas resigned from the board of the Gallinas Village Community Services District yesterday, saying he was disheartened by Thursday night's decision to reject all bids on a proposed park at Adrian and Rosal ways.

Thomas was the only board member to vote against rejection. Irate with what he called "those with the very muscular vocal areas," Thomas claimed that the board has been crippled by "a concerted effort of literary harassment, news releases and appeals to various county officials."

The vote to reject bids on the park was the result, he said today, of improper advice by Marin County Grand Jury Foreman George R. Scott. Scott asked for delay on the park until several charges of improper conduct of district business could be resolved.

"I told the board that Scott had overstepped his limits in making that counsel. I know of at least two votes Thursday which were based on Scott's advice."

Thomas, who is in favor of the proposal to landscape the corner lot at an expense originally estimated at $8,000 to $10,000, said opponents "have no feasible program for solution to the recreational needs of the community except 'we want a community center building'."

"The proposed park plan is only a holding action to make the land useable for recreation until people decide what they want to do with it. Planting in the park was largely limited in the plan to the perimeters, so that if later a pool or building were to be added, it could be done easily. Right now the place is just a dump," Thomas added today.

Closing his letter of resignation, Thomas said, "I leave the field of battle; you waste my time and talents . . . Man deserves the government he gets—get on with your own program. After 11 years there should be something on the park sites."

Fire Station Work Shut In Dispute

By THERON A. NEWELL

Disagreement over whether the Novato Fire District must have a building permit yesterday caused a stoppage of work on the San Marin fire station.

E. H. Chapman of 679 Midway Drive, Novato, the contractor, said that he paid off the men and closed down the project until the dispute is settled.

About a month ago, Chapman claims, he took two sets of the blueprints of the building, de-

Sailor Committed To State Hospital

SAN DIEGO (UPI)—A sailor, accused of attempting to kidnap newspaper publisher John P. Scripps, has been sent to Atascadero State Mental Hospital.

Guy Warinner, 19, Los Angeles, was ordered committed to the institution for an indefinite period by Superior Court Judge William Glen who ruled him insane.

San Rafael Second, Third Streets One-Way Tomorrow

At 7 a.m. tomorrow in San Rafael, Second and Third streets will become one-way, with Second Street eastbound and Third Street westbound.

The change will be tied in with recent construction near Highway 101 changing the traffic pattern under the viaduct, blocking some streets and adding others. Final work on a new on-ramp southbound will not be completed for several days, however.

Because the route of the new on-ramp is not yet fenced, San Rafael High School officials yesterday said they were worried that students would try to cross the ramp and go under the viaduct at Irwin Street on their way to school.

Students walking to High School from the Bret Harte area have been asked to walk down Lincoln Avenue to Third Street, and then turn east, although this is about two blocks longer. There are no adequate sidewalks on shorter routes.

The confused crossing under the viaduct at Irwin Street and Francisco Boulevard will be eliminated. On Thursday state officials closed Irwin Street south of the Northwestern Pacific Railroad tracks west of Highway 101, and closed Francisco Boulevard south of Irwin Street, west of the highway.

Francisco Boulevard between Second Street and Irwin Street is due to be closed when the new on-ramp is paved, possibly late Monday.

Stoplights on the new one-way street will have their timing changed to make them approximately synchronized for one-way traffic. However, installation of a fully automatic synchronized system is still in the future.

Old Outdoor Standby Is Moving Indoors

Wrought iron, long the furniture of choice for outdoor use, is now moving indoors to grace the family dining room.

DISPLAYS AT the 1965 summer home furnishings markets, where the newest fall and winter furniture is being shown, indicate that manufacturers are discovering new ways to blend wrought iron with indoor dining decor.

Traditional materials such as wood and new synthetics, including plastic laminates, are being used as table tops on wrought iron bases for an atmosphere of warmth and style.

Expandable tables with rectangular and round tops make a wrought iron dining ensemble equally suitable for serving a family of four people or a dinner for eight.

IN DESIGNS, finishes, colors, and upholstery, the newest showings offer variety that makes it possible to select a wrought iron dining set for any type of decor, including Mediterranean, Traditional, Provincial, and Contemporary.

One leading manufacturer is introducing new pedestal and rectangular dining tables which it believes will make wrought iron a best-seller for breakfast areas and kitchens as well as for dining rooms.

"UNTIL RECENTLY, if you wanted to use wrought iron indoors, you had to be satisfied with tables with glass or mesh tops—hardly suitable for many types of decor," explained Jack Wallace, stylist for the company.

The addition of wood and plastic laminate tops expands the usefulness of wrought iron indoors. Wallace feels that many people will buy a wrought iron dining ensemble of table and chairs, and then purchase conventional wood dining case goods, such as a buffet or china cabinet, to complement it.

"The old practice of buying a completely matched dining suite is almost passe," he said. "Interior designers today are mixing correlated pieces of various designs to create a truly individualized appearance."

EXPANDIBILITY is one of the most important features people look for in choosing dining furniture, Wallace said.

All Stitches Are Removed From Johnson

WASHINGTON (AP) — Doctors removed all the stitches from President Johnson's abdomen today and reported "all went well."

Asst. Press Secretary Joseph Laitin reported the stitches, which closed the incision made after a gall bladder operation last week, were removed after an early breakfast. Dr. George A. Hallenbeck of Mayo Clinic, chief surgeon at the operation, supervised removal of the stitches.

Also scheduled for the President today was a dental checkup, a matter of convenience because of the time available during his hopsitalization.

Laitin said, "It is just a routine dental checkup," having no relation to last week's operation.

It was the ninth day since the President underwent surgery and his recuperation was continuing to go on schedule.

Indonesia Is Moving To Outlaw Red Party

JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP) — Indonesia's highest policy decision-making body today banned all activities by political groups involved in the Sept. 30 coup attempt against President Sukarno.

Diplomatic observers said the temporary suspension could be a prelude to outlawing the Indonesian Communist party — PKI — and its affiliates.

The order was issued by KOTI, the supreme operations command, and was signed by Brig. Gen. Sutjipto, although Sukarno heads KOTI and usually issues such orders.

Sukarno met with his cabinet yesterday and Information Minister Maj. Gen. Achmadi told newsmen the 64-year-old president said the "destruction and burning" in the capital must stop before he can solve the political crisis stemming from the coup attempt.

Last week, Moslem youths burned the Communist party headquarters and on Thursday demonstrators burned down the pro-Peking Chinese University. At least 30 persons were wounded when demonstrators clashed with Chinese students.

Sukarno formally installed Maj. Gen. Suharto as the new army chief of staff, then turned to him and said: "As army commander and minister, I order you" to restore order.

Grim-faced and angry, Sukarno shouted a demand that the army prevent "agitated emotion from either left or right." Observers said this seemed to refer to the army's anti-Communist campaign.

Suharto was named army chief and cabinet minister by Sukarno last Thursday. The anti-Communist general led the forces that crushed the coup.

Guam Bombers Again Hit Reds In South Viet Nam

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — Giant U.S. Air Force B-52 bombers staged another raid in South Viet Nam today while South Vietnamese troops and the Viet Cong exchanged ambushes.

The B-52s from Guam hit a suspected Viet Cong logistics complex in the northern coastal province of Quang Ngai 330 miles northeast of Saigon.

On the ground, government troops said they killed 88 Viet Cong guerrillas in scattered clashes but only 38 were confirmed by body count.

In a heavy fight in the Mekong River delta, 155 miles southwest of Saigon, a government unit ambushed about 100 guerrillas in An Xuyen Province and reported that 28 had been killed. No government casualties were reported.

A Communist force of undetermined size inflicted heavy casualties yesterday in an ambush near the Cambodian border, 120 miles west of Saigon. The government unit said 50 guerrillas were killed.

Woman Falls Five Stories

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A 20-year-old Guerneville woman was in critical condition today after she fell five floors from a San Francisco balcony.

Karyn Kaplin and her escort, Gene Francheschi, 24, also from Guerneville, were attending a party at 3649 Market Street.

"She was sitting on the railing," Francheschi said, "and lost her balance. She fell five floors, bounced off two roofs and hit a fence."

Doctors at Mission Emergency Hospital said she was in "very poor condition."

WIRE NEWS BRIEFS From Everywhere

More Fleeing Cubans Expected

KEY WEST, Fla. (UPI) — Increased numbers of Coast Guard vessels plied the Florida Straits today to assist an expected weekend exodus of Cubans bidding adios to life under Fidel Castro.

The Coast Guard yesterday escorted or towed to port here five small boats which brought 66 more Cuban refugees to freedom.

Yesterday's arrivals swelled to 334 the number of Cubans arriving here since Castro initiated his new "open door" policy.

The total does not include 62 exile crewmen who sailed boats from here to Cuba and back to bring out their relatives.

REFUGEES OF KASHMIR WAR

A Moslem woman and child waited yesterday for food and help in a refugee camp outside Muzaffarabad, capital of Azid Kashmir. Thousands of Moslems have fled or been driven from the India-held port of Kashmir, near the cease-fire line, since the start of the India-Pakistan war. (AP Wirephoto)

Air Force Rocket Muffs Chance For Space Record

CAPE KENNEDY (UPI) — The new Air Force Titan-3C super rocket muffed its chance to perform a record string of space maneuvers yesterday and in the process one of its two satellites was disabled.

The powerful military space booster followed its program for the first 56 minutes of flight by zooming into orbit and then switching to another. But then it ran into trouble.

Instead of firing a third time to shoot a radiation exploring satellite into a higher orbit, the Titan's third stage suddenly developed an end over end tumble in space and remained in the same 460-mile-high orbit.

The tumbling apparently prevented the 375-pound scientific satellite from being kicked away from the crippled rocket. Without that separation, the satellite was unable to work.

Delay In U.S. Program Hit By Rafferty

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Dr. Max Rafferty, state superintendent of public instruction, denied that any federal education program has been held up in California after the State Board of Education directed him to give the program highest priority.

The board acted yesterday after being told that the State Department of Eduucation had not assigned office space to an administrator of the program.

Rafferty was asked to report back in one week on what action has been taken to expedite $78 million in federal aid from the Elementary and Secondary Education Act of 1965.

The program compensates schools providing special services for children 5-17 who are culturally, socially and economically disadvantaged.

Reached by telephone, Rafferty said he was prepared to answer any special charges leveled at him.

"The board may have to hire people on the spur of the moment but, unfortunately, the hiring of personnel is regulated by civil service procedures," the superintendent said.

Rafferty added no one had complained to him previously about the way things were going.

But he said he was not surprised by the board's action.

"It's household knowledge that the board has been on my back since 1962," he said.

Schoonmaker Gets U.S. Contracts

A. G. Schoonmaker Co., of Sausalito, manufacturer of diesel engine power plants, has been awarded government contracts worth $2,750,000 since Sept. 1, T. L. Schoonmaker, president, said yesterday.

The company is currently expanding its test and production facilities to meet these and other anticipated contracts, he said.

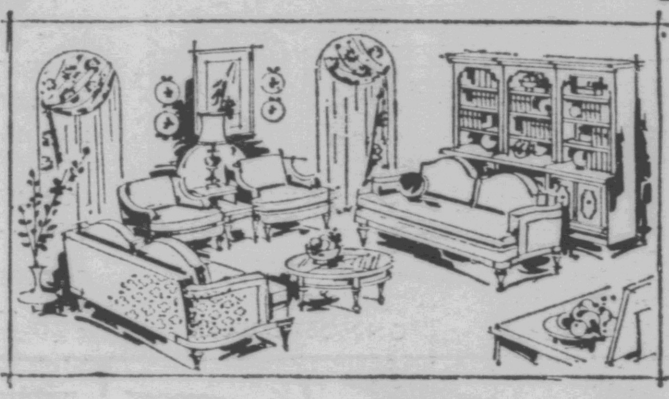
Bellach's OCTOBER Show of Styles FOR HOMES



Here's an open invitation to come in and see the new furniture and decorating ideas that are making fashion headlines this fall. The emphasis is on classic silhouettes . . . demanded by America's sophisticated tastes! Featured woods are oak and pecan, along with such perennial favorites as cherry, maple and walnut. Finishes are light—white is gaining prominence—and the antiqued or "heirloom" look is everywhere, adding to the authenticity of period designs. Upholstery fabrics are sumptuously luxurious . . . textured, figured or patterned for interest. Colors are bold, exciting, daringly combined for a refreshing feeling of youthful verve. Carpeting is thicker, softer, with a marked accent on color and pattern!

Warehouse, Dock Asked For Island

The state should purchase about a half acre of land in Tiburon and build a small warehouse and dock for state workers at Angel Island, the division of Beaches and Parks staff has recommended.

The division staff, at a meeting of the State Park Commission Thursday, said the project could not now be incorporated into a plan to secure open waterfront in Tiburon and to establish a small park there.

The idea would be laudable, the report said, but not possible now. Any project would, however, be compatible with a park development later. Plans call for using land near the old Northwestern Pacific Railroad ferry slip.

The commission did not act on the report. Commissioners did vote to have the problem of damage to plants on the island by deer turned over to the Department of Fish and Game for study.

Quentin Film Due Showing To Italians

Television viewers in Italy, which has no capital punishment, will soon be seeing and hearing two inmates of San Quentin's Death Row as they express their feelings as they wait for execution.

The inmates were filmed yesterday by an Italian TV camera crew visiting the prison collecting material for a documentary on capital punishment.

An interview was also filmed with Warden Lawrence E. Wilson and shots were taken of the twin chairs in the execution chamber.

More Mental Treatment Set

Jaime Sandoval must continue mental treatment in San Quentin Prison indefinitely, Judge Louis B. Dematteis of San Mateo County Superior Court ruled Thursday. Sandoval, 35, imprisoned after his 1961 conviction of lewd acts with two teenagers, has been judged a sexual psychopath.

Sandoval figured in the strange deaths in 1960 of Mrs. Virginia Douglas in Puerto Rico and her husband, Donald A. Douglas, an apparent suicide, a month later in a car in Lucas Valley. Mrs. Douglas vanished over a sea cliff.

The teen-agers in the criminal action were the Douglas's sons.

The $13 billion spent last year on highway improvement in the United States was paid for entirely by the nation's motorists.

Bridge Lessons

A series of eight lessons in beginning bridge will begin Monday at 8 p.m. at the Marin Jewish Community Center, 1618 Mission Street, San Rafael. Registration for the series will be taken at the door, said Marvin Bienstock, center director.

Hub Chamber Directors Hit Route

San Anselmo Chamber of Commerce directors Thursday unanimously passed a resolution stating they are "not in favor of a freeway route . . . which would encroach on San Anselmo's downtown business area."

The directors gave "concern with economic welfare as well as aesthetic considerations" as reasons for their opposition to the routing of the proposed state highway 17 through their town.

The resolution, directed to the state division of highways, urged that division to "use all its facilities to arrive at an expeditious solution to the route 17 problem."

The chamber also passed a resolution concerning supervisor Thomas T. Storer's proposal for the use of ferry boats for commuter service.

However, chamber secretary manager Mrs. Philip Haley refused to disclose content of the resolution, saying the board wished it mailed to the supervisor before it was made public information.

Marin College Lunch Conditions Attacked

College of Marin students who take their lunch snacks in the campus cafeteria are being forced to make the best of their repast amidst some pretty unappetizing conditions, the college's student executive council claims.

Cups, napkins and paper wrappers litter the tables and floors of the small and crowded building. The floor is spotted with grime which is a mixture of spilled liquids and cigarette ashes.

These charges were made at a meeting of the student executive council this week.

John Bricht, acting chairman of the council, pointed out that conditions may be difficult to correct as the cafeteria is more or less in limbo.

Cafeteria facilities are scheduled to move into the nearly completed campus center sometime this semester. The college district might not want to waste money on the old building, Bricht said.

Council representatives decided to take two approaches:

They will try to get students to police the area themselves, and they will ask college business manager Norman Bird to improve the conditions.

Bird yesterday admitted that "certainly the building and the facilities are below desirable standards," but the biggest problem is that the building is just too small.

"During the noon hour especially," he said, "the room is so crowded . . . there are students moving around with drinks in their hands, bumping into each other and sloshing some of their drinks over onto the floor."

One of the biggest complaints of the executive council was the lack of adequate ashtrays. Students pointed to burns in the linoleum floor and suggested there would be fewer of them if there were more ash trays.

Bird said aluminum tins have been supplies as ash trays. "If more ash trays or waste disposal containers will help the situation, we will certainly get some more," he said.

He estimated the students would be into the shiny and spacious new campus center shortly after Christmas.

Library Building Still On Schedule

Some of the precast aggregate walls for the new public library in Mill Valley are poured and being cured and, weather permitting, the first walls are to be tilted up early in November.

The lower floor slab has been completed, the walls are curing on the slab and all of the steel work necessary for reinforcing the building is expected to be completed next week.

"The builders are pretty much on schedule," Mrs. John P. Farnham, library board president, reported today. Tentative date of completion is April 11.

The board, meeting Thursday night, discussed plans for the new library's opening but took no action, Mrs. Farnham said.

State Stalls Decision On Tam Unification

Action on the proposed creation of three unified school districts in the area of the Tamalpais Union High School District was deferred for a month Thursday by the State Board of Education, meeting in San Francisco.

Next month's meeting will be held Nov. 10 and 11 in Los Angeles.

Waterfront Development On Tiburon Plan Agenda

Application by Tiburon Tidelands Co. for a use permit for waterfront development between Main Street and the Northwestern Pacific Railroad ferry slip has been placed on Monday night's Tiburon Planning Commission agenda.

The meeting is set for 8 p.m. at Del Mar School.

On Thursday, Tidelands president Robert Moor and his wife, Nella, filed a $1,750,000 suit against the city of Tiburon and six city officials. The suit claims harrassment in the firm's attempt to obtain a use permit for the proposed development.

Damages are sought from the city, Mayor Gordon W. Strawbridge, Councilman Anne L. Ellinwood, planning commissioners Stephen H. Nash and Peter Macgowan., City Mgr. Lawrence D. Rose and planning administrator Leslie Gross.

Gross said yesterday the application, for an 180-berth yacht harbor and restaurant-shop complex, was placed on the agenda under an ordinance passed by the city council Sept. 13. The new ordinance provides that any use permit request is automatically approved if it is not acted upon by the planning commission within 40 days after the application is filed.

Tiburon Tideland's application was filed on Feb. 1. City Atty. Robert I. Conn said the ordinance would mean automatic approval 40 days after passage of requests which were filed before its adoption. That 40 days expires next Friday.

Toll Collectors Share Honesty

MADISONVILLE, Ky. (AP)—Stopping at a toll plaza, David Sullivan handed the attendant a $5 bill.

He received change for only $1 which he pitched into the slot.

As he neared the next toll stop, Sullivan realized he had been shortchanged.

He explained his situation to the attendant, who handed over $4. He told Sullivan, "The other attendant phoned ahead and informed me of what happened."

SEW SIMPLE

Test Pattern By Making Sample Of Pretty Print

By EUNICE FARMER

Just as it offends my soul to waste food and other worldly goods, so it offends me to waste time. If you are unsure of the fit of a garment or the style, instead of making it in muslin first, why not make it out of pretty print that you can often find for 25 to 50 cents a yard on sale, muslin costs the same.

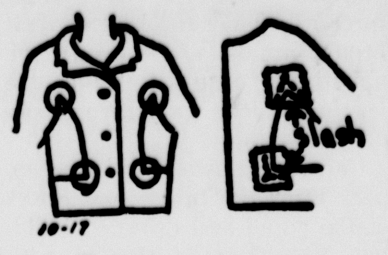
With the bargain yardage, you will have something to wear after putting in the labor on the dress. If it doesn't turn out right and you don't want to use the pattern for your good material, you are out only a little time and a few cents and still have the garment to wear around the house.

Mrs. Henry Fox, Charleston, W. Va., is being awarded this week's Tailor Trix pressing board for this suggestion.

PLEASE TELL your readers about my sad experience in using newspaper under and over material that was difficult to cut. I later found that some of the print from the newspaper had come off on my material and could not be removed.

The heavier paper is the answer when cutting sheer fabrics, but it should be brown wrapping paper or plain white tissue paper.

Mrs. M. B.



I AM OFTEN troubled with buttonholes which draw the interfacing too tight. What am I doing wrong? This has ruined the effect of my suits.

Mrs. D. G.

Dear Mrs. D. G.:

My instructions for bound buttonholes suggest placing a layer of light weight organdy on the wrong side of your fabric as a backing for the buttonholes. After they are made, you will cut the organdy away very close to the buttonhole.

The next step after pressing is to place interfacing over the buttonholes and, after it has been stitched into the front seams, carefully cut a rectangle through the interfacing and bring the buttonhole welts through the interfacing. This not only will act as an anchor for the buttonholes, but will fit nicely under the welts and prevent any pulling or puckering of the interfacing.

I HAVE encountered great problems with patterns that have a separate section that fits into the side of a suit without set-in sleeves. It is something like a gusset but, since it shows very plainly, it must be neat. Mine simply isn't. Can you help with some extra instructions?

Mrs. V. G.

Dear Mrs. V. G.:

This definitely is "gusset type detail" similar to setting a godet into a skirt, and is like many other details that require clipping one section in order to fit another in place.

If you follow these instructions you shouldn't have too much trouble from now on.

1. Reinforce the area that is to be slashed by placing a small square of firm, light-weight cotton on the wrong side of your garment. Machine stitch 1 inch on each side of the exact spot to be clipped or slashed. (a)

2. Slash, as pattern directs, to the very last reinforced stitch.

3. Begin pinning ONE section at a time. Always pin and stitch toward the slashed area first. The section that was slashed will be FACE-UP and have a seamline that begins ⅝ inch wide and tapers to nothing at the point of the slash. The under section of the garment will have a uniform ⅝-inch seam allowance.

4. As you machine stitch, hold the point at the end of the slash securely over the corresponding mark on the under section with a large needle (this prevents slipping). If it should slip while you are stitching, you will have a rounded, poorly shaped area instead of a perfect square or point. Machine stitches should be much smaller on either side of the slashed area.

5. Remove from sewing machine, check to see that the first stitching line is perfect, then pin and stitch the section that begins at the slash and continues to end of seam.

Tea, Shower Fete Bride-Elect

By MOLLY MARIN

Bride-elect Kathryn Kagan of San Rafael was honored at an afternoon tea and miscellaneous shower held at the Oakview Club at The Meadows. Kathy will marry Lt. Charles W. Donaldson of Sonora this winter.

Hostesses were the Mesdames Robert E. Shortridge, Michael Looper, Carl Zimmerman and William Zimmerman.

Attending the shower were Kathy, her mother, Mrs. Victor Kagan, her sisters, Vickie and Krissy Kagan, and her maternal grandmother, Mrs. M. E. Harlan of San Francisco. Family friends, Mrs. Ray Remy of Pasadena and Mrs. Louis Pollack of San Francisco came to Marin for the party.

OTHER GUESTS were the Mesdames Arthur Sauter, Jordan Dell' Era, Samuel Holloway, Robert Evju, C. W. Redman, Willard Hall, Leonard Schmitz, John Flint, S. K. Herzog, William Atchley, Arthur Shallocks, Gedge Knopf, Alex Miller, William Upton, Berne Holman, Thomas Geary, Robert Wilhelm, Jack Gazzola, Daniel Mezzetta, Charles Rosenbaum and Miss Marti Shortridge.

Plans for the wedding of the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Kagan are dependent upon the assignment of the future bridegroom, who is in the regular Army, and now taking special training at Fort Knox. Kathy is a senior at the University of California at Berkeley. Her fiance was graduated from the University in 1962.

MR. AND MRS. Frank Abbott III, and Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Relfe are co-hosting a Kent Woodlands group at the Abbotts tomorrow to interest new members in the Marin Symphony Guild. This is one of a number of gatherings in the county this month during the Guild's annual membership drive for which Mrs. Abbott and Mrs. Relfe serve as area chairmen.

WHILE ABOARD the S. S. Monterey en route to the South Sea Islands, New Zealand, Australia and Honolulu, Mrs. Robert Quinlan will have an opportunity to indulge in her two favorite hobbies—painting and golf. Marin artist Warren Brandon will give art instruction during the cruise and Colin Campbell, champion Australia golfer will give golf lessons.

Mrs. Quinlan will be accompanied by Mrs. Paul Hammel of Carson City, Nev. They will leave the ship to visit points of interest in New Zealand and fly to Melbourne where they will visit Mr. and Mrs. Harry Transue, former Marin residents. On the return voyage, they will stop off at Honolulu for a reunion with Mrs. Quinlan's niece and her husband, Major and Mrs. Turner Croonquist and their four children.

Several parties are being planned for Mrs. Quinlan before her departure. Hostesses will be Mesdames Elbert M. Brown and Rinaldo Belli; William J. Dawson and Edward Byard.

To welcome Mrs. Quinlan on her return just in time for the holiday season, Mrs. Harrison Leppo of Mill Valley, is planning a party.

Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Blount, former Marin neighbors of Mrs. Quinlan, will occupy her home during her absence.

COMMANDER AND MRS. John H. Mundo of Inverness have just returned from an 11,000-mile cross-country trip. They visited National Parks en route and spent some time in Florida. They were amused to find trained seals from California cavorting at St. Petersburg's Marineland.

Mrs. Mundo has recently retired from the Marin County Library staff. The couple are leaving Marin at the end of the month to take up residence at Leisure Town, Walnut Creek.

'Elegance Casualle' Is Planned By LARK

The Marin LARK (Ladies Aid Retarded Children) will hold a fashion show on Nov. 4 at La Petite Auberge Restaurant in San Rafael.

Mrs. George Kerson is president and Mrs. Melvin Warenbeck chairman for the "Elegance Casualle" luncheon show.

Members of the Mannequin League of Marin will model for the event.

Untermeyer Lights A Torch For Poetry

By BRYCE W. ANDERSON

While a larger crowd was more demonstrative in its enthusiasm at a high school game on the adjacent football field, about 300 in College of Marin's Olney Hall listened in rapt attention for an hour and a half last night to an 80-year-old man discussing and reading poetry.

When he was through, they applauded long and lustily, and lingered in their seats. They did not want to let him go. He had touched their hearts.

He was no ordinary 80-year-old. He was Louis Untermeyer, he has devoted most of a long life to the verse of England and America, with the result that his anthologies sit beside Shakespeare and the Bible on millions of bookshelves.

He proved to the young and old gathered for the fifth of the college's concert and lecture series that poets may be urbane and witty, and poetry a thing to laugh at (and with) while it ennobles the reader or listener.

His subject was listed as "What Makes Modern Poetry Modern?" It could as well have been "What Makes Modern Poetry Poetry?"

He found the key in Robert Frost ("one of the three great American poets of this century"), E. E. Cummings, T. S. Eliot, Phyllis McGinley and Dylan Thomas, and he read selections from all.

The difference between modern and traditional poetry, said Untermeyer, is "the curious breakdown between what we used to call light verse and poetry," resulting in "playfulness actually merged with profundity." Its key, he discovered, is in experimentation and protest.

Cummings, most controversial of those from whom he read, "makes a queer layout" on the printed page "on the theory that people read poetry too lazily."

However, "except for a few typographical barriers, it becomes a very beautiful poem," he said. "Maybe in poetry we need signs on how to read, as we have in music."

He read from his own poems, too, demonstrating that "poetry exists in everything."

To win the audience, he opened with wisecracks at his own expense, relating that "I am the oldest living non-graduate of Dewitt Clinton High School in New York."

On his 80th birthday last week, he said, "the class of 1903 at Dewitt Clinton gave a dinner at which I was presented my high school diploma; there aren't many people who get a high school diploma on their 80th birthdays."

From there — with the audience in the palm of his hand and wrapped in the sound of his sometimes-cracking voice — he went on to anecdotes of Frost, his great favorite and longtime friend, and to discussion of poetry as probably few in the audience had heard it discussed before.

By then, everyone in the crowd was his friend.

A woman was intrigued by his reference to Frost as one of "the three great American poets of the century." Who were the others? she asked.

"I'm glad you asked that," said Untermeyer. His answer: Walt Whitman and Emily Dickinson.

"Any nation," said Untermeyer, "would be proud to produce these three great poets in a century."

There will probably be a run on Frost, Whitman and Dickinson at the public libraries in Marin next week.

were being taken at military installations, target of some demonstrations.

The Defense Department said, in answer to a question, that "advisory messages have been sent to all military installations in the United States and overseas" concerning possible demonstrations during the weekend.

These messages, a spokesman said, "confirmed previous standing instruction . . ."

These procedures, he said, vary with the type of base.

In Geneva, N.Y., an assistant vice president of the University of California said today students would do better to try to achieve their goals by self-discipline.

Garrison H. Davidson, a retired Army general, spoke of last fall's Berkeley demonstrations which he said were "not a question of freedom of speech but rather lack of respect for constituted authority."

Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor said in Chicago — as 100 pickets paraded outside — that he is personally "indifferent" to the demonstrations.

Telephone Service Still Out Today

Telephone service had not been restored at noon today to some of the 175 businesses and 400 homes cut off yesterday when underground lines encased in concrete under Francisco Boulevard, San Rafael, were cut by crews working on lines for the Marin Municipal Water District.

Telephone company officials said today they did not know how many lines had been restored, but said most of them had, and all would be by tomorrow.

which speakers denounced U.S. foreign policy.

The VDC had planned to walk the 7½ miles from Berkeley to Oakland Army Base to continue its protest outside the base. The VDC planned no civil disobedience, such as blocking of exits, but said one of its "major goals" would be to talk to soldiers.

This aspect brought a sharp statement by Alameda County Dist. Atty. J. Frank Coakley who said that attempts to persuade soldiers to disobey orders "smack of treason and could constitute a felonious and seditious violation of federal law."

City officials of Berkeley and Oakland rejected the group's request for parade permits and two federal courts quickly upheld the decision.

Leaper Report Brings Search

Coast Guard searched for over an hour last night for the body of an unidentified woman believed to have jumped from the Golden Gate Bridge about 5:30 p.m. yesterday.

No body could be found after motorists reported seeing a young, dark-haired woman wearing blue slacks and a blue blouse who was standing on the east side of the bridge midspan and appeared to be preparing to jump.

Highway patrol officers reported finding a red woman's wallet on the sidewalk near where the woman was seen. The wallet contained a small amount of cash but no identification, they said.

The woman was seen at the side of the bridge by Mrs. A. Campbell of 26 Lovell Way, Mill Valley, and by Elijah E. Papke of Daly City, who told officers he saw the woman climb over the bridge railing and onto a scaffolding.

Quentin Village House Burns

A fire caused $15,000 damage to a wooden six-room house in the main street of San Quentin Village yesterday.

Three units of Marin County, assisted by fire trucks from San Quentin and San Rafael, battled with the blaze which began shortly after 2 p.m.

Marin County fire chief Louis Bloom said the house had been vacated for about a month and the owner, Charles H. Meyer, had told him he did not know the tenants had moved out. The rent was paid to Sunday.

Bloom estimated the house damage at $10,000 and the damage to personal property at $5,000.

DISPUTE

signed by Gromme and Priestley of San Rafael, to the Novato Building Department for checking.

He said he was told that he did not need a building permit for a fire district as it came in the same category as schools which do not get city building permits. He also said that the city building department refused to check the plans.

Lawrence A. Coleman, director of public works, said that Chapman told the department that he did not need a building permit.

"The schools do not get permits. They do their own inspecting," Coleman admitted.

"However, we have an agreement with the North Marin County Water District and the Novato Sanitary District, that they take out building permits and we pay their installation fees," Coleman said.

Then on Wednesday, Merl D. Mauroni, city building inspector, told Chapman that he could not pour the concrete foundations until he had a soils test.

On Thursday, Chapman, under protest, paid the $303.50 for the city building permit.

Coleman stood back of Mauroni and told Chapman not to proceed pouring the concrete until he was sure of the soils in San Marin.

"We would accept a letter from the architect that it was all right to pour the footings, or a soils test, but we have not received either of them," Coleman said.

Chapman said that he paid off the employees on the job and transferred Jess Gerlach, the foreman on the job, to work he has at Sonoma State Hospital.

He said soils tests either have been made already by the architect or would be by the first of the week.

"We will not start work again until it is all straightened out with the city," he said.

He stated that he tried to get the matter before the Novato City Council at its meeting Tuesday night, but was too late to get it on the agenda.

Probe Continues Of Drowned Man

Investigation continued today in the disappearance of George Simms from his boat Wednesday night, the coroner's office reported.

The 35-year-old bartender was on his way from work in Tiburon to his home in San Rafael when seen to fall overboard by his wife, Dorothy, who was at the wheel of the 27-foot cabin cruiser.

OBITUARIES

Admiral Thayer Succumbs

Rear Admiral Rufus G. Thayer (USN-ret.) collapsed and died this morning, after cutting wood behind his summer cabin on Lucas Valley Road in Nicasio.

According to his wife, Anna, she and the admiral had come to the cabin yesterday from their San Francisco home at 255 28th Avenue, County Coroner Frank J. Keaton reported.

This morning, the 67-year-old admiral and two employees went to cut wood on his property and at 9:15 he returned to the house to say he had been "stung by something." Thayer reported feeling a "tingling all over" and went to rest on a couch. A moment later, he collapsed.

He was dead on arrival at Marin General Hospital. The coroner said an autopsy would be performed.

Thayer is also survived by two sons, Rufus G. Thayer, Jr. of San Francisco, and Donovan S. Thayer of Atherton; a brother, Admiral William H. Thayer, and a sister, Mrs. Thomas L. Wark of Greenbrae.

FRANCIS KEITH

Francis Keith, retired Veterans Administration official, died yesterday at Novato General Hospital. He was 85.

A native of Cedar Rapids, Iowa, Keith was a graduate of Simpson College in that state. He entered government service in 1902, rising rapidly to the position of special investigator and field representative for the Veterans Administration.

He served the administration at posts throughout the United States and in 1929 was sent to the Philippine Islands to establish administration services there. He remained there four years, returning to serve at Fort Miley in San Francisco until his retirement in 1948.

Keith is survived by his wife, Louise, with whom he lived at 1033 First Street, Novato; three sons, Robert, Howard and Marvin, and a daughter, Miss Mildred Keith.

Funeral arrangements are pending at Simic Funeral Home, Calistoga.

JACK F. BRADY

Jack F. Brady, a prison correctional officer formerly at San Quentin for 14 years, collapsed and died yesterday from an apparent heart attack at the prison's work comp at Crystal Creek, near Redding. He had been a guard at the camp for the past four years.

Brady, 55, was a native of Oklahoma. He was a member of Shasta County Peace Officers' Assn., California State Employees' Assn. and California Correctional Officers' Assn.

He is survived by his wife, Beatrice Brady; a daughter, Mrs. Vida Lea Norton of San Rafael; a brother, Harry Brady of Las Vegas; and seven grandchildren.

Funeral will be held Tuesday at 11 a.m. at Keaton's, Fifth Avenue and E Street, San Rafael. Burial will be in Golden Gate National Cemetery, Colma.

ALBERT WHITAKER

Private funeral services will be held Monday for Albert C. Whitaker, father of Douglas M. Whitaker and Mrs. Newell Armsby, both of Kentfield.

Whitaker, a retired economics professor at Stanford University, died Thursday at his home in Palo Alto, aged 88. He was a native of Franklin, Pa., and retired from Stanford 23 years ago.

Other survivors are: a son, Albert Whitaker of Woodland; and a daughter, Mrs. Jack Domergue Jr., of Tahoe City.

KEITH CARLIN

WASHINGTON (AP) — Keith Carlin, who served as secretary to two California governors, died Thursday in Walter Reed Army Medical Center. He was 73. Death was attributed to diabetes and a heart ailment. He was stricken while on a visit from his home in La Jolla.

In 1926 he became executive secretary and then private secretary to the late C. C. Young, then governor of California. About 20 years later he became secretary to Gov. Earl Warren, now chief justice of the United States.

HELEN REGAN

Helen Regan, formerly a resident of Marin County for many years, died yesterday at her home in Sonoma. She was 74.

A native of Ireland, Mrs. Regan lived in San Rafael from 1931 until about a year ago.

She is survived by her husband, John Regan of Sonoma; two daughters, Mrs. Helen Candrian of Redding and Mrs. Beatrice Hampton of San Rafael; two sons, Michael Regan of Alhambra and William Regan of Forest Knolls; two sisters, Mrs. Barbara Burke of Chicago, and Nora Lane of New Jersey; and a brother, Patrick Bolton of Ireland.

Funeral will be held from Duggan's Mission Chapel, Sonoma at 10:30 a.m. Tuesday followed by Requiem Mass at 11 a.m. in St. Francis Solano Church. Burial will be in the Golden Gate National Cemetery.

Autopsy Result To Be Announced

Results of an autopsy on Lillian E. Fonk will be announced Monday, Coroner Frank J. Keaton said today.

Mrs. Fonk, 52, died under strange circumstances Thursday. She had been received unconscious and bruised at San Rafael General Hospital Monday, was transferred to Marin General Hospital and never regained consciousness.

Her husband, John P. Fonk, 48, said he found his wife in that condition on the floor of their bedroom at the Fireside Hotel at Manzanita, which she had managed since Sept. 15.

Sheriff's officers and district attorney's investigators are continuing an investigation.

Housing Pledges To Be Requested

Church members in Marin in a few weeks will be asked to sign a pledge card promising to "recognize the right of all minority people to rent or buy housing in my immediate neighborhood . . . I shall welcome them as neighbors."

The campaign is being sponsored by the Marin Council on Religion and Race which has its headquarters at 27 Arcangel Way, San Rafael.

The pledge will mean church-going Marinites will be asked to "make a committment" to themselves, Bernard T. Engel, chairman of the council explained. He is a psychologist at the University of California Medical Center in San Francisco and resides in San Rafael.

"Apparently this is the first county in the entire nation where this is being attempted. People will be confronted with this card and a decision will have to be made," Engel said.

The card is the same one sent out in recent years by the Marin Committee for Fair Play. The council is working through "social action" representatives from Marin churches in setting up its campaign.

Frank Dill, of Peacock Gap, publicity chairman for the program called it a "crusade."

The responses will be used to estimate Marin's feeling toward minority persons, Engel explained.

Religious Life To Be Subject Of Discussion

A conference telling of religious vocations in the Roman Catholic church will be held Thursday and Friday at St. Raphael's Church in San Rafael.

Experts on religious vocations will speak briefly during both of the evening sessions and then be roving moderators in a table discussion which will follow the talks.

Members of the clergy, nuns, brothers, novices, seminarians, teenagers and laymen will be seated at the tables to provide varied view points.

"This is a question of involvement for everyone, not just teachers, or parents . . . " said Mrs. Charles Clifford. She and her husband are chairmen of the sessions, beginning at 8 p.m. at the parish auditorium.

On the first evening, Rev. James McKay, archdiocesan director of vocations, will define the religious vocation.

Very Rev. Albert Giaquinto, S.S., president of St. Joseph's Seminary, Mountain View, and Rev. Eugene Van Antwerp, S.S., spiritual director of St. Patrick's Seminary, Menlo Park, will tell of seminary life.

Sister Rose Maureen Kelly, M.M., who is a member of the San Francisco Human Rights Commission and soon will become novice mistress at Maryknoll, New York, will open the second evening session with a talk on religion as a vocation for women.

Donald Kreps, principal of Redwood High School will speak as a father and teacher; Father Giaquinto will return to give suggestions on encouraging religious vocations.

Rev. Thomas I. Kennedy, parish pastor, will open the conference and give the closing address.

Russia's Politiics To Be Analyzed

Rev. Andrei Urusov of the Byzantine rite Catholic Church, will speak on "Current Political and Economic Practices in Russia" at 8 p.m. tomorrow at St. Isabella's Roman Catholic Church, Terra Linda.

Fther Urusov was born in Russia and fled with his family to Yugoslavia at the time of the revolution. He is director of the Catholic Russian Center in San Francisco.

Lutheran Radio Ready For Africa

The $1 million technical installation of Radio Voice of the Gospel, the Lutheran World Federation's powerful short wave facility in Ethiopia, has been completed after four years of construction.

The new system will enable the Addis Ababa center to better direct its radio beam toward areas throughout Africa, the Near East, and southern Asia.

Christ's Beard

NEW YORK (UPI) — Archeologists writing in the Catholic Digest say the one positive opinion about the face of Christ is that He was bearded, since it was the custom at that time for all Jewish men to wear beards.

Catholic Church Has Hebrew Sign

SANTA FE (UPI) — A Hebrew symbol for Jehovah is embedded in stone over the entrance to St. Francis Cathedral, center of the far-flung Santa Fe Catholic Archdiocese in New Mexico.

Records show that only one other Catholic cathedral in the world — in Bulgaria — has a similar inscription. The story behind both inscriptions is the same.

Between 1866 and 1886, St. Francis Cathedral was built by Archbishop John Baptiste Lamy in Santa Fe. A tireless worker and a fierce collector of funds to build the cathedral, Archbishop Lanny tapped the purses of all Santa Fe merchants.

At the time, trade in New Mexico was carried on by wagon merchants. They traveled from town to town, headquartering in Santa Fe.

Many of the merchants were Jewish and had come from eastern cities to trade with the Indians and ranchers along the Rio Grande.

Legend has it the Archbishop imposed a tithing on all the merchants in Santa Fe to help build the church, regardless of their religious beliefs. But two Jewish merchants, the Spiegelberg brothers, gave more than their required shares.

The Archbishop, ordinarily a man with few friends, felt a strong compassion for the two merchants. When the entrance lintel to St. Francis Cathedral was put in place, it contained the Hebrew symbol on a stone triangle.

The story of the Bulgarian symbol is similar.

Family Of Singers To Be At Church

The Karlstad Family Singers will appear in an 11 a.m. concert tomorrow at Christ the Victor Lutheran Church, Fairfax.

The family from Tacoma, Wash., will present classic choral music, hymns and folk songs. Rev. and Mrs. Alfred M. Karlstad and their five children make up the singing group.

Spaghetti

The annual public spaghetti dinner for the benefit of the youth program will be held at the Grace Lutheran Church, Novato, at 5:30 p.m., tomorrow, sponsored by the Walter League.

CYO Barbecue

A barbecue will be held by the Novato Catholic Youth Organization from 3 to 7 p.m. tomorrow at the Novato Lions Park at Stafford Dam.

Men Of 3 Christian Faiths Start Monastery For Unity

WIEN, Mo. (AP)—Four members of three different Christian faiths have formed a monastery in this north central Missouri hamlet to promote Christian unity through prayer.

Two Roman Catholics, an Episcopalian and a married Syrian Orthodox priest are the men of the new monastic order, the Brothers of Christian Unity. The order is open to Roman Catholics, Orthodox and Protestants.

"We live under modified Benedictine rules," said the Rev. Robert Bowman, the Episcopalian. "This essentially means we do not have corporal punishment. The life is one of poverty, chastity, obedience and prayer."

Other members of the order are Rev. Joseph Starmann and former lay Brother Joseph Bona, both Roman Catholics, and the oblate, Rev. Francis Forbes of the Syrian Orthodox Church.

An oblate cannot become a full member because he is married and the pledge of chastity prohibits him. Father Starmann and Brother Bona are full members.

Rev. Forbes lives at the monastery with his wife and three children. Father Starmann started the order.

The Most Rev. Joseph M. Marling, Roman Catholic bishop of Jefferson City, allowed the group to use an old Franciscan monastery at Wien, a farming town of 40 persons. The monastery was abandoned by the Franciscans in 1916.

Church Studies Drugs In Marin

Members of Synanon will speak at 7:30 p.m. tomorrow at the First Methodist Church of San Rafael in a program intended as the beginning of a church project dealing with drug addiction in Marin.

"We have surveyed educators, doctors and law enforcement officers in the county and it is obvious that an educational program among youths and adults alike is needed in Marin to curb what could be a serious narcotics problem," said William Pugh, chairman of the church's Commission on Christian Social Concerns.

The meeting is open to the public and members of church's youth group have been invited to attend. Commission members plan to visit Synanon soon.

Church Challenges Laymen To Action

Members of the San Anselmo First Presbyterian Church have embarked on an "action-study" program to face community, area and national problems and do something about them.

"It's a challenge to the layman of the church to assume his ministry," said Gary Smith, director of Christian education at the church.

"In the past there's been the tendency for lots of study and not much action — but there's also the problem of wild-eyed action without much study."

Smith is leading the program in which church members can sign up for nine study-discussion groups which will follow through with what they learn to give real aid to the community.

"It's climbing out of our stained glass foxholes and getting involved with the world," Smith said.

Action-study groups are:

Alcoholism in Marin—The group will study the medical, psychological, socialogical and theological effects of alcoholism under personnel of the Marin Institute on Alcoholism in San Rafael and hope to do clerical, publicity or any other needed work for the group.

Men in Prison—Members of the church who work at San Quentin prison will help a group to study the effects of prison, penal reform and possibly work with parolees, prisoners' families and volunteer to aid at the prison.

Teen-agers Anonymous—Adults study, discuss whether teen-agers need recreation or a challenge; they hope to work with girls at Sunnyhills in San Anselmo.

Ministry to Bay Area Minorities—The group will cooperate with local civil rights groups and may attempt to aid minority groups in finding jobs, and housing. They will study the Oakland area and its large Negro population.

Southern Civil Rights—Members will continue aiding the Presbyterian mission school in Camden, Ala., as they have for the past six months, in working at the school and with leaders of the Negro and white communities to further understanding.

Theolunchians—The aim is to give persons a chance to discuss theology during Sunday noon lunches at the church following the morning services.

Creativity and the Church—Members interested in the arts will try to establish a "dialogue with the secular artist—the artist is equipped to look at the world as it really is," Smith said. The group may aim toward an art show or concert or use other methods to find out what artists "think the Christian church is saying."

Faith and the Frenetic Family—A study of behavior, community problems, adults and the children of the family, of money, spending of time and what action to take to better the family's life.

Who Are We?—Research into the "nature of the 1,100 persons we call this church to find out our potential for serving the world and find out some things that need doing locally.

SURVEY—Four-year-old Ronnie Knudsen, son of Mr. and Mrs. Konrad Knudsen of Sausalito, ponders how to fill out a survey card from the Roman Catholic Star of the Sea Church when he can't even write. Church members tomorrow and in following weeks will concentrate on the adults in a door-to-door survey to find interests of Catholics in the parish which is composed of Sausalito, Marin City and Tennessee Valley.

Saint's Day For Luke, The Gentile

By LOUIS CASSELS
United Press International

On the Christian calendar of Saints' Days, Monday is dedicated to the memory of the Bible's only gentile author.

His name was Luke. He was a physician, a missionary, a first-rate reporter and a literary craftsman whose writing will bear comparison with that of Shakespeare and Dante.

Scholars have concluded that he was a Greek doctor in Antioch, the first great center of gentile christianity.

Luke may have been converted to Christianity by the preaching of St. Paul. In any event, he joined the great apostle's missionary team on Paul's second voyage through Asia Minor. Luke worked at Philippi for a time as resident evangelist.

He also lived at Caesarea for two years while Paul was imprisoned there, and accompanied Paul on his final journey to Rome.

Luke's reputation as a reporter rests solidly upon the Book of Acts, which is an extremely detailed account of the events that took place in the Christian community during the earliest years of the church —from the time of Christ's ascension, about 30 A.D., until Paul's arrival in Rome, about 60 A.D.

But Luke's greatest contribution is the Gospel which he wrote (as he explained in a preface) to provide "an orderly account" of the life and ministry of Jesus Christ.

Missionary Urges China For U.N.

NEW YORK (UPI)—The United States must recognize Red China and approve its admission to the United Nations if a nuclear war is to be avoided, says Robbins Strong, former missionary to China, in an article in United Church Herald.

"If as Christians we take seriously the precept that God created the whole world, then we cannot behave as if one-fourth of God's children are not part of it," says Strong.

Novato Church Men To Conduct Service

Harold Bright, William J. J. Smith and Roy Peterson will share the pulpit for both services of Layman's Sunday tomorrow at the Novato Presbyterian Church.

A men's choral group will furnish the music. Charles Douglas will play the organ.

A breakfast for all the men of the church will be held at 7:30 a.m. at the home of Charles Douglas, 1638 Center Road.

Protests On Army Liquor

The temperance director of Seventh-day Adventists in western America said last week that a 450-ton shipment of liquor just arrived in Saigon for American troops "is probably the best news the Viet Cong has gotten for months."

"This is only one of a number of shipments of whiskey, gin, vodka planned for movement to our troops from the Oakland army terminal in the future," declared William S. Lee, Altadena, temperance director of Seventh-day Adventists in California, Arizona, Nevada, Utah and Hawaii.

"This shipment and those planned for the future are probably the best news the Viet Cong has gotten for months," Lee said. "They know that liquor makes for sloppy soldiering.

"If the news reports we get are to be believed, our troops in Viet Nam need something to make them more alert to the ghostly movements of the Viet Cong, not a bottle full of stuff which takes alertness away."

National Border Crossing Easier Than State Line

SALZBURG, AUSTRIA — Crossing an international border in Western Europe in a rented auto turns out to be easier than entering California from a neighboring state.

The approach to an international border gives the neophyte some concern. You are advised to have your "papers" ready: (1) your passport, (2) international driver's license, (3) international auto insurance "green card," and (4) a vehicle ownership certificate. (The latter two items are supplied by the firm from which you rent the car).

As you approach the border (frontier in Europe), and join the line of waiting vehicles, you try to recall the export limitations and prohibitions of the country you are leaving as well as the import limitations and prohibitions of the country you are entering — all the while hoping that what's in your baggage will conform.

Finally the line moves and you come to a fellow not unlike a Golden Gate Bridge toll collector. To save time you offer him your fist full of documents —like handing your commute ticket to the collector on the bridge.

Without examining or even touching the wad of documents, he cheerfully waves you on. You have crossed the frontier without the aggravating baggage inspection which you are subjected to when you enter your home state of California.

Some Eastern European nations are still tough at the borders but even they are getting better, Czechoslovakia being the latest to conform to the pattern of minimum red tape.

SALZBURG, NAMED for its ancient salt mines, has 32 Catholic churches and only one Protestant one.

A visiting Protestant cannot help wondering if this is traceable at least in part to the torture chamber in the Hohensalzburg fortress situated on the heights overlooking this picturesque city astride the Salzach River. The Chritsian Church came to Salzburg well before the year 700. The fortress developed with the rise of the Holy Roman Empire when prince-bishops were both temporal and spiritual rulers. Charles V combatted the Protestant "heresy" with the torture chamber. You can see one in the Hohensalzburg fortress, complete with chains, dungeon, sweat chambers, rack and wheel.

The guides don't tell you who were the victims of the torture, but history does. And today's census of churches in Salzburg seems to be a natural result of what one reads in history.

Incidentally, you can see similar instruments of torture in Protestant prince-bishop castles in Germany, notably in Franconia.

GARMISH-PARTENKIRCHEN—Alpine highways are in fact what most Californians dream of when they think of "scenic highways." And they are subject to some of the same disagreeable facts of life.

Trucks use them, too. European trucks are low powered (by American standards) and most are powered by diesel engines. They should be more efficient—everything else in Germany is. But judging by the clouds of exhaust smoke, they are not. Also, they are slow on uphill grades. So chances are good that you will drive along the beautiful Alpine highways behind a truck in a cloud of smelly diesel exhaust smoke.

It is to be hoped that when standards are finally set for scenic highways in California, effective controls on truck exhaust fumes will be required.

Smog does NOT become the otherwise beautiful Alpine valleys and vistas. But you sometimes travel in a cloud of it.

GARMISH-PARTENKIRCHEN — along with Innsbruck, Mittenwald and Oberammergau—attract tourists by the thousands. As a result, streets are lined with "quaint" shops—just like Carmel. And like Carmel, prices are not exactly at bargain levels. Further, there is almost as much English spoken in these Alpine tourist center shops and restaurants as in Carmel.

If the American tourist in Europe gets homesick for English, he can get over it quickly in a couple of tourist traps.

GERMANS ARE AND ALWAYS have been known as hardworking people. The recovery of their nation in a short 20 years since it was almost totally destroyed in World War II is due, first, to German hard work.

They go to work earlier in the morning than Americans and they remain later at night. But prosperity has brought affluence. The two-hour lunch is now standard for big city business offices.

The coffee break, especially at 3 p.m., has become an institution.

In Germany, a coffee break done properly requires about an hour. You must go to a "cafe konditorei" for coffee and extremely high calorie pastry. One pastry is par, but several cups of coffee are necessary, it seems, each loaded with cream or milk and sugar.

It's no wonder that the standard German supper may consist only of cheese, sausage (wurst) and beer or wine.

Statistics recently published by the West German government indicate that the German work week—despite early starts and late closings — is the shortest in Europe. If the rise of German prosperity continues, the German work week may fall below that of the U.S.A.

But there is evidence that they still work hard when they work. How else would people who eat so much so often continue for the most part to remain in good physical condition and relatively slim and trim?

SKIPPER, 71, SOLOS ACROSS THE PACIFIC

A home-made raft reached harbor recently with a 12,000-mile solo voyage to its credit. The 115-day trip extended across the Pacific from Peru to Australia.

The 35-foot square-rigger called "Age Unlimited," had a jaunty 71-year-old skipper, who is planning another solo venture—this time across the Atlantic.

The dauntless sailor's purpose was to "prove that a 70-year-old man is worth something more than a comfortable seat in a rocking chair . . . In this civilization of ours, they want to dump a man in the ash can when he's 50."

Anyone's service and usefulness should not be measured by age alone. In fact, the later years with experience and wisdom can be most valuable both to oneself and others.

Do something, however little, to find new and challenging horizons of usefulness for the elderly amid the many opportunities right at their doorsteps.

"May the Lord make you to increase and abound in charity towards one another."
(1 Thessalonians 3:12)

Never let me underestimate, O Lord, the potential of any of Your children, young or old.

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

Fifth Grader Urges Vote

Editor, Independent-Journal:

All men have an equal right in their government.

It is important to vote properly. In the democratic system which has two candidates, the people can vote for either one they want. We vote because we want to be sure that we get good leaders. If we don't vote we may lose our right to vote.

Here are some ways that voting can help strengthen democracy. The people can vote a candidate out of office if he isn't doing his job well. It prevents one man ruling. All men have control over their government. The people can choose any candidate they want.

Here are some ways that we could get more people to vote. Use newspapers and radio. Schools should educate school children to learn and know the importance of voting so when they reach voting age they will take advantage of the privilege. They could put signs on the roads and have parades in the streets telling people to vote by telling them what they have to go through to get back on the voting card.

Vote so you can help choose who you want.

Gallinas Services District Defended

Editor, Independent-Journal:

As an original homeowner and firm supporter of our Community Service district board, I have been most upset by the recent degrading coverage given Gallinas Village. I should like to quote an article that is as applicable today as it was 76 years ago, when it appeared in the first issue of the P.E.O. Record, Jan. 1, 1889.

"In every organization and society there are to be found people who seem to be too busy in finding fault to have any time left to devote to actual work. They are the people who can get into the way of others. They can hinder every good work, defeat every good effort. They predict failure, and then exert themselves to secure the fulfillment of their own prophecies.

"Every society is composed of two classes — workers and grumblers. The workers never grumble and the grumblers never work."

Liquefied Gas Defended By Group

Editor, Independent-Journal:

Reference is made to your editorial appearing in the Sept. 28 issue . . . entitled "Valley Natural Gas Service Depends Upon Residents." We wish to register a strong protest to the tone of the editorial with its implication that modern gas service is not now available to the residents of San Geronimo Valley.

Nothing could be further from the truth, since clean, efficient and dependable liquefied petroleum gas (LP-gas) is now being used by many well-satisfied customers in the area. Natural gas service might be less expensive, but certainly no better.

Your bias in the matter is clearly indicated by your statement that unless residents sign up for natural gas they "will have to stumble along on more expensive butane, or wood and coal." For your information over 11 million families are using LP-gas in the United States.

To many housewives it means modern comfort and convenience. It heats homes, cooks food, heats water, and dries clothes.

To many industry executives LP-gas is a vital source of energy for running fork-lift trucks, cutting metals and powering generators.

To many farmers and ranchers LP-gas provides power for tractors and trucks and heat for crop dryers and brooders.

To many vehicle owners, including several bus and taxi fleets, LP-gas is a clean-burning and odorless fuel leaving no noxious fumes to contaminate the air.

In short, LP-gas is a highly beneficial and extremely versatile fuel, for use wherever there is need for heat and fuel. You do our industry a decided disservice by classifying our product with wood and coal, and implying that it is a second-class energy source in the modern world.

What's Value Of Second Deck

Editor, Independent-Journal:

Regarding the new proposal for a second deck on the Golden Gate Bridge, I fail to understand just what good this would accomplish.

As I understand the proposal, there would be ultimately five lanes in one direction on the lower deck and five lanes in the opposite direction on the upper deck. Since the bottleneck now occurs during the peak traffic periods in either direction and we now have four lanes available during these peak periods by virtue of the flexible center lanes, I cannot see any improvement over the present condition except for the one extra available lane in each direction . . .

I agree completely with Supervisor Peter Behr when he says it is a mistake to continue thinking that the automobile can solve metropolitan transportation problems.

The only sensible solution, as I see it, is to have Marin become a part of the overall Bay Area Rapid Transit system as quickly as possible . . .

Another thing I fail to understand is why the bridge can be remodeled to take another deck of four lanes of cars and cannot be remodeled and lightened to take two lines for light weight rapid transit trains. This simply does not make engineering sense, except for the fact that the engineers who said it should not take rapid transit trains were hired by the bridge directors . . .

Let us not make a mistake on this very important question that will affect the future of Marin County for a long time in the future. Let us not rush into a second deck without a complete study of its implications and the implications of getting a rapid transit line that will tie into the Bay Area Rapid Transit system.

College Overcrowding Happens Despite Being Long Predicted

By G. K. HODENFIELD
(James Marlow is on vacation.)

WASHINGTON (AP)—On a schedule as inexorable as the sun's rising, the college crush hit the nation's campuses this fall.

WITH RARE exception, the campuses weren't ready.

The final figures aren't yet in, but there are approximately 5.4 million college students enrolled this fall.

This is almost two million more than the 3.6 million students enrolled just five short years ago, and an eight per cent increase over last fall.

The biggest burden has fallen on the public colleges and universities, which enroll about 65 per cent of all undergraduates.

For example, the University of Minnesota enrolled a freshman class of 9,614 last month. This is more than the combined freshman enrollment of 9,240 in all eight Ivy League schools—Yale, Harvard, Dartmouth, Brown, the University of Pennsylvania, Columbia, Cornell and Princeton.

TO COPE WITH the hordes of students, the public institutions have started classes in early morning and run them late into the night. They have taken over private homes as dormitories, and rented space in motels. They have squeezed three students into rooms designed for two, increased the use of classroom television and opened branch campuses.

And, tragically they have shut the doors on thousands of qualified applicants for lack of space.

In New Jersey, 25,000 were turned away, some of them honor students and valedictorians. In North Carolina it was 5,000. The University of Illinois alone had to reject 7,000.

The college crush didn't just sneak upon the United States. Educators have seen it coming for years.

THEY SAW IT coming when the number of births jumped from 2.8 million in the 12 months ending June 20, 1946, to 3.9 million in the next year.

They saw it coming as the percentage of high school graduates going on to college zoomed upward. In 1939-40, only 14 per cent went on to college, in 1944-45 it was 29 per cent. In 1964-65 it was 43.2 per cent.

Although college enrollment will continue to climb, from this year's 5.4 million to 10 or 11 million by 1975, the crush may never again be as bad as it is now.

FIRST, the birth rate leveled off after that 1947 peak. Second, the public institutions are laboring almost frantically to expand their facilities.

BARKER ON CHINA

Red Regime Medical Training Slips Badly

By GEORGE BARKER

In China today graduates of the Chinese equivalent of our junior high school often perform appendectomies and other operations. These are the aptly titled "simple doctors." They are usually posted in the county seats of counties where they are the only surgeons available.

This is pretty terrible and helps remind us that—despite the A-bomb—China is still a scientifically backward country. However, before we get too smug, let us realize the problems inherent in providing medical care for 750 million people in an impoverished land. The problem of providing enough even partially qualified doctors is made difficult by the Communist Party.

THE PARTY is determined that all doctors shall receive large doses of political education along with their medical training. To implement this policy, in some cases, peasants with no medical knowledge have been put in charge of medical colleges. A group of medical student refugees who got out through Hong Kong reported they had spent five years in medical school, but only a total of four years was spent in actual medical studies. A fifth of their time was used in political indoctrination and working in the fields with the peasants.

The emphasis on "Red and expert," as the slogan goes, often results in anti-Red and inept, if we are to believe the evidence. A reasonably objective weekly published in Hong Kong, "China News Analysis," reported recently: "From Chung Shan Medical College in Canton close to Hong Kong many are allowed to come visit relatives in Hong Kong and Macau. A few years ago half the students came to Hong Kong for winter holidays one semester and did not return, because after graduation you are given your assignment and it becomes more difficult to get out. After some time, however, many of them did return because they found that there was no outlet for them and no possibility of their continuing their studies either in Hong Kong or in the Western world. The Hong Kong government was prepared to employ in hospitals and clinics doctors who graduated in the early years of the People's Republic but not those who have done their studies in later years, and, in view of the decline in medical education, this is understandable."

CHINA STILL produces some first-rate doctors, but they are the exception. The pressing need for quantity has led to a sacrifice of quality. At the summit, in a class by itself, stands the China Medical University, the old Peking Union Medical College, originally built by British and American missionary societies in 1906 and later supported by the Rockefeller Foundation. The highest specialized training is given here, even today, to a handful of selected, first-rank students.

TO TRY to make up for its lack of modern medical doctors, China still trains large numbers in accupuncture and herb medicine. A few years ago the authorities were pushing these traditional methods of healing. However, it appears unlikely that ginseng will ever prove an adequate substitute for streptomycin.

The Country Parson

"I wish I were always foolish enough to speak the truth."

REMEMBER WHEN?

10 YEARS AGO

Plans were announced for construction of a new Catholic church in Marin, St. Sebastian's, just east of Marin Catholice High School, to be constructed in Spanish colonial style.

Two freeway agreements between the County of Marin and the State Division of Highways cleared the way for construction of the approach road to the new Richmond-San Rafael Bridge.

Work started on filling of 250 acres of tidelands in East San Rafael, starting with dredging south of Murphy Rock.

20 YEARS AGO

The labor-management War Chest committee called on every worker living in Marin to give not less than a day's pay to the Marin War Chest.

T. Fred Bagshaw, chairman of the Marin County Board of Supervisors, called for hiring of a transportation engineer to make a survey of the transportation needs of Marin County, after a Greyhound bus strike left Marin without bus transportation for 19 days.

Campaigner Hides Party In New York

'Republican Kennedy' Denies Demo Charges

(EDITOR'S NOTE—It's an odd mayoralty campaign in New York, where the Democrats keep trying to "expose" Rep. John V. Lindsay as a Republican, while Lindsay seems oblivious of the party label. Young and handsome, is he a "Republican Kennedy?" A reporter who's followed him along the hustings provides a closeup of the candidate.)

By SAUL PETT

NEW YORK (AP)—The New York mayoralty campaign is getting rough. Someone has accused John V. Lindsay of being soft on Republicanism.

Abe Beame, the Democratic candidate, went further. He made the flat charge that Lindsay has met "secretly" with Republican leaders and they are "secretly" supporting him. Whispers even have been heard, among those convinced that Lindsay will end up one day in the White House, that he may be a "Republican Kennedy."

Nothing could be more serious in a city where Democrats normally out-register the Republicans by better than 3 to 1. However, political insiders doubt that either charge will stick.

True, Lindsay will have to explain why the Congressional Directory lists him as a Republican representative from the city's 17th District and why the Republican Party, as well as the Liberal Party, happened to nominate him for mayor.

Nonetheless, Lindsay insists he is a fusion candidate for mayor and almost never mentions the word Republican in speeches, "position papers" or billboards. He frequently invokes the memories of such Democratic Party heroes as Eleanor Roosevelt, Herbert H. Lehman and John F. Kennedy. He insists there is no Republican or Democratic way of cleaning up the streets of New York.

To his supporters, this is ample proof that John Vliet Lindsay long since has redeemed what many regard as the one mistake of his groping youth, when in a moment of confusion, he joined the Republican Party.

If voters in the Nov. 2 election require further evidence of Lindsay's un-Republicanism, he can always cite the fact that he refused to support Barry Goldwater in 1964, often failed to vote with his party in Congress. Despite Lyndon B. Johnson's sweep last year in the nation and city, it was Lindsay who out-polled the president in his district.

JOHN V. LINDSAY
Un-Republican GOP candidate

He is young, 43; tall, 6 feet 3; thin, 180 pounds, and spectacularly handsome, with pale blue eyes, classic sharp nose, heroic chin and boyishly tousled reddish-brown hair.

In style, Lindsay reminds one of an earnest young minister with a good tailor and an endless supply of righteous indignation. In oratory, he generally avoids humor, tends to thunder and does not shrink from hyperbole.

He frequently recalls his days in the Pacific — on a destroyer — and often attacks Beame, his principal opponent, as the prisoner of a political machine.

His infrequent humor tends to be heavy and somewhat startling.

Thus far in the campaign, Lindsay's Conservative Party opponent, William F. Buckley Jr., has been grabbing all the best lines. Recent newspaper polls of voter sentiment show Beame leading by about 45 per cent to 35 for Lindsay and 10 for Buckley.

BONDS LACK MAY IMPERIL SCHOOLS

State Allocation Board Worried Whether Voters Would Approve Bonds Next June

By EDWIN S. CAPPS

SACRAMENTO (CNS)—It will be nip and tuck whether funds for state loans for school building construction hold out until new bonds can be submitted to the people next June.

Paul I. Hoyenga, executive officer of the state allocation board, which approves the loans, said the volume was high in 1964, a total of about $149 million in loans being granted. While the total this year will be more on the order of $100 million, this could run the fund low before next June.

"If bonds are submitted to the voters next June and not approved, there probably will be no problem," Hoyenga said. "Once bonds are approved, we can go ahead with approving loans, with the actual money to be paid to the districts later."

Hoyenga said he expected the bond issue proposed for the voters next June would be $250 or $300 million.

Behind the present possible shortage of school loan funds lies a story of nearly four years of political maneuvering. It actually started in November, 1961, when it was disclosed the administration of Gov. Edmund G. Brown was planned to seek voter approval of more than $1 billion in bonds in 1962.

This quickly was denied by the governor's office and, by the time the June primary election rolled around, the debt requests had been cut to just under the $1 billion mark, to $970 million. The reduction was made in the school building aid bonds—while the proposal in 1960 had been for $300 million and this was normal for a two year period, the bond issue for 1962 was held to only $200 million.

Other bonds submitted in the disastrous bond issue series on the June, 1962, primary ballot included $250 million for veterans loan bonds (approved); $270 million in state construction bonds (rejected); $100 million for low-cost housing for the elderly (rejected); and $150 million for beach and park purchase (rejected).

While the school bond issue passed handily in June of 1962, it left the program on short rations until the next bonds could be submitted to the people. But before this could happen in June of 1964, some more politics had developed.

This was the qualification of the controversial housing initiative for the ballot—the measure which overturned the Rumford housing act. The attorney general's office ruled that, if any general bond issue went on the June primary ballot it would make the election a general one. The opinion said any initiatives qualified for the ballot thus would have to appear on the June, rather than the November, ballot.

Brown and other Democratic leaders feared the housing initiative would win if it were submitted to the voters in June. They wanted more time to campaign against it.

As a result, even though the time-table called for school bonds in June, the new school bond issue was delayed until the November election to postpone the voting on the housing measure. As it developed, of course, the housing initiative, Proposition 14, carried overwhelmingly in November anyway.

The only outcome of the Democrat maneuver was to delay making school loan money available. As a result, dozens of loans were approved but the payment of actual construction funds was deferred. And, when money from the bonds voted in November, $260 million, became available, a large chunk of it went to pay out the deferred loans.

This heavy drain on the 1964 bond funds, to make up prior deficiencies, is partially responsible for the present shortage.

The school building aid loan program could be complicated further if any reasons developed for delaying a vote on bonds next year from June to November. And, in fact, there is an initiative now being circulated for signatures on petitions which might prove to be controversial.

Behind The News

A Weekly Page Of Background Information

This Week In The World

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

A week after the incision that drew worldwide attention President Johnson was reacting just like any other postoperative patient. He was having gas pains, he wasn't sleeping too well, and he lacked pep.

Quite natural, said the doctors who had removed his gall bladder and a kidney stone. The President, they said, was having a completely normal recovery.

It was a week of heavy military action in Viet Nam, without spectacular results.

The U. S. Army's 1st Infantry Division wound up its week-long attempt to trap a major Viet Cong force in the central mountains of South Viet Nam, but the bag was nearly empty: 45 Viet Cong killed, 46 suspects captured.

The Viet Cong, apparently forewarned, had escaped from the Suai Ca Valley, near An Khe.

Fidel Castro was as vague as ever, but already the exodus had started.

All week long, despite safety warnings, little boats crossed the 90 miles of rough water to Florida, bringing Cubans happy to escape communism.

It was two weeks since Castro had announced that any Cubans who wished to do so might leave Cuba for the United States.

The United States had accepted his offer, still waited in vain for his plans on orderly movement. But many would not wait.

A sharp note was sent to Peking: The Red China attempt at a Communist coup against President Sukarno in Indonesia, there were these developments: Maj. Gen. Suharto, 44, who led the armed forces in crushing the coup, was named to command the Indonesian army, replacing a leftist general.

Suharto

Communist bookstores in Jakarta were raided, Communist youth headquarters was burned, some Communist-run secondary schools were ordered closed.

A sharp note was sent to Peking: the Red China Embassy in Jakarta had refused to fly its flag at half-staff in respect for six army generals killed in the Red-led coup.

Thousands of Communists were rounded up and jailed, and the nation's Communist leader, D. N. Aidit, was still being sought. He was believed in hiding in central Java.

Sukarno

Sukarno was still pretty much under wraps, but he seemed to have made peace with the army elements which crushed the revolt. Who was ruling was still to be revealed.

To virtually no surprise in the literary world, the 1965 Nobel Prize for Literature was awarded to Mikhail Sholokov, 60, author of the four-volume Russian national epic, "And Quiet Flows the Don."

Who's Who In Atom Club

Keeping Up With Joneses

By FRANK CAREY

WASHINGTON (AP) — The once ultra-exclusive "nuclear weapons club"—a non-sociable outfit if ever there was one—has a grim potential for greatly increasing its membership. Concerned atomic observers on both sides of the Atlantic rate at least a dozen additional countries as having technological and other capabilities for eventually building atomic bombs—the only credential for joining the "club." The membership is now limited to the United States, Russia, Great Britain, France and Red China.

Top American and British government officials close to the atomic picture are wary of pinning down specific new membership timetables. However, unofficial estimates put a figure of two to five years for some of the nations prominently mentioned.

Dr. Glenn T. Seaborg, chairman of the U.S. Atomic Energy Commission, is on record as saying the following countries could be in the weapons club within "years" — presumably meaning three to seven years, depending upon the effort expended:

Japan, India, West Germany, Sweden, Italy, Canada and Israel.

And he adds that in a slightly longer time, Brazil, Switzerland, Spain, Yugoslavia and the United Arab Republic could perhaps get in on the act.

Britain's Minister of Disarmament Lord Chalfont echoes Seaborg's list, though with the exclusion of Spain and Yugoslavia. However, he adds two of his own: Pakistan and Indonesia.

Without naming them, Lord Chalfont has said that at least five of the countries on his list could become nuclear powers "in the next few years."

Also without naming names, Alastair Buchan of Great Britain's Institute of Strategic Studies estimates that the member nations of the club could grow from five to 15 in the next 20 years.

On the unofficial, but high-placed, side of the picture in the United States, Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, D-New York, says:

"At least a dozen, and perhaps a score, of (additional) nations are now in a position to develop nuclear weapons within three years. Two of these nations—Israel and India already possess weapons-grade fissionable material, and could fabricate an atomic device within a few months."

Without offering a full list of potential club members, Kennedy made clear in a senate speech late in June that he had in mind such countries as Australia and the Eastern European nations. Neither Australia nor the Eastern European nations were listed by Seaborg or Lord Chalfont, although each of those officials has indicated his list is not necessarily complete. Other nations mentioned on other unofficial lists include Belgium, The Netherlands, Argentina and Mexico.

What does a nation need to produce nuclear weapons?

It needs sufficiently powerful nuclear power reactors, or very large research reactors, to produce sufficient quantities of plutonium—a bomb ingredient—as a by-product of operating a reactor.

One unofficial estimate is that a country would have to have one 70 megawatt (million watt) reactor going full blast all the time to produce enough plutonium to make about five Hiroshima-type bombs a year.

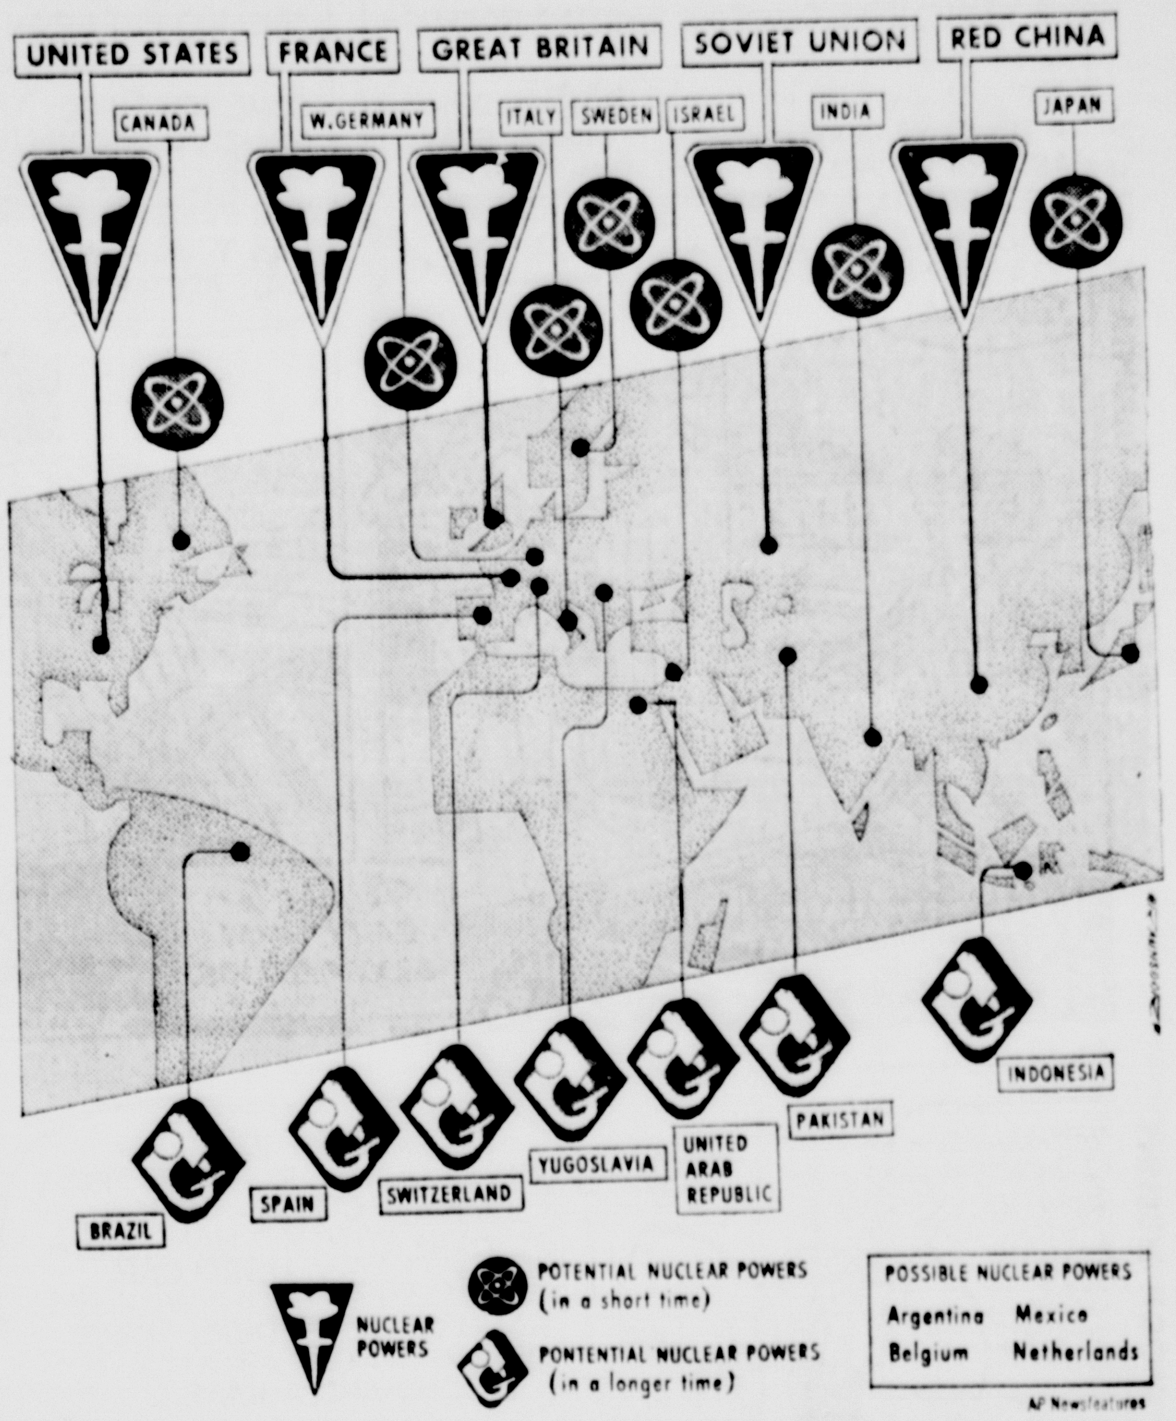
By this same reckoning, the country would need to have about 100 tons of uranium to fuel the reactor. Some of the potential candidates—such as Japan and Italy—already have at least one reactor exceeding that power range. Others, including India, Israel, West Germany and Sweden have big ones planned or under construction.

President Sukarno of Indonesia has said his nation will produce an atomic bomb shortly. But Indonesia now has only a small research reactor—of only 250,000 watts in power—and U.S. atomic officials estimate it would take Indonesia 100 years to make enough plutonium for one bomb from that reactor.

A candidate country would also need complex chemical processing facilities to convert the raw, reactor-produced plutonium into weapons-grade stuff. Moneywise, the AEC's Seaborg has estimated that it would cost any country about $100 million to produce its first weapon. And why might any one of these countries want to get into the club?

John McCloy, a key official in the U.S. War Department during World War II, and long a close observer of defense and atomic matters, has this theory:

"Too many countries are simply trying to keep up with the Joneses. They want these weapons not only for defense, but as much for prestige."



Wilson's Freshman Year A Full One

Prime Minister Seems Expert At Brink Tactics

By ARTHUR L. GAVSHON

LONDON (AP)—Hours after his installation as prime minister, Harold Wilson was being escorted through the corridors of 10 Downing St.

Turning to a friend, Wilson—said with a grin:

"Nice place we've got here."

The tough little Yorkshireman meant then and means today to stay just where he is.

He begins his second year in office today with a fragile grip on parliamentary power but with his national rating high.

He has led near-bankrupt Britain within sight of solvency, slaughtered some sacred cows of international grandeur, and begun modernizing many hallowed but hoary institutions and practices. Now, he claims, the country is over the hump of its immediate difficulties with a pleansanter vista of popular measures ahead.

On the other hand, his nation still is in the red in world trade. The Labor government has retreated on big principles, at least temporarily, arousing controversy, criticism and confusion at home and abroad.

In the 630-member House of Commons, Labor's over-all margin soon may sag to a single vote, compared with five after last year's election.

Yet the pollsters report Wilson has an edge over Edward Heath's Conservatives ranging from 3.7 to 7.5 per cent. If this lead were reflected in an election it would substantially boost Labor's parliamentary margin.

In the past year, Wilson's government has survived setback after setback both inside and outside Parliament. Dominating all was his administration's fight to save the pound sterling from devaluation. That battle has been won, at least for the time being, but it has meant higher taxes, curbs on personal and national spending and the deferment of some promised Socialist reforms.

Wilson has seemingly convinced many Britons that the blame for these troubles lies not with him but with his Conservative predecessors.

"But now we can go forward," he claimed at the anual convention of the Labor party in Blackpool last month.

Wilson owes his survival to a combination of political brinkmanship and a readiness to govern with resolution. Even opponents acknowledge his performance has at times been shrewd, skillful, masterly. When the Tories in midsummer substituted Heath for Sir Alec Douglas-Home as leader, most commentators saw it as an attempt to match or better Wilson's own image of mangerial dynamism.

Wilson has shrugged aside three flash voting victories scored by the Conservatives in the Commons — victories which in normal times would compel the permier to consider resignation.

Wilson has temporarily corralled, if not silenced, Labor's vocal left wing, by using the party's very vulnerability in Parliament as an instrument of persuasion.

In the foreign field, Wilson has lined up with Johnson in big issues, improving day-to-day working relations between Britain and America. He also has set about mending British fences with the Russians and the East European Communist states. He wants more trade with the Reds.

Labor carried 65 bills through Parliament, well above the average since 1951. The centerpiece of these reformist, modernizing laws recast Britain's tax structure to clear the way for the planned redevelopment of economic resources.

PRIME MINISTER—Worries of the crises which he faces as Prime Minister seem to weigh heavily on the shoulders of Britain's Harold Wilson. Here, in London, he pauses to underscore a statement made this week over a television broadcast on the situation in Rhodesia.

ALMANAC

Today is Saturday, Oct. 16, the 289th day of 1965 with 76 to follow.

The moon is approaching its last quarter; the morning star is Jupiter; the evening stars are Mars, Venus and Saturn.

On this day in history:

In 1846, the first operation with a patient under ether anesthesia was performed at Massachusetts General Hospital in Boston.

In 1859, abolitionist John Brown staged a raid on Harpers Ferry, Va. He seized a hotel, arsenal, firehouse and 30 townspeople.

In 1934, Chinese Communists began their long march to the northwest where they established headquarters and planned to continue the attack against Nationalist China.

In 1959, U.S. Army Chief of Staff George Marshall died.

A thought for the day: Roman emperor Marcus Aurelius said: "Receive wealth or position with arragance and be ready to let it go."

Opening lead — ◇ Q

South won the first trick with the king of diamonds and decided that he would surely be able to get back to his hand with a heart if East held either the king or the jack.

A great expert would surely make the right guess when the right time came.

South therefore cashed his high clubs, entered dummy with the act of hearts and took two more clubs, getting rid of the eight and nine of spades. Then he led a heart from dummy.

West had both the king and jack of hearts, and South had some explaining to do.

GOOD ODDS

"The odds were 3 to 1 that one or both heart honors would be in favorable position," South said. "Playing for the spades gives me just about the same chance."

There isn't much difference, actually, if you blindly assume that South is absolutely sure to guess right whenever the king and jack of hearts are divided. Still, South overlooked a preliminary play that could cost nothing.

South should cash the ace and king of spades before making up his mind. If only small spades fall, South can then play as he likes.

Actually, the 10 would drop, and South would continue with the queen and nine of spades to develop a fourth spade trick. The slam is then assured.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens with two spades (forcing to game), and the next player passes.

You hold:

♠ J 7 5 4 3 2
♥ 9 8 7
♣ 10 6

What do you say?

Answer: Big two no trump.

Show the weakness first, and the spade support at your next turn. Some experts agree that a jump to four spades shows trump support but no ace, king, or singleton in the hand. (Do not make such a jump raise unless you are positive that your partner understands just what it means.)

Real Compact Cars

SEATTLE, Wash. (UPI)—Business is pressing for Roy Parks of Seattle who makes compact cars. Parks recently received a patent for a device that squeezes a full sized automobile body into a two-by-two block of metal. He hopes his portable press will help spruce up unsightly auto junk yards.

San Rafael Runs Over Marin, 42-12

99-Yard Wildcat Score Fails To Halt Bulldogs

by Maurice Weinger

San Rafael scored everytime it got possession of the ball through the first three quarters to easily defeat Marin Catholic, 41-12, last night at Kentfield in the Wildcat's Homecoming contest.

The Bulldog victory, the second straight against one league loss in Marin Athletic League football, got a rude jolt in the early moments of the contest as the Wildcats scored their first touchdown in three league games on a 99-yard opening kick-off return by halfback George King.

King's run was quite a thrill as it surprised almost everyone—including most of the Marin fans. Taking the ball on his one, the runner started up the middle and bounced off three Bulldog defenders on the 35. Keeping his balance, King slipped to the right, and with a fine block by Ed Lencioni on the 40, ran the rest of the way in the first 16 seconds of the contest.

The brief lead was quickly erased as San Rafael combined the running of Rocky Shone and Shawn Easley and the passing of Jay Widmer to completely outclass the Wildcats.

SHONE SHINES

Shone was the star on the first San Rafael score as he made 31 of the 54 yards on the drive. Taking the ball on the first three carries, the senior made 20 yards and Easley, on a counter, added another eight to the 31. A 15-yard Marin penalty along with another two by Easley, moved the ball to the 14 where Shone went off left tackle for 10, and came back two plays later with the final yard.

The second Bulldog score found Easley handling the important ground gaining. Taking the ball on a fake pass situation, Easley moved 22 yards to the 27-yard line and added another 15 yards with three Marin men hanging on to him.

Tom Gagen, who kicked five of six conversions, finished the drive with the other 12 yards, all of them coming on plays off tackle.

PASSING ATTACK

The second quarter scores by San Rafael featured the passing of Widmer and the catching of end Joe Cunningham and Sam Crowell.

Crowell set up the third score with a 30-yard catch down the middle to the eight yard line and Easley added the finishing touches for the third score.

Cunningham, on a first down play, raced down the right sidelines to catch a 29-yard pass that set up the Bulldogs' fourth score. The pass from the 34 to the five yard line allowed Gagen to add three and Shone to make the final two yards on a pair of drives, for a 28-12 halftime lead.

In the third quarter Widmer really put the shock treatment to the Wildcats. On the first play of the quarter Widmer threw a short pass into the left flat to Shone and the speedy back went 45 yards to the 13. Wider came right back through the air, this time to Cunningham who speared a bullet on the right side for the 35th point.

FINAL TD

The final touchdown was another speedy one through the air with Widmer hitting Cunningham, the latter going between two Marin defenders for a 21-yard pass.

Marin got on the scoreboard early in the second half with its second score as quarterback Mike Giacomini found the range with a 37-yarder to John Grady which moved the ball to San Rafael's 21.

Three running plays moved the ball to the 12 and Giacomini then surprised the Bulldog defense with two quarterback keepers, the first for nine and the last for the final three.

San Rafael scoring: TDs — Rocky Shone 2 (both 1-yard runs); Tom Gagen (2-yard run); Shawn Easley (8-yard run); Joe Cunningham 2 (13 and 21-yard passes from Jay Widmer). PATs — Tom Gagen 5 (placements).

Marin Catholic scoring: TDs—George King (99-yard kickoff return); Mike Giacomini (3-yard run).

Spahn Released, But Wants To Continue

HARTSHORNE, Okla. (AP) — The winningest left-hander pitcher in major league baseball — Warren Spahn — interrupted his ranch chores long enough to say he thought the San Francisco Giants may have made a wise move in giving him his unconditional release.

But the 44-year-old veteran hurler immediately added:

"I want to play baseball next year."

All other National League clubs have waived on Spahn and the Giants' release yesterday will allow him to seek his own contract next season.

"I might be with the Giants again next year," Spahn said at his 3,000-acre cattle ranch in Southeastern Oklahoma.

"I think it was to their advantage to give me a release. Everyone is thinking of roster room."

Spahn, who lives on the ranch in the winter-time with his wife LoRene and 16-year-old son, Greg, signed with the Giants last July about a week after his release by the New York Mets.

He built a fabulous 20-year-career with the Braves in Boston and later in Milwaukee. During his career Spahn won 363 games. This is a record for southpaws and ranks him sixth on the all-time list.

It obviously isn't money that keeps Spahn hanging onto baseball. He has earned in the neighborhood of $80,000 annually for years and has made wise investments.

He sincerely feels that despite his age he is in top physical condition and still can turn in a credible pitching job if given the opportunity.

Spahn was dropped by the Braves at the end of the 1964 season. With the Mets, he had a 4-12 won-lost record and a 4.43 earned run average.

Signed as a free agent by the Giants July 19, Spahn finished the season with an overall 7-16 record.

Undefeated Tam Scores Fifth Win

Defense Stars In 14-0 Score Over Analy '11'

Coach Willie Hector's Tamalpais Indians, Marin County's winningest football team, had trouble generating any offensive punch but their opportunistic defensive team again sparkled last night in a 14-0 non-league victory over the Analy Tigers of the North Bay League at Sebastopol.

In winning their fifth game of the year, the undefeated Indians killed Analy's offense by intercepting six passes while their offense managed to punch across touchdowns in the first and last quarters.

Against a team that had yielded 132 points while scoring only 6 in four previous games, Tam's 14-0 victory was not impressive. "We just have to get some offense going," said Hector, eyeing next Saturday's important Marin Athletic League game against strong Novato. "We controlled the ball all night but just couldn't move it."

Hector used all 37 varsity players last night in his search for more talent and was pleased with the offensive work of halfback James Cook, fullback Steve Meyers and tackle Ernie Bergman. On defense, stars were end Honor Jackson who made life miserable for the Analy passer, middle guard John Henry Bennett, linebacker Horace White and cornerback Jerry Geissinger.

Linebacker Gary Cotten intercepted two Analy passes and Scott Laurie, Geissinger, Ken Blasingame and Dave Salaun one each. Blasingame had a clear shot at a touchdown after his interception, but tripped over a teammate and fell.

Tam scored the first time it got the ball with Cook making a nifty runback of the opening kickoff to the Analy 40. A few plays later quarterback Tom Lecy threw a 25-yard touchdown pass to Mike Biber. Mike Fowler ran over the extra point.

Tam's final TD came in the fourth period after an exchange of punts, the Indians driving to the Analy three. Three consecutive touchdown plays were nullified by backfield-in-motion penalties before Fowler finally plunged over for the six-pointer. Kirk Sparks ran over the extra point for the final 14-0 measure.

Four Drivers Crack Mark At Laguna

MONTEREY (AP) — Hap Sharp of Midland, Texas, emerged today as the top qualifier so far for the $30,000 Monterey Grand Prix. Four drivers set new records.

Sharp's time was moved up late last night after discrepancies were discovered in the electric timing system and a night heat was run off with manually operated timing watches.

Sharp's final time was listed at 1.07 flat. Jim Hall, of Midland, Texas, who previously had been listed as top man improved his time from 1.07:46 to 1.07.2 for the 1.9 mile course.

Jerry Grant of Kent, Wash., retained third spot with 1.07:4 and Parnelli Jones of Torrance, Calif., fourth at 1.07.6.

All four broke the track record of 1.08:8 set by Roger Penske last October.

Twelve cars are yet to qualify for starting slots before the Grand Prix start at 1:30 p.m. tomorrow.

Robert Dick Is Tourney Winner

Robert Dick has won the month-long eclectic golf tournament which concluded yesterday for members of the Las Gallinas Junior Golf Club. His score was 25-1—24.

John Hahn was second with 30-3½—26½ and Dewey Forry third at 29-1½—27½.

In yesterday's nine-hole, medal handicap play, Tony Metcalf led the way with 35-5—30, while Robert Dick had fewest putts, 12. Boys 12 through 16 interested in joining the Las Gallinas Club should contact the course.

1:11 To Go, Troy Gets Equalizer

By RALPH CHATOIAN

After giving away a touchdown in the first half, the Terra Linda High School Trojans scored one of their own late in the second half to tie the Redwood Giants 6-6 last night in a Marin Athletic League football game before 3,400 chilled spectators at the San Rafael High School field.

Drake at Novato, 2 p.m.

Terra Linda dominated the offensive phase of the game, 246 to 79 total yards, but once again —as has been the case with quite a few prep games this season — fumbles snuffed out scoring chances.

An intercepted pass by Redwood's Len Pieri cut off Terra Linda's first scoring opportunity in the opening quarter, when the Trojans got the ball as far as the Redwood 21.

Sticking to the ground, Redwood drove all the way back to Terra Linda's seven-yard line before the Trojans' defense stiffened and held. But four plays later, Redwood got the ball again when Terra Linda halfback Jim Paydo fumbled Sid Norman's handoff and Pete Bricca fell on the ball on the Trojans' 23.

Breaks evened out when Terra Linda's Tom Loback intercepted a Dane Durham pass on the Trojan 22 three plays later to stop Redwood from hitting paydirt.

TOUCHDOWN GIFT

Then for the rest of the second quarter, the teams exchanged punts, Terra Linda and Redwood each booting the ball twice. With only eight seconds left in the first half, the touchdown gift was presented to Redwood and the Giants graciously accepted.

Faced with a fourth down and 33 yards to go for a first down, Terra Linda was on its own 10-yard stripe. Fred Daniele went back in punt formation, but when the ball snapped to him, in his own end zone, he tried to run with the ball instead of kicking it. Redwood defensive end Jim Tupper wasn't going to be fooled. He charged in and wrestled Daniele to the ground on the one-yard line. It was Redwood's ball, first and goal from the one.

The Giants wasted no time, since there were only eight seconds in the half. Durham bulled over on the first play, a quarterback sneak. Redwood didn't have much of a chance on the conversion attempt when the ball sailed over the head of Tom Sather who was set to try the kick for PAT. When he finally reached the ball back on the 20, he was swarmed over by blue shirted Trojans.

Terra Linda head coach Brad Squires, after the game, admitted sending in the play that had Daniele running instead of kicking.

"I hadn't realized we were so deep in our own territory," Squires said. The two plays previous to the fourth down gamble had lost a total of 18 yards, pushing Terra Linda back from the 28 to the 10.

In the third quarter, Terra Linda drove all the way from its own 19 to the Redwood 16 before giving up the ball—because of another fumble. Fullback Jim Taylor lost the ball after a hard tackle and Redwood's Pieri was on it in a flash, playing the role of thief once again. (See photo.)

Terra Linda had another drive going early in the fourth quarter but it stalled on the Redwood 28 because of more Giants thievery. Norman was trying to pitch out in back of him on an option play and he tried to flip the ball over Tupper's head. Not satisfied with being the tackler who set up Redwood's touchdown, Tupper jumped up and grabbed the ball before it ever had a chance of getting near any Trojan, and another Terra Linda threat was choked.

GAME COMEBACK

Norman completed four of seven attempts in that TD drive. He hit Hill with one for 13 yards, one to Ron Laufer for 6 yards, another to Hill for 32 yards, and then the final one for the 31 yards that were worth six points. Hill made a great catch on the TD toss, jumping up between four Redwood defenders to come down with the ball. The Giants were dropping seven men back for pass defense against Norman's tosses.

The stands became quiet as Terra Linda lined up to try for the big extra point. Brian Perron, Trojans' kicking specialist, waited for the snap from center and then down swung his foot. The ball started for the goal posts, but too far to the right. Both teams had to be content with a tie.

Lakers Defeat Warriors; Seals Win A Fist Swinger

5,836 See L.A. Grab 122-115 Nod Over S.F.

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—He was only his team's third leading scorer, but both coach Fred Schaus of the Lakers and Alex Hannum of the Warriors pinpointed Leroy Ellis as the difference in last night's National Basketball Assn. opener.

The defending Western Division champion Lakers are considered strong on the corners, but weak at center so when Ellis is hot—the Lakers are too.

They downed the Warriors, 122-115, last night before a good Civic Auditorium crowd of 5,836. The Warriors rallied from a half-time deficit of 61-45 to tie the count at 92-all with 8 minutes to play.

But then Jerry West, who wound up with 36 points, and Ellis hit all their shots to push their team out in front again.

Rudy Larusso wound up with 23 Laker points and Ellis, who hit on 10 of 11 attempts, got 22.

"We always know that West will get his points, but Ellis is the guy who killed us," Hannum said after the game. Schaus also praised the veteran pivot man.

Guards Paul Neumann, who hit 10 of 16, and Guy Rodgers led the Warriors with 26 and 22 respectively.

Rookie Rick Barry from Miami, whom many think will prove to be in the Jerry Lucas-Bob Petit class before he's through, hit only two points in a nervous first half but added 15 more in the second half.

"The pressure was on him after that bad first half and he responded to it," Hannum said. "He'll be a great one." Barry averaged nearly 23 points per game to lead the Warriors to a 6-5 exhibition record.

Walt Hazzard started at guard for the Lakers in place of the departed Dick Barnett and looked good with a 14-point performance. Barnett was traded to New York for forward Bob Boozer.

Keith Erickson, defensive star of last year's UCLA national champs, came off the bench for the Warriors to hit 7 points and do a nice defensive job on Elgin Baylor of the Lakers. Gail Goodrich, the All America scoring star of the Bruins, saw only a little bit of action for the Lakers.

Nicholson Is Star In S.F. Ice Victory

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—It looks like another wild season for the San Francisco Seals. They have played one game and had one fight.

A big Cow Palace crowd of 8,469 turned out to watch the Seals, picked for about third in this year's Western Hockey League race, battle the Los Angeles Blades, everybody's cellar pick.

They saw the Seals take a 9-5 decision despite a flashy performance by Willie O'Ree of the Blades. O'Ree was last year's top goal-getter in the league and he had three last night.

Two of them helped push the Blades out to a 4-1 lead early in the second stanza before seven straight San Francisco goals turned the tide.

The fight occurred early in the second stanza and wound up with eight penalties and three men left on each side. Five goals were scored, three by the Seals and two by the Blades, before those punished returned.

Big Al Nicholson wound up Seals high scorer with three goals. Tom Thurlby added two and Forbes Kennedy, Charlie Burns, John Gravel, and George Swarbrick hit singles.

O'Ree got a little help from Norm Johnson and Gordy Vejprava, ho had single tallies.

Jack Norris, Los Angeles netminder, managed to stop 30, while the Seals' Jack McCartan blocked 26.

The Seals are at Portland next Wednesday in the first of a northwest swing. The Blades will head east since they are the first to do battle with American Hockey League teams in the new interlocking schedule.

Marin Catholic Tops Cage Loop

Marin Catholic Wildkittens took over possession of first place in Marin Athletic League Class C basketball standings Thursday when they whipped Tamalpais 41-27.

The win gave Marin a 5-1 record after completing the first half of the double round-robin schedule. Thursday's scoring by Marin again was paced by Robert McCarthy who meshed 13 points. He scored a total of 72 points in the first half for a 12 point average per game. Mike Harris of Tam scored 10 points yesterday.

One-half game behind Marin Catholic are Redwood and Terra Linda, each with 4-1 records with one game remaining in the first half. Redwood dumped San Rafael Thursday 58-22. Leading the Redwood scoring were Andy McIlroy with 12 and Bob Purtell with 10. Paul Kent hit 10 points for San Rafael.

Marin Tars Host West Valley Tonight

Incensed by what he called a lack - luster performance last week, College of Marin football coach Dick Read this week sent his Tars through bruising practice sessions preparatory to tonight's non-conference contest with West Valley Junior College of Campbell.

Marin's last practice encounter of the season will be played at Kentfield starting at 8 o'clock. The Tars open Golden Valley Conference action next Friday against Sierra College, also at Kentfield.

In losing 34-14 to American River J. C. last week in Sacramento, the Tars did not play up to their potential and made too many mistakes to suit Read, so the demanding Tar coach poured on extra doses of good old fashioned head knocking and fundamentals in practice this week. "Their tongues were hanging out," the fiery mentor declared. "We gave away too much to American River and we're going to have to shape up against this West Valley team. They've won two of three games, dumping Hartnell and Los Angeles City College (15-6 and 14-7, respectively). West Valley's lone loss was to Merritt J. C. of Oakland, 19-12.

Marin, on the other hand, hasn't visited the winner's circle since Sept. 17 when the Tars upset Menlo College, 14-9. A 14-14 tie with Vallejo and last week's thumping by ARJC evened the Tars' record at 1-1-1.

Read said his first teams are in good physical condition, except for bruises sustained in last week's game and this week's practice.

Read announced two lineup changes: Les Wisner, the 5-11, 180-pounder from Boonsboro, Md., will start at quarterback in place of Mike Kemp (Drake High); and Fred Rodoni, (6-0, 185) of Tomales will be at fullback in place of Ray Miller (Terra Linda). Tim Garvin and Dave Auerbach will start at halves.

Desperate 49ers, L.A. Rams Clash

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The San Francisco 49ers and the Los Angeles Rams, teams desperate to escape the second division of the National Football League, collide tomorrow in Memorial Coliseum.

A crowd of around 37,000—far from the capacity turnouts in years past—is expected to sit in on the 1:05 p.m. kickoff.

These California rivals go into the contest with two straight losses behind them—the 49ers to the top contenders in the NFL western conference, Baltimore and Green Bay; the Rams to Minnesota and Chicago.

TELEVISION

Tomorrow's game will be televised (Channel 5) starting at 12:45 p.m.

San Francisco is 2-2 and Los Angeles 1-3 for the season.

In a pre-season game, quarterback Bill Munson led the Rams to a 34-14 triumph over the 49ers.

Despite a badly crippled defense, quarterback John Brodie has managed to keep San Francisco even in the standings.

The 49ers were severely hurt when they lost via injuries defensive stars Dan Colchico, Matt Hazeltine and Mike Dowdle.

The Rams are handicapped, too, with the loss of their best defensive back, Aaron Martin. He is out for the year with a broken arm.

Munson took a beating from the Chicago Bears' blitz crew last week, and the Rams have worked all week trying to set up protection for their quarterback.

Brodie is enjoying his finest year in the NFL.

"He is an excellent quarterback and always has been," said the Rams' coach, Harland Svare.

"We are still beating ourselves," Svare continued, reviewing last week's 31-6 debacle in Chicago.

Los Angeles' defensive front four, Lamar Lundy, Roosevelt, Grier, Merlin Olsen and David Jones, appear in the healthiest condition of the year for this one.

Only Olsen has escaped injuries and been consistently effective thus far.

Key offensive stars behind Brodie are Ken Willard and John David Crow in the running department and pass catchers Bernie Casey, Dave Parks and Monty Stickles.

The Rams can counter with runners Les Josephson, Dick Bass and Terry Baker and for aerial duty, Tommy McDonald, Jack Snow and Marlin McKeever.

Alston Top Manager; Franks 2nd

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The response was typical when Walter Alston of the Los Angeles Dodgers was advised he'd been voted National League Manager of the Year for 1965.

"The only thing I can say," said the tall, 53-year-old skipper, "is that the ball club made it possible."

Alston was named for the honor in the annual Associated Press poll of sportswriters and sportscasters.

It came, of course, a day after the Dodgers won the seventh and deciding game of the World Series over the Minnesota Twins.

It was the third time Alston had earned the title since he took over the old Brooklyn Dodgers in 1954. He won in 1955 in Flatbush and 1959 when the club was in Los Angeles. Both teams were world champions.

Of the 328 ballots received, Alston got 171 votes. Herman Franks of the second-place San Francisco Giants was second with 115, followed by Harry Walker of the Pittsburgh Pirates with 31.

Bobby Bragan of the Milwaukee Braves and Dick Sisler of the Cincinnati Reds, who was ousted from the position after the season ended, also received votes — Bragan seven and Sisler four.

The poll was based on regular season performance.

4 Marin Winners In Fish Contest

Four Marin County anglers were among the latest winners in the Schenley Sportsmen's Club salmon fishing contest. All four caught their fish near Duxbury Buoy.

Tony Weber of Sausalito caught one weighing 38 pounds, 4 ounces, Oct. 9; Joe Marks of 899 Appleberry Road, San Rafael, caught one weighing 49 pounds, 12 ounces, Oct. 10; Wesley Thomas of 88 Jewel Street, San Rafael, pulled in one weighing 38 pounds, 6 ounces on Oct. 8, and Leif M. Harris of 20 Green Valley Court, San Anselmo, caught one weighing 40 pounds on Oct. 9.

Raiders Vs. Jets, Namath In New York

NEW YORK (AP)—Oakland's Raiders, battling to stay alive in the Western Division race, battle the New York Jets and their $400,000 quarterback Joe Namath tonight in an American Football League battle.

Namath, the Alabama star who signed the big money contract with the Jets, makes his first start at Shea Stadium before a crowd expected to reach 50,000.

He has, however, started the last two road games and aims this time to get New York into the victory column. The Jets have lost all four of their games while Oakland is 3-2 yet hasn't won two in a row.

To stop the Raiders, the Jets must stop pass catching Art Powell who already this season has 27 receptions and five touchdowns. For the first time, New York has its defensive secondary intact with Willie West and Cornell Gordon at the cornerback posts and Jim Hudson and Dainard Paulson at safety. Hudson has been out with pneumonia and Paulson with a broken wrist.

Veteran Tom Flores, one of the original Raiders, starts again at quarterback. Dick Wood, an ex-Jet, will take over if Flores fails to move the ball. But already this year, Tom has thrown six scoring passes, second best in the league.

Oakland beat Boston 24-10 last week but as yet this season hasn't won two consecutive games—losing to San Diego and Buffalo, while holding victories over Kansas City and Houston as well as Boston.

The Raiders' ground attack rests primarily with Clem Daniels, Alan Miller and Roger Hagberg.

49ers Face Coliseum Jinx; Will They Lose Before The Kickoff?

RANDOL

It is about time the San Francisco 49ers did something about the jinx of the Los Angeles Coliseum, and tomorrow would be a good time to start. Maybe a better word would be hex. Whatever you call it, it has been hanging over the heads of 49er teams for a good many years.

As one ex-49er puts it, "Laugh about a hex if you will, but this is a real thing. Something tangible. Every time we would go on the field there would be a feeling of impending doom. That feeling would carry into the game and more often than not we would lose to the Rams even when we had the better team."

NO DOUBT the hex started years ago when the Rams were a real power in the National Football League and the Coliseum would be jammed with more than 100,000 thirsty fans. A situation like that could intimidate a pretty good squad.

When the 49ers came to hard times, with wins as scarce as neckties in a nudist camp, intimidation became sheer despair. The fact that the Rams weren't much better didn't matter.

THIS YEAR the 49ers are on an upsurge, even though they have lost the last two games. Already they have been clobbered by the Rams in an exhibition game at the Coliseum, and looked bad in losing. If the hex is still holding it could be worth a touchdown or two to the Rams before the game is even under way.

INJURIES HAVE hurt both clubs. It is probable that the Rams are hurting the most as their "Fearsome Foursome" has been broken up. These defensive monsters were tough on quarterbacks for a while but last week Rudy Burich of Chicago had a field day against them.

If you will concede that the 49ers are not going to win a title this year, it could be that the injuries they have suffered will prove to be a blessing in disguise. First and second year men are forced into action and are gaining most valuable experience under fire.

IT MUST be noted, too, that this crop of rookies is a great one, or they would have wilted before now. Barring more serious injuries the 49ers should get stronger as the year progresses and should be real contenders within the next two years.

QUARTERBACK John Brodie had a bad day in the pre-season game with the Rams. If he starts poorly tomorrow, I hope Coach Jack Christiansen will give George Mira a shot at the Rams. I have an idea that George's scrambling play would be more effective against the Rams than against any other club in the league.

105 Women Compete At Marin Golf Club

Mrs. Henry Shapiro of Merced Golf Club shot an 88 to win low gross honors Thursday in the Guest Day tournament at the Marin Country Club.

Mrs. Ed Burger won low net with 98-28—69, and Mrs. Robert Steele won the hole-in-one contest, 4 feet, 1 inch from the cup. Some 105 women from 15 clubs competed. Winners were:

Class A — Mrs. William Wieland, 90-15—75; Mrs. Roger Williams, 92-15—77; Mrs. Gene La-Rose, 90-12—78; Mrs. T. N. Stevens III, 94-16—78.

Class C—Mrs. Harold Burnell, 90-29-61; Mrs. Thomas Hardcastle, 100-28-72; Mrs. R. Vandermalen, 102-26-76.

Palms '9' Opens Winter League

Litchfield's Berumda Palms team of San Rafael opens the San Francisco Triple A Winter Semi-Pro Baseball League tomorrow, 11:30 a.m. against Cecil Whitebone team at Graham diamond, Golden Gate Park, San Francisco.

Ron Cole will start on the mound for the Palms who, along with perennial champion Ellis Brooks Chevrolet, have been rated co-favorites in the league.

Mrs. Belli Wins Golf Tourney

Mrs. Rinaldo Belli was the winner of the senior tournament at the Meadow Club in Fairfax Thursday, with a net 74.

Women's senior tourney winners were:

Class A—Mrs. Rinaldo Belli, 91-17—74; Mrs. C. F. Morrill, 95-20—75; Mrs. T. N. Brown, 92-16—76.

Class B—Mrs. Arthur Latno, 105-28—77; Mrs. W. C. Witter, 107-27—80; Mrs. R. L. Hibbett, 104-24—80.

Class C—Mrs. A. A. Colvin, 118-36—82.

"Throw out Three" tourney winners were: Class A—Mrs. T. N. Brown, 61⅓; Mrs. Norman Green, 61⅔; Mrs. R. Fuit, 62⅓; Class B — Mrs. Arthur Latno, 63⅓; Mrs. Norman Ackley, 64; Mrs. William Carewe, 66.

DODGER PLANS

World Champs Won't Stand Pat

LOS ANGELES (AP)—No one can fault the Los Angeles Dodgers for what they did with what they had—win the world championship of baseball.

Never, it has been said, have so few gone so far with so little.

In winning the World Series in seven games with the Minnesota Twins, the Dodgers, in effect, duplicated what they did in winning the National League pennant.

They used pitching, skill, speed, larceny and mirrors.

But in the interest of public sanity, it would be just as well if the Dodgers don't subject their patrons to another year of one-run, late-inning, last - gasp heroics.

The least they can do is come up with a third baseman, a fourth starting pitcher and a batter they can rely on more than pitcher Don Drysdale to hit .300.

Yes, Drysdale, a 23-game winner, as the Dodgers' leading hitter, with an even .300, and he frequently went in as a pinchhitter. Baseball purists remain aghast at a pitcher-pinchhitter.

"No, we're not going to stand pat," said Vice President Buzzie Bavasi, who obviously was in no mood at this immediate stage to talk about 1966.

"We are always trying to help ourselves. Next week we'll sit down and take a look at the future."

The reference to third base is certainly no slap at Jim Gilliam, who did a superb job at the position all year and in the Series.

But Gilliam is 37 years old. He retired last spring to be named a Dodger coach, the first Negro to hold such a job, and then was ushered out of retirement because the Dodgers had to have help at third base.

John Kennedy, who did a brilliant job as late-inning defensive relief for Gilliam, did not hit much more than the club had anticipated.

Manager Walter Alston managed to stretch his Big Three pitching corps of Sandy Koufax, Drysdale and Claude Osteen through 162 games, with majestic help from the bullpen star, Ron Perranoski.

Veteran Johnny Podres was ready and willing, but unable to help most of the year because of recurring trouble in his throwing elbow.

Whether the popular Podres can come back next year is a distinct gamble, it would seem.

Another veteran, 32-year - old Lou Johnson, an escapee from a decade in the minor leagues, proved a star all season and in the Series as the replacement for the sidelined Tommy Davis.

Slugging Tommy missed the year with a broken ankle. He'll be back and the Dodgers feel they have added strength with Johnson, Ron Fairly and Willie Davis.

Meanwhile, worrying about next year can wait awhile for the Dodgers. No one should disturb their current ride on cloud nine.

A MESSAGE TO OUR ADVERTISERS!

The next time you call an ad taker to place a Classified Ad in the I-J, stop and consider this. You are about to spend some money for an advertisement and of course you want to get the utmost in results. To accomplish this your ad should tell ALL THE DETAILS about the things you are trying to accomplish. Be sure you don't make any of the following errors that frequently prevent results . . .

DON'T: OMIT THE PHONE NUMBER!

DON'T: OMIT THE ADDRESS!

Many out of town readers will write you but will not spend money for a long distance phone call.

DON'T: USE BLIND BOX NUMBERS!

Avoid them at all costs. They are difficult to answer. It is more convenient to phone or write directly.

DON'T: LEAVE HOME ON DAYS OTHERS MIGHT ANSWER YOUR AD!

DON'T: OMIT WORDS THAT WOULD TEND TO INCREASE THE NUMBER OF RESPONSES!

DON'T: CONCEAL THE PRICE DESIRED!

Surveys show that many people will not answer an ad unless the price is given.

DO: GIVE YOUR AD SOME THOUGHT BEFORE CALLING AN AD TAKER!

DO: RUN YOUR AD MORE THAN ONE, TWO OR THREE DAYS!

Not all of our readers are home every day. Just the person who wants what you are offering may not see your ad until the 4th, 5th or 7th time it runs.

NO FRILLS

This older home in downtown Mill Valley is right in the middle of things—within easy walking distance of everything—perfect for an older couple and capable of expansion by a younger. Sensibly priced at $21,500.

WHO WANTS IT?

A small, neat, hillside house with a view. Has 2 bedrooms, dining room, breakfast room and den. This is an excellent, low-maintenance home for a young family. Good commute—and only $21,500.

YOU CAN'T LOSE!

This superb corner lot has fruit and nut trees ALSO a 2-bedroom home. This habitable home is capable of remodeling and expansion. We are asking $22,500 with a low down.

BIRDSEYE VIEW

A very gemutlich, Bavarian type farm house high on a hill above Mill Valley. The 2-plus bedrooms and charming kitchen—dining area are only a few of the features which make this an excellent buy at only $22,000.

INVESTMENT DELUXE

A two-bedroom home in excellent condition is located on a lot with 167' frontage on the most promising commercial street in Mill Valley. Live in this while your investment grows in value. Truly an EXCELLENT buy at $25,500.

TIBURON TREASURE

A duplex and cottage on this large lot are only a part of the value represented here. By the bay, on a sheltered cove, with a view that is unsurpassed, this is certainly one of the most desirable sites left in this lovely city. Priced at $100,000 and worth it!

WHAT MAKES

A house a home? You'll get the feeling on entering this delightful 3-bdrm and den, large family kitchen. Plus dream workshop—sep. bldg. Close to everything. $27,000.

BIRD WATCHERS

And bargain hunters—an 1800 sq. ft. home on secluded, view lot. 3 bed, 2 baths,, beamed ceiling, built-ins, 3 yrs. old—a forced sale. Make the necessary steal at $32,500.

NON-CONFORMING

In a conforming area gives this home distinction. 3 plus bedrooms—clean as a whistle—near all conveniences and level too. $26,950.

Everyone's Talking About THE MEADOWS at TERRA LINDA

WHY? . . . Because this award-winning apartment community has everything you are looking for: Furnished or unfurnished apartments and townhouses . . . a relaxed setting of incomparable beauty situated on 25 acres . . . family buildings separated from adult buildings . . . all schools just steps away . . . townhouse units have over 1500 sq. ft. with their own private outdoor patios.

THE OAK VIEW CLUB—your own Private Club, is just a short walk from your beautiful Apartment or Townhouse. There is a putting green, lockers, men's and women's lounges, showers and sauna baths . . . 2 wind-free championship tennis courts acclaimed as the best in Marin County . . . two large heated swimming pools and a wading pool . . . shuffleboard, ping-pong and a large, comfortable sunning area . . . all this amidst rolling hills, studded with ancient oaks and beautifully landscaped.

THE CLUB HOUSE itself is luxuriously furnished . . . the cocktail lounge is carpeted and has a huge fireplace . . . intimate social-dining room . . . spacious facilities for private receptions, parties, bridge, teen-age dances and indoor movies.

APARTMENTS consist of one, two and three bedrooms.

TOWNHOUSES consist of two and three bedrooms, 1½ baths.

CHOICES of parquet flooring or area carpeting. All are beautifully draped. All have louvered doors within. Kitchens are completely electric. All refrigerators are self-defrosting and have separate freezer tops. THESE UNITS ARE THE ONLY ONES IN MARIN COUNTY WITH CENTRAL AIR CONDITIONING THERMOSTATICALLY CONTROLLED BY YOU.

Rents start at $160 per month and afford family membership in the Oakview Club.

MODEL apartments, townhouses and the Oakview Club are open for YOUR inspection. We invite you to compare The Meadows with ANY other apartment development in Marin County before renting.

DIRECTIONS: Past San Rafael take Terra Linda turnoff, continue to the end of Freitas Parkway, and then you enter THE MEADOWS.

OPEN every day, 8:30 a.m. to 6:00 p.m.

TELEVISION REVIEW

Some Notes To Help Selecting Programs

By RICK DU BROW

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Notes to watch television by:

The Headliners: Henry Fonda hosts a musical salute to Veterans Day on NBC-TV's "Telephone Hour" Nov. 7, and the U.S. Naval Academy Glee Club will appear on the show...Ray Bolger is the host of ABC-TV's "Hollywood Palace" Nov. 6...Leonard Bernstein's first Young People's Concert of the season for CBS-TV, is scheduled for Nov. 29 . . . Oscar Levant and his wife June are guests on ABC-TV's one-hour daytime discussion show, "The Young Set," Oct. 29... Sammy Davis visits the same program Oct. 27 in a disussion of photographers as social critics and artists...Davis is regarded as a promising photographer.

Jack Lemmon stars in "The Wackiest Ship in the Army" on CBS-TV's Thursday Night Movie Nov. 11...This is the film which was the basis of NBC-TV's new one-hour series of the same name this season...Cornelia Otis Skinner, Inga Swenson, Ruby Dee and Elaine Stritch give advice to aspiring young actresses on CBS-TV's "Camera Three" Sunday . . . Mary Martin's international tour with "Hello Dolly!"—which went to Viet Nam to entertain American troops—will be the subject of a one-hour NBC-TV color documentary . . . Norman Vincent Peale talks about his new book, "Sin, Sex and Self-Control," on the same network's "Today" program Thursday.

Maury Wills, shortstop and captain of the world champion Los Angeles Dodgers, will not only do his banjo-and-singing act on video's "Hollywood Palace" next Saturday, but will make a nightclub tour as well, including Lake Tahoe, Nev., and Seattle... The narrator of those excellent razor blade commercials during NBC-TV's broadcasts of the World Series was that fine actor Ed Binns, who formerly appeared in CBS-TV's "The Doctors and the Nurses"...Comedian - actor Bill Cosby, co-star of NBC-TV's successful new series "I Spy," would like to take on the famous Humphrey Bogart role in a remake of the movie "The Petrified Forest."

Lucille Ball has signed on for the Zero Mostel-Carol Burnett CBS-TV special scheduled for later this season...Clint Walker, star of the old Western series entitled "Cheyenne," appears as a construction superintendent who romances Miss Ball in the Nov. 15 episode of her "Lucy Show" on CBS-TV...Actor William Gargan, who won his battle against cancer, will receive the Criss Award —given to a personality who has figured prominently in the world of medicine—in a special half-hour Oct. 31 NBC-TV broadcast of the ceremony and dinner-...Audrey Meadows is a guest of CBS-TV's Red Skelton Nov. 2.

The Programs: ABC - TV's twice-weekly rock 'n' roll series, "Shindig," will be canceled in December because of bad ratings ...Same network has also axed its Saturday afternoon baseball telecasts for next year for the same reason, and because of a big financial loss on the games this season ...Also on ABC-TV, the "Amos Burke, Secret Agent" series—formerly "Burke's Law"—is expected to disappear pretty soon as a result of the ratings figures . . . The "Today" show offers a report Tuesday on a non-profit organization that seeks jobs for older executives...Same day, "Today" has interviews with Paul Johnson, who crossed the Atlantic alone, and William Willis, who crossed the Pacific solo.

Juan Bosh, former president of the Dominican Republic, is the guest on CBS-TV's "Face the Nation" Oct. 24 in a Santo Domingo interview...Thurgood Marshall, new solicitor general of the United States and the first Negro to hold the post, will join former President Dwight Eisenhower and U.N. Ambassador Arthur Goldberg on CBS-TV's Oct. 26 "Town Meeting of the World," in which the three will answer questions from students in European universities via the Early Bird satellite.

LAW IN ACTION

From the State Bar Of California

Widow Entitled To Allowance

In a recent case, a wealthy man's widow asked and got the court to allow her $5,000 a month to support her, pending probate of her late husband's estate. She needed that amount to continue her standard of living.

These payments are part of the "family allowance" to support the family that comes out of a decedent's estate. After a husband's death, the family may face financial problems and the court will order a family allowance until it orders the estate distributed.

The courts strongly favor the family allowance so long as the estate can pay certain basic expenses such as those for administering the estate, the costs of last illness and the funeral. Other creditors come after the family allowance. After creditors, heirs get what is left. Although the estate cannot pay all creditors, the court can still order the family allowance for up to one year, whether or not the widow or children have other means of support. The court, of course, may reduce the payments in view of these independent means.

In a recent case Mrs. Smith for years before her husband's death had been living apart from him. In fact she had filed for divorce and was getting temporary alimony. When Mr. Smith died, Mrs. Smith asked for a family allowance. Mr. Smith's other heirs objected, claiming that the widow was no longer a part of the "family."

The court ruled for the widow since no divorce had been granted.

No wife would have claim to the allowance if she had deserted or abandoned her husband without reason. She would have renounced her right to it.

However, if the wife had left her husband because he was cruel, she could still claim an allowance upon his death.

Recently a court ruled that a father's illegitimate child, who lived apart, had a claim on a family allowance so long as his father had acknowledged his obligation to the child.

The law also provides for a "probate homestead" which sets aside a modest home for the widow, widower, or minor children before general creditors or other heirs have any right to the estate.

Note: California lawyers offer this column so you may know about our laws.

Costly Mink Stolen From Alto House

Loss of a $4,000 full-length mink coat and about $1,000 worth of other items in burglary of the home of Galen V. Miller, 35 Bay Vista Drive, Alto, was reported yesterday by sheriff's officers.

Deputies said Miller told them he returned home about 3 p.m. yesterday and discovered someone had slipped a lock-bolt on the front door. The coat, another fur piece worth $350, two women's rings with pearls, and a transistor radio were missing, officers said.

The house had been ransacked.

Crystal Mazer, 808 Spring Drive, Muir Beach, told deputies her residence was entered by prying a front door. Two brown pigskin suitcases, a typewriter, and a small quantity of clothing and books were taken.

She said she was moving to another address and the burglars apparently pried the front door.

Guitar Stolen

A guitar worth $500 was stolen from Sherman Clay Music School, San Rafael Thursday, the instrument's owner, Rex Anthony Larson, 4 Chestnut Avenue, Ross, reported to police.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Irradiating Blood Outside Body May Be Remedy For Leukema

VAN DELLEN

An unusual remedy for leukemia was described recently in the New England Journal of Medicine by a medical team at the University of Washington. Blood is shunted in the forearm from an artery to a vein by means of a silastic-Teflon tube that remains outside the body. The skin is shielded with lead and the flow of blood is irradiated for two hours daily for a month or more. The idea is to kill the leukemic cells as they pass under the rays of the X-ray machine.

In leukemia, the bone marrow and lymph glands manufacture large numbers of abnormal white blood cells. Some authorities believe that the basic cause is a cancer of the blood-forming organs. Others are of the opinion that these cells live longer than do normal cells and the overaccumulation is responsible for the high white count.

THERE ARE two main types of leukemia. The acute form favors children and begins with fever followed by a rapidly developing pallor and prostration.

Chronic leukemia begins insidiously and is more common in adults. The victim may appear healthy but consults his physician because of enlarged lymph glands in the neck, armpit, and groin.

A blood count is done and the number of white cells may be in excess of 100,000 (normal is less than 10,000). Weakness and loss of appetite and weight may develop months later.

IRRADIATION of the lymph glands and bones via X-ray or the injection of radioactive phosphorus help to control the disease. Chemical agents such as busulfan, urethane, or 6-mercaptopurine also are used.

Treatment is not curative and is used mainly when the individual has symptoms or when the white count exceeds 50,000.

Irradiation of the blood flowing through the shunt outside the body is relatively simple and safe. Encouraging results were obtained in four individuals with chronic leukemia but not in one with the acute type.

(Dr. Van Dellen will answer questions on medical topics by mail if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request.)

BABY'S SQUINT

Mrs. F. writes: My baby was not born cross-eyed but now, at 18 months, he is. Could teething cause the eyes to turn?

REPLY

No. Your child may have a disturbance in one eye or weakness of the muscles. At any rate, a good ophthalmologist should be consulted because squints can be corrected with drops, a patch, glasses, or surgery.

DILATED BRONCHI

E. H. writes: Does bronchiectasis follow bronchitis?

REPLY

It may follow repeated attacks of bronchitis or sinus infection. Other causes include pneumonia, lung abscess, or faulty development of the lungs. Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope for leaflet on bronchiectasis.

MORNING SICKNESS

Mrs. B. writes: How soon after pregnancy does vomiting in the morning begin?

REPLY

As early as the first week, but usually in the fifth. As a rule, the condition tends to subside by the end of the third month, but in a few instances, morning sickness continues until term.

WON'T PENETRATE

Mrs. L. writes: My child developed ringworm of the scalp. Could this disease go through the skull to the brain?

REPLY

No. The skull acts as a barrier. Besides, the fungus prefers hair to brain tissue and is quite content to remain on the scalp.

ACID AND NAUSEA

U. T. writes: Would a shortage of hydrochloric acid in the stomach cause a person to feel nauseated, whether the stomach is empty or full?

REPLY

Indigestion may stem from too little or too much hydrochloric acid. This seems paradoxical but proof is offered by the good results that follow the use of hydrochloric acid in the former, and antacids in the latter.

FATIGUE

E. Q. writes: Does high blood pressure cause a person to feel tired all the time?

REPLY

Fatigue occurs in a certain percentage of cases, but is not a major symptom. Many medications used in treating hypertension cause relaxation, and your physician would not object to your relaxing in this way, as it helps lower tension.

BOUTS OF BURSITIS

I. M. K. writes: Does bursitis of the shoulder tend to recur?

REPLY

One attack does not immunize the individual against another bout. The same conditions that produced the first attack will bring on others if the cause is not corrected or if it recurs.

TRAVELING MUCUS

C. E. writes: What causes a rattling chest?

REPLY

The noise from the up and down movement of mucus in the main bronchus, or windpipe.

Kettenhofen Hits Airport Land Costs

County Supervisor Ernest N. Kettenhofen yesterday brought up some more artillery in his battle over the proposed county airport development near Novato.

The county public works department has estimated the county must pay about $4,000 an acre for the 63 acres needed for expansion.

The supervisor declared that assessor's records show some of the land adjacent to the existing landing strip valued at $588 an acre.

"The $4,000 figure seems drastically out of line," Kettenhofen declared today.

Kettenhofen intends to ask supervisors Tuesday to reconsider the vote last week to go ahead with an application for federal aid in building a $500,000 facility at Novato.

One of the most outstanding grant holders, both in accomplishments and physical proportions, was the huge and kindly Irishman, Don Timoteo Murphy, whose three Mexican land grants included what is now San Rafael and land to the north.

Driver Gets Fined, Draws Probation

Clifton Brown Briggs, 68, of 46 Santa Barbara Avenue, San Anselmo, was fined $166, placed on a year's probation, and given a 30-day suspended jail sentence yesterday in Marin Municipal Court for drunken driving.

He was arrested on Fourth Street by San Rafael police Aug. 7.

800 young tigers earn their stripes

I-J newspaperboys learn a lot more than how to make money. They also learn something NO MONEY CAN BUY, NO TEXTBOOK CAN TEACH.

They earn, with the aid of I-J advisors, the single most important thing which leads to success in their adult years —the feeling of self-reliance and initiative.

This isn't just talk. I-J boys become aware, through serving you, that THEY CAN DO A JOB. They become responsible. They become keen businessmen. They learn the value of money and the greater value of saving it. And they make the always satisfying discovery that a paper route leads to personal independence.

In the beginning, our boys are no better equipped than other youngsters. But as they serve, collect money, handle accounts, see their savings grow—they develop qualities which lead to success in any field in life.

To help our young tigers, the I-J has a complete training program. Friendly supervisors encourage and counsel the boys, offer worthwhile incentives, and help each do a job of which he and his parents can be proud.

Pretty good way to start life, don't you think?

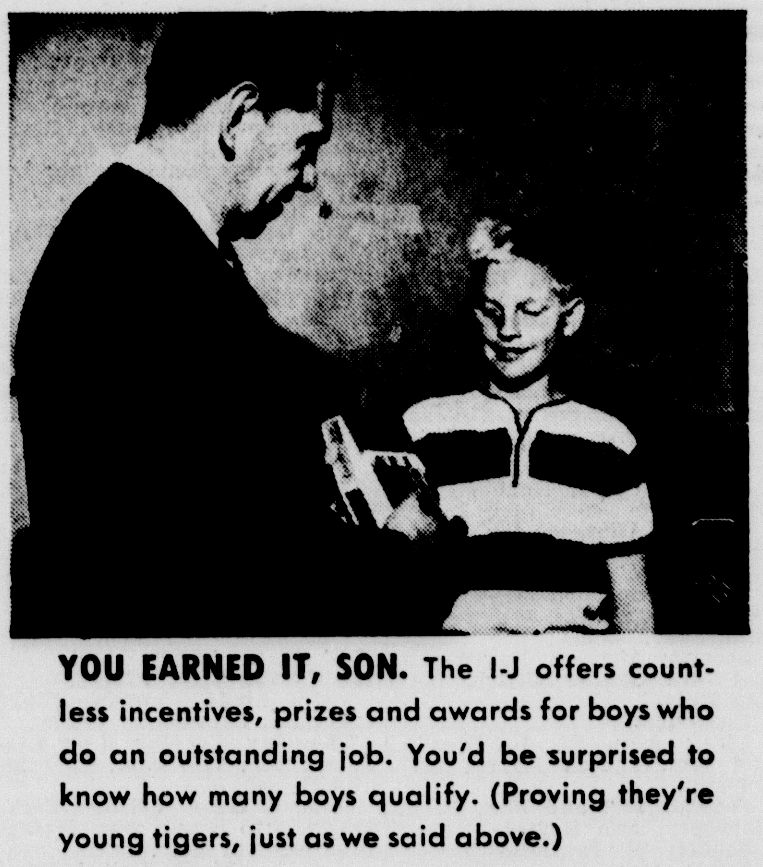
I-J newspaperboys get a headstart on earning, learning and leadership

HERE'S HOW YOU DO IT. Each boy can count on personal aid from his district advisor. No matter what the problem, there's always a friendly hand to guide and help each boy achieve his goals.



YOU EARNED IT, SON. The I-J offers countless incentives, prizes and awards for boys who do an outstanding job. You'd be surprised to know how many boys qualify. (Proving they're young tigers, just as we said above.)

ALL ABOARD FOR FUN. Major holiday trips (such as this one to Disneyland) are offered boys who handle their routes well, make collections on time, bring in new subscriptions. Boys make many a close friend on these fun trips.

A pat on the back for our boys—and yours

'Big Brother' To The Violin

Violist Meets Challenge Of In-Between Instrument

BY MAYBELLE SPECKMAN

Lovers of chamber music, if not actually musicians, are usually highly knowledgeable people musically — especially those who prefer string quartet music.

DEVOTEES of fine music who are not familiar with this music do not know what they are missing. The acme of chamber music, the string quartet is the ideal of this form in which each voice may have solo independence, yet must be an integral part of the ensemble.

Since the subscription campaign for the ninth annual season of the Marin Arts Quartet opens this month, it may be of interest to know a little more about the viola—least familiar of the instruments—the other being the first and second violins and the cello.

Elizabeth Bell, violist with the Marin Arts Quartet, provided information in a recent interview.

"The viola is most like the violin," she said, "but it is larger and is tuned differently, a fifth lower in tone, and it plays mostly in the alto clef. Incidentally, no two violas are the same size unless they are purposely made as copies of some instrument.

SINCE IT has a bigger sound box and thicker strings than the violin, it has a different timbre or more sombre and throaty sound, although on the A string it can be brilliant. It can really scream in the upper register. This kind of sound is what is heard more in contemporary music, but Brahms's use of the viola is the norm for the instrument.

"It is not unusally considered a solo instrument," she continued. "William Primrose is largely responsible for furthering interest in the viola as a solo instrument.

"Repertoire for solo viola is small. We don't know whether this is because there are fewer viola players than players of other stringed instruments, or whether there are few solo violists because there are so few solo works for the viola.

ONE OF the really great viola solos—"Harold in Italy" by Berlioz—was written for the great violinist Paganini.

"In the string quartet," she explained, "the melodic line is frequently assigned to the viola, and it is not duplicated in the way the second violin frequently duplicates the first, because the timbre is different.

"PLAYING THE viola in a quartet is difficult because extra effort must be used—the same is true of the second violin — to make it heard as well as the first violin and cello, which stand out because they are the highest and lowest voices.

"Seating position often complicates this problem," she pointed out. "Usually at the extreme right facing the first violin, the viola does not project its sound toward the audience. The violist must often turn slightly toward the audience, though this results in difficulties of visual contact with the other players.

"In orchestral works, especially Hayden's, the viola follows the cello or doubles the bass. In Bach and Mozart it becomes more interesting, and in romantic works of Beethoven and Brahms there are more interesting parts," she said.

While members of the quartet tend to lose their identity as individuals in their ensemble performances, it is important that each member be an outstanding musician in his own right with an enviable reputation for musical achievement.

ELIZABETH Bell Fulfills these requirements.

A student of the violin since she was 14, she turned to the viola when the Portland Junior Symphony needed viola players, though she continued violin lessons.

After studying with private teachers she attended the Juilliard School of Music in New York City and for six years was with the Portland Symphony as a violist, three of these years as principal of the section.

Since coming to the Bay Area, Mrs. Bell has played eight years with the Bach Festival in Carmel, with the San Francisco Little Symphony under Gregory Miller five years and with the Cappella di Musica eight years.

OVER a period of four years she has played with the Bach to Mozart Chamber Players and has been principal of the viola section with the Marin Symphony.

Since 1961 she has been violist with the Marin Arts Quartet, which was founded in 1957 under the leadership of violinist Charles Meacham.

The quartet presents three concerts in a season at the Outdoor Art Club in Mill Valley at 3 p.m. on Sunday, each of which is followed by a reception and tea.

THIS YEAR'S concerts are scheduled on Nov. 14, Feb. 6 and March 27.

IN THE MIDDLE of the scale among string instruments is the viola, held here by Elizabeth Bell of the Marin Arts Quartet. It takes extra effort, she explains, to make this instrument heard as clearly as the violin, which has the highest voice, and the cello, with the lowest. The viola is comparable to the alto in a vocal quartet, yet it plays a tenor role.

VIOLIST Elizabeth Bell (right) poses here with the entire Marin Arts Quartet, whose other members are first violinist Charles Meacham, second violinist Cicely Edmunds (left) and Jean Maguire, cello. The chamber group plays three concerts each year. Subscription campaign for their ninth season begins this month.

JUMPING like this usually takes place at horse shows, not auctions. However, in an effort to inject the flavor of the famed Tattersall auctions of London, the Atherton Club stable plans to put the horses through their paces in the club's show ring before they go on sale tomorrow. Shown going over the hurdle is The Grey Ghost, with Nancy Kimbell of Novato up.

Flavor Of London Auctions Comes To Novato Horse Ring

"Gentlemen, what can you hesitate about?

"ONLY LOOK at her. She is one of the most beautiful creatures I have ever had the honor of submitting to your notice!

"So gentle in her paces; indeed, so safe a goer that a child might ride her. Her pedigree is excellent. She is thoroughbred from her ear to her hoof.

"My Lord Duke, will you allow me to say 250 pounds for your grace?"

The place was London. The time was 100 years ago, and the speaker was auctioneer Richard Tattersall, whose name is synonymous with horse auctions still held at the market on Knightbridge Green.

At least one Marin resident recalls those auctions. He is Douglas G. Hertz, executive director of the Atherton Club in Novato.

RECALLING with excitement his boyhood attendance at the Tattersall auctions — black tie events at which London's gentry arrived in horse-drawn carriages — Hertz decided to re-create their mood as much as he could at an American sale.

How well this could be done in mid-20th century America will become evident at 11 a.m. tomorrow, when the club stable holds its first "Tattersall style" event.

A writer of the 19th century described the original London auctions thusly:

"In attendance were the dashing heroes of the military, the fox-hunting clericals, sprigs of nobility, stylish coachmen, smart guards, saucy butchers, natty grooms, knowing horse dealers, sporting men of all descriptions, and the picture is finished by numbers of real gentlemen."

WHETHER all of these precise types will be present in Novato tomorrow remains to be seen. But Hertz is hopeful that

OWNERS groom their thoroughbreds in the show ring at the Atherton Club stable's show ring in Novato, site of an unusual show and auction planned tomorrow in hopes of bringing the British Tattersall style auction to this country. As a climax to the show, the horses which are for sale will line up in the ring, with their owners beside them in full equestrian dress.

POLO PLAYER Douglas G. Hertz of Novato continued his polo career, begun in the British Army, for years after he came to this country in 1919. This photo was taken in 1930. He often competed against cowboys, and startled his jeans-clad opponents and spectators by wearing a tuxedo in a Madison Square Garden rodeo.

the auction, which will take place in the club's show ring instead of the usual narrow area, will capture much of the Tattersall flavor—and will "bring California to the fore as a thoroughbred horse sale market."

Hertz, who is 80, recently told how a life-long interest in horses got its start at the Tattersall auctions.

Most vivid in his memories, he said, is the picture of a magnificent collection of animals circling in endless procession, led or guided by their grooms while high stepping hackneys and other breeds of harness horses spurned the tanbark impatiently.

TROTTERS, thoroughbreds, saddle horses, jumpers, polo and harness ponies mingled in the ring, which resounded with neighing and the calls of the grooms and handlers. Hoofs of others pounded and thundered as they came to the ring from their stalls.

Horses which were not guaranteed were sold under what was called "the red flag." Hertz and his brother took advantage of the lower price on such animals and began buying them. After training the "red flag" horses, the boys re-sold them at Tattersall's. The profits helped finance their education.

The love of horses continued to thread its way through Hertz's life, a colorful series of careers which were described in detail earlier this year in the Marin Magazine.

As a mounted officer in the British Army, for instance, he distinguished himself as a polo player. He came to America in 1907 and 1910 to play in international polo competition.

AFTER he came to this country to stay in 1919, Hertz competed against cowboys, riding an English saddle in spite of his opponents' Western models. Once, in Madison Square Garden, spectators were treated to the sight of Hertz in a tuxedo, surrounded by American cowboys in jeans and 10 gallon hats.

In 1935, he established the swank Pegasus Polo Club in Rockleigh, N.J. and remained as its "master of hounds" until the club was taken over by the government in 1942. Then, he moved west.

Tomorrow's event, which reflects much of its planner's equestrian background, will take advantage of the Atherton Club's 240 by 120 foot show ring, and will combine much of the excitement of a first-rate horse show along with the business aspects of the sale itself.

JUMPERS will hurdle the brick wall and the jumps. Entries in eight classes will be shown in the ring so buyers will be able to see how well each one performs. Finally, all will be lined up in the ring's center.

Instead of receiving trophies, as at an actual show, however, they will go up for bid.

And if anyone really wants to know how close the Novato event comes to capturing the spirit of an actual Tattersall auction, there is a way to find out, provided one has the plane fare.

TATTERSALL'S is still going, as attested to by a news item from London earlier this month. The story reported that an American sportsman paid 17,000 guineas for a colt at the Tattersall market's October yearling sale.

In American money, that comes to $49,980.

TWO ARTISTS — well known painter Geoffrey Lewis and hobbyist Harry Barnes of San Anselmo — compare notes over one of Barnes' seascapes, which bear a style similar to that used by Lewis. Barnes will have his first one-man show starting tomorrow at Buffs Galleries in Fairfax.

Marinite Once Faced Mexican 'Banditos', Now He Just Paints

Amateur Painter Barnes To Have His First Show

An unusual art show in Fairfax next week will bring attention to an 80-year-old San Anselmo man whose quiet life today belies an amazing background.

Harry Barnes, in his youth, did many of the things most of us dreamed of doing when we were children.

Son of a Methodist circuit riding minister, he was born in Osceola, Ohio. At age 15, he went to work for the Toledo and Ohio Central Railroad as a waterboy, a job which gave him a chance to railroad into the wide-open, still developing West.

Highway robbers, Indians and the long-barrelled Colt. 44 were still a part of everyday life, he recalls.

By the time he was 20, Barnes had become an expert telegrapher. He worked in that capacity many times after that for several railroads and for Postal Telegraph, which eventually was swallowed up by Western Union.

When he was 21, he went to work for Wells-Fargo as a special agent and guard. The stagecoach company transferred him to its San Francisco office.

Harry Barnes' first look at San Francisco, he says now, was an unforgetable one. The reason: he arrived the morning after the great 1906 earthquake, when the city was in flame. Like everyone else in this area, he was swept into the cauldron of catastrophe during those terrible days.

From then until 1912, he traveled out of the San Francisco office. It was these years that Barnes went through some memorable adventures of his life, including the difficult task of revolution and "banditos."

The United Statee in those days was buying Mexican gold to mint into money. Wells-Fargo was the agent to bring it up from mines near and south of Guadalajara.

Carrying the gold out by rail, stagecoach and on horseback, Barnes found it a dangerous and exciting business. He recalls many times when he was lucky to get back alive.

Life settled down in 1919, however, when he wed his boyhood sweetheart, Florence McGill. Giving up the adventurous life, Barnes went back to work as a telegrapher.

As a hobby, Barnes began to paint. He taught himself how to do it for the most part, but eventually became engrossed enough to enroll at the California School of Fine Arts in San Francisco.

Although few outside his family knew of his interest in art, Barnes turned out more than 100 canvasses — oils and water colors — over a period of years. He began sending paintings to his grandchildren each year as birthday presents.

One of the few Barnes works which is on public display is an oil for Florence Nightingale which he gave to the University of California's nursing school in 1952.

Much of his self-teaching consisted of meticulous copying of classic paintings of the Old West by Russell, Remington and Miller. He also, however, has done many seascapes and landscapes around San Franciso and Marin, as well as some southwestern desert scenes.

Recently, Barnes' granddaughter, Mrs. Karen Brown, entered Buff''s Galleries in Fairfax to see the works of well known Marin artist Geoffery Lewis. After seeing Lewis' landscapes, she told him that her grandfather used a similar style.

Interested, Lewis asked to meet Barnes.

After two afternoons talking shop with the elderly artist, Lewis persuaded gallery proprietor Nancy Ford to set up an exhibit of his works.

The show opens at 11 a.m. tomorrow and runs through Thursday.

Sailing School: Hard But Fun

Instructor Finds Bay Ideal Spot

Running a sailing school is a good job for a man who does not like to work very hard, but who will work hard if he has to.

AND, according to Hoyt Barnett, who organized his own sailing school in Sausalito shortly after Christmas last year, you usually have to work hard.

Dolphin Sailing School wasn't really started on purpose — at least not as a sailing school

"Early this year, "says Barnett," when Mrs. Barnett and I were fretting away a winter aboard our 10-ton ketch (which has been our home for 10 years), I discovered that quite a few people wanted to sail—but didn't know how.

"At that time," he added, "I was taking care of the rental sloops owned by my friend, Cass Gidley, who has a habit of spending winter months at La Paz, Baja California. So, to make a buck for myself and another for a friend, I began giving sailing lessons.

"IN THE months since we started, we have had more than 90 students in either the basic or advanced sailing courses," he said.

Barnett operates the school on the theory that one learns best by doing.

"I'm not against books. But you can't put a reef in one, or sail her into the shelter of a cove. Still, we supply two books to each student as part of our courses, and expect the students to learn what is in the books. That way an instructor need not spend time yakking about obvious things when he should be showing a student how to synchronize such things as tiller and mainsheet tensions."

Barnett, who has had much sailing experience, feels San Francisco Bay provides some of the finest sports sailing in the world.

OFTEN it is tricky," he says, "but, except for winter storms, San Francisco Bay is a safe sailing area for any keel boat that is at all well-rigged.

"Sure, tidal currents, especially the strong ebbs, can be tough with a westerly beating it up. But when a sailor learns that all a man has to plan for is living five minutes at a time, he has

HOW TO bend on a mainsail, then furl it, at the outset of a sailing session is shown to John F. Maillard (left) of Tiburon by sailing instructor Hoyt Barnett. Maillard, a painting contractor and interior decorator, plans to own his own craft for Bay sailing — once he learns how to sail.

BUILDING THEIR own boat from the keel up are Katherine and Richard Coady of Sausalito. After enrolling in Hoyt Barnett's sailing school, they started work on a small sloop designed for sailing in Richardson Bay. Unsatisfied with this frame, they burned it in their fireplace since this photo was taken. It is not a simple or swift job.

Plastic Boats Offer Trouble Free Sailing

San Francisco Bay—and a lot of other things—under control.

Autumn months are particularly nice here, he feels. Between now and spring he predicts, "we will have fewer gusts down Hurricane Gulch to set up weird tunes in the rigging, and except for southerly and southeasterly storms, virtualy every winter day is a good sailing day on San Francisco Bay."

SINCE Barnett first took sailing lessons from his father nearly 50 years ago, he has seen many changes in the 'sailing picture".

Twenty-five years ago, particularly along the East Coast, sailing was pretty much for those who were wealthy, or smart enough to figure out a way to adjust problems—like money—which are important to poor people.

He traded experience and some caulking-iron labor for a place in a boat.

"I wouldn't have so much trade goods today, because more than half the sloops I see are made of plastic.

If his personal life were organized more along conventional lines, Barnett said he would, for use on San Farncisco Bay, select any of several plastic boats that are receiving acceptance by the public.

"The best marme architects in the world are preparing the designs for the plastic boats now selling for $3,000 up," he said.

"These men know how to balance a boat: what her sail plan should carry for each hundred pounds of weight and how to establish a center of effort that will maintain effective relationships to the center of lateral resistance.

'The woodwork on some of the plastic production jobs is rough, but by and large there is no other way except by such production methods—and the use of plastics—that so many sailors could have so many boats and, perhaps more important, have the maintenance-free time to sail them."

Between plastic boats and the open, bright weather of San Francisco Bay's usual winter, Barnett feels that the only factor to create a limit on the number of boats sailed regularly on local waters is marina space.

"We do have a lot of shoreline. "It should be developed for maximum recreational use, and it should be developed now, because each year that intelligent development is delayed, the greater will be the deterioration of the shoreline."

PROFILE OF A MARINITE

She Works To Aid Marin's Children

San Anselmo Woman's Determination Paved Way For Easter Seal Socety

By LOIS SENS

"She works in the center (Easter Seal Society) every Monday, all day, and has more pep than women many years her junior . . . and she's a fairly rapid and accurate typist, too."

Mrs. Dare Morgan of San Anselmo, the lady candidly described above, is quite a remarkable person, a woman of determination who, seeing a need for action in the county, paved the way for the formation of Marin's Easter Seal Society, formerly known as the Marin County Society For Crippled Children and Adults, Inc.

The Morgans' first child was handicapped, and "we found we (Marin County) had nothing in the way of helping those children." Thus, Mrs. Morgan who was born in San Francisco and moved to the family summer home in San Anselmo after the earthquake and fire in 1906, was spearheaded into a crusade which would eventually bring aid to handicapped and crippled children.

The dedication and open house marking the opening of The Marin County Society for Crippled Children and Adults, Inc., held on May 6, 1962, climaxed some thirty years' struggle on the part of philanthropic Marinites dedicated to helping the physically handicapped.

Mrs. Morgan, one of those Marinites, approached county school superintendent James B. Davidson in 1926 on the possibility of conducting a survey in the county's schools to determine the number of handicapped children and the nature of their difficulties. At this time there were no programs for children unable to attend regular schools.

The survey revealed there were about 20 children who could benefit by special attention, yet the succeeding county superintendent, George Kendall, opposed the school program on the basis of cost.

Whenever Mrs. Morgan became discouraged about the tangled web of proddings without progress, she would "take my woes to Wade Thomas (of the San Anselmo School District). He was the one person who urged me not to give up . . . and gave me encouragement when it was most needed."

Thomas agreed to hire a home teacher, Mrs. Lewis Cummings, who was inexperienced, yet developed her own techniques in teaching cerebral palsied children.

In 1940, on a January evening which Mrs. Morgan describes as "one of the stormiest of the year," interested persons met at the Red Cross headquarters in San Rafael to form the society. Mrs. Charles Reindollar, wife of the senator, was elected president and Mrs. Morgan became historian and charter member.

The society sponsored a summer class for the handicapped children which operated every summer at Wade Thomas School (then called Main School) and a similar class was started in Mill Valley at the Tamalpais Park School. The organization later extended its services to give faith and hope to physically handicapped adults. Even now it encourages handicapped adults to meet each Thursday at the 629 Mission Ave. location to work with ceramics and looms.

Mrs. Morgan also worked on the program in which the society initiated a drive collecting $21,000 to establish a temporary school for handicapped children at the Marin General Hospital Annex building. Within three years, an increase in attendance called for a permanent school which was established in Terra Linda under the name, Marindale School.

Mrs. Morgan, whose husband died in January this year, has two sons and a daughter living near the Bay Area. The Rev. Dare Morgan, S.J., who heads the mathematics department at St. Ignatius High School in San Francisco, dedicated the society's new building at the May, 1962, open house. Another son, Herbert Morgan, was graduated from University of California at Davis in animal husbandry and resides in Chico where he is employed with a land development corporation.

Mrs. Morgan's daughter, Mrs. Eleanor Douglas Faulkner of Walnut Creek, formerly lived in Novato and races with the Marin Ski Club. She was graduated from College of Marin with a major in business.

As a public minded citizen, Mrs. Morgan felt she had to join the women of the county in promoting the county health program. "And since I could type and take shorthand, they made me secretary," she adds.

She and her husband enjoyed traveling. During his retirement, the couple made annual trips reaching such places as New York, Niagara Falls and parts of Canada including Victoria and Vancouver. One year they took a Caribbean Cruise which stopped at Cuba and covered the southern states. Another time they headed south, driving to Acapulco and Puebla in Mexico.

A recent cruise took them to Alaska through the inside passage as far as Norcross in the Yukon territory.

Mrs. Morgan treasures a blue and gold mosaic, copied from the Madonna at the Basilica of St. Mark's Cathedral in Venice. Her cousin, who owns a glass factory in Morano, Italy, sent the portrait to her as a gift.

Her interest in schools led to her election as president of Main School Parent-Teacher Assn. in San Anselmo and to a life membership in the California Congress of Parents and Teachers. She is also a past president of the Easter Seal Society, presiding during its early years.

Active in religious as well as civic affairs, Mrs. Morgan is a charter member of the National Council of Catholic Women of Marin and belongs to the Holy Family Guild of Marin and Jesuit Mother's Guild of San Francisco as well. For 20 years she has followed current events more closely through her membership in the Town Hall Lecture Series.

This active lady has many interests: theater, art, business. "I merely get on a bus and go to whatever is currently appearing." In her garden she tends an impressive group of thornless roses in reds and purples, and fruit trees including peach, plum and apple.

Her interests go on and on— as well they might for one so vitally attuned to the welfare of the county.

MRS. DARE MORGAN poses with a blue and gold mosaic which hangs over the mantel in her San Anselmo home. The mosaic, copied from the Madonna in the Basilica of St. Mark's Cathedral in Venice, was given her by a cousin who operates a glass factory in the nearby city of Morano.

An interest in schools and a personal reason for being concerned about handicapped youngsters have combined to place her in the forefront in spearheading drives for county agencies which aid children and adults victimized by handicaps.

Marin Living

Home Blends Quarry Tile, Muted Hues

An air of warmth and charm greets the visitor to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Morgan of 230 Summit Avenue, San Rafael.

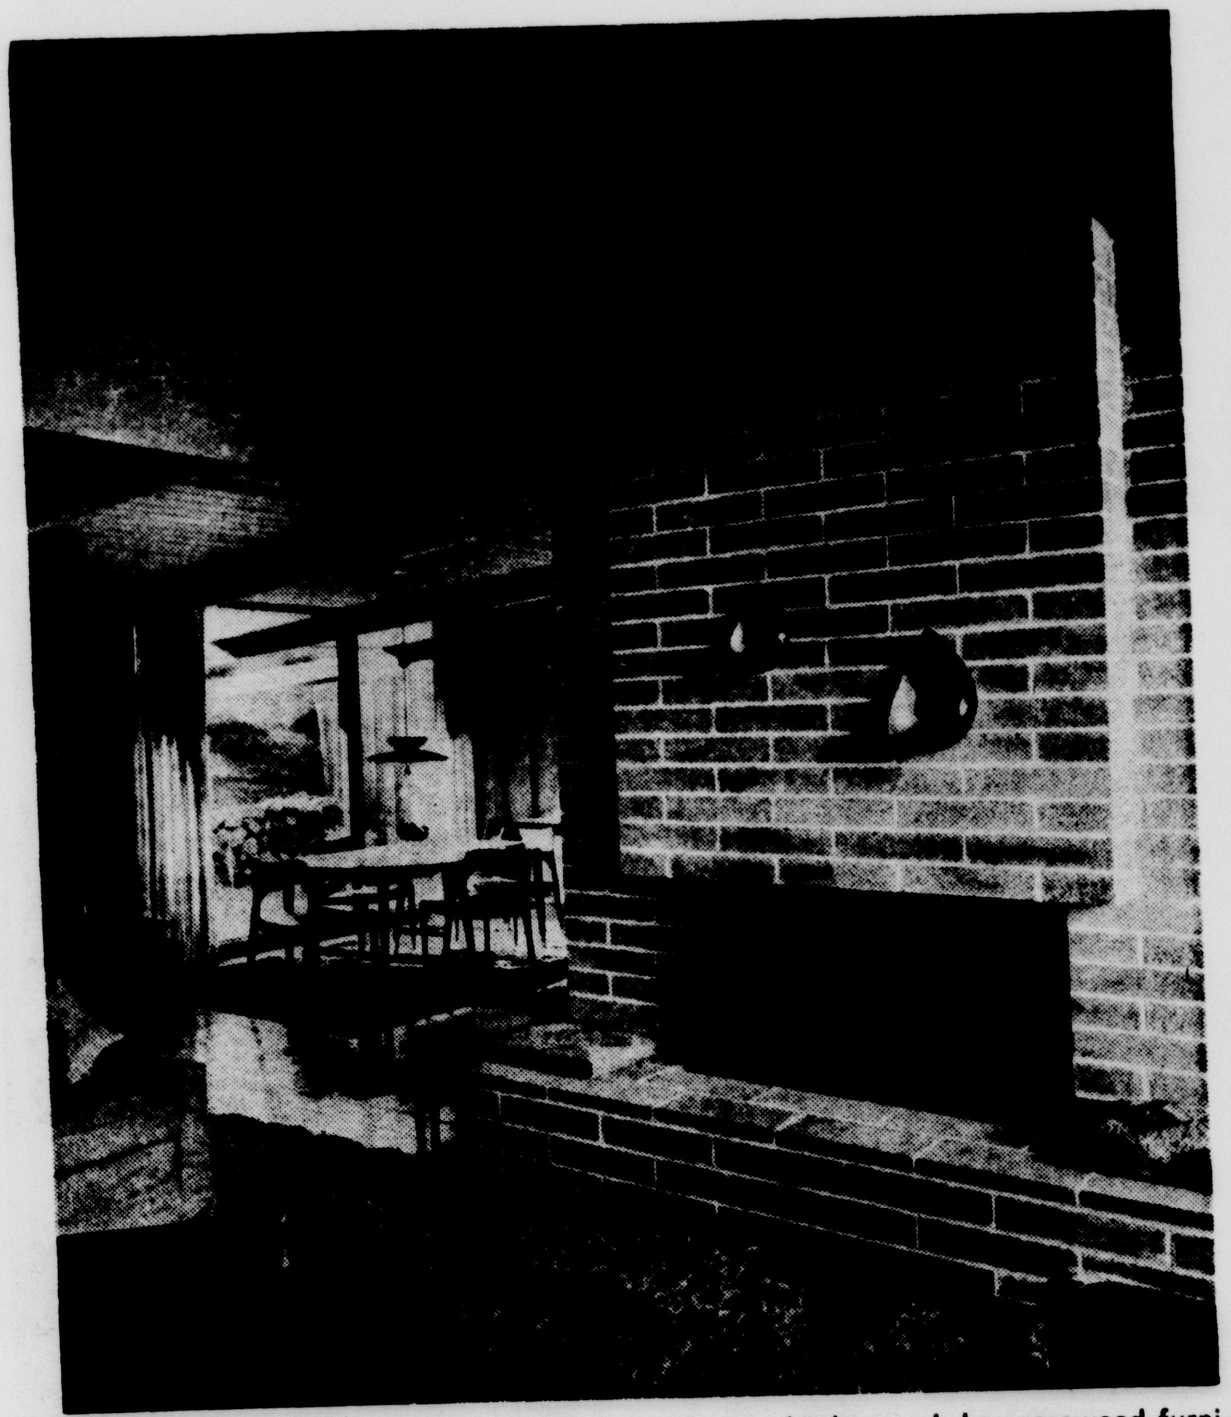
Approached by a long driveway bordered by fruit trees, the low, wooden house fits neatly into its surroundings.

Its entrance is dominated by a beautifullly carved Mexican crest and a brass-washed tin lantern hanging from the ceiling.

Builder was the William H. McDevitt Co. of San Rafael, while the design was by San Francisco architect John J. van der Ploeg. Mill Valley interior decorator Betty Perdue aided Mrs. Morgan in planning colors throughout the interior.

Since the bedroom wing was designed with a large family in mind, the three Morgan children each have separate rooms. Each was given the chance to express his or her own personality in them.

FOCAL point of the Harold Morgan family's living room is an unusual old Mexican table. It is, however, only one of several interesting decorative accents used by Mrs. Morgan in decorating her San Rafael home. The table has a hammered iron brazier, used in another era both for heating and cooking. Glass walls and sliding door extend the room into the outdoors. They lead to a terrace and the yard. (Photos by Ken Molino)



BRASS sconces over raised hearth fireplace in the San Rafael home of the Harold Morgan family echo warm tones of brick and tile used throughout. Dining area, seen in background, has rosewood furniture bought by the Morgans in Copenhagen. The orange and brown rug reflects sunny tones of the rosewood and quarry tile.

MEXICAN chest and hanging tin lantern dominate the lovely extrance to the Harold Morgan home. Red-brown quarry tile, used inside, is here also. Home was designed by John J. van der Ploeg of San Francisco, built by William H. McDevitt of San Rafael.

'Dramatic' Is The Only Word

Architect Callister's Work Follows Bold, Strong Lines

A subconscious admiration for old Fort Ross may have been at work when Tiburon architect Charles Warren Callister designed a house in Mendocino County.

At least Callister thinks so.

The house, built of redwood lumber in the town of Gualala, has captured the imagination of many people living along the rugged Mendocino Coast. They have, in fact, named the home "Little Fort Ross."

Marin residents have come to a high regard for the work of the 47-year-old architect, who has designed several striking homes, schools and churches in this county.

They have had fewer chances, of course, to see what he has done elsewhere. One such opportunity, however, comes through a display now on view in San Francisco.

Titled "Charles Warren Callister—A Photographic Review of His Architecture," the exhibit features 37 photographs of his buildings, taken by six photographers. Some are in five-foot mural size.

Born in Rochester, N. Y., Callister studied architecture and fine arts at the University of Texas in Austin from 1935 to 1941, when he joined the Army. He was in the Army Air Corps and Corps of Engineers until 1945.

After the war, Callister came to Marin and began work in Tiburon.

Since that time, he has built a national reputation, winning numerous awards and having his work described in popular magazines as well as leading architectural journals.

He has had photographic exhibits at architectural schools on both coasts and at private galleries in California and Oregon. In 1957, the U.S. Department of State commissioned an exhibit at the World Trade Fair in Vienna.

Among his Marin County buildings are Belvedere's First Church of Christ, Scientist, the Belvedere Cove apartments, and his own dramatic office building in Tiburon.

In addition, he did initial planning on the Reedlands subdivision in Tiburon and has collaborated with J. Martin Rosse on several schools in Marin as well as San Mateo County.

In a recent project, a retirement community in Contra Costa County, he developed a new concept.

Blending groups of redwood structures into the hillsides of Walnut Creek, he replaced the old institutional one-building idea with a community of neighbor-

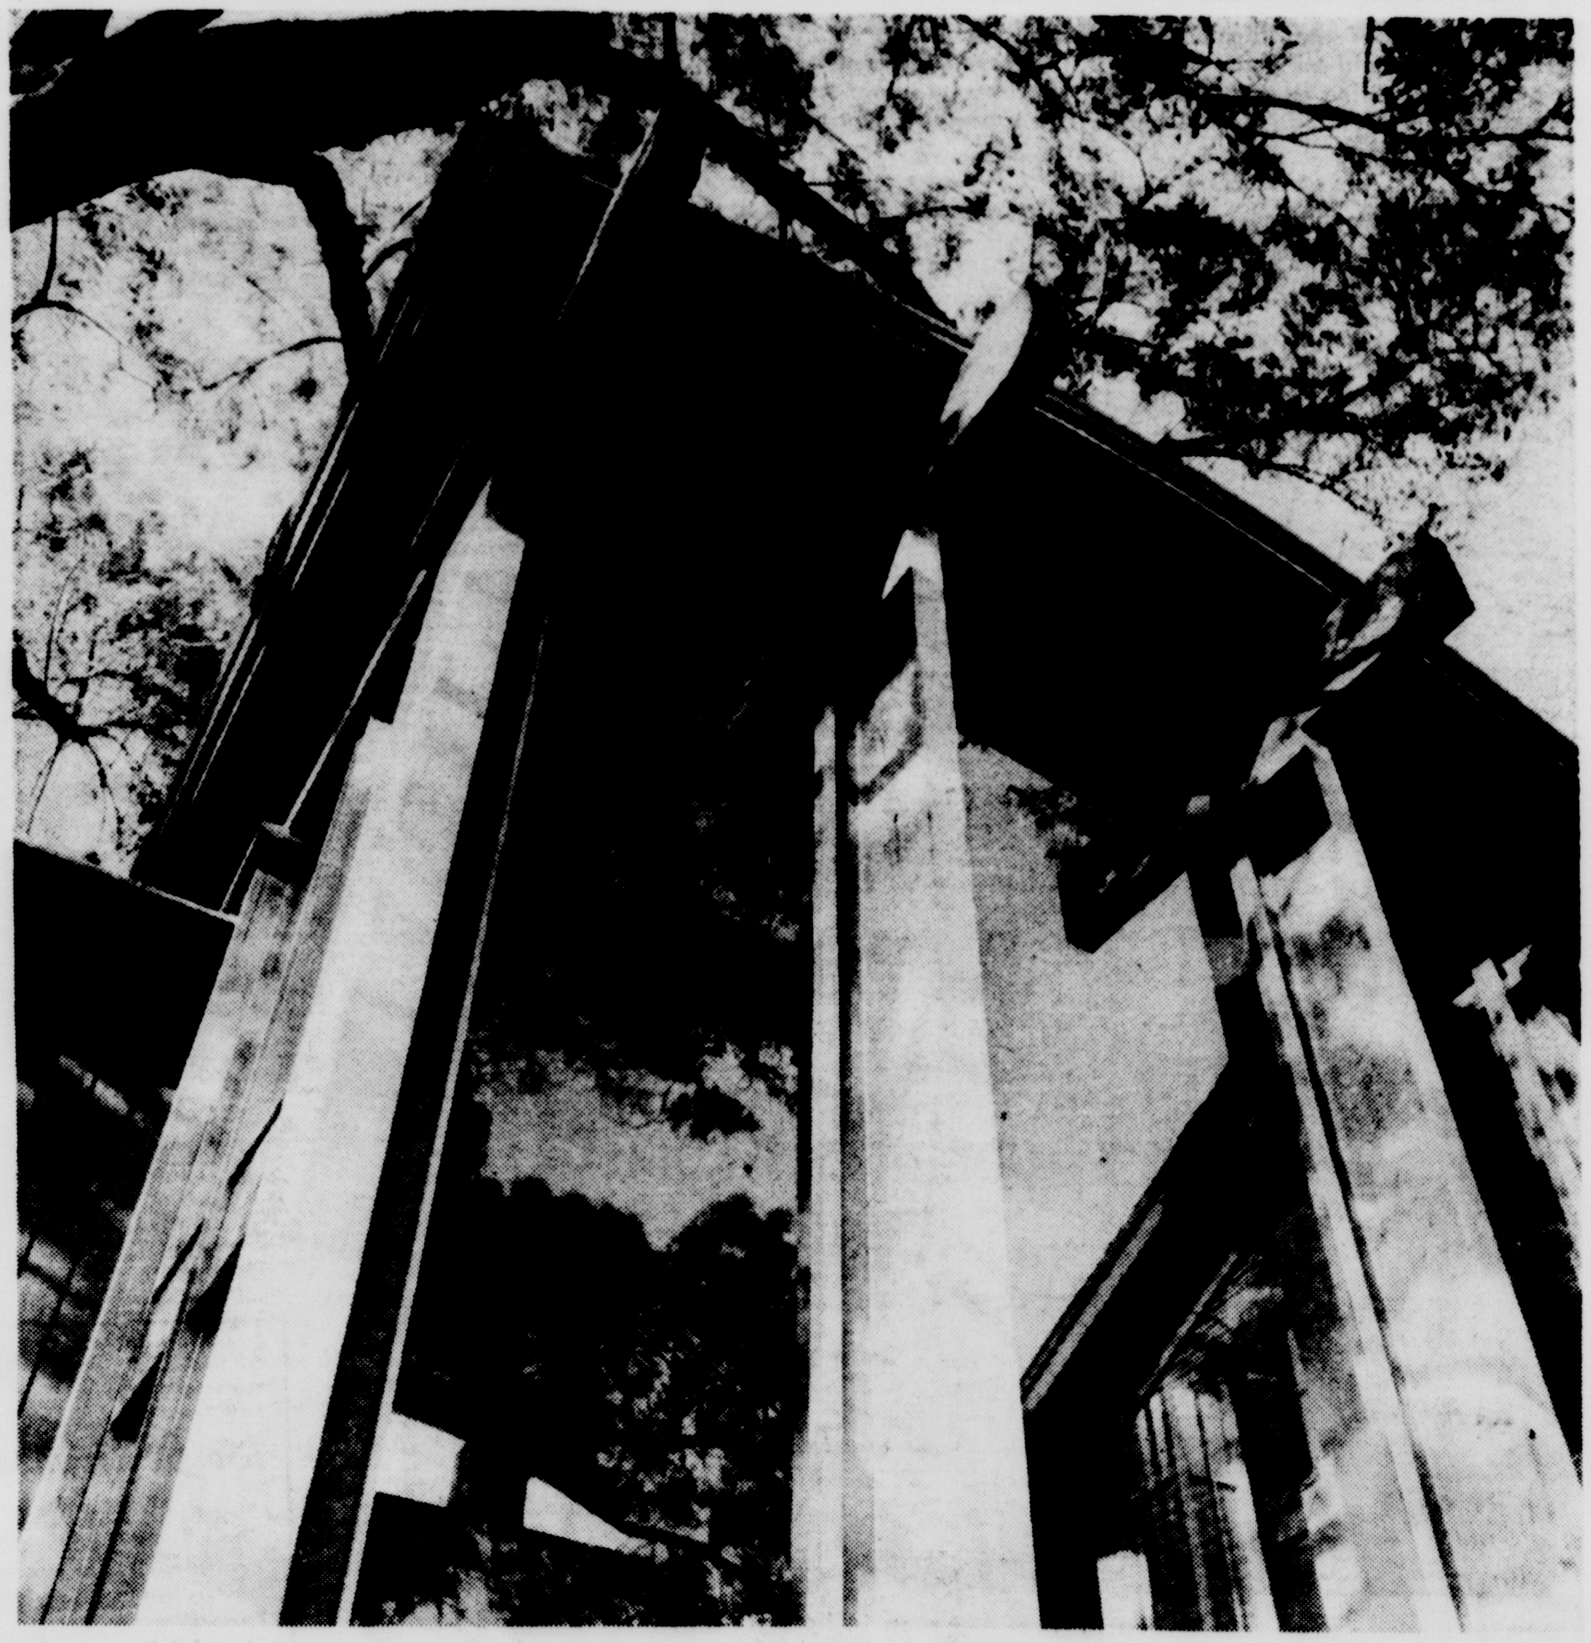
COVE Apartments in Belvedere form backdrop for this portrait of Marin architect Charles Warren Callister, whose recent work is being featured in a photographic exhibit in San Francisco. He has designed more than 150 homes, plus many schools, churches and other buildings throughout the Bay Area since he started his practice in Tiburon in 1946. He is famous for his work with natural woods, which won him this year's American Lumber Industry award in wood structure design.



DRAMATIC is the word for this Tiburon office building, which Callister designed for his own firm of Callister and Associates. This and other photographs of Callister's buildings are being dramatically portrayed in a photographic review of Callister's architecture, now on display at the office of the California Redwood Assn. in San Francisco. Some of the 37 photographs were hung in five-foot mural size to dramatize the scope of the architect's work, which some consider a cornerstone of contemporary Bay Area building design. hoods. The result was that the inhabitants had privacy and companionship as well as a sense of variety of locale.

The Belvedere church was one of Callister's earliest buildings. Just completed is another Christian Science church, this one in Mill Valley.

The two churches are totally different in their shape. Yet both bear the distinctive Callister stamp of mood and character, largely derived from an imaginative use of traditional forms and natural woods.

His Mood, Character Are There

The current exhibit will be on display through Nov. 12 at the headquarters of the California Redwood Assn., 617 Montgomery Street, San Francisco.

Photography in the display is by Bruce Harlow, Lucille Dandelet, Phillip Moulton, Karl Riek, George Knight and Leslie Flowers.

A COLORED MAP of Central Africa, part of the materials used in a recent operational briefing for pilots at Hamilton Air Force Base, is here checked for accuracy by A/2c Todd W. Wiebold, a member of the 28th Air Division's graphics section. The section produces these and many other visual aids, using the view-graph both to check their work and to "audition it" for those who plan to use it.

(Air Force photos)

Hamilton's Illustrators Are The First To Know

A select group of men at Hamilton Air Force Base has long been drawing everything but attention.

MADE UP of talented illustrators and draftsmen, it is officially known as the 28th Air Division's "graphics section."

All are assigned to the Air Defense Command. All are listed as being in the Air Force's photomapping career field. In actual fact, however, they have little or nothing to do with maps, except for reproducting maps like those used for plotting boards in ADC installations throughout the United States and Canada.

The noncommissioned officers and airmen assigned to the section find it as easy to illustrate with the modern equipment supplied by the Air Force as to draw free-hand.

WHEN SPECIAL events are planned at the base, these men are the first to know about it, because there inevitably are posters, handouts or other illustrated items which must be distributed as part of the advance publicity.

Too, there often are programs, menus and invitations to prepare. Illustrators and draftsmen must be in on the initial planning for these items.

When the time of such an affair arrives, the graphics section again may be called upon to make signs, posters or table cards.

CRASH programs, in many instances, speed up specific projects. Such things as a display for a quick briefing by a high level base officer often take priority over routine work requests.

The six airmen and one civilian in the section have their work cut out for them.

Routine tasks include covers for reports, illustrations for briefing charts, art work for official histories of each unit on the base and special inserts for brochures being sent to higher headquarters.

Armed with the tools of their trade — ranging from thumb tacks to fully equipped drawing boards—the talented corps of artists completes most job orders on schedule.

IN A far corner of their workroom sits a large optical viewing device where graphs made there can be examined for errors. Here, also, officers often are given rapid demonstrations of material which they plan to use in briefings.

The unit uses its share of water colors and paper "zipstone" (used for background shading), as well as the type of film used for the silk screening process.

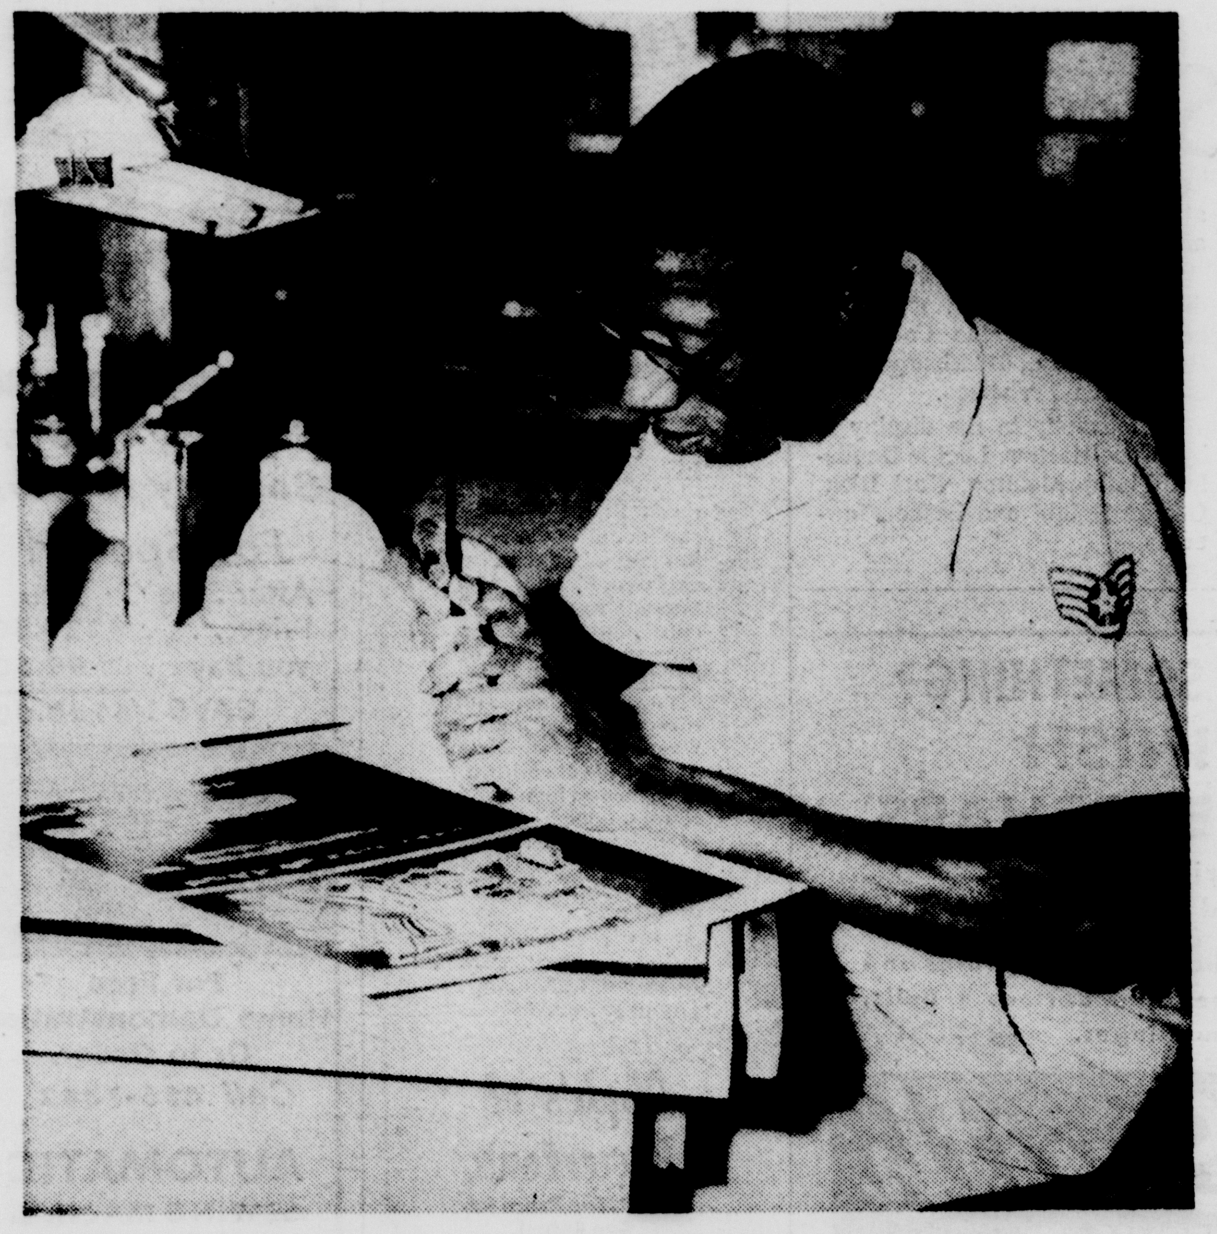
WHAT MUST an Air Force illustrator or draftsman be able to do? To start with, he must be experienced at making sketches, cartoons or drawings. Also, he must become qualified to handle detailed work plans.

These he must often make to scale—utilizing charts, graphs or overlays which show the construction or repair of many mechanical or electrical construction parts.

BALANCE, TOO, is a crucial requirement. It involves talent, styling and intiative.

Military and civilian personnel in the Air Defense Command say the men of Hamilton's graphics section have these attributes. But the hard-working illustrators continue to seek better ways of improving the quality of their work.

A CIVILIAN, too, helps make up the talented crew of illustrators and draftsman who produce lettered and illustrated materials at Hamilton Air Force Base. Here, illustrator supervisor Al Robles stands on a step-ladder as he reproduces Air Defense Command plotting boards, using a huge scaled map of the California coast. Such plotting boards are used at Air Force radar sites across the North American continent.



HUMOR, jaunty lettering and a simple message are some of the ingredients which go into briefing charts used by officers at Hamilton Air Force Base. One such chart is here undergoing final touches from S/Sgt. Henry Carroll of the 28th Air Division's graphics section. He and other illustrators may work on a chart like this one day, an invitation to a special social event the next.

PERSONNE
PERM

AS ANYONE knows who has been in the armed forces, every military has a goodly share of signs scattered everywhere. Source of those signs at Hamilton Air Force Base is the graphics section of the 28th Air Division. Here, A/2c Darrell Huston hand-letters one sign while M/Sgt. Rudy Mallory checks details of the work order. Mallory supervises overall operations in the section, which spends much of its time on such hand lettering.

Bogart Was Real Human Being In Midst Of Hollywood Facade

By DON KEOWN

Hardcover publishers have scheduled a deluge of books about the late Humphrey Bogart, but apparently one of the most interesting of the lot slipped through their fingers.

"Bogart" by Richard Gehman, an intimate of the late actor, appears instead as a Fawcett Gold Medal paperback original and as a piece in True Magazine.

It is not so much a biography, although it does offer a resume of Bogart's life, as it is a character study, and even more a perceptive analysis of the peculiar lasting qualities which the Bogart on-screen and off-screen personalities have held for the American public.

For most Hollywood figures, such a study would be a wasted enterprise. Behind the facade, there is little depth. But Bogart—"the existential man," he has been called—was a complex and fascinating individual who reflected much of the America of his time as it was, and a great deal more of what it aspired to be, but could achieve only vicariously.

He was a blend of the exceptional and the commonplace, of cynicism and romanticism, of tough maturity and appealing boyishness. When he "acted," often brilliantly, it was not so much that he became the character he was playing as that the character seemed to fit into one of the many Bogart facets. His was a flexible personality, and yet always a distinctive one.

BOGART by Richard Gehman, Fawcett, 159 pages, paperback, 50 cents.

In private life, he was an individualist, a humanitarian and a liberal, outspoken in his disgust for the bland and the timid. He lived with much of the same flair for life he displayed so magnificently on the screen, all the time seeming to sit back with that sardonic grin, enjoying himself as he watched himself "perform."

His pictures include some of the all-time great movies — "Casablanca," "The African Queen," "Beat the Devil," "The Caine Mutiny," "The Treasure of the Sierra Madre," "The Maltese Falcon," etc. He was also in a good many duds. But never, no matter how poor the picture, was Bogart dull.

Gehman has done a commendable job of explaining, as far as explanation is possible, why Bogart has become the rallying point for what is virtually a cult of followers, especially strong along the eastern seaboard. The small book is well illustrated with photographs, both from Bogart pictures and from his private life. And a complete list of Bogey's movies will be especially apreciated by his fans.

THE NATION magazine has marked its 100th anniversary with a special centennial issue that has been sent free to regular subscribers and is available to others for $1.25 per copy.

In a special slick paper format, the issue carries the bylines of the likes of Barbara Tuchman, Mark Van Doren, Alfred Kazin, Ralph Ellison, Carleton Beals, Dalton Trumbo, Harvey Swados and many others, covering a wide range of subjects from the fresh and perceptive points of view that have stamped The Nation as foremost among the country's liberal publications.

Prentice-Hall will publish in book form a selection of the major articles from the centennial issue early next year. Tentative title: "The State of the Nation."

Already out is "One Hundred Years of The Nation," published by Macmillan and containing the best from the magazine during its 100 years of vigorous, enlightened service.

THE TO-BE-expected spate of books about unrest on collegiate campuses with special attention to the University of California at Berkeley has occurred, with the most recent addition being Grove Press' "Berkeley: The New Student Revolt," written by journalist Hal Draper with introduction by Mario Savio.

PUBLICATION day for Dwight D. Eisenhower's "Waging Peace, 1956-61" has been set by Doubleday for Oct. 14.

AFTER LBJ, what? Niven Busch, shown in this San Francisco pose, uses the fiction medium to speculate on the answer in "The Gentleman From California," published recently by Simon and Schuster. His imaginary candidate, a real grass-roots hero, embodies facets of several familiar California personalities. See review below.

Our Reviewers And The New Reading

Crystal Gazing

THE GENTLEMAN FROM CALIFORNIA by Niven Busch, Simon and Schuster, 347 pp., $5.95. Reviewed by Jean Langham.

The year is 1972. Chauncey Talcott Dallas, successor to Lyndon Baines Johnson, will not seek another term.

The Democratic Party has lost popularity over the mess in Viet Nam and elsewhere, and the Republican Party is girding its loins for another crack at the Presidency. Their candidate, Clayton H. Belshaw, "The Gentleman From California."

Political novels are almost always fun, but this one misses the mark. The projection of seven years is not really that but more a reworking of our present political conditions.

The Democratic Party suffers only from a surfeit of its own most popular projects and foreign policy failures. The Republican Party is badly splintered but gaining power (more than in 1964) from a powerful conservative organization. And the character of Clayton H. Belshaw is a speculative composite of some very familiar personalities.

It is in the delineation of this character that the book puts its best foot forward. Having risen laboriously and respectably (law degree, Stanford, good marriage) from humble beginnings, he embodies the true, all-American, grass-roots hero. It is of his evolution from this to a powerful political figure, secretly compromising, publically inviolate, that the author occasionally writes brilliantly.

Where he is most subtle, he is also very good, but he tends to over dramatize with pale characters. Some minor subplots intrude into rather than add to the action and often lend only cheapness to it.

However, lots of best-sellers have suffered from such defects. It is high speed reading and its brand of crystal ball gazing is just credible enough to fire the imagination — 1972 could look very much like this.

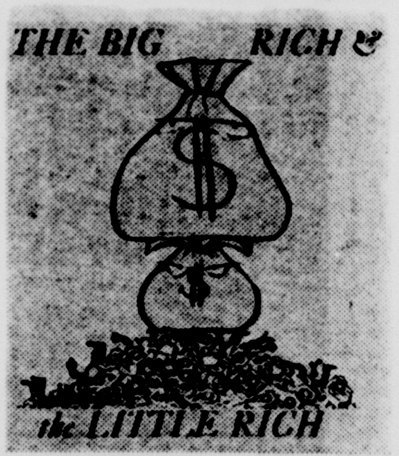
Sloppy Research

THE BIG RICH AND THE LITTLE RICH by Floyd Hunter, Doubleday, 181 pages, $4.50. Reviewed by Robert M. Coppock.

Why is it economists keep trying to sound cynical and keep using long words in their invective? They try to sound infuriating like Thorstein Veblen used to be. Instead they are usually just dull and difficult to read, like Talcott Parsons.



JACKET DESIGN by Robert Osborn for "The Big Rich and The Little Rich" by Floyd Hunter, published last week by Doubleday.

Maybe the only people who still can write like Veblen are officers of the Rand Corp.

Floyd Hunter's sloppily documented book looks at two communities to find out what the rich people do that no one else can do as well. He decides that there is not anything they do, at least to further the community's economy or culture, that a lot of poorer people with eighth grade educations could not do better.

They merely have more money than they can use, while too many people have less money than they need.

The trickle-down theory of capitalism obviously doesn't work, he goes on, and our computers should come up with something better for distributing wealth. Communism and socialism don't work either, he notes.

This book will probably be "must" reading for some people of Marin because one of the communities studied was the San Francisco Bay Area. The names of the very rich people have been changed, but many people will find their friends within the book.

The other community studied was a small university town in a southern state.

Hunter claims the traditional theory of the American economy is that the main job is to accumulate wealth, and that the most productive people accumulate the most, but that these people also produce the most goods for the benefit of all.

In fact, he claims, the purpose of the economy is to produce and distribute consumer goods, and anyone who gets more than his share is being wasteful, especially if others get less than they need. He says the American system produces hugely, but inefficiently.

He says the consumer is continuously being rooked by people who take his money for goods or services or taxes or insurance policies.

From Egypt to Florida In Books For Juniors

"Egypt to the End of the Old Kingdom" by Cyril Aldred (McGraw-Hill, $5.50) is a brilliantly portrayed adventure in the past with 41 color plates and 95 black-and-white illustrations. It has been the author's aim to select the best specimens that trace the flowering of Egypt from its earliest beginnings and, in doing so, he has included all the treasures of great distinction. Aldred, keeper of the Department of Art and Archaeology of the Royal Scottish Museum in Edinburgh, offers the reader a deeper insight into the pre-scientific culture of Old Kingdom Egypt.

"Little Hurricane Happy" by Wilma Pitchfor Hays (Little, Brown $2.75) is a story based on the true adventure of a boy who rescued a stranded porpoise after a Florida storm. The current popularity of porpoises practically insures its appeal to youngsters, and the illustrations by Wesley Dennis are another example of his fine work.

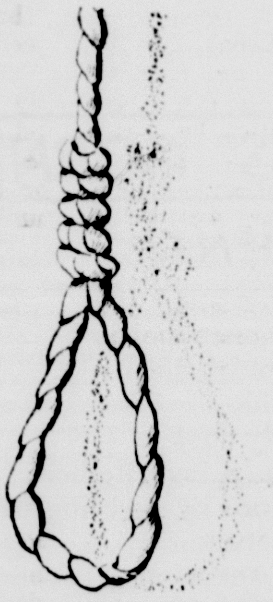
Animals remain a prime subject among authors of books for juveniles. In "Police Dog" (Harper, $2.95), Roderic Jeffries has writen both a suspense story of a dog under suspicion and a death sentence for sheep killing and also an informative account of how police dogs are trained. Boys 10 and 11 will find the story exciting.

Newest title in the fine Horizon Caraval history series is "Leonardo da Vinci" by Jay Williams (American Heritage, $3.95). It is William's third book for this quality series, and in this one he has Brown University history professor Bates Lowry as his expert consultant. The biography of the great da Vinci is presented in an interesting and enlightening fashion, and there are 182 illustrations, 46 of which are in color. Included are all of the 11 paintings generally attributed to the Renaissance genius.

In Provence, France, whole families spend the long winter evenings making small figures for creches, for their own use or to sell to tourists. They call these figures Santons, and in "The Twelfth Night Santons" by Marion Garthwaite (Doubleday, $3.25) we have the story of a young shepherd named Pierre whose greatest wish was to make Santons instead of herding sheep. As a result of helping an old man, he finally realizes his ambition. The colored illustrations by Winifred Lubell make this a beautiful and authentic looking book.

"Treasure at Flying Spur" by Shirley Sargent (Abelard-Schuman, $3), illustrated by Susannah Holden, is a mystery adventure, set in a hidden mountain meadow. When Mancy Ashburn comes to visit friends at their mountain cabin she makes a discovery that soon absorbs everyone's attention and involves them in a fight to keep the land from exploitation by threatening developers.

Sleuths & Suspense



THE HOUSE AT SATAN'S ELBOW by John Dickson Carr, Harper and Row, 249 pages, $3.95. Reviewed by Don Keown.

A new John Dickson Carr detective novel featuring the portly Dr. Gideon Fell always finds a large and eager audience awaiting its publication.

We have never fully shared that enthusiasm, finding the Carr-Fell pace a bit too deliberate for our taste. And this one seems almost plodding, slowed down by an excess of talk.

The scene is an English country home where there have been ghostly goings-on and where family stresses have created an air of potential violence. Sure enough, violence does occur. And Dr. Fell soon makes his appearance to unravel the puzzle.

It is the kind of denouement often referred to as "cerebral," but to us it seems a bit fragile, depending as it does so heavily upon Fell's interpretation of personality traits. Still, we don't doubt for a moment that Carr fans will enjoy this, just as they have the exploits of Dr. Fell that have come before it.

On The Stereo Scene With John Sunier--

JOAN RIVERS PRESENTS MR. PHYLLIS & OTHER FUNNY STORIES — Warner Bros. W 1610:

There has been a slight resurgence in the release of humor and comedy recordings lately.

For a while there, the bottom fell out of the market except for an occasional Bob Newhart or Jonathan Winters.

Here is an obvious follower of madcap Phyllis Diller, right down to cackingly uproariously at her own gags. But Joan Rivers is more than an imitation —she's an excellent commedianne, and there aren't too many of those around these days.

The title sketch is about her hair dresser. Naturally there is a sketch about airlines, as well as one about a pet—in this case a drunk dog.

Converts to the science of wiggery may also dig her extended descriptions of wiglets as if they were live animals.

I notice record companies have given up releasing lp's like this in both stereo and mono. Stereo is great, but for a single stand-up comic? — there are limits.

DON ADAMS MEETS THE ROVING REPORTER — GNP Cresendo Records 91:

I understand this is a re-release of an older lp, recorded live in New York clubs. But that doesn't explain why a sketch about J.F.K. was left in the album on an abominable breach of good taste.

Bits on Hitler always seem to go over well, and Adams has one, as well as Airlines, Movie Star, and the Prison Break.

Good, but a lot of rather blatant borrowing from Lenny Bruce, Reiner & Brooks, and others.

DYLAN JAZZ—The Gene Norman Group — GNP Cresendo Records 2015:

Ten compositions by the biggest thing in pop music today, Bob Dylan, are here given a very enjoyable jazz treatment by reed man Jim Horn, guitarist Glenn Campbell and rhythm section.

Dylan's lyrics are usually of great value, so some listeners might not appreciate these instrumental versions, but they do highlight the new folk-music hero's musical creations without interference of words.

(John Sunier presents his hour-long program of humor and comedy recordings, "And Not Without Humor" every Tuesday evening at 11:00 on Station KPFA, 94.1 on the FM dial.)

MARIN POETS' CORNER

RETIREMENT

Far from the throbbing city's stir,
I would carry my weary feet once more
To the rolling hills of the countryside—
In cottage small I'd there abide.
'Neath gnarled oak and shady nook,
I would pore through pages of a favorite book;
And would drift with the clouds by trickling stream
While all around is quiet—serene.
I would not complain in bitterness
Of the wealth passed by,
Or the joys that were missed,
The idle moments, worthlessly spent,
Or the things I dearly would repent.
So filled with the rapture of the present scene,
I would thank God for no part of "that Which might have been."

Pantries Starting To Return

The "old-fashioned" pantry is beginning to make a noticeable comeback in the American home, and its "new look" makes it a far cry from the popular pantry of grandmother's day.

DESIGNED TO fill the need for space to store the holiday decorations, punch bowl, roasting pan, turkey platter, canned goods and the hundreds of items required in the household, but used infrequently, the modern pantry is a well-designed room featuring the latest effects in homefurnishings.

Since very few homeowners can justify the cost of remodeling work merely to provide additional storage space, the combination of attractive interior design with the functional features of adequate storage has made the concept of a pantry room very appealing.

Members of one flooring manufacturer's bureau of interior design, most of whom are housewives and mothers, collected ideas on how to create ample storage space in an all-purpose room, adjacent to the kitchen, that would also serve as a "general headquarters" for mother.

THE ROOM they designed would provide an area for mother to do her menu and party planning, sewing and ironing; include an eating counter for easy - to - serve lunches, breakfast and snacks; and could double as a relaxing area for TV and cards.

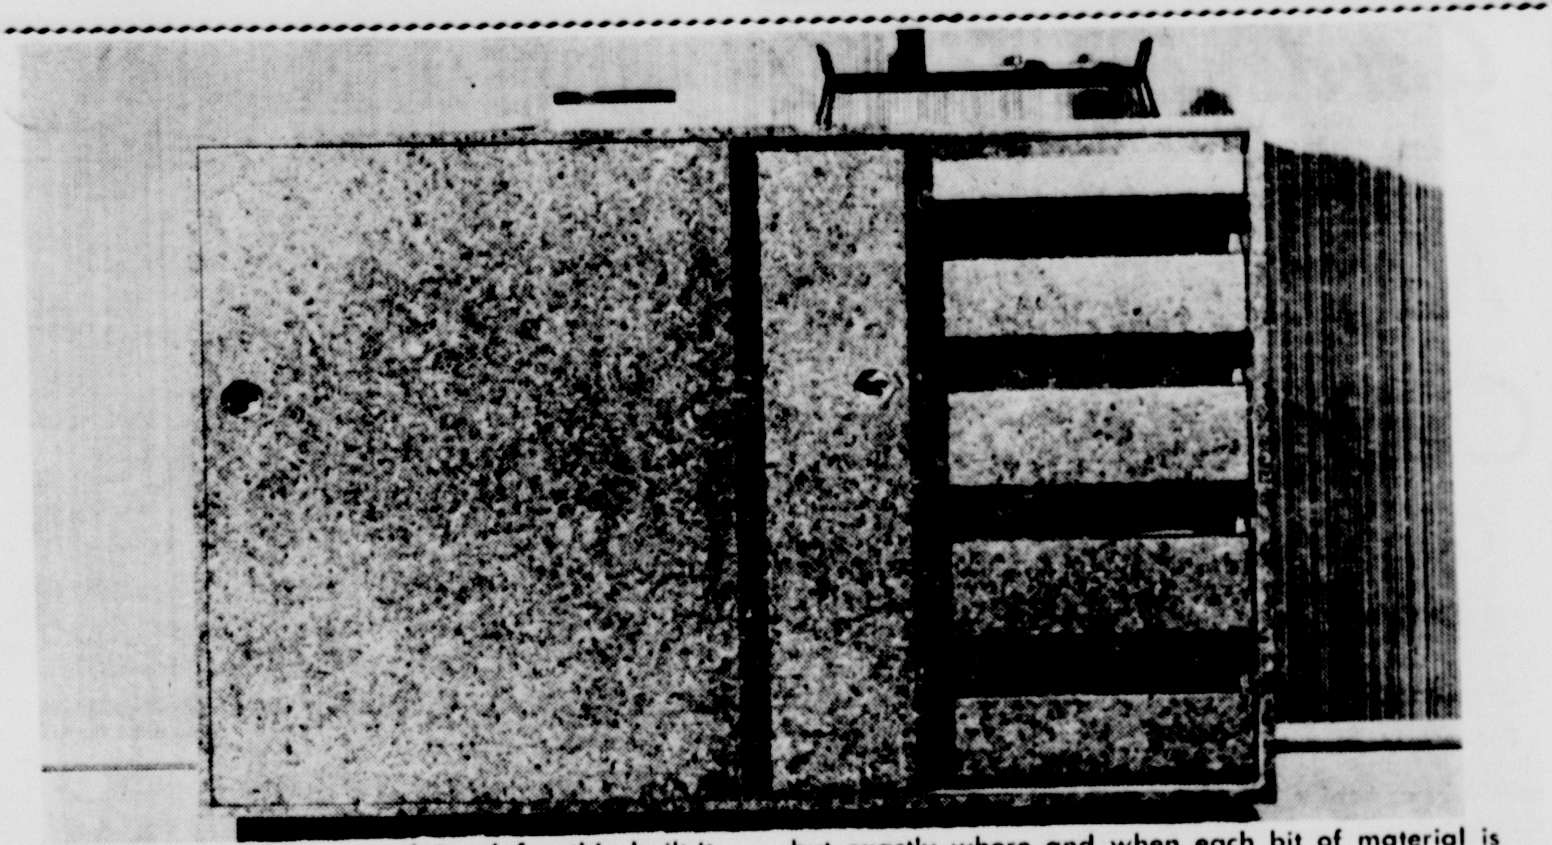
The selection of a location was relatively simple. Many of the homes built in recent years have a garage or carport located adjacent to the kitchen. Converting the garage into an all-purpose room for mother has several cost - saving advantages since the basic construction and the concrete subfloor are already in place.

In planning the room—which they agreed should have an Early American theme—a deliberate effort was made to create the effect of two separate areas. Storage area, the women decided, would dominate half the room while the other half would primarily be a work center close to the kitchen.

THE TRADITIONAL effect of exposed ceiling beams complemented the rustic furnishings of their model pantry and carried out its colonial theme. The beams in this ceiling were different, however, in that they were part of a suspended ceiling system.

This new box beam suspended ceiling consisted of two-by-four acoustical ceiling panels supported by a metal framework which is hung from the existing ceiling structure by wires.

The "beams" were part of this supporting framework and were lithographed with a realistic wood graining.



THREE BIG advantages are claimed for this built-it-yourself "Mr. and Mrs." wardrobe. First, it provides plenty of storage for a man's or woman's clothing. Second, it is easy to build and, finally, it is inexpensive. For the instructions, send 75 cents to ndependent-Journal, Post Office Box 215, Briarcliff Manor, N.Y., 10510, and ask for Wardrobe Pattern No. 139. To simplify matters, the pattern not only tells what to buy, but exactly where and when each bit of material is used. Every piece is accounted for so there is little waste. The cabinet provides ample storage for shirts, shorts, suits, ties and accessories. It is large enough for the average homeowner to store a complete wardrobe without crowding. It even offers a pull-out rack for such things as ties and belts. The instructions assume you have built nothing before.

'Marin's Own' Cascade Mum

Gardener Chikaji Hattori Developed Hearty Strain

By PEG KEENER

For nearly 10 years, Marin chrysanthemum lovers have been working hard to keep alive a flower in which they take special pride.

Local growers think of the mum, called "Hattori's Yellow," as their own, because it was developed by a Marin County man, the late, highly talented gardener Chikaji Hattori.

THE FLOWER is a single or daisy-type yellow chrysanthemum with unusual growing habits. Its developer was a master in the ancient art of "cascading." His cascade mums earned for him many prizes and honors in shows throughout the Bay Area until he died in 1957.

Hattori's Yellow, and the memory of its developer, will be spotlighted at the Marin Chrysanthemum Society's show, scheduled for two days next weekend at the San Rafael office of the Crocker Citizens Bank.

Ask any mum grower and he will tell you that raising the flowers from seed is difficult indeed. Even specialists often start new plants from root stolons or cuttings in the spring.

HATTORI, however, had a talent for germinating seed, most of which was sent him by friends or relatives and Japan. One so gifted can bring a chrysanthemum to bloom in a single season. Thus, Hattori was able to breed a better strain by saving only the strongest and best plants each year, starting them again the next spring.

From those which showed promise in the first year, he saved seeds. Then he started over again with his own seedlings, saving only the best of these crosses for further propagation.

Among his own seedlings, one in particular caught his fancy and he selected it for special attention. This was the seedling which was later named for him.

TO MUM growers today, it is no wonder that Hattori was proud and pleased with this one. Its green "eye" makes an interesting and strong contrast to the strong petal yellow. It has a profusion of bloom, with strong, wiry growth habits, and a good bloom date for late October.

In one season it can attain from five to six foot length, or even more if started early from stolons in December or January.

The stems are so flexible it can be twisted, turned, bent into unusual forms without breaking. It can be trained not only as a cascade, but as a standard or tree, developing an unusually thick trunk when stopped for lateral branching.

IT IS ONE of the few cultivars that can be grown into an umbrella shape, and it makes a beautiful espalier against a wall, fence or trellis—growing just about like a vine with a little help in intertwining.

Very weather resistant, it provides fine sprays of cut flowers late into November.

Hattori had found a chrysanthemum so fine and so adaptable to his specialty culture that he bestowed his name upon it, and generously distributed it among his friends, as he also did with many of the other fine cultivars he grew.

Unfortunately, all but Hattori's

A CLOSE FRIEND of the late Chikaji Hattori, talented Marin County gardener who developed a strain named in his honor, is Shingo Sumi of San Rafael, shown here examining the foliage of a "Hattori's Yellow" chrysanthemum plant. Sumi, who has earned a reputation in his own right for his skill with growing things, recalls Hattori as "a master who could have been wealthy" had he not given away so much of "himself, time and plants."

MEMORIES of a fine man and his great talent for growing things, come back to Mrs. H. B. He bred the strain by starting with seed from Japan. (I-J photos)

AMAZING STRENGTH of Hattori's Yellow is demonstrated by this plant which has been trained to "umbrella" like a small tree. The strain develops a thick "trunk" when trained in this way. It is being examined here by Mrs. H. B. Sturgeon of Greenbrae and Shingo Sumi of San Rafael, members of the Marin Chrysanthemum Society. Both recall Chikaji Hattori, developer of the strain, with respect and admiration.

Yellow have been lost by growers.

BORN IN Japan, Hattori was brought to this country as a child, and lived in Ross and San Anselmo for more than 30 years.

At one time, just before the depression years, he left the county to establish his own nursery business on the peninsula, but returned when the business folded.

Only one of his children, his eldest son, had his father's love and talent for the ancient culture of their people, but he was killed in action in Italy during World War II.

Hattori's widow, Mrs. Katu Hattori, survived him, and lives with a married daughter in Long Beach.

Hattori, a professional gardener, worked in many fine gardens in Ross and Kentfield. At one of these, the John F. Forbes estate on Upper Road in Ross, he spent 15 years and did most of his mum growing and seedling development.

A CHARTER member of the Marin Chrysanthemum Society when it was formed in 1949, he was featured in the Independent-Journal several times for lectures and demonstrations to members of the society and other garden groups on the art of cascading.

Meanwhile, he continued to grow the rooted plants about which he taught.

Mrs. H. B. Sturgeon of Greenbrae, first president of the Chrysanthemum Society, recalls that Hattori "was a true gentleman in every sense of the word, and a good friend. He was an inspiration to the society, giving much of his time and effort to introduce and teach cascade culture to the members."

ANOTHER GOOD friend was Shingo Sumi of San Rafael, another charter member of the society. Also a specialist in cascading as well as bonsai growing, Sumi is probably the one person most instrumental in keeping Hattori's Yellow in existence and circulation.

Of Hattori, Sumi says, "He was a master in cascade culture here when few people in the country knew little about the art, and was as well-known in Japan as the Bay Area for his knowledge, his specimen plants and seedlings.

"Hattori not only tested each seedling one or two years, but grew it for up to four years to make sure it was the proper cultivar for this purpose before giving it out.

"He could have been a rich man had he sold the flowers he developed, but he was overly generous of himself, time, and plants."

Now, Hattori's Yellow has become a memorial to its originator. Several specimens trained to cascade, standard, espalier and umbrella—plus a combination of the standard-cascade—will be entered in the society's 16th annual show.

IVAN JOHNSON of Novato, who specializes in these forms of culture, expects to have some top entries. Other cascades in the show will be Smith's Innocense, Bronze Charm, White Daphne and Liquid Amber, a new anemone recently introduced.

Society members say this has been an ideal growing year with perfect climatic conditions, thus the show should be a good one.

The free show, whose theme is "Autumn Enchantment," will run from 2 to 8 p.m. next Saturday and from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Sunday, Oct. 24.

ADMIRING another tree-like plant which he has cultivated from "Hattori's Yellow," Shingo Sumi of San Rafael shows how the strong plant's foliage cascade over wire framework placed around its trunk or stem. Sumi is a charter member of the Marin Chrysanthemum Society and knew talented gardener Chikaji Hattori well.

'Green Belt' Around Home Can Help Prevent Fires

A well planted, green hillside is not only beautiful in season, but according to safety researchers, is an important factor in the prevention of fire.

GARDEN ornaments are much more effective in a rich setting of polished, green foliage. This gives an illustration: holly-like leaves of Dwarf Oregon Grape make a permanent base planting. In addition, they contribute bright yellow flowers and attractive blue fruits in season.

The native chapparal that covers many California areas is an explosively combustible plant. Easily ignited by a chance spark or cigarette, a fire in chapparal burns with intense heat and moves with terrifying speed, destroying everything in its path.

EVERY year such fires destroy California homes and property, and replanting for safety and beauty is the only answer to this threat.

Publicly owned areas are being cleared of native chapparal and replanted with non-flammable ground covers. Now it is up to the individual homeowner to do his part.

By creating a "green belt" barrier around his home, each homeowner can help to limit the spread of fire and make it possible for fire services to stop a brush fire before it becomes a catastrophe.

ACCORDING to California nurserymen, fall is an excellent time to do hillside planting and clearing. If you have a great deal of native brush to remove, it's a good idea to consult your local nurseryman about the easiest methods, tools and materials to use.

The following shrubs and ground covers are some that research has shown to be relatively non-flammable.

Creeping Rosemary—Drought resistant, with glossy, dark green fine-needled foilage, this aromatic ground cover grows low and spreading, and produces light blue flowers in April and May. It thrives on sun, little water, and poor soil. Plant one and one-half to two feet apart.

ROCKROSES — Whoever brought the first rockrose from the Mediterranean to California brought a handsome answer to hillside problems in our state. Shrubs that grow from two to five feet high (depending on variety) have a graceful habit of massing together to form a mounding cover of soft green.

Flowers that look like single roses, cover the plants in white, pink, rose-lilac or purple in spring and early summer, adding a pastel beauty to hillsides and other low - maintenance areas. But its usefulness doesn't stop with good looks.

Tested by researchers, it has been found to be highly resistant to fire. It competes will with native vegetation, and its roots go deep, making it an excellent plant for preventing soil erosion. It never needs water after established, it prefers poor, lean soil, takes hot sun and desert conditions, and last but not least — deer won't even nibble it leaves.

THE TWO varieties of rockroses especially recommended for fire safety planting are the Browneyed Rockrose and the Purple Rockrose. Plant three to four feet apart.

All forms of ivy make good looking, fire resistant ground covers. English ivy, while it prefers shade, will grow in sun if given water, and does a fine thorough covering job on large banks.

ICEPLANT — The small leafed varieties of this succulent rate high as a non-inflammable ground cover in warm winter areas. They will root on slopes that are almost vertical, need little water and thrive in sterile soils. Plant one and one-half to two feet apart.

Dunk Dahlias Deeply Daily

Heavy flowers, such as dahlias, need more water to keep them fresh in vases than smaller flowers.

Submerge the entire arrangement in water, including the flowers, for a few minutes daily to help prolong their freshness. Don't do this to delphiniums, orchids or iris, as they water-spot.

Zinnias will last longer if most of the leaves are removed. Spraying zinnia and chrysanthemum leaves will make them last longer. Remove wilted leaves.

Olive Is Fine Tree To Plant

The first olive trees apeared in California at the Mission San Diego de Alcala before 1800, and they've been a picturesque addition to our landscape ever since.

ONE OF the nicest things about this spreading, gray-green tree is that it lives so happily with modern architecture. Plant an olive tree in front of your house, in a lawn, or in a square in the patio, and you'll find you've added not only character and charm, but lively foliage that has a way of picking up house colors and flattering them no end.

According to most nurserymen, either the Manzanillo Olive or the Mission Olive is excellent for landscape use. For giant fruit, get the Sevillano. All are beautiful specimen trees, small in stature—(They grow slowly to 15-20 feet) with picturesquely gnarled and twisted trunk and limbs.

The Manzanillo Olive is available in espaliered form for gardeners who want to feature its shimmering leaves and interesting branches against a fence or wall.

OLIVE trees need full sun. Although they are most lush when growing in deep, rich soil, they'll grow in even the poorest soil with little water or fertilizer. They are noted for being extremely drought resistant.

You can prune olive trees heavily if you wish. In fact, thinning each year shows off the handsome and often gnarled branch pattern to better advantage. Many gardeners enjoy harvesting and curing their own crop of olives.

However, if you prefer that your tree does not produce fruit, you can control the crop by spraying the blossoms with oil emulsion.

Fall is an excellent time to plant olive trees from containers. Give them a generous hole and they'll make fine root growth now, then establish themselves for good in the winter rains.

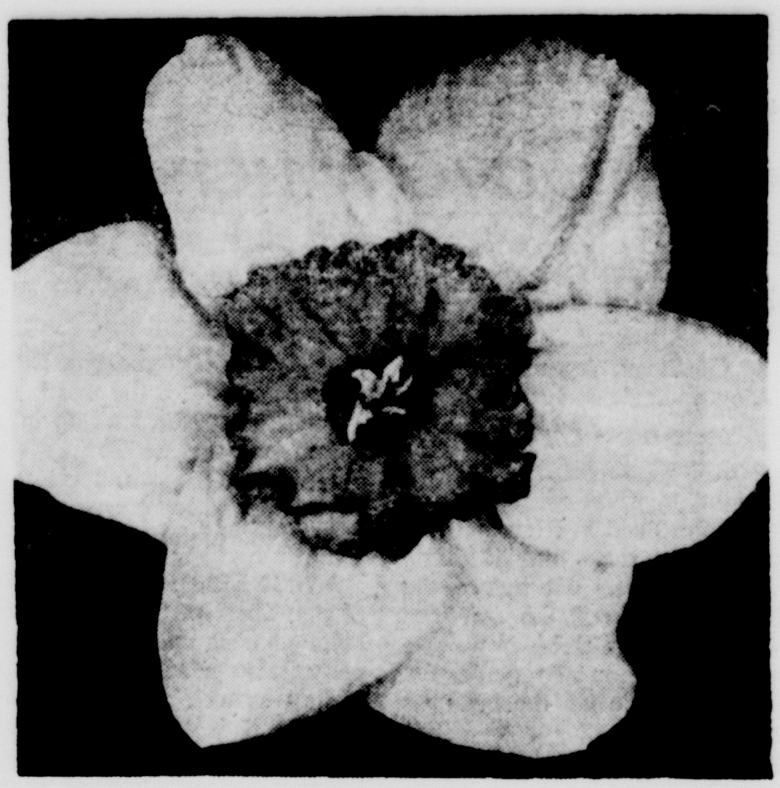
CHECKLIST GARDENERS

Here is the Marin gardener's checklist for the coming week:

✓ Thin out evergreen shrubs and trees that have put on excessive frowth this summer to avoid damage from winter wind and rain. Prune lightly, as major pruning jobs should be done in late winter or early spring.

✓ Choose shrubs, trees and vines in fall colors at the nursery. Keep them watered during warm October days.

✓ Hyacinths are easy to force in water, and can be in flower by late November or early December. Use a hyacinth glass or a shallow bowl filled with pebbles. Bulbs of these fragrant beauties are available in a wide range of colors and your C.A.N. nurseryman will show you the best way to force them.



ONE OF the fascinating varieties which can be planted for next spring is "Jezebel," shown here. It has petals of rich, red gold with a crown of barn red. Like other varieties, it is one of the first major garden flowers to bloom and is a joy to behold year in and year out.

King Alfred Leads Popularity Parade Among Daffodils

Daffodils are the essence of the spring garden. Of all the plants and flowers we associate with spring gardens, daffodils are in the forefront.

AND IN the forefront of the hundreds of daffodil varieties is an old standby created in the last century: King Alfred. It is classed as a "yellow trumpet." It has many cousins, all of whom resemble King Alfred, but bloom a little earlier or a little later.

King Alfred is so popular that many gardeners do not know of, or never took the time to investigate, some of the other trumpet-flowered kinds.

Mount Hood has pure white flowers on sturdy stems. Ada Finch is ivory and white; Spring Glory is pale yellow and white. A popular variety, Mrs. R. O. Backhouse, has white petals and an apricot trumpet. It is more often called the "pink daffodil."

When the trumpet part of the flower is shorter in length than the petals, the variety falls in a class called "large cups". Fortune, with golden petals and a flaring orange-red cup is a good example of this group. So is Dick Wellband, white petals with orange cup and Sunshine, with white petals and an orange-rimmed yellow cup.

THERE IS a curious classification of daffodils called the "doubles". Instead of having a distinct cup, the petals are bunched and frilled in the center. Twink is yellow and white; Texas is a yellow and orange combination.

Very popular with feminine flower arrangers is a little cluster-flowered double daffodil called Cheerfulness. It comes in yellow or white and it is fragrant, stems are short and sturdy. Another good "arranger" is a white cluster-flowered "Triandrus Hybrid" called Thalia.

Daffodils are the best-known members of genus Narcissi, a name commonly reserved for the fragrant little cluster-flowered bulbs grown in pebbles and water, or in the garden for midwinter flowers.

A GROUP of Narcissi that should be better known are the tiny "species" varieties, gathered from their natural European sources. Ideal for setting between stones in the rock garden, they can also be grown as pot plants for early spring flowers.

No matter which kinds of daffodils or Narcissi you decide to plant, it is advisable to plant the largest bulbs available. For example, King Alfred bulbs are offered in sizes ranging from "commercial" to jumbo. The small size will have a small flower on a short stem. The jumbo bulbs will have three or four large flowers on tall stems.

In-between grades are double-nose number one, producing two large flowers and double-nose number two, producing two smaller flowers. Round-nose bulbs produce one large flower stalk.

SOIL preparation insures good results. Work compost, redwood soil conditioner, steer manure or peat moss into the top 12 inches of ground. Rake the surface level, set the bulbs out from six to eight inches apart, then dig a hole deep enough so the top of the bulb will be five or six inches below the surface.

Some gardeners like to put in a little bone meal with the soil set under the bulb. Others prefer to feed in January, with a balanced fertilizer, just as growth starts underground. Daffodils and Narcissi may be left in the ground for a period of three or four years, but be sure to allow the tops to stay on until completely dry and water and feed twice during the summer.

AUTHOR Theodore H. White has adopted his best-selling book "The Making of The President: 1964" for a 90-minute television special, scheduled for 9:30 p.m. Tuesday on KPIX.

WEEKEND SHOWS

Sinatra, Basie To Team Up

The swinging combination of singer Frank Sinatra and the Count Basie band promises to keep things lively on ABC's "Hollywood Palace" at 8:30 tonight on KGO.

The 1946 Academy Award winning film "The Best Years of Our Lives," which starred Fredric March, Myrna Loy, Dana Andrews, Hoagy Carmichael and others, will have its first San Francisco showing on "The Big Movie" at 11:20 p.m. on KPIX.

Also unusual this weekend:

SATURDAY:

Sandie Shaw, English singer who sheds her shoes, joins her countrymen, Peter and Gordon, on "Shindig!" (KGO, 7:30 p.m.)

Guests on "Grand Ole Opry" will include veteran Tex Williams, George Hamilton, Margie Bowes and Willie Nelson (KTVU, 7 p.m.)

"Boys' Night Out," a 1962 comedy film, stars James Garner, Kim Novak, Tony Randall and others. (KRON, 9 p.m.)

ABC's "Wide World of Sports" will show a championship figure eight stock car "thrill race," then will switch to the all-Ireland hurling competition. (KGO, 5 p.m.)

The golden age of racing, in which names like Deusenberg, Fiat and Bugatti became famous, will be the topic of "Films A La Carte." (KQED, 7 p.m.)

Alfred Knopf, board chairman of one of the world's biggest publishing houses, will be interviewed on "The Open Mind" (KQED, 9 p.m.)

Don Ameche plays a man who values gambling above all else in the movie "That's My Man," also starring Catherine McLeod. (KRON, 11:30 p.m.)

SUNDAY

Alabama Atty. Gen. Richard Flowers, who will prosecute in the second murder trial of Ku Klux Klansman Collie LeRoy Wilkins Jr., will be on "Face

Our Ancestors Used Daring

Early American Furniture Retains Old Popularity

In these days of daring space travel, there is a certain comfort in remembering our ancestors.

BACK IN America's youthful days, they had their own problems while traveling into the unknown—but they succeeded in the long run.

Perhaps this is one reason for the continued great popularity of early American and provincial furnishings. Whatever the cause, this type of decor is warm, inviting, easy to live with, and popular.

Happily, too, the taste for early American furniture is an easy one to indulge, for there is a tremendous selection available.

CLASSICS IN this field are such features as spindle turnings, antique brass hardware, and scalloped effects. New is the addition of colored fixtures instead of staying with natural maple or fruitwoods.

New, too, is the introduction in some lines of a subtle Mediterranean influence — not inconsistent when we recall that the first settlements made by Europeans in North America were by the Spaniards, and that the Spanish Armada had to be overcome before certain areas could be permanently settled.

An example of early American with Mediterranean touches is an informal dining group in a maple finish. An octagonal table is supported by four turned legs, heavier at the base, which rest on a shaped platform.

CHAIRS ARE ladderback with square turnings on back and legs. Storage pieces are detailed with hand-carved effects, including a spool work lattice at the bottom of the china cabinet deck's glass doors.

A classic of early Americana is the massive cannonball bed. The large posts with round turnings give this bed sturdy construction for the long and hard use to which the early settlers put their furniture; heirloom to be passed from generation to generation.

To accompany fine early American furniture and create the nostalgic atmosphere of long ago, add harmonizing accessories.

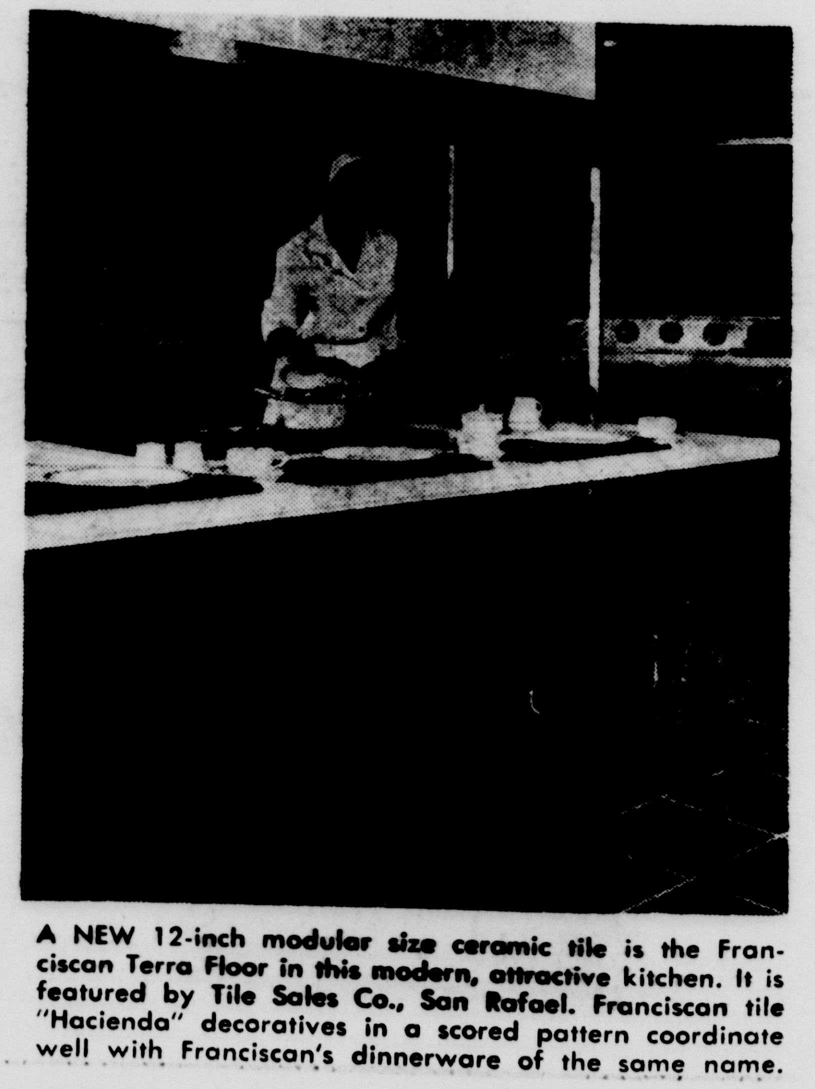
A grandfather clock, similar to many which were carried across the plains from the original family homes, is a traditional accessory in the early American home.

FAMILIAR design motifs such as the spool turning and scalloped fan are also widely seen. These are combined in a new spindle wall clock which is a simulated wood reproduction of a hand-carved original.

Finished in mellow fruitwood tone, it is available with eight-day key wind movement or with battery-powered electronic movement. Matching plaques may be obtained.

The eagle, one of the oldest known decorative themes, has a special significance to Americans. A handsome 41" spread eagle wall plaque finished in Roman gold or fruitwood with multi-color accents is available in simulated "weathered" wood.

Another eagle graces a Roman-numeraled clock, with a design sugested by a late 18th century girandole. Harmonizing bootjack sconces accented with brass are available.



A NEW 12-inch modular size ceramic tile is the Franciscan Terra Floor in this modern, attractive kitchen. It is featured by Tile Sales Co., San Rafael. Franciscan tile "Hacienda" decoratives in a scored pattern coordinate well with Franciscan's dinnerware of the same name.

French Provincial Furniture Has Real Staying Power

In an era of changing home fashions, finding furniture that meets both contemporary living moods and needs can be a problem.

BUT THERE is one period of furniture that has proven staying power. It has never faded away or needed to be revived for well-decorated homes. It is French provincial, born right after the 18th century revolution.

Often described in dictionaries as "a modification of French court styles," French provincial really could be called history's first contemporary furniture, thanks to its basic qualities of being comfortable, lightly scaled and usable.

Smaller Homes, Bigger Families Force Changes

With the population exploding and the world shrinking (not to mention rising building costs), homes are necessarily getting smaller. But, since people are the same size, and busier than ever, something's got to give!

SOMETHING HAS. There are now many new types of home furnishings to make a small house seem larger and live better.

FOR EXAMPLE, one spacemaker chest performs in a minimum of space the services of pieces normally taking up much of a bedroom area.

Slim (26″ wide x 16″ deep) and 70″ tall, the chest provides behind its arched doors all of the following: a dressing mirror with overhead, recessed lighting; a white plastic cosmetic shelf, an electrical outlet, and four drawers especially designed to accommodate toiletries, jewelry, and various wardrobe accessories.

STORAGE SPACE for bulky items, such as hat boxes and shoes, is provided in the base cabinet. Simple in design, the spacemaker is of butternut and pecan woods, finished in a light spice brown.

For the small apartment, or the house without a separate dining room, a compact, completely folding drop leaf table is ideal. From a correlated modular grouping, this table stands only 13½″ away from the wall and can have one extending leaf or two.

Even one person can open it easily, because the legs operate on a scissors action; when one side is moved, the other automatically moves also.

IN A WALNUT finish, classically simple, the table may be used with correlated chairs, suitable for upholstering to suit the home color scheme. Storage decks in the grouping are sized so that one may be placed atop the table at mealtime; some feature tortoise accents.

Another compact arrangement for eating (as well as for working, reading, hiding the television, the stereo, or what-have-you) is available in modular units to be set up like a custom grouping, to your individual needs.

You may choose from the various sizes, types of units, kinds of doors, even colors, as you like. Table tops are laminated plastic.

NOT ONLY may you sit and sleep on a new multipurpose piece which looks like a handsome sofa, you may also store your pillow and extra blanket in it.

In a Spanish design, this unit features exposed wood at the ends in a curved open-arch effect. Its bolster back provides storage space. Many other types of dual-purpose bedding pieces are available to make one space serve two purposes.

Also dual-purpose is a long, low chest styled in the Spanish manner, with a sculptured effect in diamond motifs on six decorative panels on the front.

IT IS AVAILABLE in two finishes, pecan and gold leaf. Its tufted upholstered top makes it useful and comfortable as a bench, as well as a capacious storage piece. Large casters give it easy mobility.

LARGE variety of colonial and provincial styled furniture made by Ethan Allen for the living and dining area is shown here. Maple predominates in the arrangement. Such furniture is shown exclusively by Marin County Furniture of San Rafael, which stocks one of the largest collections of these styles in the Bay Area.

Homes Should Reflect Occupants' Activities

Decorating a-go-go is part of the modern homemaker's way of life.

Today everything is in motion. And homes should reflect activity and flow, and also new interests of its owners. Interior decorating is a dynamic force, a lively challenge that is never finished.

Homemakers see decorating as a woman's privilege to constantly gather, add, subtract, rearrange and put away.

This improvising method of redecorating is easily accomplished and a complete new look or mood can be created with little or no spending. Knowing how to work with what one has in the space available is the crux of a successful change in decor. Accessorizing—conservatively or with poetic license—can then be applied to win a homemaker plaudits for creative genius.

The most versatile and mobile piece of furniture to adapt to a switch in decor is a chair, according to a leading designer. A chair can be an anchor—the springboard or focal point to a setting—or be rotated to blend harmoniously with surroundings. By merely shifting a chair from a corner to a center grouping—or vice versa—a room takes on a refreshing perspective. Often an upholstered chair makes a gracious nook of an unused corner or hard to furnish alcove.

Chairs also can fit in diverse decorating themes. The same classic lines in a chair from one collection, for example, can sit comfortable in traditional elegance or an avant-garde Oriental mood setting, Keller said.

For the Oriental mood, the carved, slope sided chair was finished antique white. It was eased into the bold pageantry of far-out Far Eastern as the foil for a built-in console with simple white top and beams for legs. Inexpensive accessories helped turn the East-meets-West trick, including a copy of an antique Oriental screen and a Ming dynasty horse. Straw mats on the floor; straw fruit; contemporary ceramic ware and a scrolled metal lantern helped to orient the setting, converting an ordinary wall into an atmospheric one.

MUCH like a home furnishings magazine in three dimensions is the display room of newly opened Young Bros., Novato. Dave Young (left) and his brother Harold have set up completely furnished room layouts so buyers can picture a selection just as it may look in their homes. Included in this and other arrangements are such details as wallpaper, lamps, chandeliers and paintings.

THERE is no longer any limitation on where one can put a fireplace in the home, say the makers of this free-standing, lightweight FireHood, available in either wood-burning or gas-filled models at Casper's, San Anselmo. The fireplace offers warmth and decorative style in a corner where one might not have dreamed of putting such a fixture.

New Opulence In Fabrics Aid Demand For Brightness

In keeping with the decorative trend of the times — in which beauty once demanded by Vikings is now the accepted norm in even the low-budget tract house—upholstery fabrics too, have taken on new opulence.

BASKING IN the glories of gilt-rubbed colored wood finishes, on which they reflect their own beauties, are rich velvets, luxurious matelasses, handsome floral patterns, in glowing hues with the romance of the Renaissance.

That these fabulous fabrics are practical, too, protected by special treatment, or by manmade fibers of which they are constructed, is actually beside the point.

Their beauty is sufficient unto itself (although it is comforting to realize that such beauty can be maintained with no particular effort or care).

THE NEWEST upholstered pieces feature such textures as antique slubbed silks, cut velvets, plushes, jacquards. Many are quilted in patterns which contribute to the overall design of the furniture.

Floral patterns reflect today's decorating, featuring large, showy blossom and leaf motifs. Stripes are shown in dramatic color combinations, some with textured effect in the weaves.

Colors glow in deep tones with greens, blue, golds leading the parade. Earth-tones, including oranges and browns, are still popular, but most un-earthy in their treatment.

COMBINING some of the qualities desired in upholstery fabrics today, one firm is offering hand-printed vat-dyed velvets, in stripes and florals, matched to correlated solid colors, in 100% cotton with an easy-care finish.

Textured jacquard in warm tones is used on a sofa to enhance its Mediterranean heritage handsomely. In the same mood is a woven scroll pattern, used on a king-size sleeper-sofa.

For a contemporary line, one designer has produced four richly colored fabrics—chenille, jacquard, and two woven prints.

Outline quilting adds elegance to many of the new seating pieces. A pattern of country flowers is accented by this treatment on the back cushions of a love seat with button-tufted arms and self decking.

FULL-BLOWN roses on the seat and back cushions of a 94" sofa are also dramatized by outlining. All over quilting gives a soft, finished look to a sofa and loveseat covered in flat fabric with a spaced pattern of a period bouquet.

Softness achieved by fabric itself is illustrated in a plush-covered sofa, handled in a "boneless" manner, without front seams or welting.

The seat is button-tufted and rectangular back cushions have rounded edges. Textured tweed stripes cover the high-backed chair by the same manufacturer.

Velvet, widely seen now, achieves the ultimate in luxury and opulence when it incorporates a cut floral pattern, or when it is panne or quilted. Suitable for the most glamorous of queens is an upholstered group combining both cut-patterned and panne velvets.

THE PANNE is set into the patterned covering on the back and deck. Similar richness is illustrated in a Spanish-inspired sectional grouping by this producer, featuring rich velvet with a scrolled quilting pattern on arms, as well as on seat and back cushions.

Another firm has combined solid color and cut-patterned velvets by using the solid on the flared frame and covering all cushions in the patterned fabric.

Variegated stripes and florals are combined in a cut velvet covering used on a living room grouping by this manufacturer.

Room Dividers Highly Popular

The numerous room dividers being introduced by furniture manufacturers recently are no accident; room dividers have taken hold because they WORK.

Properly planned, a room divider can perform as a closed storage piece, bookcase, magazine rack, desk, table, and entertainment center, plus attractively providing privacy or separating home activity centers. What more can you ask?

A typical grouping leaves little to be desired. Designed in modular units to permit versatile arrangement, the pieces feature laminate tops, recessed pulls, and cane, glass, or tambour fronts.

Included among the available units are cabinets, desks, shelves, and cupboards in varying sizes. They are offered in handsome walnut or colored finishes.

A BROAD selection of finishes is also available in other wall units — interchangeable chests, cabinets, desks (or dressing tables), shelves, tables, and magazine racks.

Seven colors — Curacao orange, golden straw, Malibu, winter pear, white, tea, and oiled walnut — are in the one group; painted units may be had with alternate-colored drawers and sliding doors.

All tables and 16″-deep cabinets and chests include matching laminated plastic tops. Shelf-dividers and spring poles are satin bronze-plated.

Still another collection includes a handsome credenza and deck, with backs niched to permit use of the combination as a room divider. Contemporary in design, the group is finished in velvety walnut and features parquet inlays and black bases.

BLACK CAST brass hardware accents the pieces, which are part of a broad collection of correlated bedroom, dining room, and wall units.

Sometimes storage or other utility is not required in a room divider. When simple partition service is desired, you can go all out for handsome appearance in small space.

Decorative see-through panels can be purchased in Mediterranean, traditional, provincial, early American, and contemporary designs, and in such finishes as antique black, wood tones, white, and gold.

ONE GROUP of divider systems includes Seville, Classique, Teardrop, and Woven Reed panels which may be used with tapered or Corinthian fluted tension poles.

These may be used to create a reception area, separating the front door from the living room, or to set off a dining area. A pole lamp in this divider system is ideal for creating a secluded reading corner.

Adjustable trays on tension poles are also among these components, which may be combined to create dividers of any desired length.

Fine solid walnut in a rectangular perforation pattern is utilized in a new divider available in 24″ and 36″ sections. Black or pot aluminum frames and tension poles support the unit.

A DESIGN break-through in kitchen planning, this air conditioned range by Jenn-Air allows total freedom of placement, eliminating the need for a hood over the range. It is featured at Rafael Appliances of San Rafael. The glass sliding doors of the cupboard will not become greasy because fumes and grease are drawn away from the front heating elements through a slot in the raised lid of the range. The oven has a similar feature.

Exotic New Colors Add Spice

Life today is exciting. And it is, literally, colorful, too . . . because home furnishings manufacturers are turning out all types of home needs in a rainbow variety of colors.

BEST OF all, since they are related in their rich depth, the myriad new hues can be used in handsome, combinations to create true decorative distinction for each home. No more mass production "show window" sameness!

Color is taking over from the bottom up, too, with wall-to-wall carpeting and area rugs alike running the palette from most-popular golds and greens through blues, and up to vivid, glowing red. One manufacturer is exploring "the electric power of potent pastels," such as olivene, turquoise, azalea, and Persian yellow.

Equally broad is the color range in furniture itself. Upholstery coverings are offered in all thep rimary hues, generally in warm, mellow tones—with continual emphasis here, also, on greens and golds, and some blues. Brilliant prints are widely available—even including velvets in stripes and all-over florals.

WOOD, TOO, is reflecting today's trend toward color. All of the newest wood furniture groupings are offered in a wide selection of colored finishes.

One new line of tables, armoires, commodes, and other wood pieces is available in ten standard colors, as well as such to-order finishes as Palos Verde (green glaze), Tiffany (silver glaze), Antique White (white glaze), Old World Glaze (yellow-gold glaze).

Sparkling gold finishes are offered in a new bedroom collection in the Mediterranean mood, "Palatine".

GREEN AND gold tones, ranging from olive and avocado to turquoise, are leading the lamp color list, with one firm introducing a 9-light electrified wall sconce in a hand-rubbed antique gold finish with crystals. A collection of wrought iron light fixtures in the Spanish mood is shown in black, white, verde, and other antique colored finishes.

ACRILAN CARPETING, as shown in the fireside setting, is one of the man-made fibers which have gained public acceptance recently. Braverman's Furniture in San Anselmo has featured acrilan by such mills as Lees and Wunda Weve in textures ranging from loop to deep plush pile carpets. Acrilan is used best in areas of heaviest traffic in a home.

Your Bed Can Help, Hinder Your Sleep

Is your bed living up to your need for a good night's sleep?

With the numerous sizes, types of construction and other choices available, the process of choosing is often confusing.

For example, the fact that Americans are growing taller generation by generation has brought about a big boom in super size bedding. Extra length or extra width or both puts a mattress into the super size category. But many persons do no know which size to choose or which sizes are available.

Here are some examples: 39 inches is standard width for a twin or single bed; 54 inches is standard width for a double bed. Because each sleeper in a standard double bed has only 27 inches to call his own, it is no wonder extra widths are so popular.

'Square Look' Is Part Of New Trend To Simplicity

With more and more emphasis being concentrated on color and texture in home decorating today, some furniture designers are moving, quite logically, in the opposite direction. The new pieces that are causing most comment are those that stress elegant simplicity.

"CONTRAST is regarded as the key to smart, livable decor," according to Henry O. Radloff, dining furniture division sales manager of a Chicago firm.

"Therefore, as drapery fabrics and floor coverings become more elaborate in pattern and color, we can expect to see more purely geometric design in furniture to provide the necessary contrast," he predicted.

A forerunner of this trend seems to be the "square look." Already established in high-priced occasional tables and upholstered pieces, it has now been adapted to metal dining furniture for the coming season.

One company, for example, has introduced square-look styling in new tables and chairs that also sport bucket seats obviously inspired by the expensive sports car. Table legs and chair frames are finished in a choice of sparkling chromes, bronze tone or white, depending on the type of room setting the homemaker has in mind.

Styling details include arrow-straight table legs of square metal tubing; gracefully curved aprons outlined in metal; and convex rectangular extension tops, smoothly surfaced with melamine laminate to combine modern elegance with practicality.

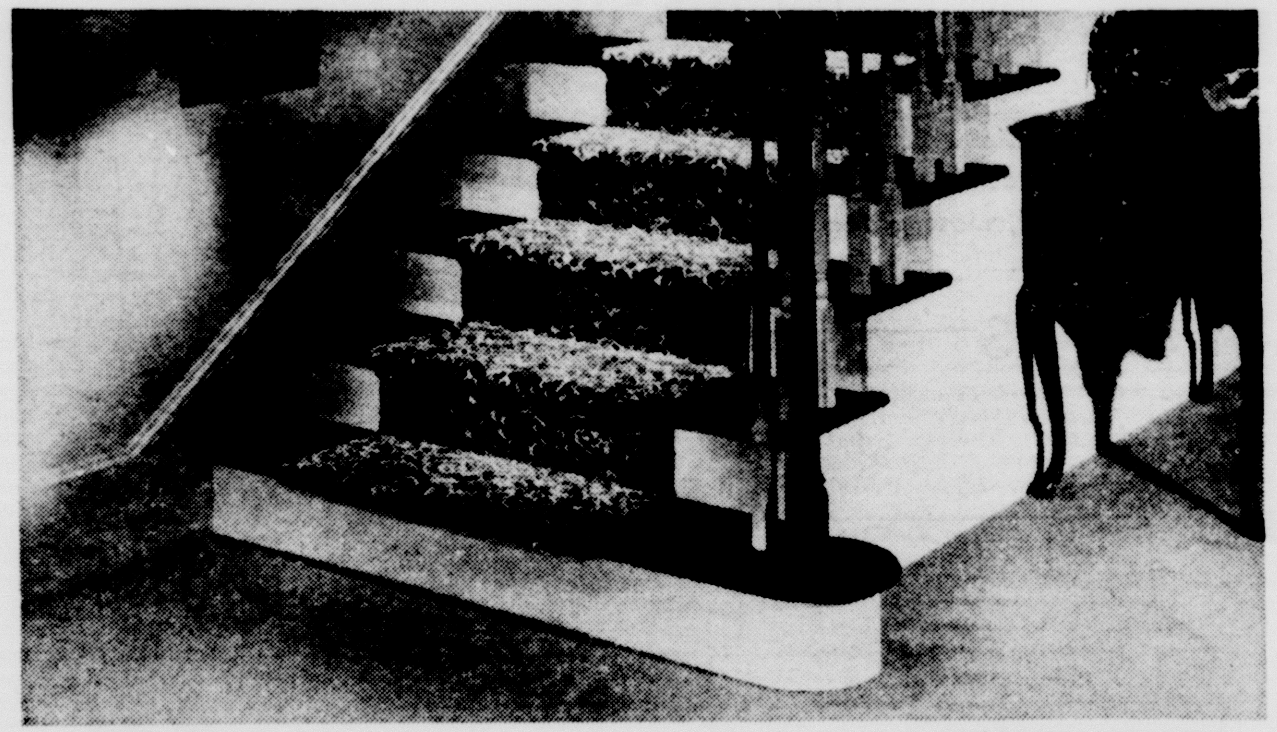
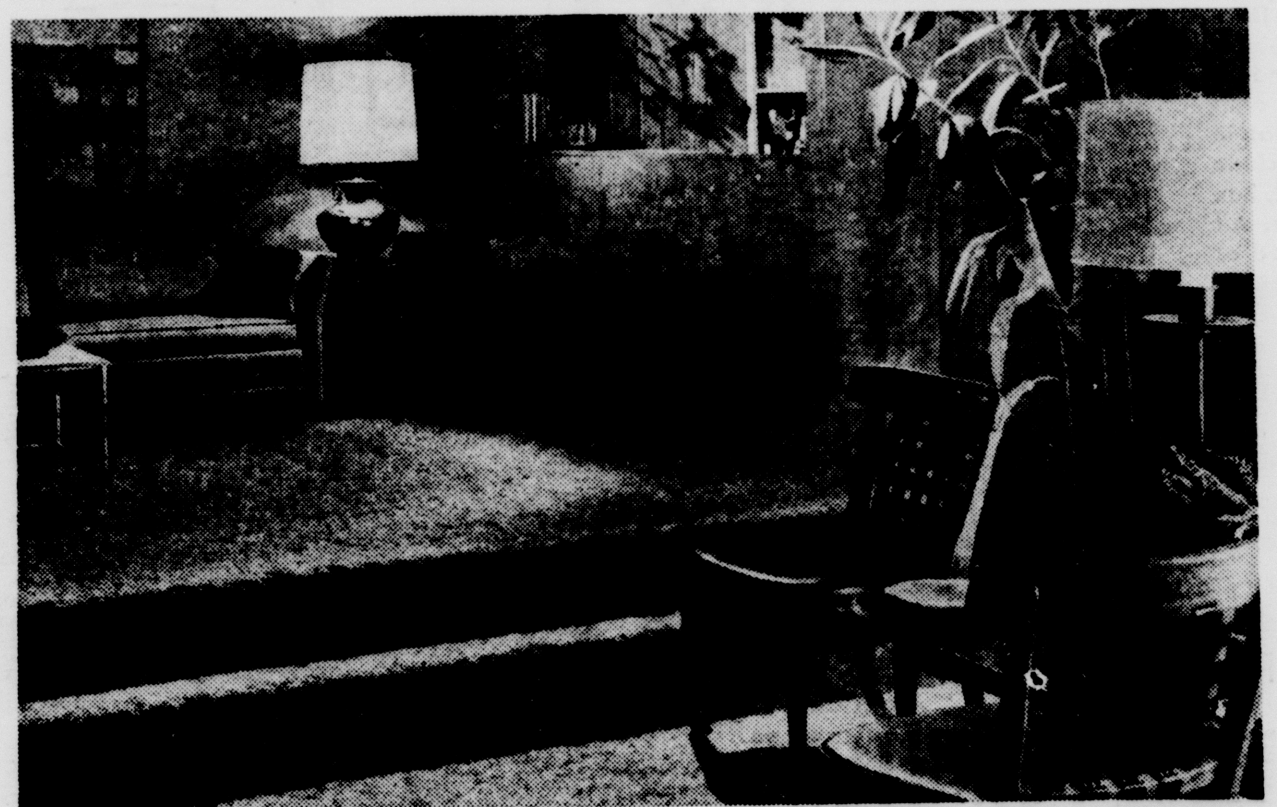
BIG news in fall carpet trends is the idea of contrasting a brightly-patterned carpet or rug with another, nearby carpet of a solid color. First rule is that the solid color bring out one of the hues in the pattern. The combination, designers say, heightens design interest and makes a color scheme workable. In this bedroom-sitting room, furnished with a Victorian air, a large classic floral design is combined wtih a solid-color looped-pile carpet.



TEAM a patterned stairway with a solid-color carpet in the foyer and hallway, emphasizing one of the hues in the patterned carpet. Stairway carpeting can be used in "runner" form, as is shown here, or it can be fitted and installed in a completely covered look, as shown elsewhere on this page. Either way, say carpet makers, it absorbs the clatter of footsteps while it is adding comfort and reducing the chances that anyone will tumble down the stairs.



SEPARATE conversation and entertaining areas are established in a split-level living room with wall-to-wall carpeting as the unifying factor. The style chosen underscores the mood of comfort and hospitality: a multi-level looped pile, highlighted by a mixture of related colors. The carpet, however, is more than decorative. It plays a major role in quieting noise and provides comfort underfoot for family and guests.

Carpets Are Getting Shaggy

Carpet designers have a shaggy texture story to tell for fall, 1965.

IT'S JUST one in a repertoire, all highlighting the importance of texture in forward-looking carpet and rug styles for today's homes.

Texture makes a unique contribution to any room, providing appeal that can be both seen and felt. The pile surface of a carpet or rug is its distinguishing feature, adding comfort underfoot and a decorative note at the same time.

Current carpets and rugs make the most of texture, ranging from the shaggy, tousled look to trim, tight-looped styles, from the plush, deep velvety appearance to the handcrafted appearance of multi-level loops.

Here are just a few of the variations you'll see on the texture theme:

SHAGGY CARPETS and rugs are having a heyday. There are further variations in this group, including those with long, plushy straight yarns; a "tousled" style cropped a bit closer; shaggy carpets and rugs with a twist, or crimped yarns with a nubby feel.

These shaggy styles lend themselves beautifully to use in rug form, as well as for wall-to-wall use. The texture itself often invites the use of frings, and the depth of the texture highlights solid colors or adds a wonderful richness to multi-color combinations.

Texture makes an impact on color in other ways, too. Equally important in new carpet and rug styles are multi-level textures, whether composed entirely of looped pile or a combination of cut-and-looped yarns.

A POPULAR version of this styling is the random-sheared carpet. This style is achieved by constructing the carpet with some loops left purposely higher than others, then shearing them off in a random pattern.

The result is a carpet with a "plushier" look than all-looped pile—and again, the texture heightens color interest. A solid color may have a tone-on-tone effect, since light is reflected in different ways from cut pile and looped pile.

A "classic" carpet texture is, of course, the deep, plush velvet with a straight-yarn, cut-pile surface. Even this comparatively "plain" texture, however, lends a new richness to solid colors because of its depth.

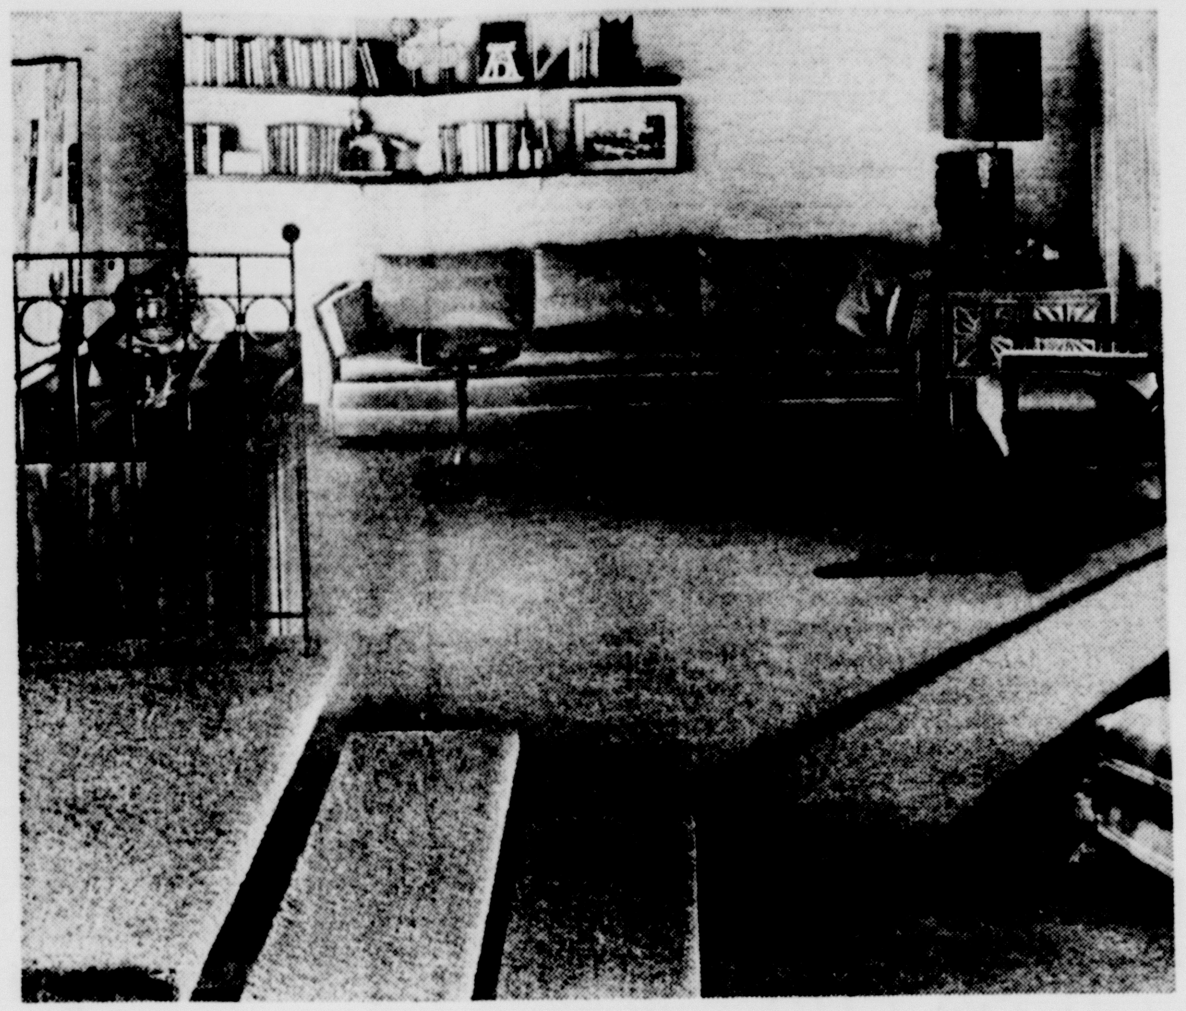
WITH SO many texture styles now available, which should you choose?

Consider the decorative factor. Texture helps to establish the "mood" of a room, and a carpet should underscore the style you prefer. Luxurious plush textures or texture designs such as scrolls or curves may immediately suggest traditional styling. Tight trim loops may suggest more functional furnishings; shaggy textures underscore informal decor or complement the sleek lines of contemporary furnishings.

There are no hard-and-fast rules to follow in selecting texture, but in a general way texture combines with color to suggest a carpet style that is formal or informal, traditional or contemporary.

TEXTURE HAS a practical side, too. Soft, plush textures are at their best in rooms not subject to hard, daily use; tight loops, tight twists or texture patterns combining cut and looped pile help to disguise signs of use between cleanings in the most functional areas of the home.

AND, AS IS true of any carpet, "the deeper, the denser, the better." Regardless of style, the carpet of greatest density wears better. In a dense texture, closely-packed surface yarns help to support each other and resist blending and abrasion —resulting in longer wear and better appearance-retention.



CONTEMPORARY free-standing steps are here "wrapped" with a wool, twist-textured carpet to provide the right emphasis for an inviting living room. This, carpetmakers point out, is just one example of many ways in which stairs may be carpeted and coordinated with carpet in adjoining areas. Putting a carpet on the stairs not only is fashionable, but it makes for greater safety and greatly reduces noise.

Rugs Work Magic By Helping Fool The Eye

No one has yet come up with a magic carpet—not since the days of the Arabian Nights, at least—but modern carpets can work a little magic.

In these days of op art, carpets and rugs can help "fool the eye" if used properly.

CONSIDER, for example, the problem of the room that's too long and narrow. Magic wands aren't readily available, but decorative devices are. Furniture placement can help in adding width to this problem area; a wall treatment with a different color can help eliminate the "hallway" look. And carpeting with a pattern or texture which runs horizontally can help push the walls out and make the room look like a different place.

Or there's the room which is too dark, perhaps because it has few windows or is on the dark side of the house. Rebuilding is one solution—but too expensive is most cases. So light colors in furnishings and better artificial light work the magic.

CARPET in this case should be a light color—and if this seems impractical because of constant, daily use, look at new styles which are easy to clean. Even in a heavy-traffic area, tweeds and color blends in light hues help to disguise soil between cleanings.

Carpet in adjoining rooms or areas can often be combined in a way that works wonders. Related colors can be used in adjacent rooms, or rugs and carpets in the same color and texture can be effectively combined.

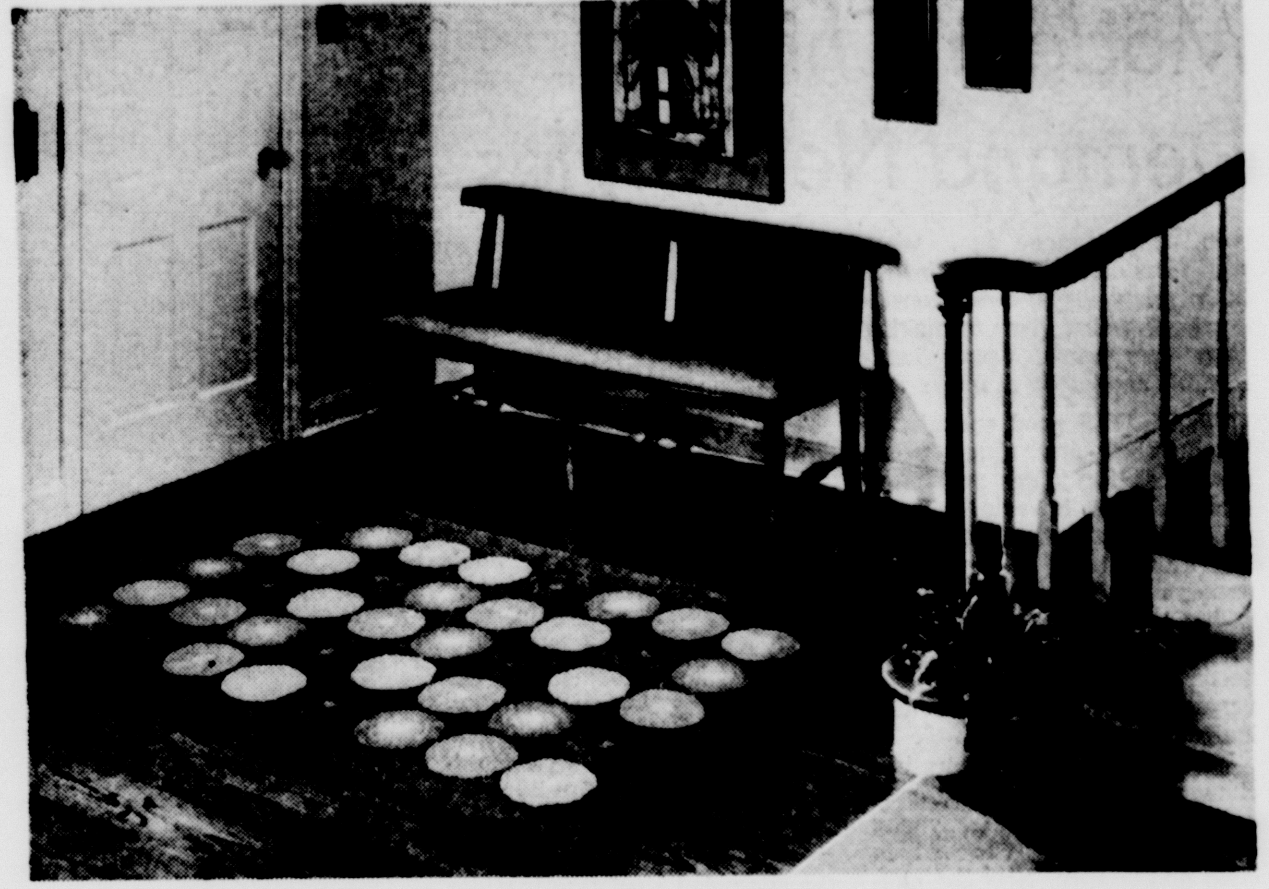
What about the home which is being decorated step by step? That's often the case these days, and a budget-minded homemaker wants to be sure that the process will be sure even if slow.

It's another job for the magic of carpet. Carpeting helps in this instance by, first of all, making a room seem "furnished" from the very beginning, even before decor is complete, and second, by providing a sound basis for future furnishings.

SINCE A RUG or carpet occupies the largest single background area of a room, it should be considered at the beginning of any furnishing or redecorating project.

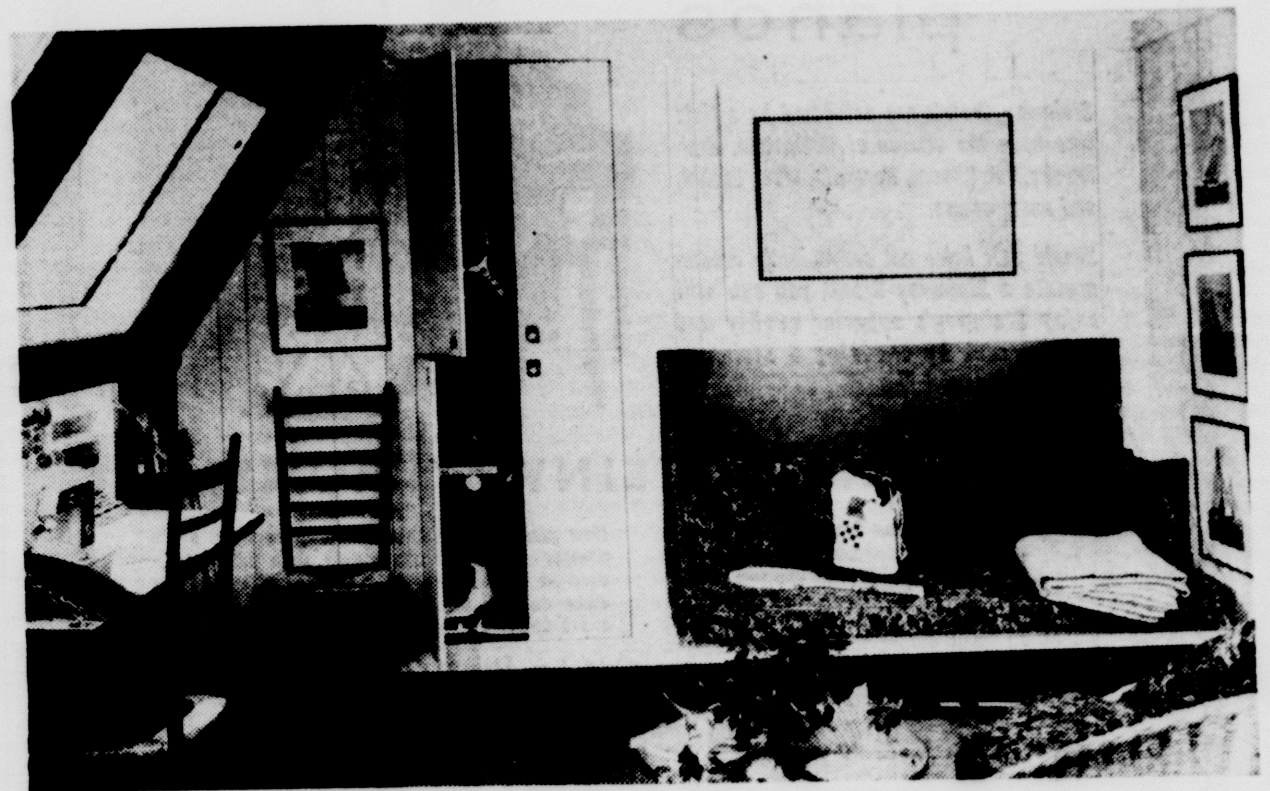
And in addition to the decorative appearance of carpet, many homemakers begin to feel as if a fairy godmother had stepped in with housekeeping help when there are carpets and rugs in the home. Carpet's easy-care features—its ability to give a room a "picked-up" look without constant attention — truly accomplish a little magic in today's busy households.

QUIETER, safer and, say carpet manufacturers, much more pleasant is the kitchen which has a carpet. This sturdy, loop-textured acrylic carpet not only does these things for the kitchen, but extends through into a dining alcove and family room.



EXCITEMENT came into this entry hall when a striking patterned rug was put on the floor. Its design was inspired by colored glass discs. One of the bright hues from the rug is emphasized in solid-color carpeting used on the stairway and in an adjoining hallway. The rug-carpet combination serves a further design purpose in defining the foyer area and establishing the color scheme.

PATTERNS on the floor might surprise some people, but new carpet designs for Fall, 1965, show combinations of color and texture which result in subtle patterns. The rug chosen for this living room has a multi-level looped texture and a russet-gold coloring, with darker yarns emphasizing the texture and giving a "quilted" effect. It is one example of interesting new patterns available at modest prices.



THERE IS space at the top of many a house just waiting to be converted into a warm, useable family room. This one has been designed to provide work and storage areas for the interests and hobbies of a family. Walls and storage areas of laminated plastic are easy to clean, need no painting. The acrylic fiber carpet is soil resistant and deep enough for floor sitters.

Modern Children Demand New Styles

In this space age, when youth has come into prominence in so many ways, more consideration is being given to making even very young people comfortable and happy at home, too.

WHAT WAS good enough for big brother and sister won't always do for junior and baby. And it doesn't have to.

Home furnishings manufacturers have taken a long look at tomorrow's adults and come up with a multitude of pieces designed especially to suit their needs and likes. So even the very young can be home-fashionable today.

While the style of diapers has changed little in the past several years, furniture for young children has moved ahead in style and quality. Now the children's room can look as smart as the rest of the house—even be coordinated with it, if you wish.

A FEW seasons ago, miniature maple pieces, just like Mom's early American groupings, were introduced by juvenile furniture manufacturers.

Now, the latest trend for children's room, as elsewhere in the house, is a painted finish, with the accent on white and gilt. Not only is baby's crib white, with gold accents, but so is dolly's bed, a child's rocker, or a traditional table and chair set for children.

White—wipe-offable and non-delicate—is also a strong favorite in a high style contemporary line. Smaller versions of handsome, practical grown-up pieces, these are light, strong, and easy to clean (impervious to stains).

THEY ARE constructed of such child-indestructible materials as cast aluminum, Formica, fused plastics, and vinyl-covered plastic foams.

Accenting the white in this line of simple, classic modern shapes is a selection of clear tones of red, mustard, green, and blue.

Other colors are available for the youngster's rooms, too. Especially for girls, one manufacturer has added "sweetheart-pink" to its colonial style budget-priced bedroom furniture.

SNOWY WHITE IS used here as an accent with the pink, and the enameled hardware is white also. Decorative interest is enhanced by a dainty floral trim on beds and case pieces.

Even little girls spill things sometimes, though!

So all case tops are surfaced with color-matched laminated plastic for easy maintenance and protection against scars and stains.

And there is encouragement to keep dresser drawers neat when they are finished, as these are, with quaint reproductions of early 19th century newspapers (which can be wiped clean with a damp cloth).

BEST OF ALL, and dear to the heart of almost any little girl, a ruffle-topped tester bed in twin or full size is available in this group.

FUTURE living rooms will surely include television consoles featuring a built-in video tape recorder, which may be used to record a family's favorite programs for later showing, or can even tape scenes in the home using a small video camera. The Ampex unit shown here is already a reality. It is available from Catania Sound, San Rafael.

Laundry Room Can Be Fun

A party in the laundry room?

IT'S NOT as eccentric as it sounds.

Often, the only practical solution to a family space-squeeze is to "double-up" on room functions, with one room serving two distinctly different purposes. Interior designers point out, for example, how a functional basement laundry can be efficiently combined with an attractive recreation room.

"Convenience is the principal advantage of this laundry," according to Margaret Gordon Dana of one firm's bureau of interior design.

The entire cleaning operation—clothes hamper, washer, dryer, sink, and ironing board—is concentrated into one corner. Shelves above the appliances hold detergent, bleach, and other necessary items within easy reach.

MENDING can be done with a portable sewing machine placed on the center table. A fold-out cutting table provides sufficient space for laying out patterns.

Changing the laundry into a party room is simple. The cutting table knocks down and folds against the wall. Colorful red, white, and blue panels slide in front of the appliances. The ironing board slides under the counter, the clothes hamper tilts back into place, the sewing machine goes up on a shelf, place mats are set on the table, a swirling plastic decoration is wound around the lolly column, and presto—it's party time!

Thanks to careful planning, this room is just as practical for parties as it is convenient in its laundry role, Mrs. Dana said. The built-in refrigerator holds enough food for full course dinners or simple midnight snacks.

THE MOBILE oven-range can be rolled out from under the counter to any part of the room. If charcoal broiled steaks are on the menu, the waist high fireplace doubles as a barbecue.

Fireplaces Changing

Like the old gray mare of the familiar song, the open fireplace in many of today's homes "ain't what it used to be."

FOR EXAMPLE, the traditional mantel has nearly disappeared from all but the most formal of homes. And so, as a result, have the candlesticks, vases, standing clocks and figurines that were once standard fare for the wel-dressed mantel.

Because fireplace design has undergone so many changes of late, many homemakers are at a loss when it comes to decorating the hearth area, according to Mary Ann Wills, interior designer and consultant to the makers of one line of wall accessories.

Beauty Playing A Bigger Role

Better Construction Frees Buyers To Think Of Looks

The last decade has witnessed a new trend in furniture buying habits. As with fashions, style and design, not durability, are now the determining factors in the selection of furniture.

THE REASON for the emphasis being placed on esthetic preference and design lines, according to leading manufacturers, is partly due to the fact that shoppers today take certain structural factors for granted.

In the thirties, a consumer first wanted to know whether the joints of furniture would hold, if the veneers would remain glued and not warp or peel, if the finishes would stand up to demands of time and wear. Today's homemaker is confident that she can expect a high degree of performance and quality from most reputable brands sold through reliable local outlets.

In most cases—regardless of price—design, finish and utility today are the three main factors that influence the purchase of furniture. This new buying attitude has evolved since the furniture industry has, in the past few decades, made great strides in revolutionizing production.

THANKS TO technical improvements in machinery and equipment, development of new glues and finishing materials, and advanced engineering, packing and shipping methods, the public is getting more value in furniture than before.

Veneered furniture, taboo in the thirties, is highly popular today due to the use of improved glues which have virtually eliminated separating. In fact, the use of wood veneers has expanded the range of furniture design since they are available in a wider variety from all over the world than are solid woods.

Another giant step made by the industry is the development of plastic laminates that are virtually indistinguishable from real wood. Offering the best of two worlds, protection and beauty, these wood-grained laminates are particularly popular and practical for occasional and party table tops.

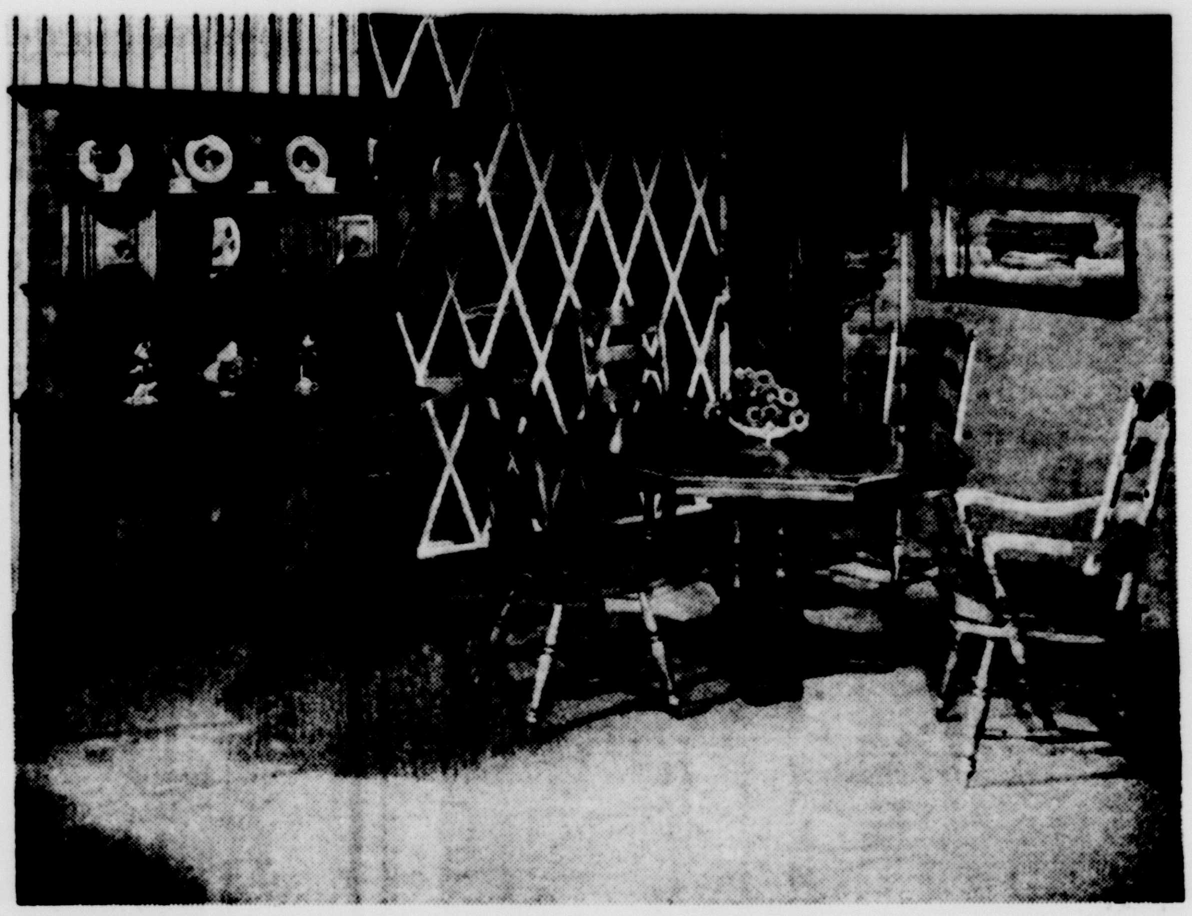
Highly improved machinery and methods also have resulted in a new excellence of intricate carvings in traditional furniture styles. Although most of these carvings are hand done, the use of new techniques has put furniture of this style within reach of the medium income group.

ANOTHER IMPORTANT selling feature which adds distinction and character to furniture is the finish. It is second in importance to style in the selection of furniture, and there are numerous types offered, including opaque, translucent, painted, pigmented, distressed and brushed finishes.

Hand-padding, the actual application of pigment by hand, and distressing, the intentional marking of wood to simulate an antique look, contribute greatly to the character, interest and quality of the furniture.

The trend towards fashion as the basic motivating factor in selection of furniture, in contrast to other factors which dominated consumer purchasing not too many years ago, is also attributable to the fact that consumers today are much more fashion - conscious and knowledgeable than they were as recently as the fifties.

This trend to fashion and style, whether it be in apparel or home furnishings, is expected to continue to grow in importance in the years ahead.



THE COLONIAL styling of this dining room suite features solid hard eastern birch and is on display at Johnson's Red Barn, Novato. The 48-inch octagonal table extends to a full 96 inches. The hutch cupboard has felt-lined silver compartments and linen drawer.

Hold Their Color

Because of hardy dyes, American carpets do not fade easily. Give them the normal protection from direct sunlight you would give any colored fabric, and you'l find that they hold their color well. In most cases, what seems to be "fading" is just a film of atmospheric soil which dulls colors. Thorough cleaning will quickly correct the situation.

Outdoor Furniture Can Last Long Time If Properly Made

Outdoor furniture takes a real beating from sun, rain, wind, dew and water splashes at poolside.

If it's constructed well and with materials that can take this punishment, it can provide comfort, good looks and easy maintenance for 10 years and longer.

THREE OF THE most important criteria are weather-resistance, quick usability after a soaking and stability combined with portability, said Jack Wallace, designer for Lee L. Woodard Sons, Owosso, Mich., manufacturer of wrought iron furniture.

"The first requirement of outdoor furniture is that it be water - resistant, especially to moisture," he said.

This means that metal surfaces must be protected against rust, preferably by the use of shot blasting, metallic zinc, undercoats, and several coats of baked enamel."

With this kind of finish, wrought iron can be guaranteed to resist rust and corrosion for 10 years, even in coastal areas where corrosive salt air is a problem, Wallace said. There's no need to repaint every two or three years.

NON-METAL materials on the furniture also should be weather resistant. Seats and back wrapping made of heavy plastic to simulate woven rush are especially good since moisture can't affect them.

"Nowadays you can even get upholstered cushions that resist the ravages of moisture," Wallace said. "Up to now, if you upholstered outdoor furniture, you had to bring the cushions inside at night and whenever it rained. But a new type of cushion construction called Drain-dri eliminates this nuisance."

Drain-dri cushions permit the water to pass right through. Because they "breathe," the cushions dry quickly inside and out, and resist mildew. Mud and dirt can be removed with a garden hose and by scrubbing with a detergent and water. You can sit on these cushions, wearing a wet bathing suit, and not damage them.

ANOTHER development in weather-resistant materials for outdoor furniture is the fiberglass table top made to resemble slate but without the combersome weight of real slate. One version of an outdoor dining table using this fiberglass material comes with an octagonal top large enough to seat eight people.

"A second requirement for good outdoor furniture is that it be usable as soon as possible after a rainstorm or splashing from a nearby pool," Wallace said.

For this reason, mesh top table and woven mesh chairs are recommended. Drain-dri cushions also are suitable since water passes right through and there is a minimum of surface to remain wet.

THESE MATERIALS also are comfortable to sit on and use even after they've been baking in the hot sun all day, because of the open construction that lets them breathe.

"Solid metal surfaces on tables and chairs, even if they have drain or weep holes, will usually need wiping to dry them before use, especially after a heavy dew," Wallace said. "And a hot sun makes them really uncomfortable."

If a glass top table is desired for outdoor use, Wallace recommends a top of translucent tempered safety glass. The translucent surface won't show the dew or water spots as readily as clear glass, and tempered glass supplies strength.

Stability combined with portability is a third requirement. Outdoor furniture should be heavy enough to withstand toppling by a strong wind, yet light enough to be easily moved on the patio or lawn.

Solution For Stains

Here's a simple cleaning solution to use for most foodstains on carpet: One teaspoonful of neutral detergent and one teaspoonful of white vinegar in a quart of warm water. After blotting up excess stain, gently wipe the carpet with a clean white cloth or sponge moistened in this solution. Then dry the spot, again by blotting, and brush carpet pile gently.

Parents Find Teeners Eager To Participate In Redecorating Plan

While the teen years are those in which young people begin to look beyond their families and homes for broader horizons, this is also the period when they make a closer, more critical study of those families and homes.

MANY PARENTS, therefore, find this an ideal time to redecorate, allowing the teen-age members of the family to participate.

Of special interest to the young people are their own rooms — which can provide their first taste of what it will be like to have homes of their own.

A teen-ager's room can offer an opportunity for creative decoration, a refuge against the world that doesn't (at the moment, anyway) understand, and an entertainment center — all needs of the busy, changeable moods and life of the average teener.

IN DECORATING his or her room, today's young person will find ample inspiration among the new home furnishings. Ideal for the sleep-sit use the teen room caters to are dual-purpose sleepers, which now don't show their duplicity.

A handsome example from one manufacturer is a collection featuring a bed and sofa which will seat three or four by day and sleep two by night.

Avaliable in a selection of striking print upholstery coverings, the piece is handsomely framed in exposed wood, with a simple, classic carved design for decorative interest.

ANOTHER upholstered piece which should find favor with teens is a "curl up" chair — tufted, barrel-backed, and half again as wide as a conventional chair.

Comfortable even for an adult, seated in normal position, this chair lends itself beautifully to the many conformations of the reading, studying, or telephoning teenager.

It can be had in a wide selection of upholstery fabrics, alive with color and textures for creative decorating.

FOR SERIOUS studying, another manufacturer has introduced a modular collection, to combine in any desired groupings. Chests, desks, and bookshelves are included, to stow the clutter and provide spacious, convenient work areas as well.

Open and glass-fronted shelves provide handy spots for collections, and tilted magazine or book racks are decorative and practical.

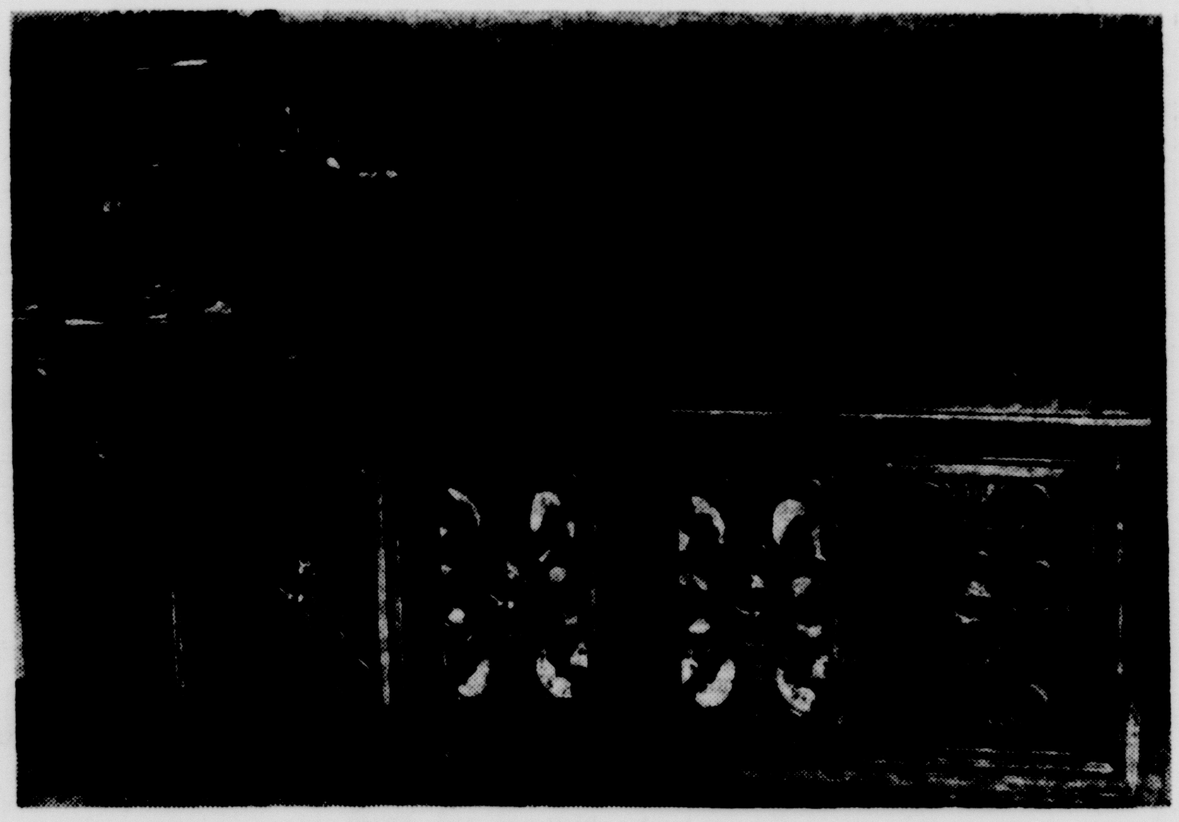
Corner units facilitate arrangement of the pieces in any shape or size room. They are in a bright variety of colored finishes, topped with white plastic, some with natural cane accents.

HAVING BEEN looking ahead for over half a century, a case goods manufacturer which originally limited its production to cedar chests has expanded its line to a full collection of storage pieces.

Still specializing in an age market—under 25—which it believes of extreme importance, this firm has introduced a versatile collection.

Small, scaled and offering infinite variations in combining unit arrangements of its chests, cupboards, and bookcases, this collection achieves broad versatility with a combination of only 2 basic widths (32" and 24" units), from which any number of groupings can be created to fill the needs of any size room.

REVERSIBLE front panels (see inset) on the buffet and china cabinet doors highlight this dining room group by Bernhardt at Bell's Interiors of San Rafael. The Spanish set is in walnut with a golden brown fruitwood finish. It is shown here in an early California setting.



KIM'S Sound Center of Northgate Shopping Center is featuring the new Scott stereo console in Copley Mediterraneean design, either in distressed walnut or custom antique lacquer finishes. Cloth covers behind the snap-out grills may be chosen to match room decor.

Change The Lanes

Do you have regular "traffic lanes" in your home? Most homes do—and changing these from time to time will distribute wear evenly on carpets and rugs, thus increasing service from your floor coverings.

NOW A SHOWPLACE

Elegance Gives Bath A Brand New Look

No room presents such a creative challenge in home modernization as the bathroom. Perhaps it's because so much can be done with it.

First of all, the bathroom must satisfy the utility and esthetic needs of the family whose personality it reflects. It should reveal the homemaker's good taste and understanding of decorating fundamentals.

Today's bathroom is often the showplace of the home — and it's seen by almost every guest. A real sense of pride comes from having it admired by visitors.

NO EFFORT has been spared to give the modern bathroom a look of elegance. Many of the country's top interior decorators have contributed. While the average homemaker probably won't try to duplicate the lavish bathrooms illustrated in "home fashion" magazines precisely, she nevertheless can pick up many valuable and practical tips to work into her own modernization plans.

One of the newest and most practical ideas is compartmentizing—that is, separating toilet, lavatory and bathtub with some form of partitioning. This enables two or more persons to use the bathroom simultaneously in complete privacy.

Lavish use of color gives new glamor to the bathroom. Think back to the bathrooms of just a few years ago. They were about as imaginative as a blank wall—three white fixtures, white tiled floors and walls, and even white bathmat and curtains. They looked cold and clinical.

MANY PEOPLE, of course, still prefer white fixtures, directing color accents to walls, floors and accessories for interest and contrast. Still, the trend today definitely is toward colored fixtures: rich tones of pink, blue, green, ivory, suntan, lilac and yellow. They come in more solid shades of the basic colors, too.

Bathtubs are available in a wider range of styles and sizes than ever before. Much attention has been focused in recent years on the small tub, but large ones are making a strong comeback. Nearly every fixture manufacturer offers five and five-and-a-half-foot models. Some even have six-foot tubs, long enough for the tallest folks to stretch out for a relaxing soak.

Today's tubs are smartly styled and sleek-looking, built low—making it easier to get in and out. Front edges are flat. One or more integral seats often are provided as a convenience in foot bathing, or bathing small children. Another new feature on some tubs is a built-in whirlpool bath device, for soothing and relaxing muscles and nervous strain.

IT IS NOW common to include an overhead shower with the tub, and attractive effects can be achieved by enclosing the tub with safety glass or highly decorative and durable synthetic doors that swing out or slide on rust-proof hinges or runners.

Individual built-in or pre-fabricated shower stalls are becoming more popular. There's a thermostatic shower control available that can be set to any desired temperature and held there, regardless of pressure fluctuations.

It permits dialing exactly the right temperature before stepping into the shower. Modern showerheads are self-cleaning and have a regulating valve to control size and intensity of the spray.

This year's lavatories are another good example of the drive to put beauty into the bathroom. Some high-style types feature floral and other designs around the perimeter of the bowl. Matching accessories in faucet handles, toilet seats, towels and tile also are available.

FOR THE ultimate in bathroom elegance and luxury, the homemaker will choose a vanity lavatory. Here, the lavatory is built into stainproof, waterproof plastic or marble-like countertops, with plenty of drawer and storage beneath. There is usually foot space below to permit using a chair, as well.

More and more toilets now are installed on the wall, making it a breeze to clean the floor, and even permitting the use of wall-to-wall carpeting, without having to cut a hole for the base.

While many improvements in bathroom fixtures are apparent to the eye, even more have been built into the inner workings to improve operating efficiency. The one-piece toilets, which combine bowl and tank into a single, integral fixture bear little resemblance to the antiques of yesterday.

One of the most objectionable features of the old toilet was the conspicuous noise it made when flushed, clearly audible through out the house. Thanks to major engineering improvements, today's models are virtually silent.

FOR SAFETY'S sake, modern toilets are equipped with vacuum breakers to prevent back-siphonage of contaminated water into the drinking water supply. Some water closets are designed to prevent "sweating" (moisture condensation) on the outside of the tank in hot weather.

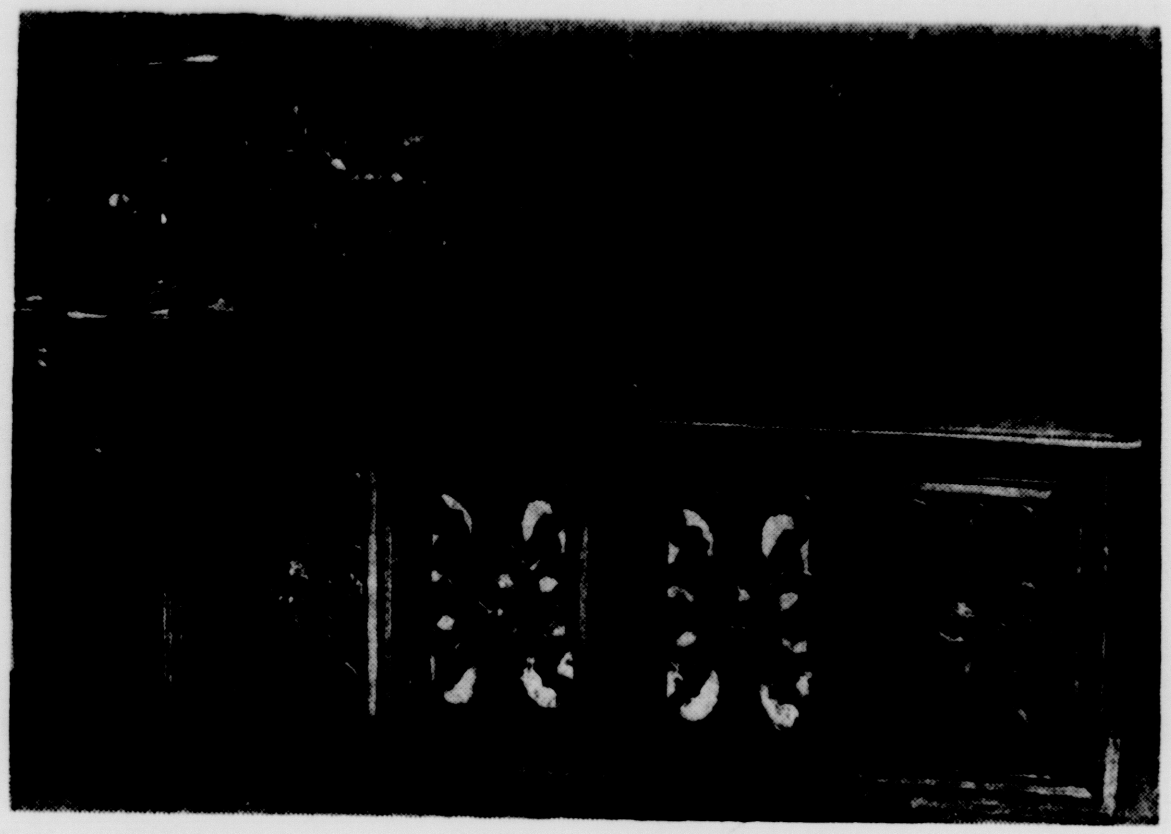
Once the basic fixtures have been selected, the homeowner can plan the bathroom decor around them. Many beautiful and unique effects are possible with the wide range of materials available in wall and floor coverings.

One popular wall treatment is a combination of tile and waterproof wallpaper. Floors can be finished in tile or linoleum, or carpeted wall-to-wall. Lighting can be provided by either direct or indirect means, in a host of modern attractive fixtures. Interesting color accents are provided with drapes or curtains on the bathroom window, and also with bathmats and shower curtains.

Today's medicine cabinet is spacious inside, and comes with a large mirror flanked with lights to reflect the room and give it an extra touch of luxury. Many come with locks to keep medicine beyond the reach of small children.

FINISHING TOUCHES include recessed soap dishes, towel bars and chromium-plated grab bars for convenience and safety in the tub and shower. Also available are revolving combination soap, toothbrush and water tumbler holders which disappear into the wall when not in use, and a variety of other modern accessories—such as magazine racks.

Many homeowners no longer are satisfied with just one bathroom. Most new homes now have at least a bath and a half or a powder room.



CHARM and warmth of the French Provincial period are shown in this Magnavox instrument featuring stereo FM, monaural FM/AM radio phonograph, available at Hoy's TV and Music Stores, San Anselmo and San Rafael. The hi-fi is available in distressed cherry or antique ivory finish accented with gold striping.

"What Happened To The Yellow Color In My Drapes?"

It is generally known that fabrics, when exposed to light, lose their strength. However, what is not so well known is that fabrics which are dyed with yellow, orange or dyes which contain these colors, are especially susceptible to damage from light. Sunlight, direct or even indirect, combined with high humidity, form hydrogen peroxide that weakens the printed areas. This is not noticable at first. However, when the fabric is cleaned, the mechanical action causes the weakened areas to break.

Silk and nylon are more quickly affected than rayon or cotton. However, if the yellow-printed areas were the ones to shred, as in your drapes, it is apparent that the fault is not that of the fabric or the cleaning. The fault is in the dye. The yellow. It reacted to sunlight and humidity first, because certain yellow dyes generate more peroxide than others and peroxide weakens the fabric. Knowing this, most drycleaners accept drapery fabrics only at the owner's risk.

Stereo Hi-Fi

By C. J. Catania
Audio Engineer

FURNISHING YOUR HOME. During the past several years, I have been in hundreds of homes where it was extremely difficult to find an area for a stereo music system. Why? In those homes, there was so much furniture—most of it not adding any utility or comfort to the room—that there was no place for additional furniture.

If you are newlyweds or are starting the furnishing of your home, remember that one of the most often used items in the home will be the stereo home music system. A good stereo console should be 75 or more inches long. That is not small. It has to be that long to provide adequate separation of the speakers. If the music console is going to be in three separate pieces of furniture; that is, the equipment console in the center and a speaker system on each end, the entire length may be 8 feet or more. These lengths require planning.

Too long you say? Just walk into a home that has an elegant 75 inch console along one wall with a tall lamp or vase on one end of the console. You will find it to be the focal point of the room, and you will find that it adds tremendously to the decor of the room.

Start your planning by allocating a place for a long console in the living room. Then plan your end tables and seating to blend in with the console. The stereo furniture piece can be a thing of beauty. Large pieces can be quite outstanding. Why clutter your room with large quantities of meaningless furniture pieces that do nothing! Make each piece of furniture a functional piece.

When you are ready to choose your stereo system, don't just shop around for some ready made thing in the hopes of finding something that will meet with your furniture requirements. Shop around for an elegant furniture cabinet specifically designed for stereo, then have your stereo specialist put in the components to fit your budget and taste in sound.

There are hundreds of styles to choose from. The new Spanish and Mediterranean series can add a graceful touch to your home. The Italian Provincials and the French Provincials are still favorites for some. There are many new contemporary designs. Some designs, like our Mediterranean Barcelona, will blend in with many styles of furniture.

Rules To Follow In Papering

Color Scheme, Drape Designs Offer Clues

Walls can set the decorating scheme in a room, so the right selection of pattern, scale, color and type of wallpaper can be a confusing one for do-it-yourself decorators.

There is a wealth of wallpaper patterns and colors available, ranging from textures, stripes, florals and flocks to toiles, geometrics, novelties and scenic designs.

BASIC DECORATING ground rules should guide the selection of the right paper for a room, says the Wallpaper Council, Inc. It offers these suggestions for a tasteful decorating scheme:

—If you are refreshing a room, rather than completely redecorating, be guided by floor and furniture coverings and draperies.

For instance, if you have a multi colored pattern in your floor covering or figured draperies or furniture coverings, your walls can be colorful, but not predominantly patterned. Select a paper in colors that will blend with other furnishings or consider a wallpaper in a design of grasscloth, shiki silk, a textured effect or a simple stripe in soft colors that will repeat the colors of your dominating pattern.

—A damask pattern is an excellent choice for a traditional room, or a geometric for a contemporary room. Don't overlook papers in three-dimensional effects such as spatter, brick, plaster, fret or wood paneling.

IF THE FABRICS and floor coverings are plain, tweeds or textures, there are hundreds of wallpaper patterns from which to choose.

—For a small room, the Council suggests a pattern with a light background and a widely spaced design to create the feeling of more space. Avoid patterns that are too bold when treating all walls alike.

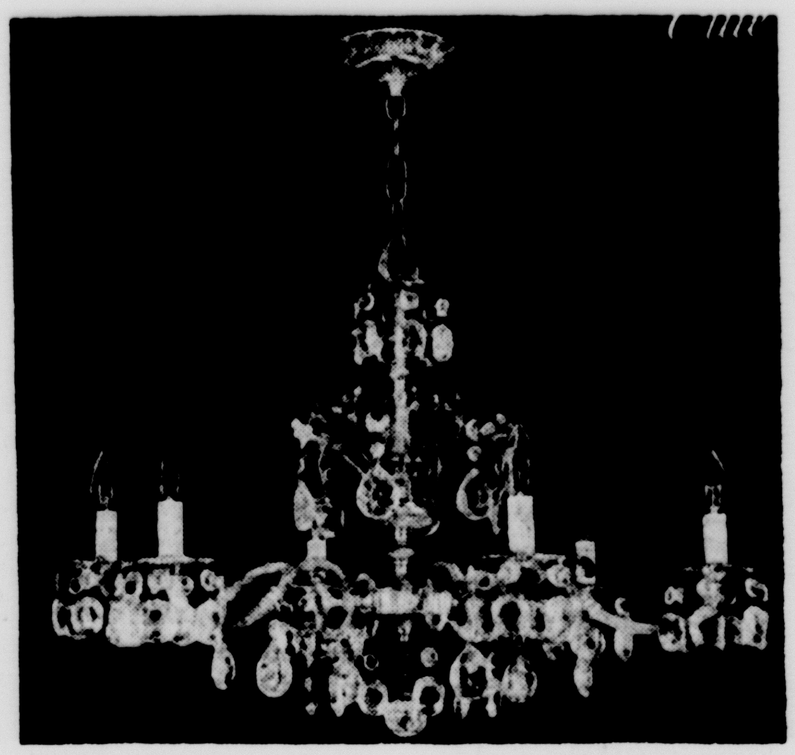
Scenics can be found in many different themes and are excellent for one wall of a small room. The other three walls can be covered in a matching ground paper.

IF YOU SHOULD decide on a bold pattern to add zip to a small room, use it on one wall as an accent. Use a textured paper in the pattern's background color for the other walls.

—Large rooms are ideal for wallpapers because you can select almost any design without too much concern for scale. Remember only to limit your large pattern to one category of furnishings—either floor, furniture, windows or walls.

Wide Wide World

Sales of broadloom—or wide-width carpet—keep growing annually. It is estimated that 85 per cent or more of total United State production is in 12-foot or wider widths.



DINING elegance is achieved with a graceful traditional or contemporary chandelier, which now can be regulated with new inexpensive electronic dimmers. Such dimmers may be purchased at Marin Lights of San Rafael and used in many rooms of the house, making rooms dim for watching television or bright for family games.

Old Outdoor Standby Is Moving Indoors

Wrought iron, long the furniture of choice for outdoor use, is now moving indoors to grace the family dining room.

DISPLAYS AT the 1965 summer home furnishings markets, where the newest fall and winter furniture is being shown, indicate that manufacturers are discovering new ways to blend wrought iron with indoor dining decor.

Traditional materials such as wood and new synthetics, including plastic laminates, are being used as table tops on wrought iron bases for an atmosphere of warmth and style.

Expandable tables with rectangular and round tops make a wrought iron dining ensemble equally suitable for serving a family of four people or a dinner for eight.

IN DESIGNS, finishes, colors, and upholstery, the newest showings offer variety that makes it possible to select a wrought iron dining set for any type of decor, including Mediterranean, Traditional, Provincial, and Contemporary.

One leading manufacturer is introducing new pedestal and rectangular dining tables which it believes will make wrought iron a best-seller for breakfast areas and kitchens as well as for dining rooms.

"UNTIL RECENTLY, if you wanted to use wrought iron indoors, you had to be satisfied with tables with glass or mesh tops—hardly suitable for many types of decor," explained Jack Wallace, stylist for the company.

The addition of wood and plastic laminate tops expands the usefulness of wrought iron indoors. Wallace feels that many people will buy a wrought iron dining ensemble of table and chairs, and then purchase conventional wood dining case goods, such as a buffet or china cabinet, to complement it.

"The old practice of buying a completely matched dining suite is almost passe," he said. "Interior designers today are mixing correlated pieces of various designs to create a truly individualized appearance."

EXPANDIBILITY is one of the most important features people look for in choosing dining furniture, Wallace said.

OCTOBER Show of Styles FOR HOMES

Here's an open invitation to come in and see the new furniture and decorating ideas that are making fashion headlines this fall. The emphasis is on classic silhouettes . . . demanded by America's sophisticated tastes! Featured woods are oak and pecan, along with such perennial favorites as cherry, maple and walnut. Finishes are light—white is gaining prominence—and the antiqued or "heirloom" look is everywhere, adding to the authenticity of period designs. Upholstery fabrics are sumptuously luxurious . . . textured, figured or patterned for interest. Colors are bold, exciting, daringly combined for a refreshing feeling of youthful verve. Carpeting is thicker, softer, with a marked accent on color and pattern!
